FRANCE STRIPS TO SAVE SELF

$241,235 TOTAL UTILITY SLUSH IN SMITH FUND

Moore Collects 85 Per Cent of It.

Slush Contributions

The following table shows the total of April primary collections admitted to date in the senate inquiry:

Spent for—	Amount.
Frank L. Smith	$287,282.70
William B. McKinley	354,616.72
Deneen county ticket	130,894.63
Crowe-Barrett ticket	171,500.00
George E. Brennan and Democrats	20,841.42
Total admitted	$965,135.47

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The total is $241,235.19.

That is the aggregate admitted to date which three public utility executives contributed in the primary of April 13 last,—and the Small-Lundin outfit are yet to be heard from. They are expected to add $10,000 more.

This $241,235.19 is 25 per cent of $965,135.47,—the aggregate admitted expenditures of all factions to date.

Smith Got Lion's Share.

But more significant than the huge total is the sworn testimony of Allen F. Moore that he collected 85.5 per cent of the $241,235.19 for Frank L. Smith, the winning Republican candidate, who has been for six years chairman of the Illinois commerce commission which regulates the rates and issuance of securities of the state public utilities. Of the utility men's coin, Mr. Smith received $206,235.19.

The total reported spent for Mr. Smith is $287,282.70. Deducting what Smith himself and his campaign manager put up—$78,117.51—and it is apparent that the utility men contributed all but $3,400 of the entire Smith campaign fund. It was the golden voice of the utility men, represented by $206,235.19, rather than the donations of common people, represented by $3,400, which smoothed the path of success at the primary for the man from Dwight.

The Utility Donors.

The above summarizes the outstanding feature of the first week's work in Chicago of the senate slush fund committee. The sworn testimony shows that the money from the utility men came from these individuals:

SAMUEL INSULL, controlling factor in the Commonwealth Edison company, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, the Chicago Rapid Transit lines, the North Shore line, the South Shore line, the Central Illinois Public Service company, the Illinois Northern Utilities company, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and several smaller companies.

CLEMENT STUDEBAKER, controlling factor in Illinois Power and Light corporation, which includes the McKinley system of interurban lines.

IRA D. COPLEY of the Western United Gas and lectric company, which was revamped financially last January.

DANIEL SCHUYLER, sometimes an Insull attorney, this time handled some of Mr. Insull's cash in propaganda against the world court.

What They Gave.

The gifts of these gentlemen to Mr. Smith's campaign fund were as follows, according to the sworn record:

Gifts—	Amount.
Mr. Insull's first gift	$50,000
Mr. Insull's second gift	50,000
Mr. Insull's third gift	25,000
Mr. Studebaker's first gift	10,000
Mr. Studebaker's second gift	10,000
Mr. Copley's first gift	10,000
Mr. Copley's second gift	15,000
Mr. Schuyler's gift	2,500
Mr. Insull's indirect gift	33,735
Total to Smith	$206,235

Mr. Insull's other campaign gifts were:

Deneen county ticket	$10,000
Crowe-Barrett ticket	10,000
Brennan and Democrats	15,000
Total	$35,000

What Did Lundin Get?

There is only one faction left—Small-Lundin—which took a prominent part in the primary. In view of the evidence already submitted it is difficult to believe that Mr. Insull played favorites in the local scraps, and it is therefore presumed he also gave the Small-Ludin crowd a bag of gold to play with. But this is yet to be learned.

Reporters who are intimately acquainted with Senators Reed and La Follette predict that the committee will attempt to ascertain whether Mr. Insull, Mr. Studebaker, Mr. Copley and [illegible]

POINCARE WHIPS DEPUTIES INTO VOTING TAX BILL

Wins Fight to Put Life in Franc.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, July 31.—THE TRIBUNE is reliably informed tonight that the Poincare government is on the point of completing negotiations for foreign credits sufficient to guarantee the stabilization of France's finances.

The chamber of deputies tonight, by a vote of 295 to 188, with only two abstentions, agreed to the great national sacrifice in the form of the heaviest supplementary fiscal program voted by any country in years.

The chamber meekly agreed to a ban on all amendments and limitation of speech to five minutes. This virtually smothered the opposition and silenced talkative members of the majority. The vast taxation program was voted speedily.

France tonight has its budget balanced for the current year, with 2,500,000,000 francs ($60,750,000) in new resources and 10,000,000,000 francs ($243,000,000) in new resources assured in 1927 by projected taxation.

Poincare Waves Whip.

Blunt old M. Poincare brandished the whip of national necessity, recalling the war days when "parliament knew how to adapt itself to the demands of national defense."

"We must do the same thing today, sacrificing all secondary considerations to the safety of France," he said.

Regarding the demand for an increase in railway fares, M. Poincare said the tariffs of France are 50 per cent less than in any other country.

"There are people who would like to start all over and build afresh on the ruins of the franc. I affirm once and for all that such is not my policy," he asserted.

Raise Interest on Bonds.

By decree M. Poincare raised the interest on national defense bonds from 5 to 6 per cent, at the same time increasing the discount rate of the Bank of France from 6 to 7 per cent. This one fell swoop is expected to encourage the purchase of the defense bonds and check their sale.

Having thus forced France into a mighty internal effort, the National Union Poincare government now believes the time has come to clinch the external support for the essential stabilization. Joseph Caillaux made his mistake in asking the chamber to swallow new loans, which he said only were obtainable through the ratification of the debt accords.

Goes to Holland for Cash.

Premier Poincare is going to get his money from Holland, THE TRIBUNE is informed from the highest authority, as there are no accords to ratify with that country.

The Dutch bankers have assured him full support in following out the experts' plan for stabilization, although he still is dickering with the English banks. The permier is confident that he will get the money from London without immediate ratification of the Anglo-French debt pact, but if the negotiations break down because the accord is not ratified, he is ready suddenly to demand that the chamber approve it next week. But the ratification on the Washington agreement is out of the picture.

To Call National Assembly.

The premier plans to convoke the national assembly, sitting amidst the glory of Versailles, to establish the sinking fund to retire the national defense bonds, totalling 50,000,000,000 francs ($1,215,000,000). He hopes to call the assembly Tuesday.

The new premier and chief of French finance announced tonight he would present a project for the establishment safeguarding and feeding of the sinking fund on Monday and call the chamber of deputies and senate to sit together in an extraordinary assembly, usually only called for elections, and would ask the two bodies to indorse it.

This grand gesture is intended to improve the country's morale.

RICH YANK WILLS $20,000 TO GIRL HE KNEW 2 DAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 31.—Somewhere in central Europe there is a pretty young Polish woman named Emma Jedlicka, who does not know that she has inherited $20,000 from an American with whom she was acquainted only two days.

Thirty years ago Charles Bregulitch, a poor Polish boy, emigrated to the United States, became rich, and was naturalized. In 1915 he came to Vienna and met the Polish dancing girl in an amusement park. Two days later Mr. Bregulitch left the city. He never saw the girl again.

Last spring he died at Milton, Ont., and willed $20,000 each to the girl and a former friend, plus $5,000 to the latter on condition that he would spend it in finding the girl.

WILLIAM A. BRADY IS INJURED BY FALL IN THEATER

William A. Brady, New York theatrical producer, was carried to his rooms in the Congress hotel unconscious late yesterday afternoon following an accidental fall from the stage of the Studebaker theater while he was directing a rehearsal.

The producer remained unconscious for some time. He was attended by Dr. P. W. Gill, house physician at the Auditorium hotel, who discovered that his left wrist also had been broken in the fall.

Dawson Baby, Orphaned by Plane, Drowns

On July 2 Mr. and Mrs. John C. Dawson, Jr., of Lake Forest were both killed in an airplane crash while touring Europe.

Yesterday their daughter, Joan, 2 years old, was drowned. The child, playing with her brothers, Lawrence, aged 6, and Edmund, 4, in Deer park, Lake Forest, wandered from her nurse, fell into two feet of water in a pool twenty foot square.

Miss Louise Finch, the nursemaid, said she had missed the child, and after running about and calling for her, had come suddenly upon the body lying in the water. Physicians said the child must have been dead for several minutes when the nurse recovered its body.

Killed in Prague Flight.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson were killed when a plane in which they were riding plunged to the ground in Czecho-Slovakia. They were at the time making a special flight from Paris to Prague to visit Mrs. Dawson's cousins, John O. Crane and Mme. Jan Masaryk, wife of the Czecho-Slovakian minister to London, who was Miss Frances Crane of Chicago.

Mme. Masaryk and Mr. Crane are the daughter and son of Charles R. Crane of Chicago, former American minister to China. Young Crane is secretary to his brother-in-law.

Mrs. Dawson, mother of little Joan, was Emily Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Russell of Lake Forest; Mr. Russell is vice president of the Otis Elevator company, and director of the Mercantile Trust & Savings bank and of the First National bank of Lake Forest.

Child Living with Aunt.

Mrs. Russell, grandmother of the drowned child, is a sister of Charles R. Crane and R. T. Crane, and a daughter of the late Richard T. Crane, Sr., founder of Crane company.

Little Joan, since the death of her parents had been living with her aunt, Miss Marousse Russell at 516 Westminster avenue, Lake Forest.

The ashes of Joan's parents were brought back from Prague, where they had been cremated, and a memorial service held on July 18 in the Episcopal church of the Holy Spirit at Lake Forest, where they were members.

JAIL YANK WHOSE TRICK DOG EATS COUNTESS' GEMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 31.—Roumanian police in the town of Brasso arrested an American vaudeville actor, Charles Sweck, together with his trick poodle dog, a few moments after the latter had swallowed a $10,000 pearl necklace belonging to the wealthy French noblewoman, Countess Belmont.

Mr. Sweck and his pearl eating poodle were riding in a first class compartment of the Oriental express enroute from Constantinople. So was the countess. The lady fondled the canine and later noticed that her necklace was missing. She called detectives, who searched the car, but found no trace of the valuables until they peeked into the vaudevillian's compartment, where they were startled to see the gifted pup coughting up the swag, pearl by pearl, into his master's hands.

In reply to the inspectors' questions, Mr. Sweck tried to laugh off the matter as a joke. He said his poodle partner had a passion for swallowing bright objects, the same as a magpie. The explanation failed to satify the police, who provided shelter for the man and his dog in the Brasso jail until further notice.

ERIE RAILROAD SILENT ON PLEA TO END ABUSE

Up to the hour of going to press THE TRIBUNE had received no reply from Frederick D. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, to a telegram asking more considerate treatment for Chicago in moving Erie railroad empty cars on floats through the bridges during business hours.

THE TRIBUNE's telegram follows:

"At 11 o'clock this morning an Erie railroad tug pushed a ferry carrying one empty freight car through the Michigan avenue and all the other busiest bridges of Chicago, causing great inconvenience to thousands of motorists and pedestrians and costing business firms large sums of money. This is typical of the way the car ferry service of the Erie railroad is being conducted in Chicago. Will you not issue orders to your local agent to respect the convenience and business interests of the citizens of Chicago in a more reasonable manner?

Council lived in Hickory, N. C., and Giddens' home was at Norman Park, Ga.

Knows Slayer of Rector Hall, Woman Claims

Milwaukee, Wis., July 31.—(AP)—Convinced that she holds the key to the Hall-Mills slaying in New Jersey in 1922, Mrs. Virginia Dorothy Harding of Shorewood, a suburb of Milwaukee, is ready to start east and tell her story to the authorities. Mrs. Harding, who says she was at the scene of the murder on the night it occurred and there confronted the slayer, says she will be able to identify him.

So positive is Mrs. Harding that her evidence will unlock the secret hidden since 1922 that she predicts the slayer will confess when it is announced that she is planning to testify. She expects to start east tomorrow.

Silent Under Fear.

Quietly, and with every evidence of sincerity, Mrs. Harding tells how threats of violence have hitherto prevented her from baring her story. When she read that Mrs. Frances Hall had been arrested, the Milwaukee woman decided she could no longer keep back the information she claims she holds. She regards the arrest of Mrs. Hall an injustice and will break her long silence to right what she terms an injury to another woman—a woman she has never met.

Until she removed from the east and took up her residence in Milwaukee, Mrs. Harding, who is now the wife of an oil filling station manager, says she was subjected to a campaign of intimidation. She claims that for the first few months after the murder she was made to feel that her life was in constant danger.

Confidant Also in Jeopardy.

Her one confidant, Warren F. Frances, manager of the Asbestos hotel of Manville, N. J., to whom she had told her story the night after the murder, also has been in jeopardy, and once was actually attacked, Mrs. Harding says. It was on his advice, she adds, that she decided she would keep out of the affair when no true bills were returned by the grand jury.

Mrs. Harding, in 1922, was a social service worker employed by the late Thomas Manville. She was then Miss Virginia Dorothy de Leon, and was living at the Asbestos hotel in Manville. On the night of the murder, she had driven to Newark and had started home about midnight, she says.

Driving on an unfrequented road, she relates that she found herself confronted by an automobile in the road ahead of her. Her recollection is that it was a small coupe. One of three men standing in the road awaiting her approach, leaped forward waving his arms for her to stop, she says. She claims she never will forget that face. Often she has seen the man's pictures in newspapers, she asserts.

Thought It Was a Holdup.

"What have you seen?" was the man's demand, according to Mrs. Harding. She asserts that she assumed she was the victim of holdup men and replied that she had seen nothing—that she had lost her way on the road and was trying to get home. Her purse was refused by the man, she continued, and he repeated his demand as to what she had seen.

He then made her tell who she was, and took her name down, writing it on an envelope. While this was being done the other men were talking in hushed voices, but Mrs. Harding insists she distinctly recalls she overheard the words "the parishioners."

According to Mrs. Harding, there was a brief and hurried conference of the three men and she was ordered to turn her car about and drive away. "This road doesn't lead anywhere, anyway," she was told by the leader.

When Mrs. Harding reached home she was unstrung by her experience, and the following morning she confided in Frances, the hotel manager. She interpreted the night's events at that time as a roadside scandal that she had stumbled into, and it was not until two days later, when the mur-

TROOPS KILL 3 IN CHURCH WAR IN MEXICO

Jail Fifty in Riots; Chapels Emptied.

BULLETIN.

Mexico City, July 31.—(Special.) Nine persons, six of them women, were arrested tonight in a fashionable residential district, charged with plotting against the life of President Calles. Police trace the plot to the religious trouble.

Mexico City, July 31.—[U.P.]—An unconfirmed dispatch from Pachuca today reported that six women had been killed and several persons, including some children, injured in a religious riot there. The details of the trouble were not contained in the dispatch.

President Calles today gave a brief statement to the press reiterating the government's intention to go through with its anti-religious campaign. He said the labor parade planned for Sunday would give evidence of how thoroughly the common people support the government in this crisis

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

Mexico City, July 31.—Disorders in which three persons were killed, many wounded and about fifty arrested marked the taking over last night by government officials of Catholic church annexes and the sealing up of ecclesiastical treasures in accordance with the religious regulations. These regulations by the state became effective today.

The bloodshed occurred at various churches in Mexico City when crowds attacked the officials with stones and other missiles. Police and firemen were rushed to the churches to quell the rioting.

Troops Open Fire.

Troops were sent to San Rafael church. They opened fire over the heads of the people and eventually dispersed them, after arresting forty-two persons. Several were wounded at this spot.

Crowds, unprecedented in the present crisis, filled all the churches of the republic for their last day of free ministration. Priests and bishops toiled unceasingly, hearing confessions, baptizing and confirming children, and solemnizing marriages. In the cathedral here alone 8,000 were confirmed and 3,000 baptized. In one church a priest was so rushed that he was obliged to perform marriage ceremonies in bulk, uniting twenty-seven couples at one ceremony.

Three Are Killed.

In an outbreak last night in the lower quarter of Mexico City a sacristan and two bystanders were killed when agents of the government entered the Church of San Bartolome de Las Casas to close it.

The crowd objected, but the police insisted on locking the doors in spite of the protests of the Catholics. Shots were fired at the police and soon the shooting became general. The sacristan was almost instantly killed and the other two persons who were shot died later.

Troops and firemen were called out to quell this riot. The firemen, using a large hose, poured water over the manifestants, who had grown threatening. This soon dispersed the crowd. Stalls in the plaza where goods are sold were flooded with water.

Barred by Iron Gate.

Early this morning the New York Times correspondent visited the church and found an immense crowd at the iron gate, which had been locked by orders of the government. The crowd was using threatening language.

The plaza, where the clash occurred is located in the poorer section of the city. All the residents belong to the working classes and are intensely Catholic. This church is now guarded by a strong force of police. The majority of the churches in the city have strong military guards in addition to the police.

In an Aristocratic Section.

The shooting at San Rafael church situated in the aristocratic colony of San Rafael, caused tremendous excitement. During the services last night the priest asked the congregation to leave as he had been ordered to close the church. The crowd refused to obey the closing order and remained to pray instead.

When the police arrived to expel the people they were received with a volley of stones, women climbing to the roofs of small houses near the church and hurling stones at them.

Firemen were then called, but they, too, met with a hail of missiles. The chief of the fire department, Longino Maya, and two firemen, Cornelio Enriques and Enrique Garcia, were badly injured by stones and pieces of iron. All were taken to a hospital.

Federal troops then hastened to the scene of the trouble. The firemen were unable to turn the water on the crowd because some of the demonstrators, armed with sharp knives, cut the hose. The fight was at its height when the soldiers arrived and opened fire over the heads of the crowd to intimidate them.

The troops searched every individual in the crowd, arresting thirty-five men and seven women. They were taken to police headquarters where it was found several of the prisoners had been wounded.

A smaller riot started at Saulta de Agua church. One fireman was wounded. The police made seven arrests.

All the prisoners will be charged with sedition.

An open break in the ranks of the regional confederation of labor, which has been supporting the government's religious policy, marked the first day on which the regulations affecting the churches were enforced, when a group of Catholic workmen affiliated with the confederation issued a manifesto denouncing the federation as a political organization and refusing to follow its orders to participate tomorrow in the parade planned as a demonstration in favor of the Calles policy.

Boycott Shows Effects.

The boycott, by which the Catholics hope to force the government to modify its policy, showed its effects today. Managers of business houses reported trade reduced a third.

A new organization appears in the field in support of the Catholic stand. It is the National Defense League for Freedom of Conscience. In a circular it attributes the religious conflict to the government's antagonism of Catholicism.

The directers of the Young Men's Catholic association, who were arested and charged with sedition for issuing the circular requesting Catholics to enforce the economic boycott, were released on bail, but today they were immediately rearrested by the federal police.

The seizure of the directors, after they had been ordered released by a judge, has caused much comment in legal circles, and it is expected they will be set free again.

An unsigned handbill circulating in the streets today reads:

"People, do not be fooled! The 'Crom' [Federation of Labor] says it is not persecuting religion, but at the same time it is offending the supreme pontiff and threatening the Catholic church. It is spreading falsehoods to justify the attacks which shame civilization."

LABOR TO PARADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, July 31.—It is predicted that at midday tomorrow every officer of the national government and all departmental employés of Mexico City and the surrounding towns and villages, with those of the federal district, as well as employés of the postal system, all lodges of the Mexican Masons, Socialists, agrarians, and anti-Catholic societies will form a part of the grand labor parade to show support for the government in its fight with the church.

Government supporters say the parade will be more imposing than any Catholic demonstration. All deputies belonging to the government party will march in the parade.

To Tell State's Side.

As the great procession marches through the principal avenues of the capital noted orators will be stationed along the way to present the government's side of the religious question which has come to a crisis with the voluntary withdrawal of priests from the churches yesterday.

The main body of the procession will consist of laborers belonging to the Mexican Federation of Labor from the capital and towns surrounding in the federal district, which has a population of considerably more than 1,000,000.

Meanwhile, Catholic authorities are striving to persuade Catholic workers to have nothing to do with the demonstration.

The churches of Mexico City will not be closed, according to a statement from the city council, which already has appointed committees of ten responsible persons without regard to creed, to take care of each of the ninety-three churches of the capital. The resolution has helped to calm the excitement of the Catholics. The statement was accompanied by another to the effect that the priests will not be allowed to resume office until they comply with the requirements of the Mexican laws.

Quiet in Yucatan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MERIDA, Yucatan, Mexico, July 31.—The Catholics in Yucatan are accepting the government religious regulations peacefully. The Catholic associations have issued requests to their followers to refrain from taking part in public activities, such as assisting at theaters, dances, and festivities, to avoid using automobiles, coaches, and street cars, except on necessary occasions, and to purchase only the necessities of life.

There have been no riots in the state. Inventories of all the Catholic temples and two Protestant churches have been taken by the municipal authorities.

Pope Still Hopeful.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 31.—The pope was distressed by further bad news from Mexico contained in a cable arriving today direct from Mexico City declaring that Magr. Crespi, secretary of the apostolic delegation there, had been taken to the border, where he was deported.

Pope Pius, while considerably concerned over the treatment of the Catholics, is unshaken in his confidence that everything will turn out well in the end, placing absolute faith in the prayers which tomorrow will be offered in all Catholic churches of the world for "deliverance of the Catholics in Mexico from persecution and for the pardoning of their persecutors." The pope consistently has emphasized that Catholics must have complete faith in their prayers tomorrow, if those prayers are to be efficacious. He prayed privately today for the Mexican Catholics.

CHICAGO LABOR URGES PROTEST TO MEXICANS

Letter Blames Moscow for Fight on Catholics.

Chicago's labor officialdom yesterday launched a campaign, which is to become national, to have the American Federation of Labor protest to President Plutarco E. Calles of Mexico, against the action against Roman Catholic clergy, nuns and church property in that country.

The movement was started by Michael J. Kelly, head of the Chicago Meat Cutters' union, at a meeting in the Federation building at 166 West Washington street. The meeting was attended by labor officials of divergent religious beliefs, the announcement being made that the Mexican issue will be taken up at the next convention of the American Federation of Labor this fall in Detroit unless the trouble is adjusted.

Appeals for Quick Protest.

Meantime Samuel P. Luzzo, vice president of the Building Trades council and head of the building laborers, hod carriers and track layers in the city, sent the following letter which will be received tomorrow by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Since the American Federation of Labor convention in El Paso, I have been closely following the general trend of affairs in Mexico.

"I believe it has been the good counsel given by the late Samuel Gompers that has enabled the Mexican labor people solve some of their preplexing problems. But with the attitude now assumed by President Calles, in his campaign of prosecution against the Catholic church, I believe the constructive work accomplished during the last decade will melt away rapidly.

Gets Mexican Views.

"I have been in communication with Mexican labor leaders for the past two years, and they inform me that freedom of religious worship in Mexico is now a matter of history. I'm informed that 90 per cent of the anti-religious sentiment, now embodied in law, has been stirred up by ultra radical forces. These forces, as you know, are and have been at work in our own labor movement trying, in all kinds of guises, to undermine its great democratic foundation. Spots on a leopard do not change, neither does the hue a Moscow servant—a "Red" in the United States is the same as one in Mexico—both have the same mission to fulfill.

"I believe that our great labor organization should voice a protest to President Calles against the persecution of all churches, regardless of denomination."

CATHOLICS PRAY TODAY FOR END OF CALLES ROW

Pastors and congregations of Catholic churches throughout the archdiocese of Chicago will unite today with the remainder of the Catholic world in universal prayer for the cessation of hostilities and the return of amicable relations between the Mexican government and the church authorities of that country. Masses, prayers and communions will be offered for that intention.

Cardinal Mundelein, in a pastoral letter read in all parishes of the archdiocese last Sunday, requested the observance of the day in conformity with the direction of Pope Pius, who some time ago designated Aug. 1 as the date for such world wide devotions.

This date was chosen because it is the feast of St. Peter in Chains, commemorating the persecution of St. Peter as the head of the church, and is held significant of the Mexican situation at present.

Girl on Street Car Hit by Bullet Fired at Thieves

Miss Katherine Stabley, 24 years old, 933 West 54th place, was wounded yesterday afternoon when a bullet fired by Sergt. Peter Carney of the detective bureau as he pursued three automobile thieves went wild and crashed into a Halsted street car, on which the young woman was a passenger. The shooting occurred in an alley just south of 54th street. The thieves, speeding at fifty miles an hour, escaped. Miss Stabley was not badly hurt.

STATE DENTAL BUREAU OPENS AT SPRINGFIELD

The new state dental bureau opens at Springfield tomorrow, a regular branch of the state department of health, with Dr. H. L. Freidinger of Decatur, Ill., its chief as the superintendent of dental hygiene. Its opening ends a several years' campaign by the Illinois State and Chicago Dental societies to have a member of their profession included on the state health staff.

The bureau for the first year will be supported by the two dental societies, the $7,000 salary and expenses for Dr. Freidinger being defrayed by them.

The dental societies are doing it to demonstrate the necessity for such a bureau in the hope the state will support it after the first year.

SUMMONSES TO AIMEE INQUIRY COUNTERMANDED

Los Angeles Authorities Give No Explanation.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 31.—[Special.]—District Attorney Asa Keyes today countermanded the grand jury summons to Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson and to the fifteen known and two "mystery" witnesses who had been subpœnaed before the county grand jury next Tuesday in an official attempt to establish where Mrs. McPherson went after she disappeared from a local bathing beach on May 18. He did not tell his reason.

Deputy District Attorney Joseph Ryan, who collected written statements from witnesses who identified Mrs. McPherson as a woman who, with a man, occupied a seaside bungalow at Carmel, Cal., from May 19 to May 29, would make no statement. He maintained however, that his evidence connecting Mrs. McPherson and Kenneth G. Ormiston with the couple who lived in the Carmel house was a strong as ever.

Telegrams Supposedly from Ormiston.

Two telegrams came, supposedly from Ormiston in Chicago. One of the Chicago telegrams was sent to Keyes. It read:

"Sending you via air mail Ormiston's affidavit. You can communicate with him through my office.
"H. F. MARTIN."

The other telegram was addressed to Mrs. McPherson, and read:

"Sworn statement truth concerning Carmel incident clearing you en route. Deeply regret Ryan's horrible error.
"K. G. ORMISTON."

Declares Telegrams Fakes.

Harry Hallenbeck, Yuma, Ariz., rancher and confidant of Mrs. McPherson and her mother, conferred with Detective Captain Herman Cline, in charge of the official investigation, and announced that the wires from Chicago were fakes.

Mrs. Kennedy this afternoon announced that she and her daughter's attorneys have information as to the identity of the veiled woman who occupied the Carmel cottage May 19 to 29 under the name of "Mrs. George McIntire.

SEARCH HERE FOR ORMISTON.

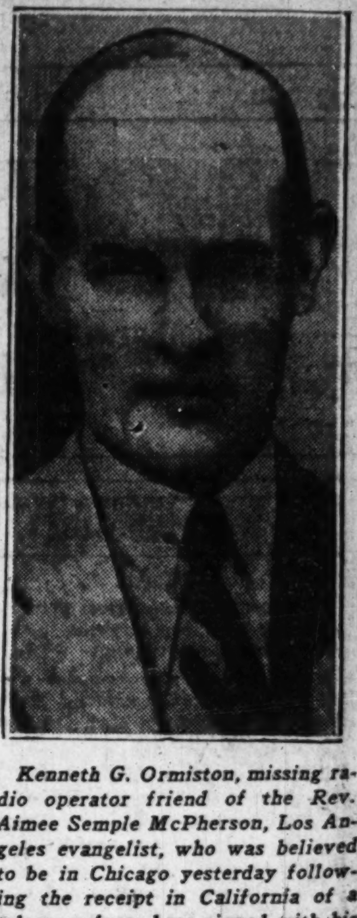
Search by various Chicago agencies, assisting California authorities in the Aimee McPherson case, failed to reveal Kenneth G. Ormiston.

It was readily verified that a pleasant voiced young man, who identified himself as "the Ormiston in the McPherson case," did appear at a loop telegraph office and forward the telegrams.

"He came in here about 10 o'clock, and when I read the wires I naturally took a good look at him," the girl clerk who handled the messages told the police. "I never saw a pleasanter fellow, and he chatted so freely about the McPherson case that I asked him: 'Are you really guilty as the papers say?'

"'Not on your life,' he burst out, 'and I'm certainly sorry I've caused Mrs. McPherson so much trouble. But,' he added, tapping the telegrams, 'these are going to clear her.'"

SOUGHT HERE



Kenneth G. Ormiston, missing radio operator friend of the Rev. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, who was believed to be in Chicago yesterday following the receipt in California of a telegram from here signed with his name.

WORLD-WIDE PACT IN MINERAL SEARCH OFFERED INSTITUTE

Williamstown, Mass., July 31.—(AP)—An international agreement that would permit the freedom of search for minerals in countries now maintaining a "closed door" policy, was placed before the Institute of politics today by Charles K. Leith.

Its principal features included declaration of the "open door," preference among the competing enterprises for the company able to develop the natural resources most efficiently, guarantees by the company of financial strength, and provisions against burdensome taxes or any discrimination against extra nationals.

He said the opening up of the world's mineral resources would aid international peace.

AUTOISTS TELL OF TRAPS SET IN SPECIALVILL

28 Help Fight by State' Attorney.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Twenty-eight victims of the Specialville highway arrest mill will launch the second stage of the Chicago crusade against speed traps tomorrow, according to announcement made last night by Charles J. Mueller, assistant state's attorney in charge of the Cook county investigation.

They have ben selected by the Chicago Motor club bureau of inquiry from among 200 of the motorists arrested recently on the Specialville sector of Western avenue south of Blue Island. They have made out detailed complaints charging extortion and brutality against the village police officials.

Predicts Quick Cleanup.

"With Broadview and Markham officials under indictment, the decks are clear for a quick cleanup of the remaining bad spots in the county," Mueller declared after reviewing the preliminary testimony of motorist complaints.

"I believe that evidence already in the office warrants indictment of three or four more officials guilty of flagrant irregularities and the examination of many more village books."

Henry Harris, 443 North Halsted street, will be one of the first Specialville witnesses to be called by the grand jury, according to the prosecutor. He charges Frank O'Connor, Specialville chief of police, and Charles Rajsl, justice of the peace, with arresting him for driving his car over the center line in the Western avenue pavement, holding him all night and part of a day in jail and collecting fees which, he believes, are illegal.

Tells of Examination.

"They took me in on June 2 and demanded a $100 bond. They said that I had driven over the center line of the pavement and that I must be drunk to do it," he declared in his statement. "O'Connor called in a doctor to examine me and he reported that there was nothing the matter with me. They collected $5 for this examination and I was not released until 3 p. m. of the following day."

Walter Coldin, 717 Boston avenue, declared he was arrested by O'Connor because the tail light of his car had burned out, but was not given an arrest slip nor asked to give bond.

"They told me that if I didn't appear for trial a warrant would be issued for me," he said. "I appeared on time for trial and they fined me $10 and costs on the tail light charge and then insisted on collecting $2.50 more for a warrant that never was issued."

RONESS DEAD N LEAP; MATE FAILS IN PACT

ys Agreement Made to Die Together.

iami, Fla., July 31.—(AP)—Baron ce-Garrett, crippled Russian noble- , was taken into custody in a ket, a hundred yards from the Arch Creek railroad station early tonight, for questioning in connection with the suicide of his wife, the Baroness Royce-Garrett, who Friday night leaped to death from the eighteenth floor of the Everglades hotel here.

Police who arrested the baron said he was attempting to hang himself with a small piece of twine.

Baron Royce-Garrett said he read last night in the Miami Herald that an unidentified woman had leaped to death from the hotel tower. He said he knew when he read the article that the woman was his wife.

Agreed Seven Years Ago.

The baron's only expression concerning his wife was of disappointment that she had not kept an agreement made seven years ago with him that they would "die together" when they died.

"Yesterday morning (Friday) my wife told me that the time had come to die—that she could not work or fight any longer, and that we must die together," said the baron, in a stenographic report made public by police. "We made a compact to die together seven years ago if we had no money. I do not know how to express it in English, but my wife and I believe in reincarnation of souls, and because we loved each other and had lived together, we decided to die together.

"Several times she had told me she had been dreaming that we both jumped off the Everglades building together, but I told her no; sometimes they get broken legs and do not die. I told her to wait until morning and we would go out to Cocoanut Grove, get in the boat together, and tie the ropes around our necks and die together; it would be much better that way.

Both Joyful Over Decision.

"When this was decided we both were joyful. My wife told me she would not be cross with me if I went out and stayed late. She said, 'This is the last day on earth for you to play billiards and smoke and have a good time, so you go out. You catch the last Coral Gables car back home, but be sure and buy a newspaper before you come. We will spend our last night together and prepare to die in the morning.'"

After he read in the Herald that his wife was dead, the baron said he walked on his crutches to Coral Gables, a distance of five miles, and sat in front of the Antilla hotel until daybreak speculating on methods of killing himself.

At daybreak, the baron said, he obtained a ride from a motorist and alighted in downtown Miami, where he obtained a bit of twine, such as is used in tying express packages. With this in his pocket, he boarded a bus for Arch Creek, 10 miles north of downtown Miami, determined to hang himself to a tree. He declared he already had failed in an effort to climb a tree in Coral Gables.

Planned to Hang Self.

He selected what he termed a suitable tree and sat down to await nightfall, he told police. He occupied himself calling to the birds and watching a monkey.

Persons who saw the baron notified the police and he was arrested.

Royce-Garrett readily answered questions. He told his captors he was planning to hang himself. They could not find the rope which they supposed he would use. He did not reveal it until placed in the county jail, where he flung it to the floor.

Police were undecided as to their next move, although it was announced the baron would be held under a technical charge until a coroner's jury investigates the death of the baroness Monday.

Wife Was Seen Weeping.

Aside from the opinion expressed that the couple were in financial straits, little is known of the events immediately preceding the death of the baroness. Investigators learned that on the afternoon before she left a Coral Gables hotel weeping, followed by her husband.

The death of the baroness, who was known in Miami society for her beauty and vocal attainments, brought to light another story of the fall of Russian nobility before bolshevism.

At the age of fifteen she was Vera Lavrova, daughter of a member of the Russian parliament under the czar, and of a dramatic soprano in the imperial Russian opera; she studied music and philosophy at the imperial conservatory and university at Petrograd. She made her first operatic appearance in Paris in the titular rôle of "Lakme."

Lost $5,000,000 Heritage

When the soviet régime came into power she was mistress of a heritage of some $5,000,000, which was swept away by the revolution. Her sympathies with the counter revolution, or "White" army, she gave her entire time to singing for the "White" soldiers in hospitals in the south of Russia.

There she met Baron Royce-Garrett, who was convalescing from an amputated leg. The baron, who was of British extraction, had inherited his Russian title from a great-grandfather, who had served as gentleman in waiting to Peter the Great.

When he was sufficiently recovered from his wounds they were married, and came to America.

BUYING FRENZY JUMPS WHEAT 15¼C—10 MINUTES

Wild Pit Scenes as July Closes.

Breaking 5 cents a bushel, then advancing 15¼ cents, all in ten minutes, July wheat caused a frenzied market here yesterday as shorts struggled for grain to cover their contracts for delivery.

Trading rushed on after the official closing hour of the board of trade's wheat pit. The advance over Friday's final price for July wheat was 8⅞ to 11⅜ cents a bushel. While the official close yesterday was at $1.56 to $1.58½ at different parts of the pit, the unofficial trading later carried the price to $1.60 a bushel.

Easterners Profit Heavily.

Eastern grain operators and J. A. Richardson, largest of the Canadian exporters, are believed to have been the chief sellers as the prices skyrocketed. After the trading no defaults in delivery were reported. Millions were made by those who sold to the frantic shorts. The deliveries made on July contracts were 1,407,000 bushels.

The rush to buy was due to the belief among traders that because of the recent immense shipments of wheat into the principal markets, there would be a late break in prices on which they could cover their short contracts.

Stampeding into the market as the final July market closed yesterday, they found wheat strongly held and had to pay higher and higher for it. That rushed the price up more than 15 cents in ten minutes.

Millers Help Advance.

Buying of nearly 2,700,000 bushels during the week by millers was another factor in diminishing local stocks of wheat and thus aiding the advance.

A buying order followed the selling and from $1.50 up to $1.55 Bartlett-Frazier were sellers on a moderate scale. J. E. Bennett and Clement-Curtis, and a number of the big houses were sellers of July throughout the day, but at no time was there any concerted selling. Jackson Bros., who were credited with being large holders, were sellers off and on throughout the day and had wheat for sale at the last at $1.60. Nye-Jenks were good sellers of wheat and were offering it at the last at the top prices, enabling the scattered shorts to get in.

POLICE ACCUSED OF EXTORTION BY PASTOR CLEARED

The Rev. G. C. Whimsett, pastor of the South Chicago Presbyterian church, complained last Thursday to Lieut. O'Brien of the South Chicago police that he had witnessed shakedown tactics by patrolmen who were directing couples parked in cars to move on.

Lieut. O'Brien announced yesterday that as the result of an inquiry the policemen, Martin McGuire and James Allen, had been cleared of wrongdoing. Whimsett made his objection, the lieutenant says, because he was approached by a policeman who flashed a light in his face while he sat in a parked car with a young woman and told him he was parked in a bad place. Whimsett admitted at the inquiry that there had been no mention of money by the policeman.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., July 31.—[Special.]—Everett Sanders, secretary to President Coolidge, will leave here tomorrow night with Mrs. Sanders for Boston to undergo examination and treatment by Dr. Arthur L. Chute, the specialist who operated on the President's father.

Mr. Sanders has been ill for nearly a fortnight with an attack of intestinal flu, the effect of which was to revive a former ailment.

The President has visited Mr. Sanders frequently at the hotel here and insisted that he go away for treatment and afterward take a vacation until he recovers.

FORGER OF $150,000 BONDS IS HELD TO GRAND JURY

Benjamin White, former successful La Salle street broker, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $65,000 on charges of forgery and of operating a confidence game. He was brought back from Ohio, where he was apprehended after an absence of fifteen months.

Two complainants yesterday testified before Judge Frank M. Padden in the South Clark street court that White had obtained $70,000 through worthless school bonds. White, it is reported, has confessed to Assistant State's Attorney Louis N. Blumenthal that, all told, he disposed of more than $150,000 worth of such valueless securities.

H. M. Cassidy, an attorney at 111 West Monroe street, said he bought $30,000 of the bonds. Frederick Emert, representing the Liberty Central Trust company of Kansas City, Mo., said he took $40,000.

LINCOLN'S HOME TOUCHES HEART IN ITS SIMPLICITY

Kin of His First Partner Welcomes Visitors.

The sixth story in our Chicagoland pilgrimage takes us into the old homestead of the Lincolns in Springfield, and echoes the touching words in which the emancipator said his everlasting farewell to it and to his fellow townsmen.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

You will find a pleasant representative of the authentic Springfield line of great Lincolnians when you mount the steps of the terraced, tree-embowered white house at Eighth and Jackson streets, where Abraham Lincoln lived for seventeen years, where he experienced most of the joys and some of the sorrows of his domestic life, and where he went forth to glory and the grave.

That representative is Mrs. Edwards Brown, wife of a grandson of Lincoln's first law partner, Maj. Stuart, and descendant of the gubernatorial Edwardses, who were the quality of Springfield in Lincoln's time. She is receiver of visitors and assisting custodian at the Lincoln homestead, and not the routine type of such functionary.

She loves the old house and tells about it in a melodious voice and a spontaneous manner.

That means much in shrine places.

Buddy in Black Hawk War.

Maj. John T. Stuart was Abraham Lincoln's buddy in the inglorious Black Hawk war of 1832 and took him into partnership in 1837 when Lincoln, then 28 years old, settled in Springfield. After the war the major had loaned Lincoln law books and encouraged him to continue in the study of law. He once made some specific disclosures of Lincoln's religious belief—or lack of it—that set up a prodigious fluttering in the orthodox dovecotes of this land. You will find the disclosures in the fourteenth chapter of the great source book on Lincoln, Herndon's life of him.

The structure where the firm of Stuart & Lincoln set up shop—Lincoln doing most of the work while the major practiced hectic politics—still stands at 109 North Fifth street, but it has been so changed as to have lost its interest.

Not so with the homestead. It is open—no admission fee nor gratuities—from 10 o'clock until noon and from 2 to 5 o'clock every day except Sunday, and it well repays half an hour.

Only Realty Lincoln Owned.

This was the only improved real estate Abraham Lincoln ever owned in Springfield. It cost him $1,500. Today, irrespective of its precious associations, it would bring fifteen times as much. Long after the death of his father Robert Lincoln gave the property to the state of Illinois with the stipulation that it be kept open to the public as a memorial.

Here Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln came to live in 1844—eighteen months after their marriage—and this was their home until their departure for Washington in 1861. After the emancipator's death tenants occupied the house for several years.

Three years ago the city of Springfield bought the property next door, tore down the house as a safeguard against fire, and gave the lot to the state.

The homestead is of dignified aspect and manifestly it was built on honor. "The house," said Mrs. Edwards Brown, "is all walnut."

Relic Lost in Chicago Fire.

You will be a shade disappointed by the absence of many objects which you would expect to find in a house truly "lived in," as the expression is, by a prosperous lawyer and his family for seventeen years. But the Lincolns had a sale when they left for Washington, the Tildens buying a large proportion of the furnishings. The Tildens went to Chicago to live and lost their all in the great fire. Hence the meagerness.

But slowly various veritable Lincoln possessions have been assembled and they are being supplemented with pieces "of the period" from old Springfield homes where the Lincolns neighbored, and some things have come from the White House of Lincoln's occupancy.

On the south wall of the front parlor you see the picture of Queen Victoria's cabinet which the queen sent Mr. Lincoln in the early sixties. You pass with the glance of an eye from the Lincoln who was royal among royals to the Lincoln of the first days of struggle in Springfield. For, on the mantelpiece across the room, is the clock that belonged to Lincoln before his marriage. It stood in his room during the five years he boarded with kind William Butler—the Butler of whom Herndon says, "It is probable the matter of pay never entered Butler's mind."

Favorite Chairs Still There.

Two pieces of furniture will make your eyes misty for an instant. I do not know just why. They stand in the sitting room by the front windows—Mr. Lincoln's favorite chair, an upholstered rocker, and beside it his wife's favorite little rocker.

Such was the home, simple, self-respecting, sterling, the home of a man among men, that our greatest man said good-by to in words perhaps the tenderest that townsman ever uttered to fellow townsmen. I know no other farewell in English prose comparable to it. Men have cast the words in age-defying bronze, and now they speak to you—five and sixty years after that rainy February morning on which they were uttered—from the ponderous tablet of Andrew O'Connor's statue of "The Awkward Lincoln" at the foot of Capitol hill in the city Lincoln loved.

Emancipator's Farewell.

The tears of the rain-swept day of parting are in them still:

"My friends: No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man. Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return, with a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him, I cannot succeed. With that assistance, I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me, and remain with you and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will yet be well. To His care commending you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me, I bid you an affectionate farewell."

4 BABY BANDITS, 5 TO 8, CONFESS 25 BURGLARIES

Four baby bandits ranging in age from 5 to 8 years old were caught by Fillmore police last night in the act of smashing the front window in William Ryan's radio shop at 4000 West Taylor street. At the Juvenile Detention home they admitted robbing 25 stores recently in the Lawndale, Fillmore and Shakespeare avenue districts.

The boys are Joseph Zidek, 5 years old, and his brother, Edward, 8 years old, 1140 South Whipple street; Sidney Brownstein, 6 years old, and his brother, Isadore, 8 years old, 1143 South Whipple street.

While Isadore, armed with a whistle to give an alarm, remained on the outside of the store, Joseph, the youngest and smallest of the group, was pushed through a small hole in the glass. Then he crept to the door and admitted the others.

Edward, armed with a toy pistol, strode boldly in and located the safe, which he proceeded to loot. In one store, when the cash register was locked, the boys pushed it off the counter to the floor and broke it open. The money they spent for candy and shows.

In addition to robbing stores, the boys admitted stealing several purses from women in west side parks lately.

BANDITS FORCE SIX TO FLOOR; GET $1,000 LOOT

Two armed bandits yesterday forced Jerry Novotny, proprietor of a soft drink parlor at 2857 Komensky avenue; his wife, and four customers to lie on their backs on the floor while the robbers rifled the cash register of $1,000. A third bandit held the door open for his confederates.

Novotny had the money on hand to cash pay checks for workers in the neighborhod and the customers were there for that purpose when the trio entered.

The workmen, Henry Fosberg, 4548 Kenmore avenue; Patrick Rooney, 711 West 22d street; James Kirk, 1641 Humboldt boulevard, and Warren O'Keefe, 1906 South Cicero avenue, all are employed by the Commonwealth Edison company. O'Keefe was relieved of $13 by the bandits before they fled in an automobile.

CLIENT IS DEAD BEFORE LAWYER FILES HIS SUIT

Son-in-Law Asked Balm from George Lill.

Through a strange series of circumstances a suit for $25,000 damages for alienation of his wife's affections was filed yesterday in the Superior court in the name of Dr. John G. Ames, specialist in women's and children's diseases, as funeral services were being held for him in a chapel at 2701 North Clark street.

Dr. Ames died a week ago in Tulsa, Okla., at the age of 73 years. Before he left Chicago he left instructions with his attorney, Louis L. Cohen, to file suit against his father-in-law, George Lill, 80 year old millionaire coal merchant. Attorney Cohen was not notified of his client's death, and, yesterday being the last day of the summer term, he filed the præcipe of the suit. The suit will be dismissed.

Dies of Heart Disease.

Dr. Ames died suddenly in Oklahoma of heart disease. Following the funeral services here yesterday the body was sent to Baltimore, Md. He had been a practicing physician in Chicago for 33 years. His offices were at 4554 Broadway.

Lill, who has offices at 1122 Berwyn avenue and resides at 924 Greenwood avenue, Wilmette, broke up the marriage of his middle-aged daughter, Edith, to Dr. Ames, it was charged in the suit. Lill violently opposed the marriage of his daughter to her elderly suitor, it was said. Despite his opposition, the couple were married two years ago. Their happiness lasted only during the honeymoon, it was charged.

Wanted a Go-Getter.

"You should have a rich husband," Lill told his daughter, it was said. "This one is not a money maker. You should have fine gowns, furs, jewels, an automobile."

And when the gowns, furs, and jewels were not forthcoming Mrs. Ames grew cold toward her husband, the suit charged.

Then Lill, it was said in the papers filed, told the physician to donate $500 to charity as a sign of his generosity and there would be no further interference from outside sources. Dr. Ames paid over the $500, the lawyer's statement said, but Lill continued to talk to his daughter in an attempt to induce her to leave her husband.

Lives at Father's Home.

Finally Mrs. Ames went to live with her father and her husband was allowed to visit her only once a week it was charged. When he did see her at her home Dr. Ames was subjected to abuse from Lill, according to the suit.

"You belong in the country," Lill told his son-in-law, it was charged. "You ought to go back to your father's farm in Oklahoma and live there. You can't support a city wife."

As a result, the suit declared, Mrs. Ames at last refused to have anything to do with her husband.

BLOW KILLS MAN IN FIGHT OVER A CHILD'S SWING

As the result of a quarrel over a child's swing yesterday, Martin Monte Duffy, 58 years old, is dead, and George Main, 35 years old, his downstairs neighbor at 1201 Lill avenue, is being held for murder at the Sheffield avenue police station.

When Main a few days ago announced his intention of putting up a swing in the back yard for his five year old daughter, Duffy objected. The men argued about the swing and separated in anger.

At the corner of North Racine avenue and Altgeld street they met again yesterday and the argument was resumed. They came to blows and Duffy was knocked to the pavement. He died at the Alexian Brothers hospital from skull fracture. An inquest will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Western Casket company rooms, 226 West Randolph street.

GROOM, 73, NAPS AS HIS BRIDE, 15, WAITS AT ALTAR

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 31.—[United Press.]—Benneto Ferrara, 73, was to marry Rosalia Giarrupto, 15, at 4 p. m. today.

At the appointed hour Rosalia's parents were in the parlor of their home, her brother and sister also. The Rev. John Vogel was there.

The clock ticked on past 4 and the minute hand crept half way to 5 o'clock. Rosalia, with a bouquet of roses in her arms, wept softly.

Rosalia's brother stormed to the home of Ferrara. He found the aged man asleep in an armchair. Ferrara was aroused and the wedding took place.

Colonial Glasses—most attractive of all styles—universally adopted

Today, it is quite evident that fastidious people are as careful in the selection of eyeglasses as they are in the choice of their attire.

Colonial glasses are the vogue because of their becoming shapes and their unusual ability to blend with the wearer's personality. Colonial glasses have completely supplanted the heavy shell style for street and dress wear. The heavy shell glasses, however, still serve their purpose for library use or for sports wear. It is interesting to know that Schulte originated and sponsors many new shapes in Colonial style glasses . . . having foreseen the trend of the public's desire for glasses possessing these particular characteristics.

CIVIC LEADERS DECRY SMITH'S SLUSH ETHICS

Condemn Taking of Big Political Gifts.

The ethics of Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Illinois commerce commissoon, in accepting large sums from public utility chiefs to finance his primary senatorial campaign met with caustic criticism yesterday from civic, religious, and business leaders of the city.

Out of a score of representative persons asked for comments on the slush fund disclosures only one or two ventured even to mildly defend Mr. Smith's action. Most of the others who voiced their feelings denounced it not only as unethical but as a political outrage of the worst type.

Called Buying Election.

"Smith's deal with Samuel Insull, in my opinion, is one of the most astonishing revelations in American politics," declared Shelby M. Singleton, secretary of the Citizens' association. "It is clean proof of the purchase of an election.

"In view of the admitted facts, I don't believe Mr. Smith is entitled to the vote of any honest man for a position of public trust. It is certainly time for the voters to take a hand and demonstrate that political offices are not on sale to the highest bidder."

Walter L. Fisher, former secretary of the interior, asserted that he considered the transfer of funds from Insull to Smith as "highly improper" and a transaction that calls for unmistakable action from the electorate of Illinois.

Bishop Hughes' Statement.

Bishop Edwin E. Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago area, said:

"I find that people are generally quite confused by the political situation. Of course, it is apparent that the popular primary must be costly if any general canvass of voters is made. Even a 2 cent stamp on a letter to each voter in Illinois would require far more than the wealth of the average man.

"As for the large gifts by men who represent our public utility companies, they are altogether doubtful, especially where any candidate is related to a state commission that commands any authority over public utilities.

"Senator McKinley seems thus far to have come through independently. I should welcome a chance to vote for him to succeed himself.

Regrets Brennan Took Gift.

Speaking from the feminine viewpoint, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, social and club leader of Evanston, averred that "if Mr. Smith, sworn to look after the people's interest, failed to do so in one office, he certainly could not be expected to do so in another."

"It is too bad that Mr. Brennan also took some of Mr. Insull's money," Mrs. McCulloch added. "As it is, I think the time is ripe for an independent woman candidate. I have heard the name of Miss Julia Lathrop of Rockford suggested prominently and I wish she might be persuaded to run."

Bishop A. J. Carey of the A. M. E. church was one of the minority who failed to censure the slush fund deal participants. Mr. Insull is a fine, public spirited citizen, he said, and if he wished to "give of his means, as well as his influence, because he opposed the world court," that was his privilege.

Kelly Declines to Talk.

Harry Eugene Kelly, president of the Union League club, explained he did not wish to speak for his organization and that he has been in the newspapers too much recently anyway.

W. C. Boyden, president of the Chicago Bar association, also declined to speak for the organization he represents.

"You know well that the Chicago Federation of Labor is not mixed up in such a procedure," replied John Fitzpatrick, president of the federation, when asked his position. "The thing is so entirely remote from our organization that I care to say nothing."

Among other persons asked for their opinions, but who for various reasons withheld them, were Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Federation of Labor; Joseph K. Brittian, real estate man; the Rev. W. J. Agnew, a member of the Chicago centennial commission, and A. J. Davis, superintenrent of the Better Government association.

P. O. AUTOS WILL USE 30,000 GALS. OF SEIZED ALKY

Deputy United States Marshal B. E. Pinkerton tomorrow will start on the delivery of $250,000 worth of seized alcohol [bootleg wholesale market quotation] to the Chicago postoffice department to be used during the coming winter in the radiators of Chicago mail trucks. This is the second order of the kind by Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe. The current delivery will include 30,000 gallons. The first, used for radiators last winter, was for 20,000 gallons.

Truck drivers as far away as Boston were said to have learned of the anti-freezing properties of the alcohol and have asked that some of it be sent there. In Boston, it is reported, prohibition authorities destroyed all seized alcohol, making it necessary for the radiator tenders to go afield.

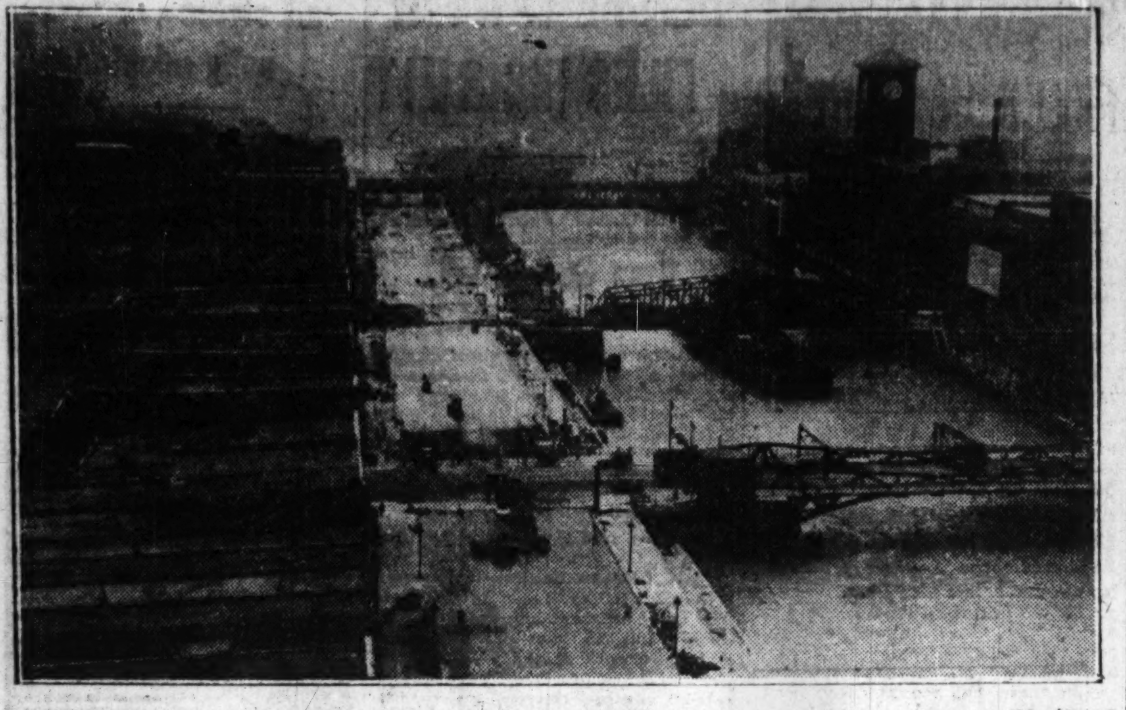
Postoffice employés are supposed to denature the alky before they pour it in radiators. There is no record that any one ever failed to mix in the poison or confused the neck of a jug with a radiator opening.

LEADERS OF CAR STRIKE GET 90 DAYS IN PRISON

Indianapolis, Ind., July 31.—[United Press.]—John Parker and Robert Armstrong, leaders of the strike of union street car men in Indianapolis, today were sentenced to ninety days in jail by Federal Judge Baltzell for contempt of court.

They were found guilty of contempt for violation of an injunction issued by Judge Baltzell before the strike was called on July 5. Both are officers of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés.

NEW WACKER DRIVE SECTOR NEARLY READY



View west from the Jewelers building, showing the section of the river boulevard between State and Wells streets on which, it is promised, pleasure cars will be rolling within two weeks. Work on the project is almost two weeks ahead of schedule, and if the present rate of progress is maintained the entire drive will be completed late in October.

BIG THREE OF UTILITIES GAVE $241,235 SLUSH

F. L. Smith Got 85 Per Cent of It.

Mr. Schuyler intend to contribute as much more, or a larger sum, or a smaller sum, to insure Mr. Smith's election.

This opportunity will come next Tuesday when Mr. Insull resumes the stand as the first witness. It is also predicted that the committee will want to know why Mr. Studebaker, who headed a group which bought out Senator McKinley's control of the Illinois Light and Power corporation, volunteered so much cash for the Smith campaign fund. Mr. Studebaker's residence is at South Bend, Ind., and Mr. Smith is running for senator in Illinois.

Mrs. Morrisson Called.

Mrs. James W. Morrisson, prominent clubwoman and active worker for Senator McKinley during the late primary, has been summoned, it became known yesterday. United States deputy marshals, who have called at her home, 1431 North State parkway, have been told that she is in the east and had intended to remain there through August.

There has been no testimony that Mrs. Morrisson either handled any money or knows anything about its collection or disbursement, but the record does show an aggressive activity by Mrs. Morrisson for Senator McKinley and the world court.

Chairman Reed read into the record a letter signed by "Mary Foulke Morrisson, chairman of the international relations," dated March 24 last, and was alleged to have been sent to sundry presidents of women's clubs. In part it reads:

"Dear Club President: If there is any possibility that you can put on a speaker on international affairs between now and April 13 I very earnestly urge that you try to do so. Two excellent speakers are available—Mr. Alden Alley, a former officer in the American Expeditionary Force, who can be reached at the Hotel Grenada, and Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, who can be reached at Hull House. Both will come for their expenses only."

Indorser of McKinley

An inclosure said that Senator McKinley lived up to his platform pledges, while Mr. Smith is making his principal issue the withdrawal of this country from the world court. One of these letters came to Mrs. Flo Jamison Miller of Monticello, home of Allen F. Moore, campaign manager of Frank L. Smith. She wrote a protest to Mrs. George Thomas Palmer, president of the Illinois federation, which Senator Reed read into the record.

Those who know Mrs. Morrisson predict that if she appears before the committee she will be able to take care of herself, even with Senator Reed, anti-court leader and cross-examiner of national reputation.

Mrs. Morrisson is a daughter of William Dudley Foulke of Indiana, who was one of the country's civil service reformers.

Other Subpœnas Unserved.

Others for whom subpœnas have been issued but not served because the persons are outside of the jurisdiction of the local federal marshal are:

WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, former mayor of Chicago, who is reported to be spending a vacation on the California ranch of William Randolph Hearst.

MORRIS ELLER, sanitary district trustee and boss of the Twentieth ward, who is reported to have gone back to Mackinac island after his recent appearance before the grand jury.

HOMER K. GALPIN, chairman of the Crowe-Barrett faction, who is said to have divided the cash among the ward leaders, and who is reported at Eagle River, Wis., on a fishing trip.

Fred Lundin, the planner and designer of the Small-Lundin forces, is scheduled to be heard next Tuesday.

Wright Enters a Complaint.

Edward H. Wright, member of the Illinois commerce commission with Frank L. Smith and colored boss of the second ward, wrote a letter yesterday to Senator Reed complaining that he was not asked while on the witness stand whether he received any money from Frank L. Smith.

JULY'S 90 AUTO DEATHS SHATTER FORMER RECORDS

Automobiles killed 90 persons in Cook county in the thirty-one days of July, setting a new high record for a single month. The largest number of deaths hitherto reported in a single month was 77 in May, 1925.

The toll for the first seven months of the year now stands at 477, compared with 427 in the same period of 1925. Officials charged with investigations of death by motor vehicles asserted they were helpless.

"Both drivers and pedestrians are careless," Coroner Oscar Wolff said. "Blame rests on both. So long as motor traffic continues to become heavier and the population increases, it seems that we shall have a steady rise in the number of fatal accidents."

Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins concurred in these views.

Two deaths were recorded yesterday. Herman Rosenberg, 45 years old, 1647 South Hamlin avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck at 35th and Halsted streets. The driver drove on after the accident. Rosenberg died at St. Paul's hospital.

Mrs. Rebecca Snydermann, 64 years old, 3143 North Clark street, was killed last night in a collision between the automobile in which she was riding and another driven by George Zober, 3807 Ferdinand street, chauffeur for President John Dill Robertson of the west park board. The accident occurred at Ogden and Lincoln avenues. Mrs. Snydermann's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Louise Snydermann, was seriously injured. Zober was held by the Hudson avenue police.

M. E. PLEA SENT TO LAYMEN FOR WORLD SERVICE

"It is apparent to every student of world conditions that there is a growing need for laymen to take a more active and practical part in church work," says an appeal sent out by the General Laymen's association from its Chicago office to the million men who are members of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"Laymen are devoutly interested in the program of deepening the spiritual life of the church and to provide in a larger way for world salvation.

"There is no solution of the present day needs of the world except Christ. We rejoice greatly in the advance for world service as reported by the treasurer, but this increase, in view of the appalling needs of our work, should be deemed only the beginning for yet greater increases. We appeal to our lay people everywhere to include world service generously in their giving."

The appeal is signed by George W. Dixon, Chicago, president; Francis E. Baldwin, Elmira, N. Y., first vice president, and other officials.

Green Files Demurrer to Dry Law Indictment

San Francisco, Cal., July 31.—(AP)—Col. Ned M. Green, suspended federal prohibition administrator for northern California and Nevada, entered a demurrer in the United States District court today to an indictment charging him with the illegal withdrawal of liquor from government warehouses. Government checkers reported a checkup of the warehouses showed nothing missing.

Smith May Face Union League Quiz on Public Utility Gifts

Another inquiry into Frank L. Smith's acceptance of money from public utilities for his campaign for senator loomed yesterday as a possibility—an inquiry by the Union League club, of which he is a member.

It was learned that a number of the members have been commenting as day after day the United States senate committee learns of more public utility contributions to Smith's campaign for the Republican nomination for senator in Illinois.

In view of Smith's chairmanship of the Illinois commerce commission, which regulates public utility rates, the Union League club members are said to have been deeply interested in the testimony concerning the contributions to Smith. President Harry Eugene Kelly of the Union League club was reluctant to discuss future action, but he made this significant comment:

"There is a precedent. The Union League club expelled Edward Hines for his connection with the Lorimer scandal."

A Patriotic Organization.

The Union League club is one of the oldest in the city, having been founded in 1879. It is dedicated to the promotion of patriotism, good citizenship and civic righteousness. Its members are among the most prominent and the most conservative in the city.

A few years ago the club advanced $50,000 to insure completion of the school board and city hall investigation by a special grand jury. Its president, Mr. Kelly, was the leader in advocating a special state's attorney and special grand jury to investigate the McSwiggin murder and the charges of vote frauds.

"But this is a different sort of matter," Mr. Kelly said yesterday. "I can't take the lead now because I might be called to preside at a trial of Mr. Smith before the board of governors. Therefore I must retain a judicial attitude towards the testimony concerning Mr. Smith."

In the articles of association the primary objects of the club are announced to be:

"To encourage and promote, by moral, social and political influences, unconditional loyalty to the federal government, and to defend and protect the integrity and perpetuity of this nation: and

"To resist and oppose corruption and promote economy in office, and to secure honesty and efficiency in the administration of national, state and municipal affairs."

Would Be Heard by Board.

R. Frank Newhall, one of the board of managers, said yesterday he had been reading of the financing of Smith's campaign by public utility interests to the extent of over $200,000, but he had been out of town until a few days ago and knew of no charges being filed against Mr. Smith in the Union League club. He said if such charges are filed they will come before the board for a hearing.

George S. Ballard, another of the board of managers, said the club certainly would not attach its stamp of approval upon Mr. Smith, but he said he was not advised of any move to give Smith a hearing at the club. He said he believed the public affairs committee would be the proper committee to report on Smith's conduct.

Missouri Youth Is Held Here on Robbery Charge

Philip Butler, 22 years old, grown tired of racking balls in a Valley Park, Mo., poolroom, found his attempt at Chicago banditry abruptly terminated yesterday when he was held to the grand jury in bonds of $2,500 on a charge of robbery with a gun. Judge Henry M. Walker bound the youth over on the charge after Miss Mary Blasko, clerk in a confectionery store at 4746 Lawrence avenue, had identified Butler as the man who entered the store Thursday night and obtained $14.

HOLDOM REFUSES TRUDE A RECOUNT AND REBUKES BAR

Ruling Gives Savage Clear Title to Nomination.

Joseph P. Savage yesterday won the unquestioned right to be the Republican nominee for the office of county judge at the November election. A decision by Superior Judge Jesse Holdom terminated, without apparent hopes of resurrection, the four months of post-primary contest by Judge Daniel P. Trude, who was the defeated aspirant for the office.

The decision cleared the way for a contest between Savage, the Republican, and Edmund K. Jarecki, Democrat, for the office now held by Judge Jarecki. It marked, also, the finish of an election feud of unusual aggressiveness and vigor.

Judge Holdom let it be understood that his decision was based upon the law. He declared that Judge Trude's attorneys had come to the wrong court for a recount and, despite the pressure of influence brought to bear against him, he would not be moved by personal opinion nor public clamor.

He held himself to be without jurisdiction to recount the ballots which showed Savage to be victor over Trude by 22,000 votes, and he denied the petition for a transfer to the Circuit court for the same reason—lack of jurisdiction.

Turns Down Bar Opinion.

In the decision which covered fourteen printed pages, Judge Holdom called attention to the intervention of the Chicago Bar association in the matter. He decided exactly to the contrary of the advice the Bar association had obtained leave to give him regarding what he should do. The Bar association's brief, he said, had been made public, adding:

"The consequences which followed have been embarrassing and somewhat annoying. The press and many people—law and lay—immediately came to the conclusion that the Bar association was more wise than the court and joined in editorial and other newspaper articles, in supporting the Bar association's contentions, that the court's decision was all wrong and should be reversed and that the Bar association's arguments should be given judicial effect.

"Judges, lawyers and many citizens supported the Bar association's contentions and urged the court to follow the Bar association. Some said, 'Pass it to the Circuit court and free yourself of further trouble and responsibility.' An Episcopalian vestryman in church on a Sunday morning said: 'Don't be too technical; give Judge Trude a chance.'"

Law Is Plain, Judge Says.

The court went on to show that the law is plain, stating that petitions for recount for the office of county judge must be filed in the Circuit court within five days after the proclamation of the result of the election. Trude's lawyers clearly were in the wrong in filing their petition in the Superior court, and the law so stated, he decided.

"To decide otherwise, with the light which this court has, would be the act of a coward and the yielding to public clamor, to which the ears of the court should be ever deaf," he concluded.

Inasmuch as the five days had passed several months ago, Judge Trude was left without legal means of obtaining a recount of the ballots. County Judge Jarecki, in anticipation of an order by some other court to recount the Savage-True votes, has been doing so.

Judge Trude was the first of the defeated Lundin-Deneen candidates to ask a recount. He did so, setting forth claims of vote stealing, violence and intimidation by the Crowe-Barrett followers, coupling his charges with the known facts regarding the murder of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin which occurred soon after the primary.

The Lundin-Deneen candidates joined in a collective effort to dispossess their successful primary opponents from their places on the ballot. The first move came when Harry Eugene Kelly, appearing as a private citizen and as president of the Union League club, charged that the McSwiggin murder was an aftermath of the primary and he demanded a special state's attorney and special grand jury to probe his charges.

Turns to Attorney General.

State's Attorney Crowe, he said, was disqualified from acting because of his activity in that primary. State's Attorney Crowe turned the investigation over to Attorney General Carlstrom, who directed the activities of a special grand jury during the month of May.

Then Mr. Kelly was disclosed to be one of the attorneys for Judge Trude and a different tack was tried. Attorney Kelly and Attorney Howard P. Castle filed a petition in the Superior court asking a recount of the ballots on the grounds that the Crowe-Barrett faction was responsible for a campaign of terrorism at the primary which resulted in 50,000 votes being stolen from Judge Trude.

These two lawyers later were forced to admit they maneuvered to have their petition assigned to Judge M. L. McKinley for hearing. Judge McKinley accepted jurisdiction.

Savage Lawyer Charges Plot.

Attorney James G. Condon, representing Savage, claimed the petition was a plot. It was shown that if Judge McKinley were allowed to proceed he would have the power arbitrarily to declare Trude nominated despite Savage's plurality.

It was claimed that Judge McKinley was particularly hostile to State's Attorney Crowe and therefore prejudiced against Savage.

Case Taken from McKinley.

The supporters of Savage said they understood the plan of the Lundin-Deneen faction to be that Judge McKinley would, upon opening a few designated precincts and finding fraud, appoint a special state's attorney and special grand jury to punish Crowe-Barrett partisans. Thus, the Crowe-Barrett faction contended, the Lundin-Deneen followers would wield the whip in a fashion that would eliminate Savage from the contest.

Instead, the executive committee of the Superior court, took the case from Judge McKinley and assigned it to Judge Holdom. Attorney Condon then filed a brief suggesting that the Superior court was without jurisdiction, citing the language of the law which specifically said such election contests must be heard in the Circuit court.

Judge Holdom heard both sides and ruled with Attorney Condon.

Attorneys Kelly and Castle returned to Judge Holdom's court next day, flanked by William C. Boyden, president of the Bar association, and Attorneys Carl R. Latham and John D. Black, represent a bar committee. Judge Holdom was asked to reconsider his decision, the Bar association representatives asking leave to file a brief as friends of the court.

They denied they were partisans of Judge Trude, saying they were interested only in public justice. Other prominent attorneys then inquired why the Bar association had taken no action in the interests of "public justice" when Attorney Condon was pleading for the opportunity of taking his cause out of the hands of an unfriendly judge and offering to go before any other judge in the state of Illinois who might be selected by Judge Trude.

Stolen Votes on Both Sides.

Judge Holdom permitted the filing of the motion. County Judge Jarecki, in anticipation of the ultimate ruling for a recount, began tabulating anew the ballots. It began to develop that Judge Trude was only half right in his charges—that votes were stolen for him and other Lundin-Deneen candidates as well as from them.

Judge Trude made a net gain of more than 3,000 votes in the recount in 675 precincts of Crowe-Barrett wards, the Deneen territory as yet being practically untouched.

Judge Jarecki was challenged by Savage to recount his own votes and he did so with the result that he, too, has been shown to have been given nearly 4,000 votes too many.

The one other outstanding result of the Trude charges was the return of indictments against 151 persons, half or more affiliated with the Deneen faction, by the grand jury impanelled by Chief Justice Thomas J. Lynch and directed by Charles A. McDonald, who, because of the Trude charges, was appointed a special state's attorney.

HUSBAND SUES BELVA GAERTNER, FREED IN MURDER

Mate Came to Rescue; Now Says He Fears Her

Since her acquittal in February, 1925, of the murder of Walter Law, pretty Belva Gaertner, 32 years old, has displayed murderous tendencies towards her 63 year old husband, William Gaertner, wealthy manufacturer of scientific instruments, according to his divorce bill filed yesterday in the Superior court.

When Mrs. Gaertner was indicted for the murder of the young salesman, who was found in her automobile, shot through the head, Gaertner, who had been divorced from her, came forward and offered his assistance. After twelve jurors had acquitted her he remarried her.

Drank Heavily, Husband Says.

But almost immediately after the wedding ceremony in May, 1925, Mrs. Gaertner began leading a wild life, the elderly husband charges. She, whose defense against the murder charge had been, "I was so drunk I couldn't remember," was intoxicated almost nightly, the bill states. A love affair had involved her in a murder trial and numerous love affairs again engaged her attention, he says.

Gaertner reproached his wife, but she became so abusive that he was afraid of her, the bill stated. Last April 26, when he reproved her for getting drunk, the husband says she struck him over the head with a mirror.

Then came a riotous session in the Gaertner apartment at 848 Lakeside place last July 5. Gaertner states he came home to find another man in the apartment. He demanded an explanation and his youthful wife shrieked and leaped at him. She yelled threats of murder, he said, and, frightened, he locked himself in his room. Since then he has not been near his home.

Injunction Is Sought.

Mrs. Gaertner plans to sell the furniture in the apartment and her husband asked for an injunction restraining her from doing this.

Mrs. Gaertner in 1916 was a cabaret singer under the name of Belle Brown. She married a man named Overbeck, who divorced her a year later. Then she married Gaertner at Crown Point. He first sought to annul the marriage and then filed suit for divorce. She finally agreed to a settlement and the decree was issued.

Then, in the early morning of March 12, 1924, the body of Law was found in her car in front of her apartment at 4809 Forrestville avenue. She was found intoxicated in the apartment and declared her mind was a blank as to what had happened.

There was no defense offered at the trial and the judge ruled that no actual proof of murder had been offered by the state and the jury quickly freed her.

RECONCILIATION ENDS

Mrs. Belva Gaertner, sued by her once divorced husband, who befriended her at her trial for the murder of Walter Law and remarried her after she was acquitted.

VESUVIUS SPITS 2 LAVA STREAMS DOWN ITS SLOPES

NAPLES, Italy, July 31.—(AP)—Two new currents of lava have been started down the southeastern side of Mount Vesuvius by the present eruption, which has continued for a week. Tourists, reassured by volcanologists' statements that there is no danger, are flocking to the scene.

Two More Quakes in England.

ST. HELIER, Jersey, Channel Islands, July 31.—(AP)—Two further slight earthshocks were felt here this morning. No damage is reported. Large buildings were rocked several seconds by a quake yesterday and several chimneys collapsed.

14 YEARS FOR LANUS' SLAYER, JURY'S VERDICT

Bogolowski Admitted Killing Auto Man.

Morris Bogolowski of the notorious Heffernan-Cramer gang of west side gunmen, was sentenced to fourteen years in the penitentiary by a jury in Judge Emanuel Eller's court yesterday for the second time for the murder of Joseph Lanus, an automobile dealer, in 1922.

The jury, after four hours of deliberation, brought in a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at ten years in prison.

Ordered to Retire Again.

Judge Eller ordered the jury to retire again immediately, with instructions that the minimum punishment, if found guilty, was fourteen years. A few minutes later the fourteen year term was fixed by the jury.

Bogolowski confessed to the murder more than four years ago. His confession and subsequent testimony for the state sent two accomplices—Larry Heffernan and William Cramer—to Joliet for life terms. A fourth member of the gang, Otto Christensen, was also given a life term, but was killed later while awaiting a new trial.

Granted Second Trial.

Following his pela of guilty Bogolowski testified against his companions and was later sentenced to fourteen years in prison. The Supreme court later remanded the case for another trial. A motion for a new trial was made yesterday and a hearing was set for Aug. 7.

DROWNED CROSSING RIVER.

COUNTRY WANTS COOLIDGE AGAIN, CAMERON SAYS

Minimizes Effect of Corn Belt's Ire.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., July 31.—[Special.]—The booming of President Coolidge for renomination in 1928 continues.

Senator Cameron [Rep., Ariz.] breezed in today to be a week-end guest of President and Mrs. Coolidge at White Pine camp. Upon reaching the executive office he promptly reinforced the utterances of Edsel Ford and Richard Washburn Child predicting that there will be an overwhelming demand that the President accept another term.

Sees No Chance to Beat Him.

"Speaking for myself, I am certain that no one can defeat President Coolidge for the nomiantion in 1928 if he should decide to run," Senator Cameron said. "People in the southwest are talking along that line and connect his administration with the present prosperity and the lifting of the tax burden.

"The west does not consider that the nomination in 1928 would be a third term. He is now only serving his first elected term and the people generally will so consider it and defy the third term tradition talk that is being put out by the opposition.

"President Coolidge would get the delegates from Arizona and the entire west, except perhaps from one state, should a presidential possibility, now in the field, enter the convention. The trend is so strongly in favor of Mr. Coolidge for another four years that I doubt if any opposition develops against him. At present, the receptive candidates are getting nowhere and the people generally expect Mr. Coolidge to seek renomination."

"Will his opposition to the corn belt farm relief legislation work against President Coolidge?" the senator was asked.

Minimizes Corn Belt Revolt.

"I do not believe so, judged by what the Iowa Republican convention, in the heart of the corn belt, did in endorsing his administration," Cameron replied. "I believe that the farmers are willing to wait and see what can be done for them, rather than attempt to carry out any threat to destroy the Republican party. In our section of the country, the farmers and cattle growers have pretty well adjusted themselves to conditions and there is no feeling against the administration or congress.

"What is your opinion as to the outcome of the senatorial elections this fall?" he was asked.

"The Republicans will carry all of the doubtful states, Arizona, Nevada, Maryland, Kentucky, and Oklahoma, and hold the next senate," the senator said. "Divisions in the Democratic party in some of those states, prosperity which will influence the Democratic voters to support Republican candidates for the senate, and the change in political complexion there since 1920, will account for Republican success in these states that are now claimed by the Democrats as doubtful.

Prosperity the Big Issue.

"I do not believe that the world court and farm relief will figure in the congress elections. The transcendent issue is prosperity under Republican administration. This, with the fact that the Democrats do not have an issue, will make it possible for the Republicans to hold the senate and pave the way for the party's success in 1928."

Woman Bandit Uses Her Belt to Tie Chauffeur

A woman bandit, accompanied by a male confederate, tore the belt from her dress last night and used it to bind the hands of David Harris, 1437 South Central Park avenue, a taxicab driver, after he had been robbed of $14. The man jerked off the driver's necktie and bound his feet with it. The pair departed on foot after disabling the cab to prevent its use in a chase. Harris was hailed at Kedzie avenue and Madison street and ordered to drive to 7175 Wrightwood avenue, where the robbery occurred.

KNOWS SLAYER OF RECTOR HALL, WOMAN CLAIMS

Bares Story in a Wire from Milwaukee.

der was uncovered, that she learned the true situation.

Visited Murder Scene.

To settle her doubts she visited the scene of the murder near the crabapple tree and learned that she had been stopped at the exact spot where the murdered bodies were discovered.

Then began a studied campaign to insure her silence, Mrs. Harding claims, and also that the details of measures of intimidation used will make an interesting story for the district attorney.

Mrs. Harding's time of departure for the east is not definitely fixed. She is awaiting word from the New Jersey authorities.

Plan to Exhume Bodies.

Somerville, N. J., July 31.—[Special.]—Exhumation of the bodies of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, charged with whose murder in Sept., 1922, Mrs. Frances S. Hall, widow of the clergyman, is at liberty on bail of $15,000, will be one of the steps in the new investigation of the crime, it was learned today.

This was decided upon today when plans were made for a searching inquiry into the way in which the investigation of the crime was conducted four years ago. The acts of officials and detectives who handled the first inquiry will be scrutinized, it was said, in an effort to see whether "any one was impeding justice."

Wants to Wipe Out Imputations.

Gov. A. Harry Moore, who personally instigated the revival of the case, and who named State Senator Alexander Simpson of Hudson county to direct the inquiry as special prosecutor, has made it clear that he wished to wipe out the imputation that justice lagged in the double murder.

After a day in which they had virtually suspended their work on the case, the state troopers at Somerville were quickened to action by receipt of a telegram from Milwaukee. The message said that Mrs. Howard Harding, of that city, had told of seeing a man in a side road between Manville and New Brunswick on the night of the murder.

Road Near Scene of Crime.

The Manville-New Brunswick highway is about 200 yards from the crabapple tree on the Phillips farm adjoining New Brunswick where the minister and the choir singer met death.

Capt. John J. Lamb of the state troopers refused to comment on the telegram. James Mills, husband of the slain woman, characterized Mrs. Harding's story as "bunk" and said he thought it was merely another "crank tale."

Prosecutor Bergen of Somerset county, who caused Mrs. Hall's arrest Wednesday on warrants charging the murders, said that he contemplated no further action until Senator Simpson was confirmed as his successor. Bergen said that he probably would assist Simpson, for a time at least.

JEALOUS OF WIFE, HE TORTURES FRIEND BY FIRE AND WHIP 5 HOURS

St. Paul, Minn., July 31.—(AP)—Jealousy over alleged attention to his wife yesterday caused Walter H. Fletcher to beat and torture Edward Horrigan, a city fireman, police declared today.

Fletcher held Horrigan prisoner five hours while he burned, flayed and whipped his friend since early childhood.

Both Horrigan and Mrs. Fletcher denied any wrongdoing, but Fletcher told police that Horrigan admitted to him while held a prisoner that he had kissed Mrs. Fletcher.

Fletcher does not accuse Horrigan of any more intimate relations with his wife than this. He said he tortured his boyhood friend as an example to deter other men from "playing around" with married women.

Horrigan was beaten with a whip, burned with matches, and cut with a safety razor blade.

Fletcher is held in jail.

CONVENTIONS URGE 'MA' TO QUIT IMMEDIATELY

Dallas, Tex., July 31.—(AP)—Immediate resignation of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson in compliance with an election challenge entered into with Dan Moody, the successful candidate for the Democratic nomination, was urged today in resolutions adopted by or ready for submission to at least eight county Democratic conventions.

Travis county, in which is Austin, the state capital; Williamson county, the home of Dan Moody; Bowie and Tarrant counties in which is Fort Worth, were among the counties reporting the resolutions adopted.

The Travis county convention also urged a repeal of the amnesty bill which restored to James E. Ferguson the right to hold state office when he was impeached in 1917 from the office of governor.

BORAH WILL ASK IDAHO TO KEEP GOODING AT HOME

Plans Contest Against Colleague, Belief.

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—Possibility that Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] may take a hand in a contest against the renomination of his colleague, Senator Gooding [Rep., Idaho] was indicated today.

SENATOR BORAH.

Senator Borah will leave Washington on Monday for his home state, where he will remain during August and September. The Republican state convention in Idaho is scheduled for Aug. 24, at which time Senator Gooding will come up for renomination.

Senator Borah was unwilling to comment today on reports that he may become active in support of a candidate against Senator Gooding. It is known, however, that Senator Borah and Senator Gooding have been at odds on many propositions.

Plans Tour of State.

Senator Borah indicated that he intends to make a tour of his state during the summer.

In accordance with his practice of past years, Senator Borah does not think he will actually attend the convention. As he explains it, he is for direct primaries and has little sympathy with the convention idea. This fact may keep him from being a factor in the preparation of a state platform, which otherwise might be regarded as embodying his ideas of what the Republican party should declare for in its next national platform.

Johnson to Fight Shortridge.

San Francisco, Cal., July 31.—(AP)—Back home again today from Washington, Senator Hiram Johnson let it be known he intends to oppose from the stump the reëlection of his colleague, Senator Samuel M. Shortridge. He also will oppose the reëlection of Gov. Friend W. Richardson. Senator Johnson will support Robert M. Clarke of Los Angeles for Shortridge's seat in the senate, because Clarke, among other things, is denouncing the world court. Senator Johnson will support Lieut. Gov. C. C. Young for governor.

SELF-INFLICTED WOUND FATAL.

BIG business speaks to big business through The President—a Studebaker Big Six Custom Sedan for big business executives! The President is the Studebaker conception of the kind of car an executive should ride in—inspired in every detail of its lines with the vision of Big Business ideals—evoking both admiration for itself and respect for the man who owns it.

POWERED with the quiet Studebaker L-head motor, which recently crossed the continent in 86 hours and 20 minutes, six hours faster than the best time of the crack Limiteds!

AND DOWERED with those custom details of luxury and refinement that place it in the company of costly custom creations!

Resting on a wheelbase of 127 inches, The President reveals the long level lines of a custom body—settling low over disc wheels with four-wheel brake control—lacquered in a rich ebony with a belt of thistle green striped with Siskiyou yellow—or in Croaton green, with belt of black striped in ivory—and culminating in the silvered figure of Atalanta poised above its radiator to symbolize the futility of pursuit.

Yet The President is moderately priced, thanks to Studebaker One-Profit facilities. See The President before you see anybody else!

Equipment—No-draft ventilating windshield, exclusively Studebaker; nickel-plated bumper and bumperettes; Watson Stabilators; engine heat indicator and gasoline gauge on the dash; coincidental lock; oil filter and air purifier; automatic windshield cleaner; automatic spark control; double rear-view mirror; vanity case; smoking set; clock; arm rests; toggle grips; dome light, automatically turned on when right rear door is opened; 4-wheel brakes; full size balloon tires; and two-beam acorn headlights, controlled from steering wheel.

LINKS McERLANE WITH GANG OF FANCHER KILLERS

Indiana Convict Defies Threats of Revenge.

Threats of death failed to stop John O'Reilly, 28 years old, a convict at the Indiana state penitentiary in Michigan City yesterday from giving testimony which the authorities of that state believe entitle them to the custody of Frank McErlane, Chicago bootlegger and gunman, accused of the murder of Thaddeus Fancher, Crown Point attorney.

O'Reilly, serving a life term for the crime, made his deposition in the presence of Judge John P. McGoorty, who traveled to the Michigan City prison to hear it. On Friday the judge will decide whether McErlane is to be sent to Indiana. The convict swore that he saw McErlane and two companions flee from the Halfway roadhouse near Cedar Lake, Ind., just at the time Attorney Fancher was shot and killed in a holdup.

"I was in a stupor in McErlane's automobile in front of the roadhouse when I was aroused by some shooting," O'Reilly said. "I saw McErlane, Fitzgerald and Burns come runnning out.

Calls McErlane Drunk.

"McErlane had a glassy stare in his eyes which he has at times when he seems to be drunk or crazy. When he has these spells he is very mean and brutal."

That efforts have been made to seal the lips of O'Reilly by the usual gangster method of threats was seen in the testimony of O'Reilly to the effect that he has twice been visited by John McErlane, brother of Frank, whose recent drunken parties in the jail under the regime of Warden George H. Weideling caused an investigation and the dismissal of many jail employés.

"In September, 1925, I was visited by John McErlane and told that I would be taken care of if I kept my mouth shut," O'Reilly testified. "McErlane and his friends did not come to my aid and I sent word that I was going to tell the truth. Shortly after this at the trial of Alex McCabe, also accused of the murder, at which I was a witness, I was visited again by McErlane's brother and threatened if I squawked."

The proceedings took place in the office of Warden Walter H. Daly, and were presided over by Judge Harry L. Crumpacher of Michigan City. The deposition is said to be the first of its kind and was authorized by Judge McGoorty because of McErlane's alibi that he was not in Crown Point at the time of the murder, but was attending a chicken fight at the Sag.

Story Told by O'Reilly.

"On the day of the murder, May 4, 1924, I went to Cedar Lake, Ind., with Thomas Hoban and McCrimmons and a woman," was the story told by O'Reilly under the questioning of Assistant State's Attorney James H. McNeff of Lake county, Indiana. "We went to Kennedy's roadhouse for supper and there met McErlane, Burns, Fitzgerald, and a woman.

"During the meal I overturned a bottle of liquor and McErlane became angry and hit me over the head with his gun. They then bundled me into McErlane's car and that is all I remember until I heard the shooting at the Halfway roadhouse.

Says McErlane Fled Scene.

"It was then I saw McErlane and his two companions running from the roadhouse. I tried to jump from the machine and McErlane, who was wild eyed apparently thought I was going to run away and hit me again with his gun. When I woke up I saw McErlane at the wheel and I grabbed him. This caused the car to overturn, five miles west of Crown Point.

"I am positive it is the same McErlane now under arrest. I can identify these photographs. I had known McErlane for over a year prior to this. I would see him on an average of three times a week and have visited at his home."

O'Reilly is much smaller than McErlane, being not much over five feet and weighing about 130 pounds. He refused to be shaken in his story during a two hour questioning by Attorneys Benedict J. Short and Michael Ahern, who represented McErlane. He answered questions quickly and repeated his accusations against McErlane over and over again.

"The testimony of O'Reilly should clinch the claims of Indiana to the right to try him for the murder of Attorney Fancher," said an official, who attended the hearing.

CHILE RADICALS UNITE TO BALK THE GOVERNMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 31.—The Chilean radical party—advanced liberals and anti-churchists—have united to abstain from participation in the present Chilean government. The radical leaders object to "uniforms worn by the cabinet members," referring to Col. Carlos Ibanez, war secretary, who recently was brought back from Europe.

The present government, which came into power after Señor Alessandri's collapse, was supported by all parties except the communists until recently. The numerous difficulties have created great unrest throughout the country, which is accentuated by the constant communist attacks. Plainly, a strong man is required to handle the situation.

The radical party is the strongest in parliament. Beltran Mathieu, former minister to Washington, more recently foreign minister, and member of the radical party, is resigning following attacks by the Alessandri adherents when the radical party refused to cooperate with the government.

CHICAGO PHONE CALLS TRAP TO KILL DETECTIVE

Lured to Hotel Room by Murderers.

BULLETIN.

Atlanta, Ga., July 31.—(AP)—H. L. Hughes and C. K. Hughes, brothers, were arrested tonight in connection with the slaying of Bert Donaldson, special investigator for the solicitor general's office. They were held without bond for questioning. One of them is believed to be the man who was registered as W. B. Sands, Macon, Ga., and who occupied the room in which Donaldson was killed, Solicitor General Boykin said.

Atlanta, Ga., July 31.—(AP)—The foundation for the plot against the life of Bert Donaldson, special investigator for the solicitor general's office, was laid in long distance telephone calls to Donaldson from Chicago, Solicitor General John A. Boykin said today.

Through these calls the solicitor general believed Donaldson was informed of certain persons who were coming to Atlanta and that they would give him the information for which he went to the Georgian Terrace hotel Thursday night, when he was shot to death.

The solicitor general termed the crime "one of the most daringly planned and executed crimes in the history of the south, and probably the most daring in Atlanta's history. It undoubtedly was the work of gunmen, probably from Chicago, who were sent here for the specific purpose of slaying Donaldson."

He attributed the crime to members of the "Bunco gang" which operated several years ago in Atlanta. Mills, the solicitor said, was shot down when he was decoyed to a hotel after having made threats to "squeal" on other members of the Bunco gang.

Neighbors Protest Man's Gossip; He Shoots One

John Lapatka, 2328 North Menard avenue, fired last night into a delegation of neighbors who went to his home to reprimand him for spreading gossip about a woman. Sylvester Shimkus, 45 years old, 2337 North Mason avenue, was struck in the back by slugs from the gossip's shotgun and seriously wounded. Nine more shots missed Stanley Mesker, 2231 North Mason avenue, his mother-in-law, Alice Szymkiewicz, and Justine Warner, 1900 South Troy street, members of the protesting party.

ADDRESS

In London one often hears the term "address." Its use is somewhat similar to our "neighborhood" or "locality," but it carries a subtler meaning.

Any family or individual of even ordinary importance gives first consideration to the question of address. Many can make themselves perfectly comfortable in a small apartment or cottage; yet would feel unhappy in a mansion in any one of a thousand addresses within the city limits.

Give consideration to address, whether you are a newcomer or about to move. If friends cannot advise, a reputable home furnishing establishment worthy of your confidence should be able to furnish excellent information on this point.

It is well worth attention.

WAR HEROES.

In wars that went before, heroes had to make themselves. In the world war they were made—wholesale. Gustavus Adolphus, Frederick the Great, Napoleon, Wellington, Grant, and Lee carved their own way to fame. It took the world war to prove the old saying that the pen is mightier than the sword—at least as mighty when the task is the creation of military idols. Not only did the world war bring censorship to its highest perfection—what one might term the negative phase of hero manufacture—but it also established a very positive factor indeed in the large and efficient staffs of expert publicity men whose job it was, when the truth was too unpleasant for national consumption, to build up structures of gorgeous half truths and glittering generalities.

These were the artisans of the hero trade. When the war closed they left the world with considerable of their stock on hand. Tested in the saner moments of peace, some of these heroes ring true; some give out a leaden sound. Take, for example, two generals who hold outstanding positions in the hero ranks: Field Marshal Sir Douglas, now Earl, Haig and Marshal Pétain. Who would not be shocked at the suggestion that these two men, about whom the war's publicity agents had nothing but praise to speak, should have been tried by court martial for disobedience of orders in the face of the enemy? Who would not be astounded were it hinted that, had they been Col. Haig and Capt. Pétain, these two might have been shot for what they did in the spring of 1918?

The truth behind the half truths about those first three months of the last year of the war furnishes a typical example of the way heroes may be manufactured in modern warfare by the employment of the censor and his brother craftsman, the press agent.

In October, 1917, the Italian army under Cadorna was overwhelmed and driven back to the Piave. It was a tremendous disaster, crowning a disastrous year. In the end, however, it proved to be a beneficial sacrifice; for it was the rout at Caporetto which led to the formation of the supreme war council and its group of permanent military representatives. It was the first step toward a unified command.

It was common knowledge in that winter of 1917-'18 that the coming spring would see Germany's ultimate and most formidable effort of all to end the war. There was no secret about it. Ludendorff made no attempt to hide the fact that a drive was coming. With Russia and Roumania out of the war, Germany would soon have a force of some 200 divisions on the western front, enough to give Ludendorff a force of maneuver of between 80 and 100 divisions.

It was the task of the supreme war council to meet the threatened attack. It sought to do so by adopting a double-barreled plan. On the western front the allies would remain on the defensive. But in Asia Minor they would launch a decisive campaign against the weakening Turks and wipe out this eastern enemy. The plan, as it affected the western front, called definitely for one thing—the creation of a unified command from the channel to the Adriatic. The answer was the executive war board.

This board was composed of Foch, for France, as chairman; Sir Henry Wilson (later Gen. Rawlinson), for Great Britain; Cadorna, for Italy, and Gen. Bliss, for the United States. The primary function of the board was the formation and the control of a general reserve, later fixed at thirty divisions, to be contributed to by the commanders in chief of the various national forces in proportion to the number of troops under their command. The board was not to take over the command of troops in the field; this power was left in the hands of the three commanders in chief, Haig, Pétain, and Diaz.

The crux of the defense was the general reserve. Ludendorff was massing his divisions for the attack in the great angle formed by the French and British fronts. His dispositions showed that he would strike either in the vicinity of St. Quentin or of Reims. Pétain had 97 divisions; Haig had 57. Ludendorff had a mobile force of nearly 100, besides his holding divisions. It must be the task of the general reserve to stem the German onslaught. Foch's plans were all laid. He would place the major portion of the reserve north of Paris, a large portion near Amiens, and a small group in Dauphiné, in case of a surprise attack on Switzerland or on the Italian front.

But the reserve never materialized. Haig, Pétain, and Diaz were requested to allocate divisions for the reserve on Feb. 6. By the 19th Pétain and Diaz replied, assenting. No word came from Haig. On Feb. 22 Haig and Pétain met together and calmly tore down all that the supreme war council and the executive war board had so carefully built up. They decided they would not contribute to the reserve. They would not countenance a unified command. They would treat the western front, as before, as three separate fronts. If one were attacked, the other would come to his aid, not by sending reserves but only by taking over more front. No request for reserves was to be made until after three days of fighting.

Pétain had replied to the request for his contribution to the reserve, but it is clear that he never intended to comply. Haig waited until March 2, almost a month, and then refused outright. The Italian commander thereupon withdrew his offer. The whole plan fell through. So cleverly was it all arranged and timed that there was nothing to do but to await the worst. It was too late to remove Haig and Pétain for insubordination. The German attack was less than three weeks away.

Every one knows the result of that attack on Gough's Fifth army near St. Quentin. There was no reserve to come to the rescue. During a battle of more than a week Haig managed to send slightly more than one division to Gough's support. Pétain contributed only ten unprepared divisions. Had it not been for the tenacity of the men doing the fighting, Ludendorff would have had Amiens, separating the French and British armies, and the war, for the allies, would have been over.

Foch was made commander in chief of all the allied forces on March 26, but it was too late to repair the damage. The disobedience of Haig and Pétain brought the allies to the brink of defeat.

Dispelling the carefully nurtured illusions of the war is not a pleasant task nor an easy one. It is a painstaking labor, but it is one in which the historian can do tremendous service. Only by ascertaining and publishing the truth can similar mistakes be prevented in the future. That the future does hold other wars no thinking person, no matter how much he may abhor war, can doubt. It must always be preparedness; and part of the preparedness for future war is the stripping of the last one of its falsehoods and its unjustified hero worship.

EVOLUTION AND THE FARMER.

Among the major social inconsistencies is the fact that many farmers are, or think they are, anti-evolutionists. The theory of special creation finds many of its strongest adherents in the rural districts.

This is an inconsistency because the farmer, of all classes of mankind, lives close to evolution at work. Had evolution never been, there would be no farmer—or perhaps it were better to say every one would have to be a farmer after a fashion. Were evolution to cease functioning, the farmer as he now exists would go out of business.

It is evidence of the conservatism of the agriculturist that the same man who read that the late Luther Burbank had succeeded in creating a new type of sweet corn and who ordered some seeds of that corn and planted it could still assert that everything in the universe was created in its present state and condition. It is evidence of something more than conservatism that that same farmer should attempt to impose his own belief on others, to bridle all scientific thought by his support of legislation banning the teaching of evolution.

The fact of evolution and its constantly moving processes are important to every man, but to no one are they so important as to the farmer. When the farmer rejects evolution he forswears something that, directed by nature's devices and man's skill, has turned the wild plant into the tame one, the wild beast into the domestic animal, the tame plant and the domestic animal into better plants and animals; which has faithfully improved the stock in trade of the farmer and therefore has benefited his lot.

If the farmer is to reject evolution, the accepted theory of all sciences and one of the foundation stones of all scientific thinking, how is he to accept logically the multitude of aids which science has achieved for his benefit?

Was it not science which taught the farmer the principles of fertilization, gave him the knowledge he now enjoys concerning the mineral properties and needs of the soil, discovered for him the nitrogen-fixing bacillus and the value of crop rotation? Was it not science which aided the farmer in his chronic fight against insect pests and plant and animal diseases? Was it not science which created the machinery which has taken some of the backache out of agriculture?

Science has aided the farmer in these ways and in many more. The farmer should support science in return instead of standing against it. He does stand against the advancement of all science when he refuses to allow scientific freedom in his schools. Evolution does not stand alone. It is part and parcel of all scientific thought and research. It cannot be cut out without damaging the whole scientific body. It is a vital organ, not a meaningless appendage.

Science lives on freedom and truth. It feeds on fact. Curb it in its search for truth and fact, limit its freedom of reasoning and conclusion, and it atrophies and dies. This is what anti-evolution laws do; they chain science; they will kill science.

And science is the goose that lays the golden eggs for the farmer—about the only golden eggs he enjoys. Does the farmer want to kill the goose?

DICTATORS.

In today's TRIBUNE is a page of portraits of dictators. Among all these impromptu autocrats only one of them is in civilian clothes. There is a certain irony in that this one dictator in mufti is the Turk, Kemal, who looks very like an American business man. Considering our American preconceptions and prejudices and all the rhetoric we have enjoyed as to the unspeakable Turk, this appearance of Kemal has considerable significance. For it is not a deceptive appearance essentially. Kemal is a very good soldier, but he has given much evidence of a desire to put the Turkish republic on a business basis. We were going to say a modern basis until we looked at all the other dictators in their military trappings. Military dictatorship seems in Europe the most modern as well as the most ancient form of the deus ex machina. If we saved the world for democracy, we prepared a surprising paradox. Only in Turkey, the alleged backward nation, do we find a statesman inclined to appear in a soft collar, a four-in-hand, and what we call in Americanese a business suit.

Well, this is a funny world, and it seems to get funnier as we go along. The kaiser with his steel helmet and his four hundred uniforms, more or less, is sawing wood and sporting a Homburg hat. The unspeakable Turk wears a sack coat, but elsewhere the stage is full of plumes and epaulets and our astonished ears, straining for the sweet music of democracy's accordant voices, hear only the brazen voice of the trumpet sounding for new wars and new empires.

Editorial of the Day

A 100 PERCENTER.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

A letter addressed to the "Department of Domestic Affairs, Washington, D. C.," reads:

> I am a young man and am about to be married. Could you be kind enough to send me any literature in regard to ideals which the government advocates toward marriage and the size of the family the government wants me to have.

This, we suppose, considering the present tendencies of the federal government in the direction of paternalization, is 100 per cent Americanism.

CHICAGO'S NEW VENTURE IN OPEN AIR PREACHING

BY THE REV. SIMON PETER LONG, D. D.

[Pastor Wicker Park English Lutheran church, chairman of the commission on open air preaching of the Chicago Church Federation.]

Preaching in the open air is not new in Chicago. For twenty years Dr. Ernest A. Bell has been preaching on the streets and is now located nightly at Quincy and State streets. The Salvation Army, the Volunteers of America, students of the Moody Bible institute, the Y. M. C. A. with its step ladder pulpit, and other groups and individuals have stood on the street and attracted many hearers. Street preaching has sometimes met with opposition from city authorities. Dr. Bell has been arrested and a few others have met a like fate. Different conditions now prevail.

The new venture in open air preaching in Chicago consists in the enlistment of so many pastors of churches, some of them the largest in the city, in a campaign under the direction of the Chicago Church federation, which represents 17 denominations and more than 750 individual churches. The movement has the permission of Mayor William E. Dever, Chief of Police Collins, and all of the boards of the large public parks but one have given official sanction. We are hoping to get the permission of the remaining park authorities before the special campaign begins. At a meeting of the Church federation last spring 60 pastors volunteered for this work. These volunteers and other pastors who have since become interested will be depended on to carry forward the largest and most efficient series of open air meetings Chicago has ever seen.

If I may be permitted to refer to myself as chairman of the commission, I think it will be considered a new venture that I should be chosen when I represent the Lutheran denomination, so noted for its conservatism, its beautiful churchly services, and its unwillingness to adopt the methods of professional evangelism.

My willingness to accept the position as chairman of the commission and my enthusiasm for open air preaching as a means of bringing religion to the multitudes has been of gradual growth. My experiences in other lands had much to do in impressing me with the scripturalness and practical efficiency of open air methods. When visiting the Holy Land I was invited to preach on the traditional hillside where Jesus preached his wonderful Sermon on the Mount. I was not only thrilled as I thought I was following the example and in the footsteps of my Master, but I was impressed with the aid of the surroundings in relieving preaching of all sense of artificiality.

I remembered, too, as I looked at the little blue sea of Galilee how Jesus preached to the crowds on the shore from the fisherman's boat. Jesus sometimes spoke in the synagogues and the temple of his day, but more frequently he spoke by the roadside, where he could point out the lilies of the valley, the man going out to sow in the field, or to the hen gathering her brood under her wings. When in Athens I preached on Mars Hill, famous for the sermon preached there by St. Paul. The realization that Jesus and Paul appealed to the people outside of church buildings and without ritualistic church accessories led me to decide there could be no objection to a modern minister following the example of the founders of our faith.

An experience in Edinburgh, Scotland, added to my sense of value of this direct approach to the people. One evening I listened to a speaker who railed against Christianity and denounced the church. Finally he challenged any one to reply to his charges. While a stranger, I could not allow myself to stand idly by and let his blasphemies go unanswered. I mounted the platform and for an hour I preached to a vast throng. Strange to say, the infidel lost his voice and could say nothing in return. Later I learned from another that his voice was permanently silenced.

The attention given by the people and the satisfaction expressed by many at my refutation of the slanders on religion uttered by a man, once a preacher but now in league with vice and every evil practice, as I afterward learned, made me thankful for that one experience and determined to accept other opportunities when they providentially came my way.

Some may smile at a more recent experience of mine of the supernatural answer to prayer. When in Canton, S. D., this July I found the people in great distress because of the lack of rain. When I opened my first address, which was given in the open air, I told the people rain was more important than any address I could make. I therefore called on all of them to pray for rain and I turned the occasion into a regular prayer meeting. The sky was clear and there were no visible signs of approaching rain. Next day the rain came and covered a large area. In Chicago it is my practice to held an open air service every Saturday evening.

It is said the Gothic arch was suggested by the vistas formed by the meeting of tree tops with the graceful openings thus formed. In the words of William Cullen Bryant, "The groves were God's first temples." Why should we not still worship in these temples when God has hung a great lamp we call the sun for the day and the moon and the burning stars as luminaries by night?

There is special need of preaching in the open in our great cities. Multitudes do not go to church at all. Many of the poor think they are not welcome in the churches, or at least imagine their clothing would compare unfavorably with the church going audience, and so do not come. Attractions of another character abound. Modern invention has produced the automobile, the radio, the moving pictures. Lawlessness is an ever present evil. Criminals come to the cities to carry on their devilish work. Murderers find here the hidden places in which they make their rendezvous and the means for a quick escape if they are in danger of being apprehended. The streets and the parks belong to the law abiding people of this city, not to the anarchists, bolshevists, and other enemies of a divine democracy. We are not opposed to free speech, even of those who oppose our views. We do not want to close the mouths of others who may have as good a right to speak as we have, but we do not intend to stay inside our churches and let opponents of evangelical Christianity have an undisputed right of way. As the Bible says, "He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear."

We are not afraid of facts and are willing to let the people judge for themselves, but we are not going to refrain from making known the greatest fact of all, God, and that the government is not simply of the people, by the people, and for the people, but the government under God is of the people, by the people, and for the people.

Open air preaching is somewhat allied in principle to the early morning service conducted over the radio by the Chicago Church federation, which I had the privilege of first conducting. The radio brings the Bible message to the people without their going to the church building. It has about it a similar informality that brings good fellowship. No one need listen in if he does not want to, just as no one is compelled to listen to open air preaching unless he chooses. Open air preaching is obeying the divine command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

We are not calling on ministers to abandon their pulpits, but we are asking the strongest preachers after they have preached in their pulpits to go out into the parks and on the streets and help save all forms of society from its worldly-mindedness. We believe the evangelistic commission of the Chicago Church federation will have the greatest program this fall and next year ever known in this city.

How to Keep Well.
By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, in matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

WHEN CHILDREN HAVE ALBUMIN.

THE fact that a child has albumin in the urine need not alarm the parents. It does not follow that the child has Bright's disease or is likely to have the trouble, or that it is in a serious condition or is liable to be in any nearby time. Of children ready to start to school, and without any history of kidney disease, about one in sixteen has albumin in the urine. Of children around 11 years old, more than one in four have that symptom. Of children around 16 years of age considerably more than one-third are in the group. If an over thorough school inspector were to include a urine test in his examination, he would create consternation among the parents of his school charges, were he to send the reports home without telling the parents that albuminuria in children does not always mean Bright's disease.

As between the sexes, girls have albumin in the urine almost half again as often as boys do. The causes of this symptom in children are several. Rapid growth is one; this is especially true about the time of puberty. It appears that the job of making the urine and the job of growing rapidly cannot both be carried on with perfection by the same kidney. When that organ is growing very rapidly it is apt to leak a little albumin. The standing posture is another cause. Poor nutrition, anemia, skinniness, infected tonsils, bad teeth, form a third cause or group of causes.

Probably it is advisable for every child to have a yearly audit, and for a urinalysis to be a part of the audit. If albumin be found at the time of the audit, the proper reaction is to find the cause, administer to that, but not to indulge in worries and fears. Albumin having been discovered, the next step is to look for casts. If these are found, the condition is more important.

The history of recent contagion should be investigated as a possible cause of Bright's disease. Let us say that in a given case there are no casts, no signs of dropsy, and no recent history of scarlet fever or other contagion that might cause Bright's disease. The case is one of albuminuria due to rapid growth or posture or some condition in the third group noted above.

If rapid growth is the only cause, nothing can be done—nothing need be done. If posture is the cause, it may be that the child is too much on his feet and more rest is advisable. If the cause is in the third group, some incidental treatment is advisable. If the child is undernourished, he should have more milk, bread, meat, and eggs. If he is pale, he should have more meat, eggs, and green vegetables. Sunlight and perhaps cod liver oil and lime may be needed.

In other words, a policy should be followed of building up rather than of limitation of diet as is so frequently the case. If the tonsils, teeth, or nose are serving as foci of absorption, these should be put in order. But all this should be done to improve the child's stamina, and not especially to prevent, or cure, Bright's disease.

SPINACH A GOOD FOOD.

J. H. B. writes:

1. Is spinach good for the body, and what effect has spinach on the blood?

2. Would a portion of spinach each day be helpful or harmful in any way?

3. I awake in the morning with my hands feeling stiff and cramped, due to the work I do during the day. What treatment would you advise for such hands?

REPLY.

1. It is a good bulky food. In addition to supplying energy and nourishment, it furnishes vitamins needed to protect against scurvy and minerals needed to protect against anemia.

2. Helpful.

3. Massage.

HAVE AN EXAMINATION.

C. B. writes: Please tell me why one breast is larger than the other. I am 21 and weigh 115 pounds.

REPLY.

There may be a tumor. At any rate, have a careful examination. The difference in size may be of no clinical significance, or it may be.

USURY.

Chicago, July 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I can prove that a loan company in the loop is and has been charging 20 per cent per month on salary loans. 1. How can I proceed so as not to have to pay this? They might attach my wages.

2. If this is an illegal charge will the principal have to be paid? A. C. E.

1. The obvious remedy is to refuse to pay more than the legal rate. We are informed that the railroads have concertedly agreed to ignore notices of assignments of wages of their employés. We cannot advise a course of action without knowing the facts in more detail.

2. Yes. Usury invalidates the interest, but does not invalidate the principal.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PAVING PROJECT ABANDONED.

Chicago, July 23.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you tell me if Coles avenue, between 71st and 75th streets is going to be paved this summer? Every spring before 1926, the holes have been patched enough to last through the summer, but this year that was not done and the dust and rumbling from passing vehicles is something fierce. Can't the property owners be made to let the bill go through for paving a street in such condition?

H. W.

A petition was presented to the board of local improvements signed by the owners of 622 feet of frontage abutting Coles avenue between 71st street and 75th street.

A public hearing was held on June 20, 1924, at which hearing the property owners requested that the proceedings for paving the street be abandoned for the reason that the street had been repaired out of the wheel tax fund. The property owners can start a new proceeding for paving this street if they will present a petition for same to the board of local improvements.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 1, 1861.

WASHINGTON. — The names of Capt. Ulysses S. Grant and Representative John A. McClernand, both of Illinois, were sent to the senate for confirmation as brigadier generals.

WASHINGTON—Gen McClellan has taken measures to establish a line of pickets along the Potomac below Harper's Ferry. He is urging the government to provide an abundance of artillery for the war, regarding that and cavalry as more important arms of the war than does the lieutenant general. He is striving to have the places of incompetent officers filled by men of fresher blood and more activity, and is inspiring and inspiriting the soldiers. The new general seems to be the man for the times.

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Jeff Davis has made a speech at Richmond in which he pronounces the confederate victory [at Manassas] great, glorious, and complete. He said "we have whipped them this time and can whip them again as often as they offer us the opportunity." The headlong retreat of the enemy he compared to the wild and hurried flight of a scared covey of partridges.

ST. LOUIS.—Troops are being concentrated at Springfield, Mo., in anticipation of trouble with the rebel force now being sent into the state to aid Claib. Jackson's falling fortunes. It is reported that Gen. Sigel will be left temporarily in command at Springfield, while Gen. Lyon returns here, and that Gen. Fremont will take the field in person to direct future operations on the southeastern border. The final stand for secession will be made there from present indications.

CAIRO, Ill.—Persons direct from New Madrid Mo., bring positive information of the arrival there of 17,000 rebel troops from Memphis, Randolph, and Union City. They brought 27 cannon, and wagons and army stores in abundance. They declared they are after Gen. Lyon and St. Louis.

CHICAGO.—Four masked men held up the incoming limited train of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in the darkness of the marshes east of Edgemoor, Ind., thirty-one miles from Chicago. Firing a fusillade of shots the length of the train to intimidate the passengers, they wrecked a mail car with dynamite, mistaking it for the express car which contained thousands of dollars and much other valuable property from the east. At the point of a revolver they forced Fireman F. S. Deveney to uncouple the first two cars of the train and compelled Engineer J. W. Collins to run them 200 feet away from the rest of the train. Then threatening to kill him unless he did their bidding they made the engineer apply the dynamite which shattered the mail car. When they discovered that it was not the express car they grabbed Collins' watch and fled into the woods. It is supposed they escaped by boat. A thorough man hunt for the robbers was organized immediately. The engineer's watch, valued at $50, was the only loot.

CHICAGO.—Vice President Roosevelt arrived in the city on his way to Colorado Springs.

CHICAGO.—The Board of Review announced that it will raise valuations on all loop property. The plan is to make a horizontal increase of 10 per cent.

LONDON.—The house of commons voted £100,000 to Lord Roberts for his services in South Africa against the Boers.

PITTSBURGH.—J. Pierpont Morgan rejected the latest proposals of the Amalgamated association in the steel strike and declared that his proposition of last week for a settlement is final.

CHICAGO.—Miss Jeannette Ruth Arnold and John R. Newcomer were married at the bride's home, 702 California avenue, by the Rev. C. A. Wakem.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 1, 1916.

NEW YORK.—"America First and America Efficient." This was the keynote, this the promise, uttered by Charles Evans Hughes at Carnegie Hall as he accepted from the hands of Senator Warren G. Harding and the Republican national convention's notification committee the nomination for the presidency. Mr. Hughes mercilessly assailed the Wilson administration for the supineness of its foreign policy, pictured its course in Mexico as "a confused chapter of blunders" and pilloried it for its vacillation and indecision with respect to preparedness and other domestic problems of vital concern to Americans in this hour of crisis.

CHICAGO.—The most destructive hot wave in Chicago's history was smashed by a northwest wind which, joined with a lake breeze, sent the mercury from 98 down to 76, but not until eighty-four more had died from the heat, making the total deaths for four days 348.

CHICAGO.—State's Attorney Hoyne broke with the city hall and declared war on Mayor Thompson. He announced he will rake the city administration fore and aft to uncover the truth of charges of graft and corrupt politics. Alleged manipulation of city contracts and saloon "privileges"—especially Sunday closing violations—for political and corrupt purposes, the prosecutor let it be known, is the special field of his investigation. A visit to Mr. Hoyne by Anton J. Cermak, an executive official of the United Societies, was the immediate occasion of Mr. Hoyne's announcement.

PARIS.—The Anglo-French forces in their offensive on the Somme front in one great bound have pushed forward to the outskirts of Combles, the last great German defensive position between the present allied line and the Peronne-Bapaume railroad. The gains were made on a six mile front.

BERLIN.—Strong Russian assaults in mass formation against the troops of Gen. von Linsingen on the Stokhod river front before the important railway center of Kovel were repulsed.

HUNDRED YEAR WAR FOR LEGAL REFORM

ENGLISH COURTS GIVE SPEEDY JUSTICE.

This is the fourth weekly installment of an article by Prof. E. R. Sunderland, of the Law School of the University of Michigan, on the English system of legal procedure. In today's he gives a description of the business-like manner in which an English court tries cases, and the simple rules which govern court practice. Under this system debts are quickly collected.

The history of the development of legal procedure in England during the nineteenth century indicates in a general way what characteristics that procedure would almost necessarily possess. The dominating influence of the laity could hardly fail to create a wide gap between the traditional conceptions and current methods, and the changes introduced naturally appear quite revolutionary to the American lawyer. As one sits in an English courtroom, and watches the progress of a case, it does not seem like a professional performance. One hears no technical objections to the proceedings, and very little technical language. The skill of the participants is directed almost exclusively toward the result to be reached, and the details of the method by which the trial or the hearing is conducted are given very slight attention.

Obviously there is a right way to do things, which is followed almost unconsciously by the court and counsel. Things proceed with a frictionless rapidity and a vigorous directness which is fairly alarming to a conservative disciple of the traditional common law procedure. Before one realizes that the case is fully under way, counsel announce that they rest, the jury is instructed so clearly and so naturally that one is astonished at the simplicity of the issues. Decisions are reached by the jury with the most businesslike promptness.

Run on a Business Basis.

The court seems like a commercial organization in which the participants are devoting their undivided attention to the investigation, discussion, and decision of a problem which they are there to solve. There is no lost time and no lost motion. Every step counts. It is a court conducted by highly trained lawyers in the manner of highly trained business executives. One can feel at every turn that the ideal before it is not regularity but efficiency. The public, not the profession, is obviously in ultimate control.

The greatest weaknesses in the common law system of procedure were the technical rules of pleading, the lack of special methods for dealing with special classes of cases, the want of an adequate system of disclosures before trial, the stilted, unnatural, and ineffective methods of dealing with witnesses and juries, and the technical machinery for appellate review. It will perhaps be profitable to take up each of these features and glance at the way in which England has dealt with the problems involved.

No Technical Rules on Pleading.

There are practically no technical rules left in the subject of pleading. All persons may join as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally or in the alternative, subject to the right of the court to order separate trials for one or more of them if deemed expedient [Order 16, Rule 1]. The same freedom of joinder is allowed in the case of defendants, subject to the same right to order separate trials [Order 16, Rules 4, 5].

If an action is brought in the name of the wrong plaintiff, the right party may be substituted by leave of court [Order 16, Rule 12]. No action can be defeated by reason of misjoinder or nonjoinder of parties, but the court may deal with those before it as shall be just and may drop parties or add them at any stage of the proceedings [Order 16, rule 11].

If a defendant claims contribution or indemnity over against any third person not a party to the action, he may have such third party brought in so as to obtain a judgment over against him without a separate action [Order 16, Rules 48-55]. In case of the death, marriage, or bankruptcy of any party, or the happening of any other event causing a change or transmission in interest or liability, the proper party may be substituted or added and the action shall not abate [Order 17].

Pleadings Are Simplified.

The pleadings themselves are designed merely to give sufficient notice, and no technical objections can be raised to any pleading on the ground of want of form (order 19, rule 26). The court has prepared a large number of very short and simple forms to be used as models, and the lawyers are charged with costs if their pleadings are more prolix than the official forms (order 19, rule 1). There are no demurrers, but further and better pleadings may be ordered at any time (order 19, rule 7). Practically all causes of action may be joined, subject to the right of the court to order separate trials (order 18, rule 1), and any matters may be set up as counter claims, even though they involve the bringing in of additional parties, subject to the same right of separation for trial (order 21, rules 10-12). Amendments may be allowed of any kind, at any time, on order of the court.

Pleading under these rules has certainly lost its terrors, and it is hard to see how the merits of a case could ever be jeopardized by errors of the pleader. Indeed, the subject has become so simple and is treated so sensibly that during the twenty-three years from 1898 to 1920 Mews English Digest shows only eighty-five cases in the English reports dealing with the field of pleading and parties.

Special Cases Are Segregated.

The common law system of procedure had an astonishing want of flexibility in dealing with different classes of cases. It was based on the totally false assumption that all litigation should proceed along identical lines, irrespective of its particular nature, like a railroad system which should develop a single type of car to be used interchangeably for passengers, live stock, or freight, or a factory in which the same machinery would be employed to turn out automobiles, cotton cloth, and optical instruments.

There are two classes of cases which should never go through the ordinary machinery of litigation. One class consists of those cases in which there is no bona fide issue to try which should result immediately in a summary judgment; the other consists of those cases in which a declaration of rights rather than a judgment for relief is desired by the plaintiff. The English practice has successfully segregated both these classes and kept them off the regular dockets.

Debts Are Quickly Collected.

Summary judgment procedure, in essence, is nothing but a process for the prompt collection of debts. It was never employed by the common law courts, because they developed all their rules of procedure as mere by-products of controversial litigation, and such litigation is not adapted for collecting debts. Machinery for that purpose must provide a test to determine that the plaintiff has a debt and not a controverted claim, and a means for getting an immediate judgment without the expense and delay of a trial.

The creditor issues a summons with a description of the debt indorsed upon it, files an affidavit of the truth of his claim and of his belief that there is no defense, and upon that showing, without pleadings and without the aid of counsel, he may bring the debtor before a high court master on four days' notice to show cause why a summary judgment should not be forthwith rendered against him.

The burden is thus placed upon the debtor to satisfy the master, by convincing proofs, that he ought to be given the right to litigate the claim. No formal gesture, such as an affidavit of merits so often provided for in our summary judgment acts, will suffice. The masters want solid assurances, and sham defenses are ruthlessly rejected. Under the skillful hands of the masters these cases are disposed of very rapidly, five or ten minutes being usually enough. Very large judgments, running into thousands, or even millions of dollars, are constantly being rendered in this summary way.

Summary Judgments Relieve Dockets.

The immense value of the practice is indicated by its wide use. In the year 1923, for example, there were 6,773 summary judgments rendered by the masters of the King's Bench division, as compared with 1,546 judgments entered by the judges after trial of issues. That means that by this device the trial dockets were relieved of 80 per cent of the cases which would otherwise have come before the courts for formal trial, and that claimants in all those cases got their judgments in as many days as it would have required months through ordinary litigation in the courts.

Two American jurisdictions have adopted the English summary judgment practice. New Jersey did so in 1912, when it completely revised its procedure in accordance with the English rules. New York did so in 1921. Perhaps because it was only one item in a large program of procedural reform, the constitutionality of the summary judgment statute was not seriously assailed in New Jersey, but in New York, with true professional hostility to change in legal practice, the summary judgment act was promptly required to run the constitutional gantlet on the ground that it invaded the right of trial by jury. Fortunately the attack failed.

English System Growing in New York.

The practice is being employed with rapidly increasing frequency in New York. It went into effect Oct. 1, 1921. In Manhattan county, 11 motions for summary judgments were made during the remainder of that year; in 1922 there were 174 such motions; in 1923 there were 447, and in the year 1925 about 700 [49 Am. Bar Assn. Rep. 588.]

Every state in this country urgently needs a device like the English summary judgment rule, to avoid the fraudulent delays by which justice is denied to those who only ask for what is admitted to be their due. In a land where time saving methods are as highly valued as in the United States, the lack of an adequate means for the prompt collection of debts through judicial process is an inexcusable defect.

Declaration of Legal Rights.

The other class of cases which the English segregate for special treatment, consists of application for declaration of legal rights, without demand for other relief. They usually present limited issues, often largely of law which can be disposed of in much less time than cases brought in the ordinary way. Most of these cases ask for the construction of deeds, wills, contracts or other written instruments, statutes or governmental orders.

The pratice enables parties to bring questions before the courts for determination at an early period in the controversy, when few complications have raisen, and when the adjudication of a simple issue of construction may save parties from doing acts and committing themselves to courses of conduct which may afterwards be very difficult to deal with. At this stage no damages have yet been suffered, no steps have been taken which will have to be retraced, and no rights of third parties have intervened. Taken in time, the controversy may be kept within very narow limits, and the decision will almost amount to an amicable adjustment under the advice of the court.

The service rendered by the courts under the declaratory judgment practice is quite analogous to that rendered by modern hospitals which diagnose and treat diseases in their incipient stages and thereby prevent the development of more dangerous conditions.

Practice Speeds Up Court Work.

So useful and effective has this practice become in England that several judges of the high court are frequently engaged simultaneously in making declarations of rights, and the size of the dockets which they dispose of is eloquent testimony of the speed with which the work can be done.

The theory of the declaratory judgment is strictly in accord with our modern conceptions of the function of a civilized state. In early times the basis of jurisdiction was the constant assertion of physical power over the parties to the action, but as civilization advances the mere existence of such power tends to make its exercise less and less essential.

If our civilization is not a sham, and the state is understood to be equal to the task of enforcing the decrees of its courts, a mere declaration may serve every purpose of an order, and the order will become unnecessary. A declaration by the court that A is entitled to the immediate possession of a chattel in B's possession, should be equally effective in A's behalf as a judgment that A do have and recover of B the possession of the chattel. A judicial declaration that a certain city ordinance is invalid ought to serve equally as well as an injunction against its enforcement. Furthermore, the remedial possibilities in such declaratory judgments are much greater than in judgments for relief, and they open up an entirely new field for judicial usefulness.

Professor Sunderland will continue his discussion in The Tribune next Sunday.

PUBLIC HOMAGE FOR CUMMINS IN IOWA'S CAPITOL

Body of Senator Will Lie in State.

Des Moines, Ia., July 31.—(AP)—The Iowa state capitol, from which the fame of Albert B. Cummins first spread as he headed the state government years ago, will be the scene tomorrow of one of the final public tributes to the man who has been acclaimed Iowa's outstanding contribution to the service of the nation.

With the body of the dead statesman lying in state at the scene of his early triumphs in political life, thousands of his associates and admirers will file through the marble corridors to pay him their last respects and to record the sorrow that has gripped the commonwealth.

Will Lie in Rotunda.

At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning the senator's body will be placed in the rotunda, where National Guardsmen will hold watch over it until 5 p. m. as the line of mourners passes. Then the body will be escorted to the home of Mrs. Hollis Rawson, the senator's daughter, where funeral services are to be held Monday afternoon.

A state funeral at the capitol had been suggested for the dead senator, but his family this afternoon decided to facilitate the public tribute by placing the bier in the state house tomorrow and to have the final rites conducted from the Rawson home.

Virtually every man and woman of political prominence in the state and hundreds of close friends of the senator outside of the political circles were planning tonight to participate in the final ceremonies.

Congress Committees Named.

From other states, too, will come admirers and associates, including the delegations representing the senate and house of representatives, designated today by Vice President Dawes and Speaker Longworth.

All day messages of condolence and tribute to Senator Cummins' memory poured in upon his relatives here.

Meanwhile state political leaders were forced, regardless of their sorrowing over the loss of Senator Cummins, to press forward with plans to fill the senate vacancy without delay in order to comply with the law.

Conventions to Reconvene.

Nominees must be chosen by each political party within ten days of the beginning of the vacancy and party heads plan to issue calls for special conventions early next week. A confusion of the statutes caused official announcement to be made last night that the governor might appoint a successor to the senator, but today the department of justice ruled that state conventions, which were held within the last two weeks, must be reconvened.

Democratic heads had not definitely decided their course tonight.

At least eight prominent Republicans were mentioned today as possible candidates for the remainder of the Cummins term, which expires next March. In addition to filling the vacancy, the electorate will choose a long term senator in November.

President Pays Tribute.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., July 31.—[Special.]—President Coolidge today paid a high tribute to the ability and public career of Senator A. B. Cummins of Iowa, who died yesterday. He made public the following telegram addressed to Miss Margaret Cummins, Des Moines, Ia., a sister of the senator:

"It is with a sense of personal bereavement that I offer you my sympathy in the death of Senator Cummins. It is a great loss not only to the people of the state and section which he so ably represented, but to the country at large. His broad vision and keen mind were devoted not alone to the problems particularly vital to his constituents, but to the solution of the questions which affect the country as a whole.

"While his name is particularly associated with the tariff and transportation policies embodied in the laws now in force, he gave the benefit of his long experience and thorough training in every branch of legislation. Courageous, able, and industrious, and devoted to what he believed to be right, he was an example of the best type of public servant. We shall not soon see his like in the service of the highest ideals of American life."

Fines Caterer $100 for Failing to Pay Waitress

In the first case to be brought under the new state law making corporations subject to criminal prosecution for failure to pay on three days' notice the wages of employés, Judge Arnold Heap yesterday fined the Parkway Catering company $100 and costs. Miss Julia Wallace, a waitress, declared she was unable to collect $50 in wages from Walter M. George, head of the concern. There are said to be sixteen other ex-employés seeking their pay.

SALESMAN HELD AS BOND THIEF.

Charged with larceny, Albert Hirsch, 25 years old, a salesman for H. O. Stone & Co., 6 North Clark street, who is accused of attempting to steal $5,000 worth of bonds belonging to the concern so that he could pay his debts, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,000 yesterday by Judge John Richardson.

MUSICAL SHOWS ARE PREFERRED BY GALLI-CURCI

Atlantic City, N. J., July 31.—[Special.]—Here for a week-end with her husband, Homer Samuels, Galli-Curci said today that she would rather go to a good musical comedy than to a grand opera.

GALLI-CURCI.
[Lumiere Photo.]

"Americans are not opera loving," she said. "They like musical comedy, and I don't blame them. I would rather go to a musical comedy than an opera. I like the gaiety of the light shows. It is so much fun. Americans attend symphony concerts, for which I admire them. Symphonies are art. Opera is not the highest form of art. It is just a show with a little more aristocracy about it."

She Takes Poison After Quarrel with Sweetheart

During a quarrel with her sweetheart, Miss Caroline Gregory, 21, of 4358 Drexel boulevard, swallowed poison while in her apartment yesterday. Douglas McMullage, 4239 Drexel boulevard, hurried her to the Michael Reese hospital. The probably will recover.

Thief Gets $1,100

Miss Edith Mahoney, cashier for the Rusnak Furniture company at 2652 West North avenue, was robbed of $1,100 yesterday morning by a well dressed bandit who seized her pocketbook as she was returning from the Keystone Trust and Savings bank with the weekly pay roll. The thief escaped.

FIRES RAGING IN FORESTS OF THREE STATES

Missoula, Mont., July 31.—(AP)—High winds fanning the flames through the dry forests of western Montana, northern Idaho and eastern Washington today increased the seriousness of the situation and drove fires across the few control lines fighters have been able to establish.

From the Blackfeet forest came a report to district headquarters here that one fire had spread to 15,000 acres and another to 12,000. Two dangerous fires were reported along the Flathead river in the Glacier National park region.

A blaze which broke out yesterday east of Bonner in timber belonging to the Anaconda Mining company today had covered several hundred acres. Another large fire was burning between here and Milltown, while a third was raging two miles east of Missoula.

Superior Anthracite

A NEW WASHED HARD COAL
of Exceptional Purity

Because the amount of slate and other impurities in hard coal has been increasing every year, and because the percentage of fine coal has also been increasing, and while these fines are no detriment, they are strenuously objected to by the consumer, therefore we have not advocated the use of anthracite for several years.

In the interim, we have conducted a diligent search for a pure, clean and faultlessly prepared anthracite that we can recommend without reservation.

Another Alwart Discovery

Our discovery of Superior Washed Anthracite, which, due to new and recently perfected equipment, eliminates all impurities and removes all refuse and high ash material, now enables us to offer domestic consumers in our territory an exceptionally pure and well prepared anthracite for domestic use.

Alwart Recommends Superior Anthracite

We can and do recommend Superior Washed Anthracite unconditionally. Our 54 years of experience and reputation is your guarantee that this new coal is second to none and superior to all other brands available in this market, when quality, performance, preparation and cost are considered.

Floatation and washing of Superior Anthracite eliminates upward of 20% of impurities usually found in most other brands of anthracite. What you get in this new coal is just clean, pure hard anthracite with no degradation or clinkers, therefore the fuel and labor cost at our prices are lowest.

NORRIS AGREES TO LEAD JUDICIARY GROUP IN SENATE

Regulars View with Alarm Elevation of Foe.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—An anti-administration Republican is to be elevated to the chairmanship of the senate judiciary committee in December to take the place made vacant by the death of Senator Albert B. Cummins [Rep., Ia.].

Senator Norris [Rep., Neb.] has agreed to take the chairmanship and, under the seniority rule, will be awarded the place.

Foe of Administration Bills.

Although Senator Norris failed to support the La Follette presidential ticket in 1924 and thus escaped being read out of the party by the senate Republican caucus, he stood with the late Senator La Follette on almost all issues and in the last session fought the administration foreign debt funding agreements and other measures favored by President Coolidge.

The regulars view with some alarm Senator Norris' selection as chairman of the judiciary committee. That he will seek to institute various investigations on subjects coming within the jurisdiction of the committee, such as violations of anti-trust laws, is anticipated.

Regulars May Lose Control.

It was Senator Norris whose speeches attacking President Coolidge for alleged efforts to influence the tariff commission in the sugar and other cases led to the investigation of the operation of the flexible tariff by a special senatorial committee.

Although all the present Republican members of the judiciary committee, except Senator Norris and Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho], are regarded as conservatives, these two senators can at any time control by combining with the Democrats. The committee is made up of nine Republicans and seven Democrats.

Hold Funeral Today for F. A. Torrey, R. R. Veteran

Funeral services for Frank A. Torrey, former general superintendent of motive power for the Burlington railroad, who died Friday at his home, 345 Sixth avenue, La Grange, will be held today at 10:30 a. m., in the home. Burial will be at Burlington, Ia. Mr. Torrey, who was 71 years old, retired in 1922, after 48 years of service with the railroad. He is survived by his widow, one son, W. A. Torrey of Galesburg, Ill., and one daughter, Mrs. G. A. Riel of La Grange.

W. W. DEBERARD NAMED CHIEF ENGINEER OF REGIONAL COMMITTEE

Chicago's plans for a big coöperative road improvement program designed to widen highways and relieve traffic congestion received added impetus yesterday with the announcement that W. W. De Berard, chairman of the Association of Commerce good roads committee and former western editor of the Engineering News-Record, has been appointed chief engineer of the Chicago Regional Planning association.

W. W. DE BERARD.

The appointment is effective today and De Berard expects to concentrate his attention on pushing through the coöperative improvement plan, which will be recommended to the Cook county board by President Anton Cermak's wide highway advisory committee, and on plans for the new super-highway to be built between Chicago and Milwaukee west of Sheridan road.

The Regional Planning association, which is working out the physical end of the proposed county wide-road bond issue plan, is headed by D. H. Burnham. It numbers among its members the Chicago Commonwealth club, Commercial Club of Chicago, the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, Union League club, City club, and many city and village councils in the Chicago region.

JOHN L. M'NEIL, FRUIT CO. HEAD, DIES SUDDENLY

John L. McNeil, 4556 Woodlawn avenue, president of McNeil & Co., a fruit packing and preserving concern at Carpentersville, Ill., and for many years treasurer of the old McNeill & Higgins Wholesale Grocery company of Chicago, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday at the home of his brother, W. W. McNeil, in Elgin.

Mr. McNeil was born Feb. 5, 1874, in Chicago and was graduated from Harvard university in 1898. He is survived by his widow, Daisy; three children, Buel, John, and Evaline, and two brothers, W. W. and H. C. McNeil of Elgin.

DR. WILLIAM P. CUTLER, executive secretary of the Association of Corn Products Manufacturers, died yesterday at his home, 403 South Sheridan road, Highland Park, of heart disease. He was 67 year old and is survived by a widow, two sons and four daughters. From 1909 to 1913 Dr. Cutler was food and dairy commissioner of Missouri and was previously food commisioner of Kansas City. Funeral services will be held at the family residence on Tuesday at 10 a. m

NEARLY HALF OF TRINZ $540,000 LEFT TO CHARITY

Theater Man's Relatives Given $309,500.

Executors of the estate of the late Joseph Trinz, motion picture theater magnate, are directed to give nearly half his $540,000 fortune to such charities as they may choose in the will filed yesterday before Assistant Probate Judge Frederick W. Elliott.

Five Named Executors.

The executors are Harry L. Lubliner, partner of Mr. Trinz in the theater firm of Lubliner & Trinz; Leo Spitz, 307 North Michigan avenue; Aaron Trinz, 622 Waveland avenue; Emil Stern, 307 North Michigan avenue, and Samuel Trinz, 307 North Michigan avenue

A score of bequests to relatives total $309,500. The will then specifies that $10,000 be given to the United Charities of Chicago. The residue of the estate is to be given to charity at the discretion of the executors.

Relatives Given Bequests.

Some of the larger bequests of the will are: Aaron Trinz, brother, $50,000; Mrs. Sarah Saxe, sister, Long Island, $50,000; Elinor Spingarn, sister, Brooklyn, $50,000; Elizabeth McLaren, a friend, 507 Alden avenue, $50,000; Samuel Trinz, brother, $25,000; Samuel Trinz Jr., a nephew, 511 Brompton place, $25,000; Edward Trinz, nephew, 3318 Sheridan road, $25,000; and Minnie Stern, niece, $10,000.

Bequests ranging from $500 to $5,000 are given to eleven nieces and nephews.

VOLSTEADISM TO BE BIG ISSUE THIS AUTUMN

Will Rival Fight for Congress Control.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—With wet and dry fights involved in congressional and senatorial contests and with some form of referendum vote in prospect in seven or eight states, prohibition is coming to the front as an issue in the November elections rivaling the fight between Republicans and Democrats for control of congress.

Seven states where movements for a referendum have come to a head are: New York, Wisconsin, Missouri, Colorado, California, Montana, and Nevada. In Illinois a referendum petition has been circulated, but has not been filed as yet.

While the Anti-Saloon league has advised the drys to ignore the referendum votes, the advocates of modification believe that the outcome cannot fail to be representative of public sentiment and to have a powerful effect on the future of prohibition.

Wets Hope for Gains.

The modificationists do not by any means expect that the next congress will be wet. They hope to make some gains in November in both the house and senate. They realize that the dry majorities in both houses are at present so overwhelming as to make it impossible to overturn them in a single election. Through the test votes in several states they hope to make such a showing as to give impetus to the campaign to be made at the time of the presidential election in 1928.

As against the claims of the wets the drys declare that the results of primaries held thus far show that no great change in the complexion of the next congress will take place. The drys say they have about held their own, though conceding a defeat in Pennsylvania, where Representative William S. Vare, a wet, won the Republican senatorial nomination over Senator Pepper and Gov. Pinchot, both drys.

Hope to Land Wilson.

Some of the dry leaders appear to have an idea that they can elect former Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, who is the Democratic nominee. With Pennsylvania usually rolling up tremendous Republican majorities all indications are that Vare will go to the senate to add strength to the small band of modificationists. The drys lost one house vote as a result of the Pennsylvania primaries, the probable lineup of the Pennsylvania delegation in the next congress being 22 drys and 14 wets.

The drys gained one in the New Jersey primaries, but lost one in Minnesota.

The Illinois primaries failed to result in any changes from a wet and dry standpoint.

In Other States.

In Indiana all drys, both in the senate and house, were renominated. Here also the wet and dry issue will come to the front in the election.

Oregon renominated its four dry congressmen and the senate Republican nominee also is dry. In North Carolina the drys renominated all their members. In Iowa all house members were dry and all were renominated. Three dry representatives in Florida have been renominated. All drys in Maine and North Dakota also have been renominated.

The New York prohibition referendum will furnish the most spectacular wet and dry contest of the entire country.

In Wisconsin, under a special act of the legislature, there is to be a vote on the question, "Do you favor amending or repealing the Volstead act?" In Nevada, where there is no state prohibition law, the legislature has submitted to the voters the question, "Do you favor a nation-wide referendum to ascertain whether the present prohibition law should be repealed or continued?"

In Missouri, Colorado, California and Montana referendums are in prospect through the circulation of petitions for a vote on the issue as a question of public policy.

562 COMPLAINTS FILED ON LOW TAX VALUATIONS

Complaints of undervaluations on 562 pieces of real estate valued at millions were filed before the board of review yesterday by attorneys for the joint committee of the city council and board of education on tax equalizations,

The complaints, prepared by First Assistant Corporation Counsel Leon Hornstein, primarily concerned property in Hyde Park and Lake View. A total of 6,000 complaints on valuations in all parts of the city will be filed later, according to the committee's plans.

"We would have preferred to withhold the complaints and submit them after the board of review makes its report," said Mr. Hornstein. "But we are afraid that would be too late."

While the survey of the outlying districts is being carried on by the committee's staff, loop appraisals are being made by the Manufacturers' Appraisal company. The first public hearing on loop valuations will be held next Tuesday morning.

THIEF SHOT BY WATCHMAN.

One of four thieves who attempted to rob the store of the Philip Olenick company, 4144 West North avenue, was shot by the watchman, James Clohessy, early yesterday, and the band fled, carrying the wounded man with them.

ORDERS HIGH TAX WEAPON FOR WAR ON ILLICIT BOOZE

Washington, D. C., July 31.—(AP)—The government's new weapon against illicit liquor—taxation—was ordered into operation today by the treasury.

Instructions were issued to prohibition administrators regarding the form of taxes and penalties which may be assessed against liquor manufacture under the new revenue law and the prohibition act.

Just how the liquor is to be traced back to the manufacturers and proof of their liability established is not clear, but 62 "assessors" have been added to the staff for that work.

The instructions issued today point out that double and triple taxes on illicit liquor can be assessed as penalties.

Under the new revenue law the tax is $6.40 a proof gallon on all distilled spirits diverted to beverage use and $6 a barrel on beer containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol sold for beverage consumption. A special tax of $1,000 is levied on any person carrying on the business of a brewer, distiller, wholesale liquor dealer, retail liquor dealer or manufacturer of stills.

All of these assessments are in addition to the regular stamp taxes which are required under the revenue law on all distilled liquor, wine and beer.

Fined $3,000 for Four Traffic Law Violations

St. Louis, Mo., July 31.—[U.P.]—What is believed to be the largest traffic violation fine ever assessed, was imposed here yesterday against Bert Flynn, who was fined $3,000 by default when he failed to appear in court. Flynn was arrested for violating four different traffic ordinances. The charges were driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident, and two charges of failing to obey a police officer, resisting arrest and careless driving.

Petersburg, Ind., July 31.—Gerald Poehlein, eleven, son of George Poehlein of Winslow, was bitten by a mad dog last night. Young Poehlein was sent to Indianapolis today for treatment.

POLICE TRAIL MAN PROMISED $750 TO KILL MELLETT

Cleveland, O., July 31.—(AP)—Detective Ora M. Slater, in charge of the Mellett murder investigation and acting Chief of Police Hexamer of Canton, came to Cleveland late today and immediately went into conference with Chief of Police Jacob Graul and other police authorities over information gathered by local detectives concerning Patrick Eugene McDermott.

In reply to a question by reporters, Slater said he wanted McDermott "damn bad. He's the man."

The investigators questioned three women and a youth who had previously been questioned by the local police. They also called into conference Detective Captains Joseph Sweeney and Emmet J. Potts, who traced the movements of McDermott until he is alleged to have gone to Pittsburgh Wednesday to collect part of $750 he confided to a friend had been promised him to "get rid of" Don R. Mellett, the Canton publisher. After questioning the four, Slater and Hexamer left for Akron.

Those questioned by the Canton investigators included a youth who Potts and Sweeney declare, informed them of McDermott's movements. The youth, with one of the women, accompanied McDermott to Akron and Massillon, where, they declare, they went with the fugitive last Monday. McDermott told them, they say, that he went to those cities in an attempt to collect the remainder of money due him "for the job."

The pair also accompanied Potts and Sweeney to a summer cottage at Brady Lake, in Portage county, where first hint of McDermott's probable whereabouts was disclosed. A letter found in the cottage indicated that McDermott might be hiding at Perth Amboy, N. J., and police of that city were asked to search for him.

Helpless, He Sees Fellow Patient Plunge to Death

FILIPINO LIBERTY NOW MEANS RUIN, THOMPSON TOLD

Prominent Natives Say Revolt Would Result.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., July 31.—Any statement that the Filipinos are unanimous in demanding their freedom from the United States is a gross misrepresentation of the facts.

At the end of three weeks, Col. Carmi Thompson, President Coolidge's personal investigator in the Philippines, has reached a point of confidence where he can talk frankly with educated men who have traveled and who understand world conditions, and these men tell him that the worst thing that can happen to the archipelago would be the withdrawal of the Stars and Stripes.

"Outbreaks Would Follow."

That Col. Thompson is getting at the real situation was demonstrated clearly today in a fifteen minute chat with two natives—a lawyer and a business man. Both said emphatically they were opposed to independence at this time, "generations before the Filipinos are able to govern themselves."

"American withdrawal from the islands would be followed immediately by serious outbreaks," the lawyer said.

"For example, the hostility between Tagalog and Ilocano, which always is smoldering, undoubtedly would break forth in flames, and if further proof of what would occur is necessary, you need only to look at the spirit of hatred that exists between the Mohammedan Moros and the Christianized people of the islands. The Spanish never were able to subdue the Moros, and groups which would attempt to seize the government under an independent flag certainly never could accomplish it," said the business man.

Quezon Insists on Freedom.

"But what would cure this illusory dream of independence would be an immediate multiplication of taxes. Maintenance of the army and navy is sure to quadruple the present assessment, which is low, according to world standards.

"The standard of living would be lowered almost immediately if independence were granted, and this alone is sufficient to cause almost constant civil war."

Against this sort of utterances are the statements of Manuel Quezon, president of the senate and political boss of the islands, and other leaders, who continue to insist that all the people want independence immediately. Mr. Quezon recently met members of the Thompson party socially and was outspoken in his declarations on this subject and in the assertion that Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood must be retired in favor of a civilian instead of a military man.

Attacks Gov. Gen. Wood.

"All feel that they now are living under a military dictatorship, although the law says they are to be governed by elected representatives of the people in the legislature," Señor Quezon said recently. "All remedial legislation of the character advocated in the United States is at an absolute standstill as long as Gen. Wood is governor general."

FRANCO PLANS TO TAKE WIFE ON WORLD FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, July 31.—Commander Ramon Franco, leader of the trans-Atlantic flight early this year from Spain to Argentina, announced today that he will make a world flight next April with his wife and his mechanic, Señor Rada, who accompanied him on the trip to Argentenia. The definite route to be taken has not yet been determined, but he expects to follow the coast line of Asia to Japan, crossing the Pacific and going southward along the Canadian and American coast to San Francisco.

CATCH FORMER DRY AGENT WITH LOAD OF MOON

Memphis, Tenn., July 31.—[Special.]—M. R. Wimmer, former prohibition agent, was held under $1,000 bond by Commissioner Lester Brenner on charges of transporting and possessing 35 gallons of moonshine today. A. B. Galloway, Wimmer's attorney, furnished cash bond.

Wimmer and his Ford coupe were nabbed by Louisville federal agents at the end of Hatchie river bridge. The booze was in three 10 gallon kegs and one five gallon keg.

A well dressed, dark haired woman, wearing many sparkling jewels, was in the coupe with Wimmer and the 35 gallons. Wimmer is married.

Wimmer resigned several months ago with W. H. Wright, formerly chief of the prohibition forces here. The two officers declared they resigned because of lack of coöperation on the part of prohibition headquarters at Louisville.

119 TO GRADUATE THIS WEEK AT MOODY INSTITUTE

Dr. James M. Gray, president of the Moody Bible institute, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon for a graduating class of 119 members, one of the largest classes ever graduated from the institution, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Class exercises will be held Thursday at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and the graduation address will be given that evening by the Rev. Dr. Oliver W. Van Osdel, pastor of the Wealthy Street Baptist church, Grand Rapids, Mich. A dinner for the graduates will precede his address.

All the graduation exercises will be held in the institute auditorium and are open to the public. Thirty states and five foreign countries are represented among the graduates.

8,000 TEXTILE STRIKERS ASK TO JOIN A. F. OF L.

Passaic, N. J., July 31.—[Special.]—After a twenty-seven weeks' walkout, more than 8,000 striking textile workers of Passaic, Garfield, and Lodi voted at a meeting here tonight to seek admission to the American Federation of Labor. They also voted to place further peace negotiations in the hands of a disinterested committee of citizens comprising W. Jett Lauck of Washington, Henry T. Hunt and Helen Todd of New York, with F. F. Walsh as member in absentio.

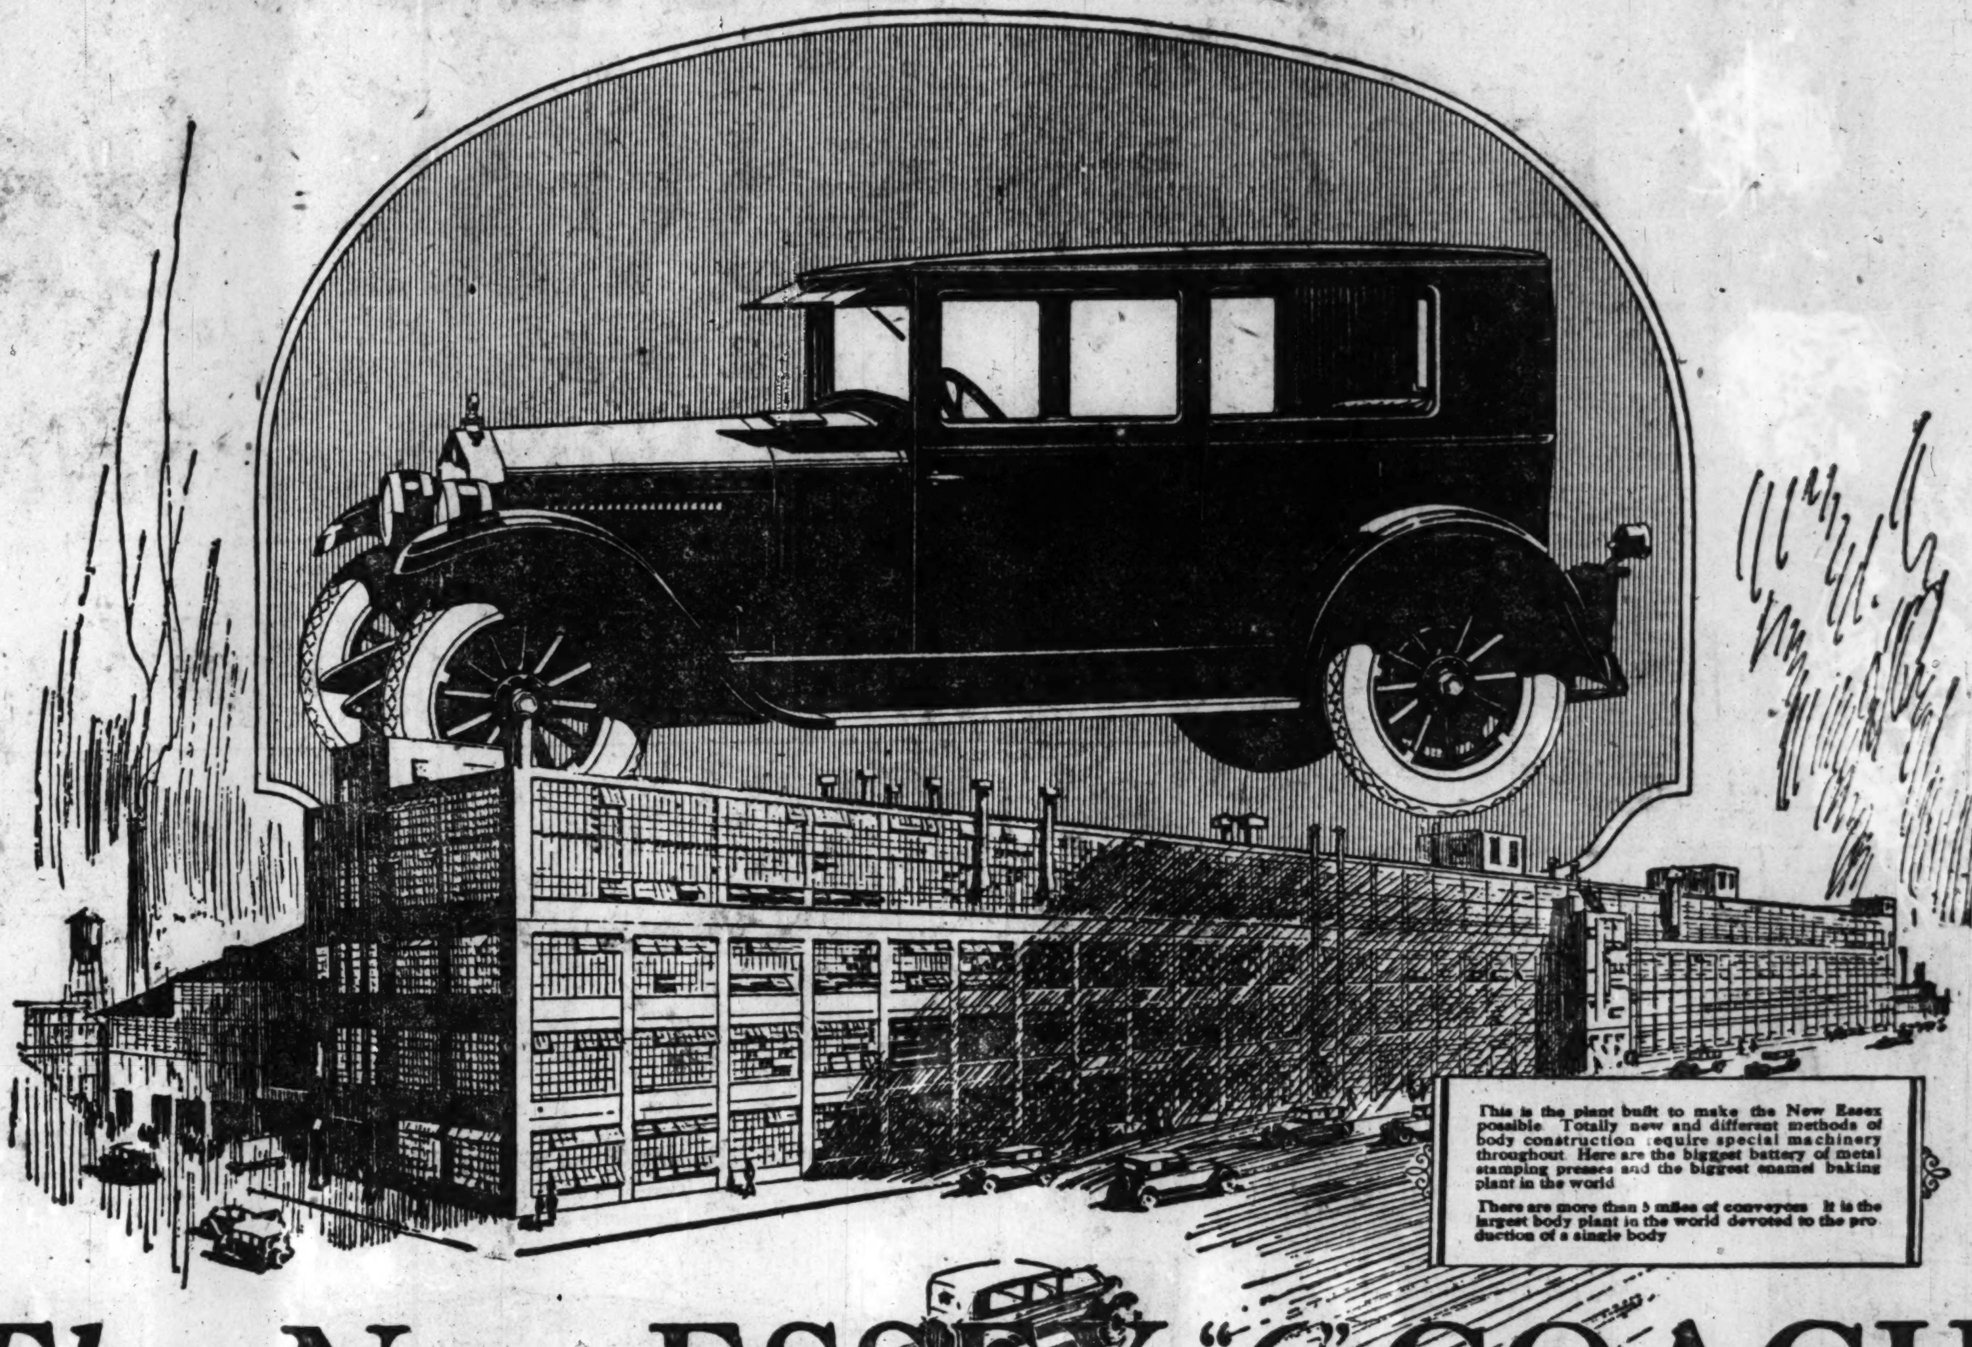
We Built a $10,000,000 Body Plant to Make This New Essex Possible



This is the plant built to make the New Essex possible. Totally new and different methods of body construction require special machinery throughout. Here are the biggest battery of metal stamping presses and the biggest enamel baking plant in the world.

There are more than 5 miles of conveyors. It is the largest body plant in the world devoted to the production of a single body.

The New ESSEX "6" COACH

With All-Steel, Bolted and Riveted Clear Vision Body

$795
F. O. B. Detroit, Plus War Excise Tax

$865
"At Your Door"

Standard equipment includes: Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (built-in), Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

Many of these advantages you will recognize at a glance. But you will have a higher appreciation of their meaning when you know that a plant of 18 acres which, with equipment, approximated a cost of $10,000,000, was first built and that special machinery had to be designed, to make possible this New Coach now on display.

Again Essex "6" offers in the design and construction of the New Coach as radical an improvement as was the original Coach itself.

It is all steel, bolted and riveted, and so rigid that squeaks, rattles and distortions, are as unlikely as in a steel building. Doors are so hung that a man may hang on an open door while the car is being driven over rough roads, without springing it out of true.

And it is so designed and constructed as to permit the use in a totally new manner of a high baked enamel, most lustrous and lasting finish. This has made possible new combinations in finish that will please your eye.

There has been constant improvement in the chassis from the first Essex shipped. Every week has seen some betterment. But only by the accumulation of the resources, the information, experience, and the skill that have resulted from the purchase of 350,000 Essex "Sixes" in a short period of time, was it possible to erect the plants, to perfect the machinery, to create the designs that have resulted in this car which we ask you to inspect and to drive as the best looking, best value, best Essex ever built.

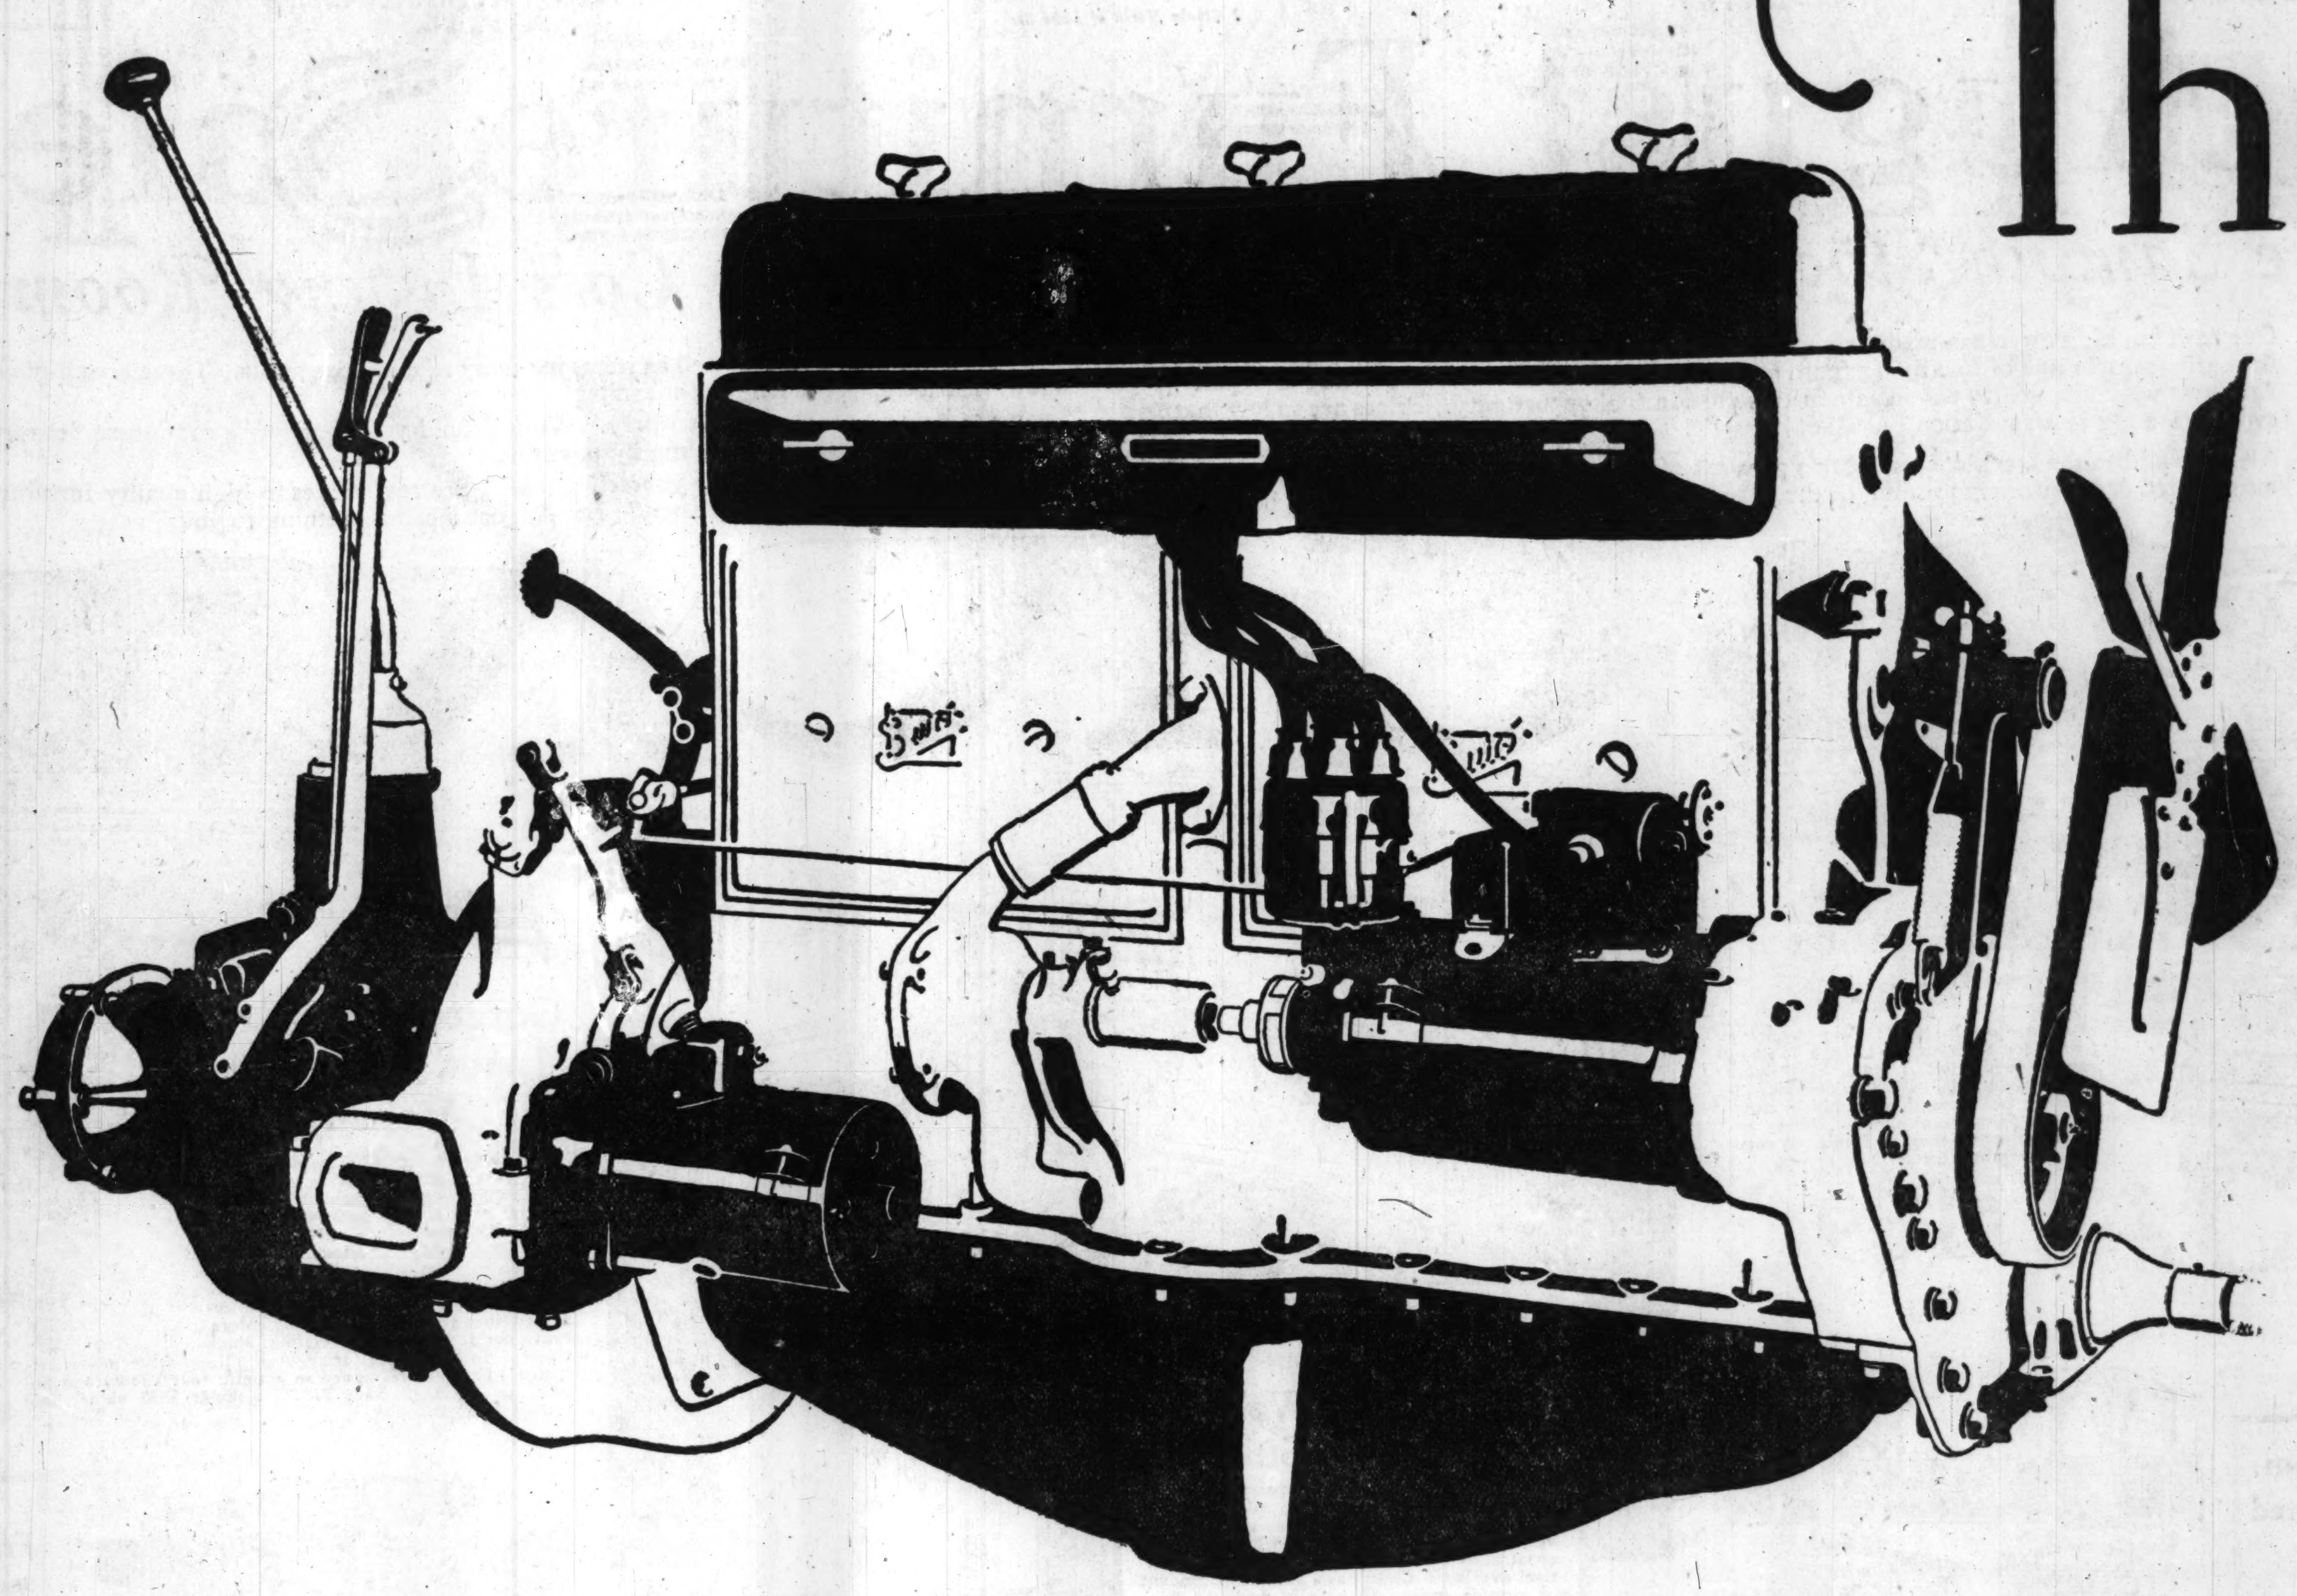
The



Vibrationless beyond belief

The Buick Motor Company today presents the 1927 Buick, with an engine, vibrationless beyond belief.

This achievement, we earnestly believe, will rank as one of the most important in all motor car history.

Our engineers, working in conjunction with the engineering staffs of General Motors Research Laboratories and General Motors Proving Ground have divorced the annoyance of vibration to a point never before attained.

They have given Buick motor cars a new luxury of quietness at every speed, exceptional among all cars, no matter what their price.

Never in all the twenty-two years of Buick success has there been offered such convincing proof of engineering and manufacturing leadership.

Buick offers you today a brilliant example of the quality of Buick craftsmanship—

Confident that acquaintance with its performance and value will fix in mind the conviction that money can buy nothing finer—

Certain that you will discover in this great new car, further evidence of the deep meaning in the long-standing Buick pledge: "When Better Automobiles are Built, Buick Will Build Them."

Four Vital Engine Improvements

To produce the silent power-flow in the 1927 Buick, Buick engineers have made four fundamental improvements in the structure of the famous Buick Six-Cylinder Valve-in-Head engine. These include a Counter-Poised Crankshaft, a Torsion Balancer; new light-weight pistons; and then a Completely Cushioned Engine, insulated and isolated by rubber mountings, fore and aft, from all metallic contact with the chassis.

Buick Also Introduces The Vacuum-Cleaned Crankcase

Another revolutionary improvement in the 1927 Buick is the vacuum-cleaned crankcase. Crankcase moisture, the vicious foe of engine efficiency, is now drawn out of the crankcase before it has an opportunity to do harm. The crankcase is cleaned and kept free of dilution by the Buick Vacuum Ventilator, a new device, operated by the air flow; positive and certain in action, and without a single moving part. The oil in the crankcase of the 1927 Buick need be changed only four times a year!

And Thermostatic Control of Cooling

Buick performance is now made more certain, more pleasant and more economical by thermostatic control in the cooling system. Water circulation is halted and the heat held in the engine, until the proper operating temperature is reached. Thermostatic Control also assists the Vacuum Ventilator in its work, by reducing the use of the choke.

Other Refinements To Eliminate Noise

Gear noise is removed by Buick's new giant-tooth transmission. This transmission is quiet in all of its speeds. Further quietness has been obtained by an entirely new muffler design. This minimizes exhaust noise, with no power loss.

Balanced Wheels for Smoother, Safer Driving

And in this remarkable new car, Buick introduces balanced wheels, another contribution to easier and safer driving.

The Buick chassis now offers a perfection of performance long looked-for—but never before found in any motor car.

Millions saved by volume production have been used to develop Buick quality to the point where nothing could be finer.

Luxurious New Bodies by Fisher

The princely beauty of the new Fisher Bodies is in thorough keeping with the unusual and incomparable performance standards now attained.

Rich Coronation Colors in Duco dress these cars in striking custom finishes. Refinements of profile with low-gravity body construction impart an air of fleetness, grace and high quality. And, in the creation and selection of the upholsterings and interiorware, artistic taste is unmistakably reflected.

And Here is the Most Remarkable Fact About This Remarkable Motor Car—Value!

This greatest of all Buicks is the greatest of all Buick values. Buick volume has permitted engineering research and development on a scale far beyond the reach of most manufacturers.

Constant improvement has leveled one price barrier after another, until now you are offered, in this new Buick, a car as fine as money can buy, at the price of cars of very ordinary quality.

This car will convince you, as no other car can, that money can purchase nothing finer—no matter how much you may be able to spend!

INSURES FRIEND, THEN KILLS HIM TO COLLECT CASH

Austrian Dentist Jailed with Woman for Plot.

BY ENID WILKIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, July 31.—Having pushed his assistant, Aloysius Berger, from an Alpine ledge into a ravine hundreds of feet deep, Karl Payrleitner, a Salzburg dentist, descended to the dying man and gave him an injection of poison with a hypodermic needle in order to make sure of his work. Then, after his friend's funeral, Herr Payrleitner collected $12,000 in insurance from the dead man's estate.

The fiendish murder has just been brought to light by the Salzburg police, who arrested the dentist and his mistress, Wilhelmine Zechner, who was named in Herr Berger's insurance policy as the fiancée and beneficiary.

Kicks Comrade Off Ledge.

The murder plot was carried out two months ago, when Herr Payrleitner persuaded the reluctant Herr Berger to go mountain climbing with him. Before the start they had a few seidels of beer, but the young assistant did not notice that the dentist poured whisky into his glass.

Then came the climb. When the snow line was reached, Herr Payrleitner, who was climbing ahead, kicked Herr Berger off the ledge. The victim died in a hospital a few days later.

Insured His Victim.

A few days ago another woman came to the insurance office and said she was Herr Berger's fiancée. As she proved her identity by documents, the officials of the company became suspicious and traced the plot. Herr Payrleitner had insured Herr Berger's life without the latter's knowledge, with the assistance of an unidentified man who impersonated the victim in the medical examination given by the insurance company.

FRENCH WARNED AGAINST BOYCOTT BY ROMAN PRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 31.—Newspapers here are indignant over the Brest dock workers' boycott against Italian warships which were received at that port yesterday. The Impero, extremist Fascist newspaper, questions whether "Franco-Italian friendship is possible," and warns that "it is good to look each other in the eyes and see if we travel together tomorrow."

The Tribuna characterizes the boycott as "a grotesque provocation" and trusts the French government to give the workers a lesson in manners.

The Piccolo says that if the mentality of the French socialists is observed in international affairs, republican governments will refuse to accept diplomats representing monarchies and vice versa. But the Roma, a Fascist paper, warns France outright that the Italy of Mussolini will never forget and will add this to the other scores which may be settled tomorrow or in a few years.

TEXAS MINISTER FACES MURDER JURY SEPT. 13

Fort Worth, Tex., July 31.—[United Press.]—The Rev. J. Frank Norris will go to trial here Sept. 13 on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman, two weeks ago.

Announcement of the trial date was made today at San Diego, Cal., by District Attorney R. K. Hanger of Fort Worth.

While the minister has laid the groundwork for a plea of self-defense, Hanger declared that his office has "positive proof that the shooting could have been avoided."

Much of the state's case will hinge on the testimony of a youthful "mystery witness," who Hanger declares will recount an eye-witness version of the slaying.

New Fashions Make Women Live Longer, Says Doctor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 31.—Modern women's fashions, such as short hair and short dresses, make women healthier, says Dr. F. Menzies in his annual report on London's health. "The disappearance of corsets, garters, and other constricting devices which our grandmothers wore has added vitality and longevity. A disease known as chlorosis, or green sickness, disappeared with the corset," the doctor says.

MULE DRAGS BOY TO DEATH.

West Frankfort, Ill., July 31.—Paul Finney, sixteen, was killed yesterday when his foot was caught in the harness of a mule he was driving, and he was dragged for a half mile.

BRITISH HAVE NO CULTURE, SAYS BERNARD SHAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 31.—Dr. Gustave Stresemann, German minister of foreign affairs, congratulated George Bernard Shaw, the dramatist, on the celebration of his seventieth birthday recently.

Replying today, Mr. Shaw said: "Your writing a letter is a thing which it never would occur to the British foreign secretary to do, because, as you know, we are a barbarous nation in matters of culture. We have a genuine dread of intellect in any form, being convinced that art, though highly enjoyable clandestinely, is essentially immoral. Therefore, the sole notice taken of my birthday by the British government was the deliberate prohibition of the broadcasting of my words, spoken on that occasion.

"Contrasting this attitude with that of the German government would be a painful comparison of traditions of culture, but our government classes would be proud of it."

GIRLS FREED OF THEFT CHARGE.

A charge of larceny against Miss Nora Hayes, 22 years old, a stenographer, and Miss Blanche Gammell, 23, a model, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Harry F. Hamlin for insufficient evidence. Mrs. Virginia Corbett, 4105 Sheridan road, their former landlady, accused the two girls of stealing a cameo pin valued at $250.

CZECHS CHARGED WITH FINANCING ATTACK ON DUCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 31.—A complete report against the five men charged with plotting to overthrow the Fascist government, to begin with the murder of Premier Mussolini, says that the Socialist party in Czecho-Slovakia donated 300,000 French francs (about $7,500) toward the anti-Fascist revolt.

The report reiterates that Sig. Zaniboni intended to shoot from a hotel window when Premier Mussolini was replying to ovations from under his balcony at Chigi palace on Nov. 4 and traces the various phases of the anti-Fascist movement since the murder of Deputy Matteoti, the Socialist leader, in June, 1924.

The report mentions promised subsidies to the revolutionists from the Masons, but these promises were not kept, so Sig. Turigiani, grand master of the Masons, was released.

File Papers Against Small for Second Potz Leniency

Springfield, Ill., July 31.—(AP)—Contending that Gov. Small exceeded his authority in his second commutation of the sentence of Ignatz Potz, convicted Lake county murderer, a motion to file a petition for mandamus in the case was filed in Supreme court here today by A. V. Smith, Lake county state's attorney. "With the commutation of Potz' sentence to life imprisonment," Smith's petition said, "the governor was without power to grant further commutation."

YANKEE WOMAN LEAVES ON ARCTIC SEA HUNTING TRIP

OSLO, Norway, July 31.—An American sea hunting expedition is leaving Tromsoe, northern Norway, for the arctic regions around Franz Josef Land, in the motor cutter "Hobby," which was Capt. Roald Amundsen's supply ship in last year's attempted flight to the north pole. Lieut. Commander Richard Byrd, the American polar flyer, used it as his supply boat this year. An American woman, Miss Boyd of San Francisco, together with a Spanish count and countess, are included in the expedition, which is led by the Spanish engineer, Señor Guisbert. The expedition will hunt polar bears and other arctic animals and make motion picture films. The trip will take a month.

HOT BEARING STARTS $25,000 FIRE.

There is no substitute for ICE!

ICE is, and long will be, the safe, dependable and economical refrigerant used in countless thousands of American homes. No improvement has been made upon the convenience of ice. The iceman performs the whole service for you when he fills your refrigerator and, with outside icing, it is not even necessary that he enter your home.

The use of ice entails no costly machinery, no charge for electric current, no repair bills, no noise. There are no fuses to blow nor belts to break—nothing to worry about when you are out of the city during the week-end.

Ice costs only a fraction of the amount you would pay for any other kind of refrigeration, the average cost per family in Chicago being less than $20 per year

Consumers Guaranteed Ice is manufactured from fresh filtered water. Through a special process the "lake-water" taste is removed. Clean, modern plants and machinery insure its absolute purity.

Consumers deliveries are prompt and dependable. Courteous, trustworthy drivers bring the ice to your home each day, quickly, efficiently and without confusion.

A Consumers Ice Book and signal card will insure you the utmost in Ice Quality and Service throughout the year.

Be sure of your ice!

The Smoothest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History!

Multiple-Cylinder Performance with Chevrolet Economy

Proclaimed the world over as the greatest achievement in Chevrolet history, today's Chevrolet is climbing to new and spectacular heights of popularity.

Everywhere it ranks in public preference and sales as the world's finest low priced car.

Everywhere it is acknowledged as representing the supreme heights of modern design and quality construction. Everywhere it is recognized as the climax to twelve years of constant improvement by Chevrolet and General Motors engineers!

A single ride will tell you why!

Into the field of low-priced cars, today's Chevrolet brings exactly the slow-speed smoothness, exactly the velvet acceleration, exactly the freedom from high-speed vibration that have been the paramount reasons for the buying of multiple-cylinder cars.

Imagine loafing up a hill in a loaded car—with the motor turning so easily that you are almost unconscious of its operation. You can in the smooth Chevrolet!

Imagine rushing from 10 to 30 miles an hour before your watch ticks ten times—with never a semblance of labor on the part of the motor. You can in the smooth Chevrolet!

Imagine being able to drive between 40 and 50 miles an hour for hour upon hour at a stretch—in perfect comfort, entirely free from any sense of excessive speed and unconscious of even the slightest roughness in the road. You can in the smooth Chevrolet.

And, above all, imagine the satisfaction of enjoying such phenomenal performance qualities together with the economy of operation for which Chevrolet is everywhere famous. You do in the smooth Chevrolet!

No matter what type of car you are accustomed to driving, learn for yourself the incredible smoothness that is winning the world to Chevrolet. Arrange to see and drive the car today!

Compare the excellence of detail exhibited in the coach work of the beautiful Fisher enclosed bodies.

Compare its performance abilities on any basis with any car you have ever driven. Try it in traffic—over the hills—through clinging mud and sand.

We openly ask you to come for your demonstration in a critical state of mind. And we urge you to come prepared for a ride the like of which you never dreamed possible in a car that sells at anywhere near Chevrolet's prices.

For that's exactly what you will discover at the wheel of the smoothest Chevrolet in Chevrolet history!

JINGO CHARGE AGAINST JAPAN FALSE—MATSUI

Must Have Outlet, but by Peaceful Means.

BY RODERICK MATHESON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TOKIO, July 31.—Whatever the cries of the jingos of the world about an impending Japanese war of expansion for Japan's annual 750,000 increase in population, the directing authorities of this wise and thoughtful government say that not only will Japan keep out of any war of expansion in this generation, but the nation never can engage in such a war. Japan will expand when necessary by peaceful negotiations.

They say there is no acute food-population problem. They say even if one existed, it could not be solved through war because the Japanese nation would not fight in any war that savored of aggression. The Japanese will only fight for the defense of their homeland.

Other Countries Open.

The western prairies of Canada and the northern territories of Australia have the acreage Japan needs for its increasing people, soon to be increasing at the rate of 1,000,000 a year. There are two other countries with vacant, available land, China, with its Manchurian plains awaiting development, and Siberia. Either would support a population of 30,000,000, and from each Japan could draw practically all it needs in the way of raw materials for the industrialization of her home population. To colonize either, however, Japan would have to become the owner, protecting the residents with its own laws and guarding them economically with its own tariffs and immigration restrictions. Such an acquisition is for Japan today an economic impossibility.

Problems Admitted.

"You are right in saying that Japan is confronted by serious economic and population problems," said Maj. Gen. I. Matsui, chief of the intelligence department of the Japanse general staff. "In this respect I share the views you have advanced, in general outline. But I differ in one important respect. I do not think the situation is so acute and urgent as pictured. Furthermore, even if the situation were so acute as some imagine, I do not endorse the view that the solution will be found in the declaration of war upon Russia. Our statesmen are trying to attain the very objects mentioned by peaceful means, through the establishment of closer economic relations, with the sympathetic help of other powers and I think this is the only practical course to follow under today's existing world circumstances.

"I do not think that any nation nowadays can work out its destiny by warring upon its neighbors. A successful war presupposes, in the first place, a spirit of devotion on the part of soldiers. Such a faith and such a spirit of devotion presuppose in turn a consciousness on the part of the soldiers that they are fighting for the defense of their nation against unjust aggression of enemies. A war declared upon Russia for the purpose of securing the resources of Siberia, in my view, would be purely a war of aggression. There would be nothing in it to inspire our soldiers with a spirit of sacrifice. The rampant growth of liberal thought nowadays among the people would forbid any such declaration of war.

Lovers of Home.

"I do not believe that Siberia would furnish a land for the increasing population of Japan. Japanese would not go there, even if the doors were flung wide open for immigrants, and attempts to colonize any large Japanese population in Siberia would prove abortive. The situation in Hokkaido proves that."

[Hokkaido is the northernmost large island of Japan, sparsely populated and with room for from three to ten million people, according to various estimates. Colonization companies have been trying to induce migration from the congested sections of Japan with small success.]

"In Hokkaido," continued Gen. Matsui, "there still is land to accommodate immigrants from the rest of Japan, but few go there, and those who do return as soon as possible. A Japanese cannot forget his home section. He yearns for it wherever he may be. Everywhere else is uncongenial. Whatever wealth may underlie the soil of Siberia, no Japanese, except forced, would go there for riches or happiness.

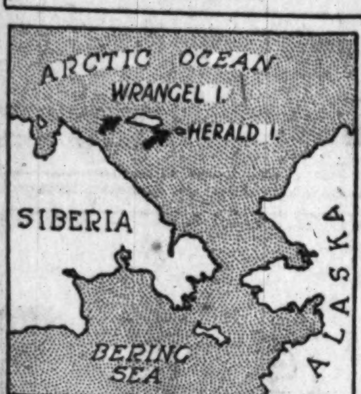
Bolshevism a Danger.

"Speaking generally, emigration furnishes no key to the solution of our population problem. Sending a few thousand emigrants to places where the doors still are open to them means nothing. Some other solution must be found, and I agree that this solution is not to be secured in Manchuria, where any attempt at armed control would be nearly disastrous for Japan. Attempting to control Manchuria would only be to defeat our own aims and invite disaster.

"It is true that bolshevism means great danger for our country. It is incompatible with our national institutions, and to oppose the spread of bolshevism is to defend Japan. But even this does not justify a war upon Russia. We are confident that we can oppose the spread of dangerous ideas in Japan otherwise, because the government in its opposition to bolshevism is backed by the great majority of the people. There is no question of that and I am an optimist in that regard.

"The motive power that preserves the morale of the Japanese fighting man is the idea of the defense of Japan. To die in the defense of his native land is the dearest ambition of every Japanese soldier."

COLONIES



MOSCOW, July 31.—(AP)—The council of people's commissars has decided to make efforts to populate Wrangel and Herald Islands from the mainland of Russia and to make them productive factors in the soviet union. The islands have been placed by decree under jurisdiction of the soviet far eastern regional executive committee, which has been given power to appoint a commissioner to administer the islands. The committee will organize defenses, develop trade, establish medical services, conduct scientific research work, and furnish the prospective colonists with supplies. Neither foreigners nor Russians will be allowed to go to the islands to exploit their resources without special perm't from the committee.

NEWER, BIGGER CITY OF DUBLIN BEING PLANNED

Would Add 250,000 to the Population.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, July 31.—If present proposals are carried out Ireland's capital city of the future will be entirely worthy of the country. A new and a greater Dublin is contemplated in a scheme which has been formulated by a commission which has just presented a report to Dail Eirann.

At present Dublin has a population of about 400,000 which with the townships immediately adjoining bring it up to about 500,000. Under the new scheme it is proposed to annex a considerable tract of territory including several villages which will add perhaps another 250,000 to the population. The commissioners propose that the new city shall extend from Malahide on the north to Killiney on the south, a distance of about fifteen miles. It will take in the small towns of Malahide, Howth, Sutton, Rathmines, Pembroke, Kingstown, Dalkey, and Killiney.

Ambition for Years.

This idea is not new, as it has been the ambition of Dublin for many years to extend its boundaries. But the trouble has been that the townships did not wish to be absorbed. The same difficulty will no doubt arise in the present case. Indeed, an outcry already has been made. The case of the townships is mainly one against taxation. Naturally, the taxes in the city are higher than in the rural districts and the townships object because, they say, they cannot gain the advantages which city traders enjoy.

Upon the general question as to the desirability of setting up a greater Dublin there is no difference of opinion. Dublin is now the capital of a self-governing state with all the responsibilities attaching to that high position, and no Irishman denies it the right and the duty of placing itself before the world clothed in all the dignity it can acquire. Territory and added population are not everything of course.

Dublin Castle Fascinates.

But Dublin as it stands today is not altogether unworthy of its new position. It has many features which mark it as standing high above mere provincialism. A stranger standing in College Green and looking at the magnificent buildings all around cannot fail to be impressed. The old Irish parliament house, now the Bank of Ireland, is a noble edifice, faced on the other side of the street by Trinity college, equally noble, but entirely different in architectural style.

Then across the O'Connell bridge is Sackville street, now known as O'Connell street, a splendid thoroughfare, which has few equals in Europe. Probably it is the nearest approach to the Unter den Linden in Berlin. Many of the streets are lined with trees which, now in full leaf, lend exquisite charm. Dublin castle is itself a source of wonder to visitors. The castle is no longer the seat of the viceroy, but its quaint architecture and its historical associations have a facination for all.

Has Suffered Change.

Like all other cities, Dublin in recent times has suffered change which is not to its advantage, owing to the fact that its residential quarters are disappearing. Every one who can afford to do so is going to reside in the country. The development of the automobile has made this possible. The result of this exodus is that noble residential squares are rapidly becoming congested tenements. The countryside is the gainer by acquiring wealthy residents who make their money in the city and escape the higher taxation by living outside. This fact, of course, also furnishes a strong reason for the extension of the boundaries.

Dublin has comparatively few big industries within its boundaries. If one were to stand on the top of Nelson's monument one could count the number of visible chimney stacks from industrial enterprises on the fingers of one hand. The greatest of these is Guinness' brewery, which occupies a vast site on the western side of the city near the Phoenix park. The lack of manufacturing industries often suggests to strangers the question what do the people do for a living? The answer is that Dublin is mainly a distributing center. Its people are not producers, but live mainly by handling the imports and exports. But in addition to this a very large proportion of its population are salaried officials of the government or belong to the legal or educational professions.

NAB 5 IN $65,000 TRAIN HOLDUP.

Bangor, Me., July 31.—(AP)—Five men suspected of connection with the $65,000 train robbery at Amesbury, Mass., last Thursday, have been arrested by Sheriff Littlefield of Waldo county.

IF OTHERS DON'T LIKE US THEY CAN GO TO—PILSUDSKI

Polish Dictator Answers Foreign Critics.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, July 31.—Marshal Pilsudski, whose iron hand has ruled over Poland since the May revolution, in an interview today denied that he has been silent concerning his policy and defended the position of the Warsaw government following the revolution.

"Premier Bartel made the government program public in his message to the sejm [parliament] last week," he said. "This is the program of the entire Bartel cabinet, of which I am only one member."

"They Can Go to Hell!"

The marshal denounced interference in Polish affairs by foreign countries. "We have our own way of doing things. We can't do as others would like us to do," he growled with flashing eyes. "We are grateful for what America has done for us, but we do not want too much dictation. People from America tell us what to do; others come from Italy and France. They are trying to make us Americans or Italians or French. But we are Poles. We shall remain Poles and do as we think best. If they don't like it, they can go to hell."

The British coal strike has saved Poland from financial ruin and has strengthened Marshal Pilsudski's position. When it started Poland was on the verge of bankruptcy and its miners were idle. Now Great Britain is pouring gold into the national coffers to pay for Polish coal, much to the despair of soviet Russia, which saw in Poland's distress a promise of an upheaval which would put Poland at the mercy of soviet agitators.

Miners Slip From Reds.

Provided with jobs, the miners were slipping out of control of the communists, but now the coal mine owners are demanding that the miners work nine hours a day to fulfill the orders from England. The miners threaten to strike, despite a promised raise in wages.

See Russian Work.

Warsaw observers see the hand of Russian agitators in this threat to deprive the nation of further British gold, but add confidently: "Our government has the iron hand of Marshal Pilsudski to prevent disturbances dangerous to the welfare of Poland."

JUDGE WILLIAMS IS OPERATED ON; CONDITION GOOD

Judge Charles A. Williams of the Superior court is critically ill at the John B. Murphy hospital following an operation for appendicitis early yesterday. However, in spite of the seriousness of the operation, it was reported that his condition is good. His home is at 3516 Janssen avenue.

I Do Things

I AM ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN FIGURES IN THE SALES END OF THE MEN'S APPAREL INDUSTRY:

I AM CREATING A DOUBLE OPPORTUNITY IN THIS ADVERTISEMENT:

A CHANCE FOR PROGRESS FOR MYSELF AND A GOOD INVESTMENT FOR SOME PROGRESSIVE MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S CLOTHING OR FURNISHING.

I am going to talk about myself. It is part of my offer and my ability.

Men who know claim that I have ability for organizational work. My business history proves conclusively that I have. I think in terms of organization.

I GET RESULTS.

I am preparing to become a sales asset to some clothing or furnishing manufacturer who is prepared to do big things and will yield big dividends.

I want a new sales organization opportunity because I have exhausted every possibility in my present one. I want to get into an organization and build up its sales organization. I have several medium size concerns that I can consider—but I don't want that kind of opportunity.

This is the first and last time that I will ever talk so much about myself, but I will prove worthy of trust and confidence.

The Greatest Success in a Quarter Century of Fine Car Creation

There have been many golden periods in Cadillac's quarter century of pre-eminence among the fine cars of the world—but never a time when Cadillac was so unmistakably the Standard of the World as now. How completely Cadillac dominates the high-priced field is conclusively proven by Cadillac's unprecedented gain in the past 12 months—when sales increased 87.5% over the preceding year.

Cadillac Now Offers 50 Body Styles and Types

Five Hundred Color and Upholstery Combinations, Many exclusive to Cadillac

To its supremacy in the realm of value and performance, which of necessity will remain unequaled for long years to come, Cadillac now achieves pre-eminence in distinction, luxury and individuality.

50 different body types and styles, many of them exclusive and not to be duplicated, are announced for the coming year.

In combination with the widest selection of body types and styles ever presented by one manufacturer, Cadillac offers five hundred body color combinations and an unexampled range of upholstery selections.

As of this day and date, Cadillac dominates in its unmatched ability to supply every motoring requirement, to meet every individual taste and preference.

Here is a manufacturing advance literally more important than any other development since Cadillac introduced the 90-degree eight-cylinder motor.

Here is an achievement in individualized service to fine car buyers which has never before been approached, and which only Cadillac is today able to offer. Throughout its years of leadership, Cadillac has never accomplished a greater feat than this solution of the problem of individual color selections.

The complete Cadillac line—including the standard models, the distinguished Fisher custom-built series, and the finest and most luxurious exclusive creations of Fleetwood—surpasses anything ever before attempted.

Cadillac today establishes itself on a new, high plane of skill and service which must inevitably add to the public acclaim that has rewarded Cadillac, in the past 12 months, with the greatest success in the history of fine car manufacture.

SPANISH SCORE THRILLS RAVINIA OPERA HEARERS

"El Vida Breve" Is Too Short, Critic Says.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Here's hoping that Manuel de Falla may write another opera like "La Vida Breve." It is the most charming thing that has appeared on the lyric stage hereabouts in many a long year.

Heard for the first time at Ravinia last night, it jumped into popularity at once. It has only one fault, that of being too short, a fault unusual enough in music of any kind. The score turned out to be about as brief as the title, a fact that made it necessary for Conductor Louis Hasselmans to give forty minutes of orchestral concert beforehand. Acting on the principle of the movie houses of giving just a bit of the film that is to come a few days later, one of the numbers was the prelude from "Lohengrin."

Praises Spanish Music.

Finally, however, came "La Vida Breve," which was the important item of the evening. It is completely and entirely Spanish, completely and entirely lovely, first class theater and most delightful music. There is more to this kind of Spanish music than quoting the rhythm of Cachuca, though there is a furious and flashing specimen of this dance in the second part of the piece, more than using oriental curlicues at the end of a slow melody, though this device comes in frequently. This kind of Spanish music goes beneath the surface, becomes the real thing.

The story is not elaborate. A gypsy girl falls in love with a young Spaniard, is betrayed, and dies at the moment of confronting her betrayer at his own betrothal party. That is all. But, taking this slender basis, De Falla has built up some music that fairly rings in the ears for hours afterward.

Rather curiously, he seems less intense when playing up the actual story than when standing aside for purposes of atmosphere and dance. Here he is immense. The off-stage chorus is used lavishly, practically as part of the orchestra, and I never heard this device used more successfully or more charmingly.

Brilliant Work by Bori.

If anything was needed to complete the De Falal music it is the flaming Lucrezia Bori as Salud, the gypsy girl. With Jose Mojica as a highly pictorial Spanish youth, she flashed an impersonation across the footlights as brilliant as the music. There was plenty to remember besides her singing, which is memorable enough. Some highly explicit love making takes place in the course of the performance. There is a kiss, for instance, that would never get by movie censors.

Lesser characters well performed there are notably by Ina Bourskaya and Louis D'Angelo. A pair of Spanish dances, a Sevillana and Jota, danced by Ruth Page, Mark Turbyfill, and an octet of girls, added a little extra flame to a score that had a high average of notable things.

Seems to Feel Music.

Mr. Hasselmans conducted the piece as though its fire had got into his blood, and it is set with some of the best colored and most attractive scenery that has ever been seen at Ravinia. But mostly the evening was a celebration of De Falla and Bori.

MUSICIANS ASK GERMANY OUST AMERICAN JAZZ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 30.—"Foreign musicians are swarming over Germany like locusts," says the German Musicians' union in a manifesto scoring American jazz bands and demanding the return of the "good old German music."

The union claims the popularity of jazz and the Charleston is robbing the German musicians of work and bread and that the foreign music flooding Germany has reached such an extent that the position of German bands which play "really good music" has become impossible.

The union demands the intervention of the authorities to prevent German music culture from being driven out of existence and appeals to all music lovers for support against the "limitless foreign competition."

TWO CROWE AIDS SET RECORD FOR JULY CONVICTIONS

Of the forty-one defendants prosecuted on criminal charges by Assistant State's Attorneys Louis Geiman and A. O. Galvin before Judge William N. Gemmill during July only four escaped conviction, it was announced yesterday. The convictions are believed to be a record in Cook county criminal courts.

During the month twenty-three defendants, most of them charged with robbery with a gun, were sentenced to Joliet penitentiary, ten to Pontiac reformatory, and eight to the House of Correction. Eleven jury trials were held, three of them in one day.

CHILDREN PUT ON BUSY SHOW FOR FREE ICE FUND

$1,510 Is Total Now; Algonquin $1,842.

For sheer energy and industry in the cause of the TRIBUNE free ice fund, the south side troupe of youngsters composed of Jacqueline Singer, Edward and Sylvan Arnold, and Charles Ray Offenberg just about take the cake.

Last week these children staged performances in the basement of the apartment at 6155 South Park avenue. Prices were ten cents for adults and five cents for children for evening performances, and matinées were given at five cents and two cents. Sylvan, manager of the troupe, reported yesterday that their show has been transferred to the lawn, and special lighting provided for evening entertainments.

Juvenile Stars Entertain.

Charles Offenberg, a juvenile radio star, the peppy performance of Jacqueline, whose knees and toes are well schooled in the most intricate steps of the Charleston, and the unusual accomplishment of Sylvan, who plays tunes on an automobile horn, combine to make their dancing and singing a popular neighborhood recreation. They intend to give their shows from tomorrow until Aug. 9, and have already forwarded $4.44 earned thus far.

Each time they get a new customer they present another performance, the kids say, which is just about the height of devotion to any cause, however noble

Little Louise and Billy Hoy of Wheaton, conceived the idea of picking red raspberries in their father's garden and of having mother help them squeeze out the juice and make a refreshing drink, which they sold to visitors from their play tent in the yard, earning $2.55 for Camp Algonquin, in spite of the fact that they live two miles from town and a quarter of a mile from the public road.

Children Give a Play.

A two act play, "The Five Ghosts," four specialty acts, and a beauty show comprised the benefit given by children in the building at the southwest corner of Arthur and Glenwood avenues, which earned $7.75 for the ice fund.

SADDLE STARS EAGER TO ENTER CHICAGO RODEO

West Speculates as to Possible Champions.

There was never a horse that couldn't be rode, nor never a rider that couldn't be throwed.—Proverbs of the Plains.

New championships loom in many contests among the cowboy and cowgirl stars of the western plains at the Chicago rodeo, climax to a season of thrills throughout the cattle country. The rodeo, where the world's champions will prove their prowess, will this year as last determine those champions who, for another twelve months at least, will reign as the stars among all the ranch folk in the "wide open spaces." Tex Austin, manager and director of the big contests, which are again sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce, has announced no less than $35,000 cash prizes to the champions and runners-up.

The Chicago rodeo will be held Aug. 14 to 22 on Soldiers' field, Grant park, the mammoth lake front stadium and ampitheater which, next to the range country itself, provides the best setting for contests of this nerve racking and sinew straining kind.

From all over the west the bronk riders, whose skill is the summit of horsemanship, have sent in their entries for this feature of the rodeo. Bronk riding is the sport which the late President Theodore Roosevelt once set his heart upon and which he later confessed nearly killed him before he found that it was even too strenuous for him in his younger days.

Who Will Be Star?

Will a new saddle star succeed the old? Will he be an example of how youth may conquer age or the reverse? Speculation over these questions is heard in the west. Last year Bob Askins, husky Montana youth and holder of many minor trophies, fought his way to the top in Chicago and carried away the prize money in this big event, with the championship trophy offered by Tex Austin besides. He defeated, after nine days of strenuous riding, Bryan Roach of Fort Worth, Tex.; Hugh Strickland of Idaho, and Perry Ivory of California. The latter two tied for third money.

Strickland is a veteran, Askins one of the younger comers as a peerless horseman and cattleman. So far this year Strickland has set himself to be the logical contender. He defeated Askins and the renowned Nowata Slim of Oklahoma at the Fort Worth rodeo, one of the sectional preliminaries to settle the minor championships preparatory to the Chicago contests.

Askins, however, has been meeting the best in this branch of ranch suicide and will come to the Chicago rodeo backed by the hopes and wagers of the entire cow country in Montana, North and South Dakota.

Spurred on by the prize money of $4,300 for this event alone, rodeo fans —and they are increasing yearly—look for the field of more than twenty contestants to surpass the exploits in skill and daring which have drawn tribute from the pen of Roosevelt and the brush of Frederick Remington.

The bronks which they will be forced to master, if possible, are a herd of range bred untamables which Austin and his agents have been combing the western country to collect.

Busters on the Way.

Not only Askins, Strickland, Roach, Ivory, and Nowata Slim have already mailed in their entrance money and agreements to contest, but a score of other bronk busters of great renown in their own sections of the west are on the way. Preliminary rodeos have been held on many ranches to determine each section's candidates. For the hopes of the cattlemen for many miles around go with each contestant.

THEY'RE OFF FOR CAMP GRANT

JAIL HUNDREDS FOR PLOTTING TO WRECK SOVIETS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 31.—The Moscow Isvesthia reports that hundreds of local leaders of the communist party have been arrested at Leningrad, Briansk, Saratov, Vladivostok, Pyatagorsk, Omsk, Homel, and Odessa. The Isvesthia says all the plotters are extreme communists of the type of M. Zinovieff and M. Lashevitch, who recently formed an organization to depose the present communist dictatorship.

The plotters are reported to be displeased because the present dictators are no longer comrades, but are drawing large salaries, maintaining apartments with servants and automobiles, and are leading a life not unlike that of capitalists of the ruling classes abroad.

The Leningrad Pravda reports a special cheka [secret police] commission, equipped with extraordinary powers, has arrived in Leningrad from Moscow and has arrested some leaders of the cheka garrison who recently were advanced to high positions by M. Zinovieff.

ANDREWS SEEKS FRENCH ACCORD ON RUM RUNNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 31.—Brig. Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the United States prohibition enforcement forces, arrived in Paris tonight from London to try to stop up the French end of the siphon that has been pouring liquor from the continent into America.

"I expect the common accord reached with the English will put an end to an appreciable amount of rum running from British territory," he said tonight.

"All I want here is to reach an agreemnt which will keep the runners, deprived of sailing under the English flag, from using the French, especially in the case of those sailing from St. Pierre and Miquelon."

NATIONAL GUARD AT CAMP GRANT FOR TWO WEEKS

2,200 Boys Enter C. M. T. C. at Sheridan Tuesday.

As approximately 9,000 Illinois National Guardsmen assembled at Camp Grant, Rockford, yesterday, some 2,200 boys of ages ranging from 17 to 24 years old prepared to leave their homes in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan for Fort Sheridan, where for a month, beginning Tuesday, they will attend the citizens' military training camp.

The north shore reservation will have the largest group in attendance of any similar camp in the country, according to the staff of Brig. Gen. Michael J. Lenihan, commander. The 2,200 enrollment surpasses New York's quota at Plattsburg by almost one-half, it was said.

The boys will receive training similar to that given in other cantonments such as Camp Custer, Jefferson Barracks, Camp Sparta, and other government controled military reservations.

Foreman Commands at Grant.

Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman is commander of the Illinois Guardsmen of the 33d division in Camp Grant for their annual two weeks' tour of field duty.

The training, which will embrace the more advanced forms of combat, technical and medical drill, will conclude with a defensive combat maneuver based upon the operations of the 33d division, A. E. F., on the Marne.

In a statement yesterday Gen. Foreman called attention to the fact that the division this year has the advantage of exceptionally well trained noncommissioned officers, owing to their course of instruction conducted at Camp Grant several months ago under the command of Col. Edgar A. Myer, United States army, who heads the regular army instructors at the camp during the present period.

Praises Business Men.

"We must never forget the patriotism which has been displayed by business men in Chicago and other sections of Illinois," Gen. Foreman said, "by permitting their employés to participate in this training without loss of pay or vacation. The National Guard commission, too, is deserving of the thanks of the general public for its activity and practical interest in guard affairs."

Next Sunday has been designated as visitors' day at Camp Grant. Field meets have been arranged for the day, while boxing, wrestling, and movies will be conducted nightly under supervision of the regimental athletic officers.

At the North American a real

Steak Dinner [A tender steak, big enough for two people, with French fried potatoes and tomato salad] 65c

If you will come to the North American Restaurant, where you "serve yourself," you can get a real steak dinner for only 65 cents. The steak is not a thin "sliver" but a portion that is usually big enough for two people, and with it is included a good portion of French fried potatoes and tomato salad. You cannot get finer quality no matter what you pay.

Isn't that a lot better than to go elsewhere and pay from $1.00 to $1.50, or more, for the same dinner, merely to have it brought to your table? And this steak dinner is only one example of the big portions of quality food you get here at low prices.

Remember you can't find a cooler, more inviting place to dine anywhere. Here the air is kept pure and cool, regardless of the weather, by one of the finest and most complete ventilating and cooling systems ever installed—a system that provides a fresh supply of washed, dried, cooled air, throughout the restaurant, every 3 minutes.

Among our other Specialties are;

Combination Salad: with French, Thousand Island or Mayonnaise dressing . 35c

Cold Pot Roast:
with potato salad . . . 40c

Cold Beef Tongue:
with potato salad . . . 50c

[The portions are big enough for two people]

Filet of Sole:
2 big pieces, with delicious Tartar Sauce 50c

Fried Chicken:
Premium chicken with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce. Dark meat . . 55c
White meat 65c

And for Breakfast:—

Honey Waffles:
With 3 strips of bacon or Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey 30c

Bacon and Eggs:
Two fresh eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 35c

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

Advanced Six 4-Door Coupé
$1990
f. o. b. factory

Come Try This
Matchless Power-Smoothness

Once you have experienced the supreme travel-luxury of this Nash Advanced Six 4-Door Coupé you'll recognize it as without a parallel in its field.

There is a softness, a soothing smoothness to the power-stream of the big Nash 7-bearing crankshaft "Enclosed Car" motor that gives to motoring a new attraction in the way of velvety, buoyant flight.

This great motor is engineered to deliver 25% more power and it sweeps the car from an idling pace to the top of its gait a full 23% faster.

To this rare roadability Nash adds such irresistibly appealing features as genuine Chase Velmo Mohair Velvet upholstery; rich, silver-finished hardware of Old Empire design, and a superb vanity case and smoking set.

There is a fine, steel inbuilt trunk at the rear, and among further appointments is included an electric clock.

The price also covers 4-wheel brakes and 5 disc wheels. And there are 3 highly scientific purifying devices included—an air cleaner, oil purifier, and gasoline filter.

Extra Value that Standardized Quality Gives in the New Chrysler "60"

1 Six-cylinder Chrysler Motor,
2 Fifty-four brake horsepower,
3 Sixty miles and more per hour,
4 5 to 25 miles per hour in 7¾ seconds,
5 Easily 22 miles to the gallon,
6 Seven-bearing crankshaft,
7 Aluminum alloy pistons, balanced to sixteen one-hundredths of an ounce,
8 Impulse neutralizer—not a balancer, but a device that absorbs the natural impulse reactions common to all internal combustion engines,
9 Purolator purifies oil, saves repair bills,
10 Centrifugal air cleaner saves repair bills,
11 Full pressure oiling system, insuring a film of oil in all bearings and thus guaranteeing long life,
12 Semi-automatic plus manual spark control,
13 Manifold heat control for easy starting,
14 Chrysler greater steering ease,
15 Chrysler hydraulic four-wheel brakes,
16 Levelizers front and rear eliminate road shocks, give greater riding comfort,
17 Chrysler dynamic symmetry of design,
18 Great roominess combined with Chrysler compactness for easy parking,
19 Duco finish in striking color combinations,
20 Full balloon tires, 30 x 5.25.

CHRYSLER "70"—Phaeton, $1395; Coach, $1395; Roadster, $1525; Royal Coupe, $1695; Brougham, $1745; Sedan, $1545; Royal Sedan, $1795; Crown Sedan, $1895.

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL "80"—Phaeton, $2495; Roadster (wire wheels standard equipment, wood wheels optional), $2595; Coupe, two-passenger, $2895; Coupe, four-passenger, $2895; Sedan, five-passenger, $3095; Sedan, seven-passenger, $3195; Cabriolet, $3495; Sedan-Limousine, $3595.

Walter P. Chrysler's principle of standardized quality manufacture is revolutionizing the buying of fine cars today.

For, at one step, it eliminates "purchaser's risk" . . . . ends the buyer's doubts and fears as to quality . . . . makes possible the purchase of either the lowest-priced or the highest-priced Chrysler with positive knowledge that the quality is equally assured and the value is supreme in its class.

Leading manufacturers have been striving for years to achieve this absolute evenness of quality.

An Unique Achievement

But Chrysler alone has achieved it . . . . translated it into fact by an extraordinarily complete coordination of engineering and manufacturing resources.

Chrysler standardization of quality goes back to the sources of raw material; it governs the very minutest operation; it makes certain that every unit is produced with the finest precision standards under the most rigid inspection; it even moulds the manufacture of accessories.

Of course, Chrysler models to meet the four great quality markets differ in price, in size of chassis, in richness of appointments, in speed and power—the model numbers representing miles per hour—but all are basically the same in rigid adherence to the same law of quality.

Advantages for the buyer

Obviously, cars bearing one name . . . . built by one organization . . . . under one all-embracing system of standardized quality manufacture . . . . must be essentially fine to a degree beyond comparison with other cars made under ordinary methods. This most important of Chrysler advantages insures the superior and uniform quality which is the foundation of superior performance, dependability, comfort, economy and long life in every Chrysler.

That each Chrysler, because of standardized quality, is far ahead of any car near its price . . . . in quality of construction and quality of performance . . . . you can easily verify by comparative demonstration. Hundreds of thousands of Chrysler owners know this superiority to be a fact. We invite you to prove these superiorities of standardized quality for yourself.

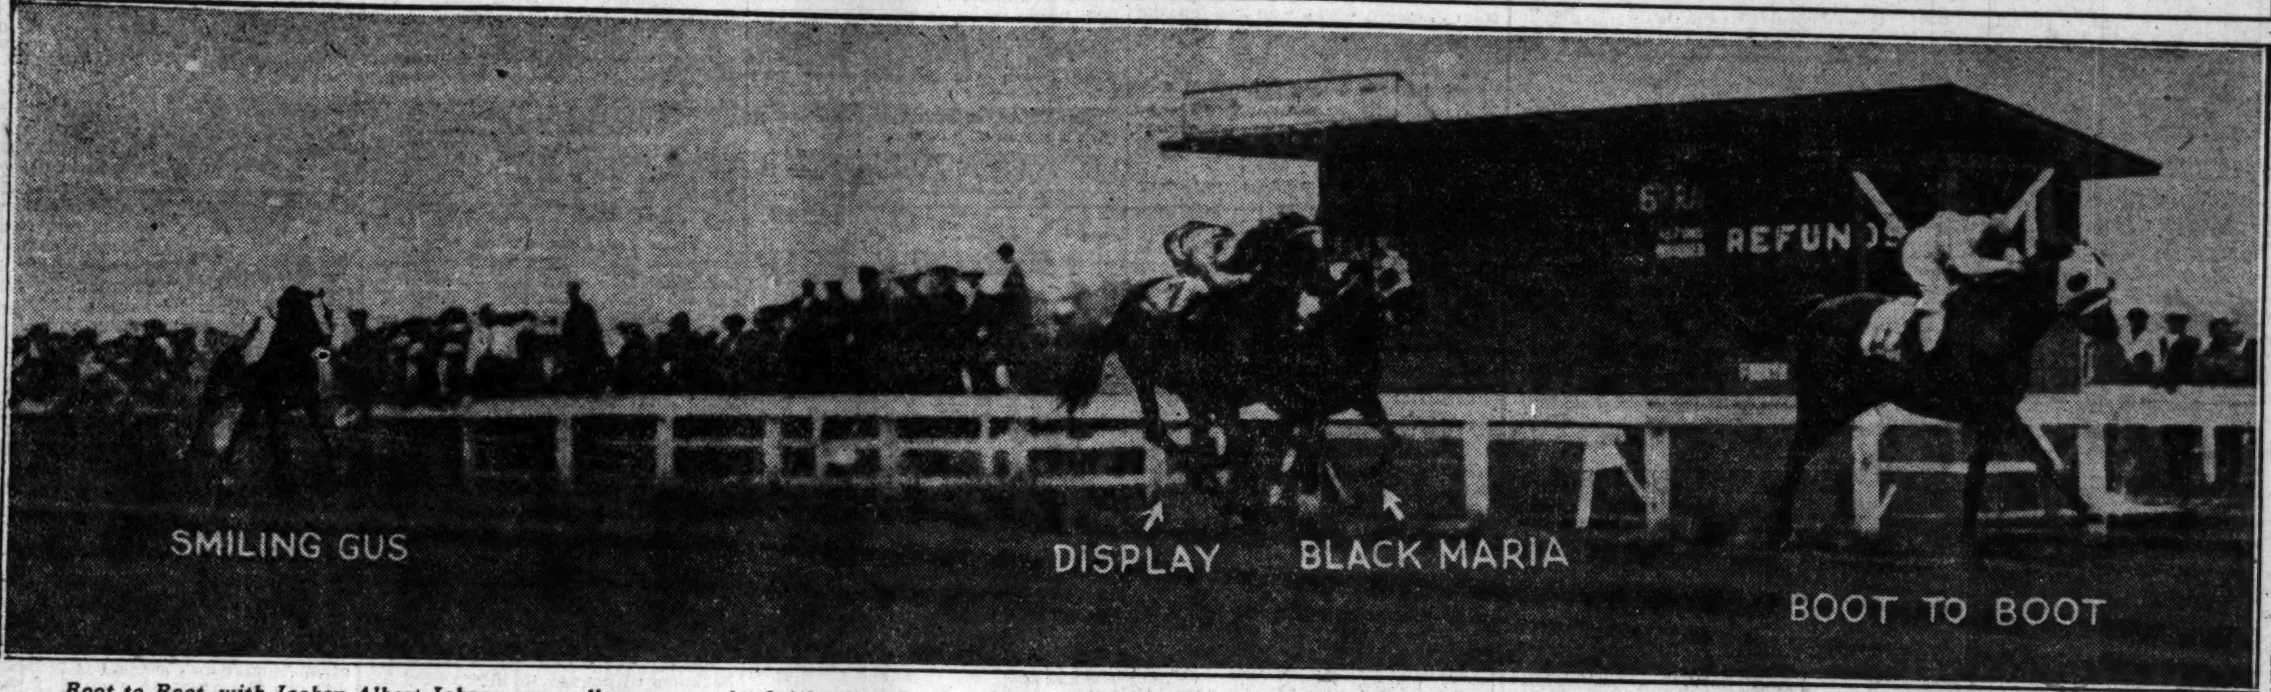
BOOT TO BOOT WINS DERBY BY 2 LENGTHS

RUTH SMASHES NO. 33 AS YANKS WHIP SOX, 2 TO 1

WINNING THE LARGEST STAKE EVER OFFERED ON THE AMERICAN TURF



Boot to Boot, with Jockey Albert Johnson up, gallops across the finish wire winner by two lengths in the eighteenth renewal of the American Derby, run yesterday at the new Washington Park race course. Display, backed to favoritism by the crowd, was second, with Black Maria, the only filly in the race, third. Smiling Gus was fourth, and Bolton fifth. The victory was worth $89,000 to E. R. Bradley, owner.

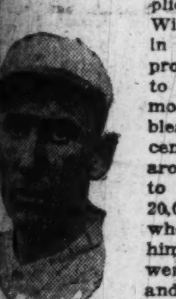
Mr. George Herman Babe Ruth hit one of those things yesterday and complications ensued. With a tie score in the eighth he propelled the ball to the farthermost point of the bleachers in right center, cantered around the bases to the tune of 20,000 customers who paid to see him do it, but were sorry he did, and thus laid out the White Sox in the opener of the series by 2 to 1.



SAM JONES.

But the Homeric tap of the Babe is only part of the story. The other parts have to do with the fact that it was the tenth victory in a row for the leading champions, that it was Ruth's thirty-third homer of the year, and that the Sox had the sacks filled in the ninth with none out, only to breathe their last without getting the tying run over the plate. They couldn't even push the ball out of the infield in that crisis, but the customers lost no time pushing down the gate trying to get away from the scene of the disaster.

Edwards Victim of Ruth's Bat.

Ruth clearly demonstrated that, unlike Christmas shopping, the business of razzing should not be done too early. Baseball's biggest individual asset was called out on strikes in the first inning and the patrons let him have a robust left handed compliment. He got it again when he flopped in a pinch in the third. He got some more when he failed in the sixth, but when he slammed that thing with two gone in the eighth the wolves and everybody else indicated willingness to sign up immediately in the Ruth Admiration society.

When Ruth knocked the ball straight into the wind and into the center field extremity of the bleacher, Jim John Edwards, the Mississippi southpaw, was serving. He started and he finished and there wasn't much wrong with his work at any time. Only seven hits were delivered against him, but two were clustered for a run in the fourth and one of the others was that Ruth affair. Jim John was just unlucky. He happened to pick a day when his mates didn't know what bats were used for.

Jones' Curves Fool Sox.

Sam Jones, the Welshman with the sad face, did all the throwing for the Yanks. A single by Sheely and a double by Falk gave the Sox a run off him in the second, but thereafter he showed what a hurler with knowledge and courage and a ball club possessing the same qualities could do.

Going into the home ninth, Harris arrived on a fumble by Koenig. A walk by Kamm and a bunt by Schalk, on which Jones fell, filled the bases with none deceased. It looked as if the rest should be a mere pushover. Barrett rushed up to bat for Edwards. He poked a bounder to short and Harris was forced at the plate. Jones stalled around for a few moments and then went to work on Mostil. The latter, overanxious, missed a third strike. Hunnefield, usually a tough fellow, was next. He grounded to Lazzeri and there wasn't any more.

New York's run in the fourth was scored from a double to right by Lazzeri and a similar smash to the flagpole in left by Dugan. The only hit made off Edwards after this was Ruth's, and it wasn't bunted.

Robins' Prize Antique Hits Homer and Beats Cubs

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 31.—Uncle Wilbert Robinson's famous association of transient ball players, a group of rickety antedeluvians tarrying on their way out and juveniles on their way up to seek their careers in baseball, today conferred more abuse on the Cubs, who haven't won a game on their eastern invasion.* The Robins won today's demonstration, 3 to 2, and the hardest blow the Cubs had to bear was delivered when the game had barely begun.

It was a home run by Jacques Fournier, one of the most valuable antiques in Mr. Robinson's collection, who took a hearty swipe at something that Tony Kaufmann threw him in the first inning and ran cackling around the bases as the ball leaped over the right field wall and bounded toward a Chinese laundry across the street. Babe Herman, one of the temporary outfielders in Mr. Robinson's always tentative lineup, was on first base, so the venerable first baseman's rap sent the Robins away with a lead of two runs. The Cubs made an attempt to match this much by scoring one run at a time in the fifth and eighth, but Brooklyn made another in the seventh which won the game.

Cub Lineup Juggled.

McCarthy made several adjustments in his personnel today in the hope of imparting some vigor to the offensive work of the Cubs. Jim Cooney had eaten some poisonous provisions and asked to be excused from his duties as shortstop, so Sparky Adams was shifted over a few paces from his regular place at second to shortstop and Clyde Beck went to work in the vacancy at second. Then Pete Scott relieved Heathcote in right field and late in the game Tolson was sent to first in place of Charlie Grimm.

Scott, at least, delivered, for it was his single in the fifth that scored Mike Gonzales from third with the Cubs' first run. Beck was the first hitter in this inning and he struck out, whereas Gonzales agitated himself in a great show of haste and outran a rolling hit to Marriott at third. Kaufmann lashed the surroundings with futile swings, the second strikeout achieved by Jess Petty in this inning. Adams then singled, sending Gonzales to third, and Scott's single brought the Cuban home.

Gonzales was cited in the hospital list also, for he caught a foul tip with his wishbone in the second inning and regained his vigor just in time to escape the distressing experience of being undressed in public. Butler was batting at the time and he deflected one of Kaufmann's fast throws just enough to hoist it over Mike's glove. As Gonzales went down, clawing the real estate and rending the air with convulsive slashes of his spikes, the entire ensemble gathered about him.

Lotshaw Rushes to Scene.

The most effective simple home remedy known to baseball players consists of the removal of the patient's trousers. They believe there would be no need of hospitals if doctors would deprive their patients of their pants without delay. So they fell on the embarrassed Señor Gonzales, huddling loosely about him, and began to tug at his belt.

At this moment Andy Lotshaw, the Cubs' trainer, became evident. He had a water bucket in one hand and a satchel in the other, from which there protruded a cleaver, ice tongs, and a soldering iron.

Señor Gonzales has had previous experience with Lotshaw and great as his discomfort was at the moment, he chose the lesser of two ordeals when confronted with Lotshaw's first aid.

"I am all right," exclaimed Señor Gonzales, leaping off the ground and bursting through the crowd.

Butler Scores Winning Run.

The Robins' winning run began to take shape in the seventh when Butler lashed a grounder along the left field foul line which hit third base and then ran out of bounds. The Cubs thought it was a foul and so did some of the Robins, for that matter, but Butler kept on running. He was on second by the time Stephenson got the ball back in the game. Petty's single brought him home.

Freigau beat out an infield single in the eighth, took third on Hack Wilson's single, and came home with the Cubs' other run when Stephenson sent a long sacrifice fly to Jacobson.

Buffalo Beats Dayton, 8 to 3, for Polo Title

Buffalo yesterday defeated Dayton at the Onwentsia club, 8 goals to 3, for the championship of the central circuit of the United States Polo association. The winners will go to Narragansett pier for the intercircuit championship tournament the middle of August. The game was hard fought, but Buffalo went into the lead at the start and never was headed. Bubbling Over's Bad Leg Puts Him Out for Season

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 31.—[Special.]—Bubbling Over, winner of the Kentucky Derby and a leading candidate for the three year old championship this season, has run his last race of the year. H. J. Thompson, trainer of the Idle Hour stock farm stable, announced here today that the son of North Star III. and Beaming Beauty will not be seen under colors for the remainder of the racing year. His last appearance under colors was in the Kentucky Derby.

Early in July Bubbling Over was shipped here from Latonia. About two weeks ago he came out of a trial limping badly. It was believed the injury was a minor one and Thompson never utterly abandoned hope for Bubbling Over until today. He is satisfied now of the futility of training him again this season. Bubbling Over's under pinning always has been under suspicion.

880 yard relay, Illinois A. C. [Weissmuller, McGillivray, Schwart, Borg.]

Springboard diving, Peter Desjardins, Miami, Fla.

Platform diving, Peter Desjardins, Miami, Fla.

*New champion.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 31.—[Special.]—The Illinois A. C. relay team swam to a new world's record in winning the national 880 yard championship in the sesquicentennial pool this afternoon. The team, composed of Johnny Weissmuller, Perry McGillivray, Albert Schwartz, and Arne Borg, covered the half mile in 9:48 3-5.

JOHNNY WEISSMULLER.

The old record for the distance was 10:05 2-5, set by an Illinois A. C. four at Newark in 1923.

I. A. C. Team Champion.

The victory in the relay gave the Illinois A. C. undisputed possession of the team trophy with a total of 39 points. The Central Swimming club was second with 17 points.

Weissmuller gained his second individual title when he swam to victory in the 100 meter title test. The Illinois A. C. ace flashed to the fore soon after the start of the contest and, though Walter Laufer kept on even terms with him for a while, Weissmuller won by two yards in :59 3-5, setting a new championship record. The Olympic and world's record is :59, but as this is the first time this distance has been used in a national championship it established a new American record.

Ringler Diving Champion.

The officials announced that Herman Ringler, unattached, was the winner of the middle Atlantic states diving title held yesterday at Philmont. Ringler scored 113.86 points, while Joe Hackney tallied 110.80 to take second place.

NURMI WINS IN RACE AT REVEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 31.—A big reception was accorded Paavo Nurmi when he arrived at Revel from Helsingfors by airplane to take part in the Esthonian national sport festival. The mayor of the city gave him an official welcome, with crowds lining the streets. Nurmi won the 3,000 meter race in 8:26 6-10. An Esthonian named Laurson was second in 9:18 7-10, and also broke the Esthonian record.

Miss Hierman Wins County Golf Crown

BY MORROW KRUM.

Miss Edna Hierman, Lincoln park golfer, won the women's Cook county open tournament at the Jackson park course yesterday. Miss Hierman defeated Miss Virginia Weltman, state public parks champion, 3 and 2, in the 18 hole final match of the tournament.

The title comes to Miss Hierman as a reward of six years of ardent striving on the golf links. She has never won a major parks title before, although in the half dozen years she had been runner-up and semi-finalist many times. Her victory proves that a girl may hold down a difficult office job and still be a golf champion.

Loser Is City Parks Champ.

Miss Hierman is employed as the generalissimo of a busy physician's office in the loop. All her golf comes after office hours, except during tournaments, and even after playing in those competitions she had always rushed back to her job. She is a busy girl and hasn't had much time for practice.

The woman Miss Hierman defeated yesterday was a worthy opponent. A fortnight ago Miss Weltman won the women's city parks title. In 1923 she was municipal champion of New York, and in 1925 she was runner-up to that honor. Miss Weltman is also the champion of the Lincoln Park club.

Match Hard Fought.

Although their medal scores yesterday would not cause Virginia Van Wie or Glenna Collett to worry, the finalists were so evenly matched that the gallery was stirred to applause several times.

On the first nine Miss Hierman missed three easy putts for wins, but at the turn she was 1 up. Par is 39. Miss Hierman had a 40 and Miss Weltman 41. On the second nine the match was won at the sixteenth hole when Miss Weltman hooked her second shot behind a tree and lost a stroke getting out. The cards:

Miss Hierman—Out......555 544 435—40
Miss Weltman—Out......554 454 446—41
Miss Hierman—In.........464 366 5
Miss Weltman—In.........464 466 6

In the championship consolation finals, two Jackson Park players fought it out for the cup, Miss Florence Jacobs winning over Mrs. M. V. Nugent, 4 and 3.

Flowers-Greb Ring Battle Postponed Until Aug. 19

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The middleweight championship battle between Tiger Flowers and Harry Greb, originally scheduled for Aug. 12 at the New Garden, has been postponed until Aug. 19 at the request of Walk Miller, manager of Flowers, who wired Jess McMahon today asking for an extension of time for his fighter to get into shape for the Pittsburgh battler.

This Derby Like and Unlike Those of Twenty Years Ago

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

It was the new American Derby that was run at the new Washington Park race course yesterday, from the viewpoint of oldtime turf followers. Reiteration of the word new was considered necessary, even mandatory by those who remember the original Washington park out at Sixty-first street whose last Derby was won by Highball twenty-two years ago. Certainly the proceedings at Homewood were not the old American Derby. The environment was not old Washington Park. Nor could they be expected to be, for that matter.

Times have changed in twenty-two years. In 1904 racing was an institution in Chicago and Washington park was the leading race track in the west, with a membership roster which comprised the leading names from Chicago's Blue Book. Now racing is just coming back in Illinois, raising its head from behind handbooks and interdiction to the place it once occupied. That will take more than one season.

Crowd Not Turf-Wise.

While the new American Derby of yesterday was surpassed, in the opinion of old timers, in tradition, volume of wagering and social prestige by the Derbies run between 1884 and 1904, it was a well dressed and tremendously enthusiastic crowd which saw Boot to Boot capture the largest purse ever offered on the American turf. It was a Chicago Derby day crowd of the year 1926.

Derby day crowds are holiday crowds. That was the kind of crowd at Homewood. It was not a sophisticated gathering in a turf sense. Sellers of the synthetic mutuel tickets complained too many persons asked why they should "contribute" to the "purse" and inquired about the "refunds." In fact, one ticket seller remarked, "These mugs take so long to ask questions there's no time left to bet." But these holiday seekers were not "mugs." One must learn by inquiry or experience that "contributions" are wagers, that "first, second and third purses" mean straight, place and show, that "refunds" represent the winning mutuel prices.

Crowd Gets Its "Kick."

But whether or not it was sophisticated, this holiday crowd had a good time and it made more noise than the ordinary racing throng, because it was wagering for a thrill and not for speculation, and thrill betters proverbially make more noise than gamblers.

Spectators began arriving at the track shortly after noon, both by train and by automobile. The last special train, put on to accommodate late comers, arrived after the first race. Auto parties were still arriving when the fourth race was being run. Apparently there was no congestion. It was merely the leisurely way of pleasure seekers interested only in the big race of the day.

Contrasting more strongly with the Washington park of old, perhaps, were the autos—2,000 or more of them—in the big parking space. Once they would have been tallyhos, spiders, landaus, and phaetons. When all occupants of autos and trains had been discharged the grandstand was packed, with many standing in the aisles. In the clubhouse, only a skeleton a week ago but rushed to completion for the Derby, were members and guests.

The Derby Is Success.

Besides these points of vantage, the crushed stone "lawn" in front and the infield held their quotas. Manager Tom Bourke announced the crowd officially as 37,842 paid admissions. To those experienced in racing crowds, 25,000 seemed a conservative estimate; but if 37,842 paid, that's fine, fine.

From a racing viewpoint and from the viewpoint of future Chicago racing, was this Derby—disappointing in its entry list but prodigal in its financial value—a success? It was. Had Crusader, Bubbling Over, Bagenbaggage, or Carlaris been among those present they would have been busy keeping step with Boot to Boot in the remarkably fast time of 2:30 1-5.

Marian Leighton Loses City Net Crown; Lott and Shaw Win

BY HOWARD ROBERTS.

Marian Leighton's long reign as Chicago women's tennis champion came to an abrupt and unexpected end yesterday at the South Side Tennis club and for the first time in history the title passed out of the city. Mrs. Ruth Riese, of Saginaw, Mich., is the new titleholder and the little Michigan champion won the crown by the effective method of outplaying her opponent in the deciding sets. The scores were 2—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Miss Leighton, who has held the Chicago title for the last five years, started with a rush, taking the first set in short order, and seemed on the road to an easy victory over Mrs. Reise, whom she defeated earlier in the year. But Mrs. Riese was far from beaten. She sent her shots spinning to the corners of the baseline, forcing Marian out of position. Miss Leighton's hard drives could not crack the Michigan champion's defense and Marion fell into the mistake of adopting Mrs. Riese's softer game. At this style of play Mrs. Riese outsteadied her opponent throughout the numerous long rallies, and grabbed the final sets, 7—5, 6—4.

Lott Wins Hard Tussle.

George Lott Jr., the 19 year old city champion, won his way into the final round, where he will meet Art Shaw for the title, but it took him four long, bitterly contested sets to defeat Bobby Seller, the Pacific coast junior, and gain that select bracket.

Seller, who provided a major upset by defeating Al Green in the quarter finals, again proved he is headed for a high place in national tennis circles by giving Lott, the eleventh ranking player in the country, one of the hardest matches the champion has ever encountered in a city tournament. The scores were 8—6, 7—5, 4—6, 6—4.

Lott unquestionably was off his game, his shots lacking their usual speed and direction, while the coast youngster was uncorking a varied attack that took one set and forced two others to deuce. Seller presented a well rounded game, his ground strokes being particularly effective.

Shaw Also Has Hard Fight.

Art Shaw, Chicago's number three man in singles, entered the final round over Axel Gravem in a peculiar match which lacked thrills until Shaw reached match point in the third set. Art had taken the first two sets at 6—2 and led 5—4 and 40—0 on Gravem's service in the third. Then the fun started. Facing almost certain defeat, Gravem three times kept Shaw from winning match point and then continued his spurt to take the set at 7—5. The fourth set was a see-saw affair, Shaw finally taking the set, 7—5, after twice working the count to match point.

Boris Kinsel and Vorsilla Mican, the Hamilton park girls, retained their city doubles title against the challenge by Marian Leighton and Mrs. Riese, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1. The superior teamwork of the Chicago girls tells the story.

In the semi-finals of the men's doubles, Art Shaw and Axel Gravem defeated George O'Connell and Emmet Pare, 3—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—4, while Al Green and Bobby Seller downed George Lott and Harry Knox, 9—7, 6—3, 7—5.

In the finals today Lott will meet Shaw at 2 o'clock and Shaw and Gravem will face Green and Seller two hours later.

Check Is Signed

The check for $89,000 representing the winner's share in yesterday's $100,000 American Derby was signed last night by Robert M. Sweitzer, president of the Illinois Jockey club.

The check, drawn on the Union Bank of Chicago, was made payable to the Idle Hour Stock farm, and according to Sweitzer will be mailed today or tomorrow to Edward R. Bradley, who is at Saratoga.

"I turned the check over to Thomas Bourke, our general manager to be photographed," Sweitzer said. "He will mail it to Mr. Bradley."

The check was not certified, Sweitzer explained, because the banks were closed by the time the Derby was run.

BY FRENCH LANE.

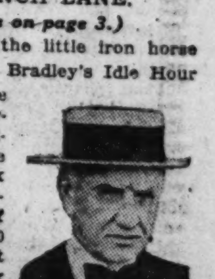
Boot to Boot, the little iron horse from Edward R. Bradley's Idle Hour stable, won the eighteenth renewal of the American Derby at the Washington park race track yesterday. A crowd of 25,000 to 30,000 watched him beat Display, leading eastern contender, by two lengths. Another length back came Black Maria, winner of the Illinois Oaks a week ago, and the only filly in the race.



E. R. BRADLEY.

With his illustrious stable mates, Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, out of commission by injuries in training, Boot to Boot stayed close to Bolton, which cut out a dizzy pace for the first mile of the mile and a half grind, swept into the lead on the turn into the stretch for the final run, and shook off Display in the final drive. The time for the mile and a half was 2:30 1-5, several seconds faster than most turfmen believed the race would be run.

Alfred Johnson on Winner.

To Jockey Alfred Johnson, Exterminator's old pilot, the same Alfred Johnson from the far west who piloted Bubbling Over to his brilliant triumph in the last Kentucky Derby, goes much of the credit for the victory. He rode a careful well judged race. He nursed Boot to Boot throughout early stages of the struggle, picked the shortest route home when it came time to sail into the lead, then hand rode the bay son of North Star III.-Padula down the last grueling furlong to beat Display at every stride.

With Bubbling Over lame and out of training at Saratoga, Bagenbaggage, walking on three legs as the result of a hurt sustained at Washington Park, Boot to Boot was not considered good enough by most of the people in yesterday's big crowd to stem the tide of the eastern invaders, Display and Black Maria. He was the second choice in the betting, rewarding his followers at the rate of $6.60 for each $2.00 ticket to win and paying $3.30 for place in the modified mutuel betting. Display was at sixty cents to a dollar for place. No show tickets were sold.

Fifth Bradley Derby.

It was the fifth great Derby the fleet trio of Bradley three year olds have accounted for this year. Bagenbaggage started the brilliant Derby march of the Bradley colorbearers when the conquered an ordinary band and won the $20,000 Louisiana Derby at New Orleans in March.

Bubbling Over took up the battle next and May 15 showed his heels to all his rivals in the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. Then came the Latonia Derby with its $35,000 added money. Bubbling Over was not ready for this race, but Bagenbaggage was on hand and, coupled with Boot to Boot, the pair ran one-two.

Two of Stars Out.

Next came the Ohio Derby in Cleveland last Wednesday. Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage were both on the shelf when the bugle sounded. But Boot to Boot was there and, running over a heavy muddy track, one not to his liking, he raced to victory and won the $10,000 stake.

The American Derby of yesterday was next. Bubbling Over, with a serious leg injury, was at Saratoga and hopelessly out of it. Bagenbaggage had injured a foot in training for it, although Trainer William Hurley put in herculean efforts to get him ready.

He was named in the overnight entries, but yesterday morning he could scarcely move about his stall. He was the first horse scratched out of the richest race ever decided on any track. This left it up to Boot to Boot. He had been rushed from Cleveland to Chicago in a special express car. Unloaded here late Thursday, he only had time to unlimber his winged feet between then and time to go to the post in the Derby.

Despite the fact that it was the first American Derby run in 22 years and that $100,000 had been offered in added money, only a mediocre band was named to contest for the prize. There was doubt about the Illinois Jockey club's staging the race, and further doubt that its officers would be able to pay the stake if the race was run.

This field gave ardent Bradley supporters hope that Boot to Boot might win. They knew Display was a bad post actor, that it wasn't likely he would get off with the rest of the field. They refused to believe that Black Maria, a filly, could win, for only one filly ever won the American Derby and only one filly ever won the Kentucky Derby. These Bradley backers set it in on Boot to Boot, and they fairly went wild with joy when, under Johnson's hard riding, he came on to win handily.

Display showed his usual mean disposition at the post. He delayed the start five minutes, wanted to run the wrong direction of the track, and it took Jockey Johnny Maiben and three assistant starters to subdue him.

Bolton Takes Lead.

Finally he was brought back to the barrier. Starter Snyder yelled "Go!" and Boot to Boot broke in front, but after a dozen strides Jockey Walter Anderson sent Bolton into the lead.

Thundering past the stands the first time, Bolton was showing the way by two lengths, Boot to Boot was second, racing snugly under Johnson's guidance, three lengths in front of Black Maria. There was no change in their positions at the mile, Smiling Gus being fourth and the temperamental Display bringing up the rear.

Then came the end of the long back stretch trip. Bolton was tiring, and every time he faltered Johnson moved up a stride with Boot to Boot. At the mile and a quarter they were only heads apart. Bolton was still showing the way, with Boot to Boot second, but Display had found his running legs and had moved up into third place, while Black Maria was fourth and Smiling Gus last.

The next few strides found Johnson moving with the fleet Bradley colt. He collared and whipped Bolton in an instant. This finished Bolton, for completely conquered he let Display pass him next, and then wilted completely as Black Maria went by. And before the head of the stretch was reached Smiling Gus also was showing his heels to Bolton.

Boot to Boot Breezes Home.

While the crowd, on its feet cheering since the start, continued to shout out its applause, there was no change in the position down the stretch. Alfred Johnson was riding with the same confidence he might have shown on old Exterminator in his palmy days. Boot to Boot was the best. Display came up almost to his flank, but Boot to Boot looked the Walter J. Salmon horse squarely in the eye. Then Boot to Boot came on; the finish wasn't even close.

That tells the story of the eighteenth renewal of the American Derby. Old Bill Hurley, the trainer, and Jockey Johnson climbed into the steward's stand to claim the spoils. A tall silver trophy cup was presented to Hurley. Roses, dozens of them, were pushed into Johnson's arms. Edward R. Bradley was not here to share in his triumph.

Lincoln Fields Can Care for 2,500 Horses

From every part of America horses are arriving at the new Lincoln Fields race course, where a summer turf season in the Chicago district will open on Monday, Aug. 9, and continue for 30 days.

The track is complete in every detail, recent visits there show, and the new course, which has been built at a cost of more than $2,000,000, will, with its August racing, become as important to the west as Saratoga is to the east, many believe.

There is room for 1,400 horses at Lincoln Field and through a working agreement with the Illinois Jockey club horses may also be quartered at Washington Park and fill racing engagements at Lincoln Fields. This will make it possible to have nearly 2,500 horses for the Lincoln Fields racing.

Prominent stables from Kentucky, Canada, Ohio, California, and the south are among the recent arrivals and a number of eastern horses will arrive early in the week. Ten rich stake events have been announced, the $5,000 Joliet handicap featuring the opening days program, for which elaborate plans are being made.

The affairs of the new Lincoln Fields track are being directed by Col. Matt J. Winn of Kentucky and the track has been financed by Col. Winn and a group of Chicago and Kentucky associates.

HOOVER WINS A TWIN VICTORY IN CANADIAN RACES

St. Catharines, Ont., July 31.—(AP)—Walter Hoover, American sculling ace, carried the colors of the Undine Barge club of Philadelphia to a double victory in the senior events of the Canadian Henley regatta here today, rowing to an easy triumph over J. Durnan of the Argonaut R. C. of Toronto in the singles after defeating his club mate, Nelson, by a half length in the quarter-mile dash. Nelson scratched himself in the singles to save himself for the doubles.

In the feature race for eight-oared crews the American Legion Boat club of Wyandotte, Mich., captured the senior title by defeating two Canadian shells, the Winnipeg and Lachine crews.

The Lachine Rowing club of Montreal today captured the final race for the senior 150-pound eights in the Canadian Henley regatta, leading the Detroit No. 1 crew by three-quarters of a length. Summaries:

SENIOR SINGLES—Won by Walter Hoover, Undine Barge club, Philadelphia; J. Durnan, Argonaut R. C., Toronto, second. Time, 9:14 1-5.

Becker Finds Arrowheads' Picture Rocks

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAC LA CROIX, north of Ely, Minn., July 31.—Every year, for no one knows how many centuries, Lac la Croix has had on display a prehistoric art exhibit, which you should not miss when you come canoeing through these waters. On a jagged wall of buff tinted rock which nature has pointed deep green and black and covered with moss and lichen, the primitive red men have painted in lasting vermillion colors their stories of the hunt and a number undecipherable (to us) bits of their history.

The rocky cliff, which the Indians used to perpetuate their art, towers 75 or 80 feet above La Croix. Near the water's edge, the face of the cliff slopes back, and here, in random fashion, the artists arranged their exhibit. Bill, the guide, and I looked it over this morning. We found the most striking drawing to be that of a bull moose 14 inches long and 7 or 8 inches high. Against the rich, warm, buff tints of the rock this vermillion colored moose is discernible for some distance. To the right of the big bull you see an excellent drawing of an Indian brave smoking a long pipe.

Bill and I argued for some time over that part of the exhibit devoted to natural history drawings. Deer are protrayed, a lynx, a big heron, an owl (possibly) and then there was a queer long horned beast that looked like an ibex.

Madden to Sell Breeding Stock in 2 Day Auction

Lexington, Ky., July 31.—[Special.]—John E. Madden today announced his retirement from the breeding of thoroughbreds. He will sell his breeding stock and a thousaind acres of his vast Hamburg place on Nov. 8 and 9.

The Hamburg stallions, Playfellow, brother of Man 'O War; Runnymede, sire of Morvich and Star Master, will be offered as well as his brood mares and 35 foals of 1926. Sir Martin, only American horse ever started favorite in the Epsom Derby and leading the field when he stumbled and fell at Tattenham Corner, will not be sold.

For the last nine years Madden has been a leading American breeder, horses bred by him having won 3,081 races, a record possibly unequalled anywhere. Among the horses he has bred are the Kentucky Derby winners: Old Rosebud, Sir Barton, Paul Jones, and Flying Ebony. Other great runners bred by him are King James, Rock Minister, Abe Frank, Lempriere Gray Lag, Inch Cape, and many others.

Lawrence Gets Seven New Tennis Courts

Appleton, Wis., July 31.—[Special.]—Through the generosity of George A. Whiting, Neenah, Wis., paper manufacturer, students of Lawrence college will have seven new tennis courts for their use when the school term opens in September. They will be of clay and will be placed on Whiting athletic field, which was donated to Lawrence by Mr. Whiting a year ago. The courts will cost approximately $3,000.

SCAPA FLOW WINS U. S. HOTEL STAKE IN HIS 1ST START

Account and Candy Pan Finish in Order.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 31.(AP)—Scapa Flow, son of Man o' War, defeated a fast field of eight other two year olds today in carrying the silks of the W. M. Jefford's stable to victory in the historic United States Hotel stakes.

Scapa Flow won by three lengths from Account, which was five lengths in front of Candy Pan. It was the first start of the Man 'o War colt and he went to the post a favorite at 9 to 10. He broke running quickly and won eased up. He ran the six furlongs in 1:14 2-5 and earned $11,525. Coltiletti had the mount.

The Miller stakes, $3,500 added, the supporting feature of the program, went to Rock Star of the Brookmade stable. Jockey Johnny Callahan brought the three year old in first in a hard ride, winning by a neck over W. M. Jefford's Mars, with Marshall Field's Nomad third. The time for the mile and three-sixteenths was 2:01 3-5.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Erne II. won the Shillelah steeplchase, run over the course of about two miles. Erne II. took the lead and won going away by two lengths, while Thorndale beat Saint Pancras by six lengths for the place. The race was worth $3,150.

WOMEN'S LONG DISTANCE SWIM RACES AUG. 9

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—This year's national long distance team and individual swimming championship for women will be decided at Lake Hopatcong, N. J., on Monday, Aug. 9, according to entrance blanks issued by the Women's Swimming Association of New York. The distance will be approximately two miles.

A perpetual challenge trophy, donated by Annette Kellerman, will be awarded to the team winner, and in addition team medals will be awarded point scoring contestants on the first three winning teams. Regulation A. A. U. medals will be given the three individual leaders.

FEEHAN TAKES WEST DIVISION K. OF C. TITLE

Feehan clinched first place in the west division of the Knights of Columbus Baseball league yesterday by trimming Sherman, 10 to 7. It was the losers' first defeat, while Feehan has a clean slate. A six run rally in the seventh sewed up the game. Other scores:

Kettler, 8; Cardinal, 0.
Aquinas, 4; Dowling, 2.
Quigley, 8; De La Salle, 7.
Leo VIII., 10; Madonna, 6.
Santa Maria, 3; Calumet, 0.
Perez, 5; St. James, 0.
Brownson, 10; University, 8.
Ravenswood, 4—10; Lafayette, 2—3.
St. Rita, 9; Englewood, 0.

Reissler Exonerated of Blame for Boxer's Death

San Bernardino, Cal., July 31.—(AP)—John Reissler, New York lightweight, was exonerated of responsibility for the death of Jackie Jones of Oklahoma by a coroner's jury today. Jones, who was knocked out by Reissler in the seventh round of an eight round match Thursday night, died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning "from a rupture of a blood vessel in the brain," the inquest verdict read. The hemorrhage, physicians testified, could have been caused by exertion or excitement.

Boot to Boot Leads Colts; Bradley Owners in Purses

WHILE only the third string 3 year old in Edward R. Bradley's stable, Boot to Boot, by his victory in the $100,000 American Derby, has become the biggest money winning thoroughbred of the year in America. His total earnings since Jan. 1 are $111,095. Carlaris, winner of the Coffroth handicap, is second with $100,175, and Crusader third with $98,550. The Bradley stable is the leading money winning establishment in the country with $251,577 in purse money. It leads Harry Payne Whitney by nearly $60,000.

Among the notables in the big crowd was Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling from Rockford. With a party of friends he viewed the race from a box directly back of the finish line.

Day and night work throughout the last week made it possible for the Jockey club to throw open the doors to the new clubhouse when the Derby crowd began arriving. Many gay parties viewed the afternoon's program from the boxes along the clubhouse veranda.

One of the most interested spectators was Jake Holtman, who viewed the Derby with a wistful look on his face from along the fence in the midstretch in front of the paddock. Jake was the starter at Washington Park when Highball won the Derby in 1904, and now is training a string which is campaigning at new Washington Park.

Seventy-six ticket sellers cared for the public at the mutuel booths, in addition to several which operated on the Derby only.

Col. Matt Winn, executive director of the Lincoln Fields Jockey club, paid his respects to the stewards between the second and third races. He said to them: "I wish to express my good wishes to the officials of the Illinois Jockey club and to congratulate them upon the success of their first Derby day at the new course. We all have a common interest in giving Chicago the best racing possible."

Col. J. Swigart Taylor, of Kentucky, whose brand of whisky was almost as famous as the American Derby 25 years ago, got into the spotlight when his two year old Golden Top won the Billings 2 year old stakes, which came second on the Derby day program. He had been backed with confidence and the victory was popular. Col. Taylor is the father-in-law of C. W. Hay, the Washington Park presiding steward.

The Potter Palmer purse was another stake for 2 year olds, it coming seventh on the program and brought one of the most exciting finishes of the day when H. G. Bedwell's Chairman got up in the last strides to beat Henry Horner, a Chicago owned colt.

James M. Murphy, general manager of the Fair Grounds track in New Orleans, was among the Derby day visitors. He left last night for Saratoga for a conference with E. R. Bradley on plans for the winter racing season in New Orleans.

Jockey Alfred Johnson departed for Saratoga without announcing what his fee was for riding Boot to Boot to victory. While not officially announced, Owner Bradley is understood to have given him $10,000 for riding Bubbling Over to victory in the Kentucky Derby, and friends of Bradley here last night said Johnson would get a similar check for his part in the American Derby triumph.

Jockey Johnny Maiben, who rode Display in the Derby, will leave today for New York and will ride at Saratoga this week.

Training Camp Crepe Hangers Worry Ederle

BY GERTRUDE EDERLE.

[Copyright 1926 By Trib-News Service.]

CAPE GRIS-NEZ, France, July 31.—If people here were as considerate of my feelings as Paul Berlenbach says people around his training camp were to him, I'm sure I'd have a much better chance of swimming the English channel.

Everybody talks about nothing but the channel, and I think they thus show a real lack of consideration. Every meal orders are given, "No channel talk," and yet before the first course is served some one looks out of a window and says anxiously:

"Wind's changing," or "It'll be a good night tonight."

Then, when the night turns out to be bad, the same person solemnly chronicles:

"Didn't I tell you it would blow up bad tonight?"

So, all you can hear is talk of the weather, the wind, and the tide. It has reached a stage now where I bring a book to the table, and when I am not eating I sit with my fingers in my ears, impolitely burying myself.

People here are channel crazy, and it seems their pesky task and desire is to frighten swimmers.

SWEETSER OUT OF AMATEUR MEET

New York, July 31. — (AP) — Jess Sweetser, first American born golfer to win the British amateur championship, will not compete in the American amateur title event at Baltusrol, Sept. 13-18, according to his brother, Ted Sweetser.

The former Yale star, who returned in poor health from his European invasion a month and a half ago, has decided that further competition this year might endanger complete recovery from an attack of influenza and consequently will appear at the Short Hills, N. J., course merely as a spectator, his brother said. He is now recuperating at Lake Joseph, Ontario, Canada.

JUNIORS OPEN COUNTY GOLF PLAY TOMORROW

The second annual Cook county junior championship golf tournament will be played tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Garfield Park club. Entrants must be at least 14 years old and under 17. The entry fee is 25 cents and entries will be accepted at the tee up to 1 o'clock tomorrow.

Two flights of sixteen each will be selected from the qualifying round for match play.

VANITY WINS YACHT RACE

Vanity, skipped by Hamree and Johnson, took first place in the Chicago Yacht club's Eagle class race held over a twelve mile course off Belmont Harbor yesterday. White Bear finished second, Altair third, and Bald Eagle fourth, while the other boat in the race, the Falcon, did not finish.

Vanity sailed over the twelve mile course in 2:43:37 with a brisk northeast wind aiding the craft.

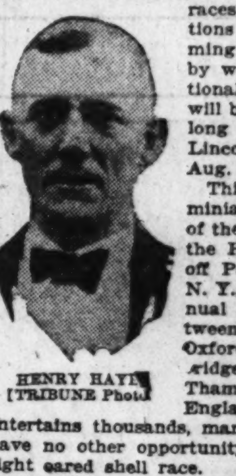
TRIBUNE WATER CARNIVAL WILL BE HELD AUG. 22

Swimming, Diving Stars to Give Exhibitions.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

THE TRIBUNE's fifth annual water carnival, featured by shell and canoe races and exhibitions of swimming and diving by world and national champions, will be held in the long lagoon of Lincoln park on Aug. 22.



HENRY HAYES

This event, a miniature replica of the regattas on the Hudson river off Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and the annual races between crews of Oxford and Cambridge on the Thames river in England, always entertains thousands, many of whom have no other opportunity to see an eight oared shell race.

In addition to the race between two eight oared crews there will be events for single, double, and four oared shells. There also will be races for canoe experts, some of whom are national and sectional champions. A war canoe race, a reminder of the days when this was one of the features of the athletic events staged by the Indians, also is on the program.

Famous Stars to Compete.

Chicago fans have read of the great ability of Johnny Weissmuller, Arne Borg, Sybil Bauer, Ethel Lackie, and other famous swimmers, but few have seen these experts in action. Efforts also will be made to have diving champions give exhibitions of their specialties.

Through the courtesy of the Lincoln park commissioners permission has been granted THE TRIBUNE to use the lagoon for the regatta. In past years these commissioners have had much to do with making the event a success. They never have failed to grant a request which makes the program more interesting for the spectators.

THE TRIBUNE in staging the regatta will receive the assistance of th Lincoln Park Boat club, of which J. A Hadwiger is commodore, Henry Hay vice commodore, and Gilbert Shann captain. This club is one of the lea ing rowing associations of the countr

For the last two years when th University of Washington eight pa through Chicago on its way to th eastern regatta the north side extended the hositality of its equ ment for practice drills.

With the coöperation of the Lin Park Boat club and the commi ers of the north side park, plans will be completed for this big ev Oarsmen and crews of other will be invited to meet experts of local club.

Canoe Races Open Events.

The canoe races will be open ev They will be in charge of a com tee to be appointed by Vincent S commodore of the central divisi the American Canoe association. committee of which Commo Smith is chairman, will handle al tries and will be responsible for conduct of the canoe races.

Harry Hazelhurst, swimming structor of the C. A. A., will be as to take charge of the diving ex tions. He will try to secure as m men and women champions as sible. Hazelhurst, one of the competent instructors in the count last winter developed a team w won the National A. A. U. water championship.

William Bachrach, I. A. C. coach, will go after the best men women swimmers in the middle to furnish exhibitions of their spe ties. Bachrach has had great suc as a coach. His tri-color teams h been National and Central A. A. U champions for years.

The regatta will be free to the public. THE TRIBUNE will defray all expenses and will make every effort to provide an entertaining program.

"The Rattlesnake" Tennis Trophy Valued at $3,500

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—The William H. Todd Remingto bronze statue known as "The Rattlesnake" is probably the most valuab trophy in competition in tennis. Bought in 1921 for $500, the equestria piece of statuary was valued this wee at $3,500 by a member of Tiffany's, from whom it was purchased. There are only twelve copies of "The Rattlesnake," and its likely that its value will increase even more. Vincen Richards holds two legs on it and a other victory in the Metropolitan gra court championship at the Crescent A. C. will give him permanent possessi of the unique trophy.

Washington Withdraws Waivers on Peckinpaugh

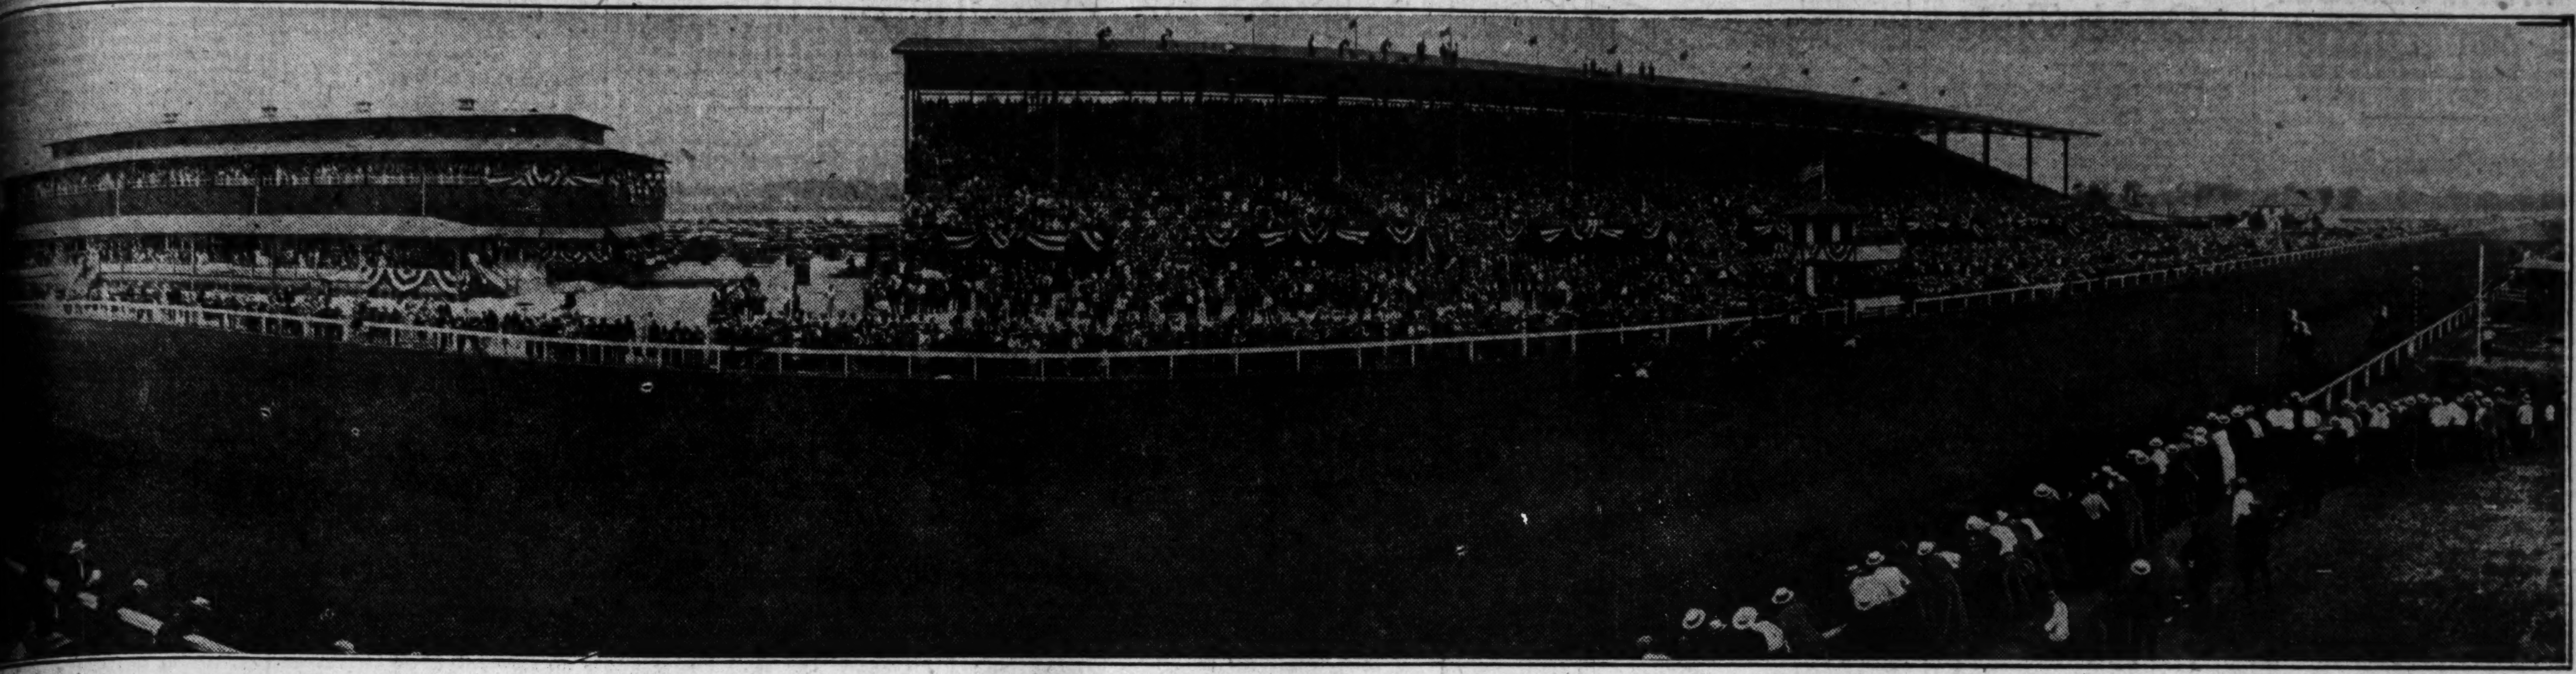
Boot to Boot Wins American Derby; Display, Second; Black Maria, Third—Yanks Beat Sox, 2-1



BOOT TO BOOT SPRINTS IN STRETCH TO BEAT DISPLAY BY TWO LENGTHS IN RENEWAL OF AMERICAN DERBY AT WASHINGTON PARK. The Bradley colt, with Albert Johnson up, was never worse than second position in the mile and half Derby grind for $100,000 purse, and kept the 25,000 spectators shouting by his game spurt to earn victory. Display, acting badly at the post, started last, but came up at the mile and quarter into third position, and finally second. Bolton took the lead from Boot to Boot at the half mile, and held it until the mile and quarter, where he was passed by the entire field. Black Maria won third place, with Smiling Gus fourth.

White Sox Notes

HERB PENNOCK, the antique southpaw, and Al Thomas are the probable chuckers for the second of the series at Comiskey park today.

Ruth is slightly behind his schedule for 1921, when he was the author of fifty-nine homers. That year he hit his thirty-third on July 12.

Bob Meusel, whose foot was injured a month ago, was in uniform yesterday for the first time. He will not be ready to play for another ten days.

Ruth's circuit drive was one of the longest he ever hit in Comiskey park. His longest was a drive that sailed far over the bleachers, well toward center. He also sailed one between the fence and scoreboard in dead center.

With Falk on third and one out in the second inning Schalk put on the squeeze play. The Yanks were wise to it and Jones pitched out. Schalk managed to foul the ball and prevent Falk from being caught. Then Cracker fouled out and Edwards tapped to the pitcher.

Sheely walked in the sixth and went to third on Falk's single to right. Gehrig made a neat pickup of Harris' hard grounder and threw out Sheely at the plate.

Combs gave the crowd something to whoop over in the fourth when he sprinted into right center, stuck out his gloved hand and pulled in a dangerous looking liner off Harris' bat.

Giants Rout Slump; Drub Cards Twice

New York, July 31.—(AP)—The Giants came out of their slump and beat the Cardinals in both ends of today's double headers, 8 to 6 and 6 to 1. The New Yorkers had one big innings in the second game when Reinhart blew up in the seventh and six runs crossed the plate. Young drove out a homer with two on in that frame.

4 ARGENTINIAN BOXERS ARRIVE IN UNITED STATES

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Four Argentinian pugilists arrived on the steamer Teno this week. This troup consists of Alfredo Porzio and Roberto Delfino, heavyweights, Eustaquio Peralta, middleweight, and Julian Mallona, lightweight.

These four boxers have been brought over by Jose Martinez, who initiated Louis Firpo in the boxing game, and is recognized as the leading boxing instructor of South America. Martinez has arranged with Juan Homs, who has represented Tex Rickard in his business with Firpo and other foreign boxers, to manage, with him, these four boxers while they are in this country.

DEMPSEY AND TUNNEY.

IF the state license committee approves, now considered a mere formality, the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney championship bout will be held in New York City Sept. 16. The Wake long has maintained that a Dempsey-Wills contest was "not on the cards," despite the New York commission edict.

That opinion was based on information from a Gotham source usually "in the know." Wake readers may take it or leave it. Here's the story. Insistence on the bout was prompted by consideration of the large colored vote in New York City. But the same Tammany controlling New York City also has in Gov. Al Smith a candidate for President. Effect on southern Democratic votes in the national convention negatived the Dempsey-Wills bout.

These conditions have been hinted at. But in addition there were sub rosa notices from editors of two powerful newspapers that the bout must not take place; that they would oppose and hamper the affair in every way.

Then New Jersey was considered. For a time all looked well. After an all night session of Jersey politicians, however, the bout was declined with thanks.

So far as we can learn, it was not prejudice against Wills' color per se which prompted the objections. There was a strong feeling that race riots might result or racial feeling be inflamed, especially in northern cities with a large colored population.

Meantime, Wills was offered several other opportunities with purses as high as $100,000 for his end, but his manager chose to take the big gamble on sporting, not political, public sentiment, forcing Dempsey into the ring against the colored battler.

Doubtful Reassurance.

Dear Harvey: An old pal of mine was in the hospital for 88 days suffering from a heavy heart attack. He was convalescing and his doctor gave him permission to take a two hour motor ride each nice afternoon.

The first day the patient was to go out, he felt a bit nervous and asked the interne if it would be safe to take the ride unaccompanied by a nurse—to go just by himself and the driver. The interne affirmed, left the room, but was back in a second or two and said: "Be sure, though, and tell your chauffeur that if anything happens to drive right back post haste to St. Luke's." TYRONE.

Editor's note—Wakers, no doubt, will welcome the return of Tyrone to this column after a long hiatus. We suspect the experience was his own.

Regret.

The moon's soft rays enveloped us,
As I declared my love.
Your hair seemed like molten gold,
I called you "precious dove."
I cried, "Wilt marry me, fair one,
And share the nest I've built?"
Your lips met mine, you murmured,
"Uh-huh, I wilt."

Today, beneath the less kind rays
Of a burning summer sun,
I note so many sad defects,
Who thought that there were NONE.
Your skirt's too short, you wear your hat
At a raking, hoyden tilt—
I think of my wild words, and then,
Uh-huh, I wilt.

Playing Golf Again.

Aw, what's the use? We may as well confess. Our golf clubs are out of the attic and back in our locker again. THE TRIBUNE tourney shook our resolution. Then an invited guest at the last minute disappointed Jim Cooke for the North Shore Silver Tassel event, and he shouted "Help! Help!" to us, our own war cry, to complete the foursome.

So we played 36 holes. At that 185 yard fellow, we had—for us—a good drive and sank a 35 yard putt for a birdie two. Luck, of course, but as we were playing a Scotch foursome, syndicate, bonus for all pars, and quadruple bonus for birdies, there was some satisfaction apart from the two. In addition, we won a prize. That settled it.

[Confidential to friends only—The prize we won was for HIGH man in each foursome.]

Stay West, Young Team.

The Cubs are quite a husky lot,
And win their games when they are not
Away from home, which makes it clear
The Skedool ought to keep 'em here.

An Austrian scientist has offered Jack Dempsey a "punch proof nose." It remains for some German scientist to offer Tunney a "punch proof nose detector."

HELEN WINS WAY INTO NET FINALS AT EASTHAMPTON

Meets Mary Browne for Title Today.

East Hampton, N. Y., July 31.—[Special.]—Helen Wills today brushed aside the last barrier in her pathway toward the final in the Maidstone Invitation tournament by defeating Mrs. E. S. Roeser of New York, 6—3, 9—7, in the semi-final, and by this victory stands on the threstold of her first championship since her recent operation. The American champion faces Mary K. Browne tomorrow at 11 o'clock for the title.

Forsaking the base line play which has marked her game during the present tournament, Miss Wills adopted a net attack at the opening of her match today and continued this style of play until near the close.

It proved particularly effective against the defensive style of her opponent, although the California girl was still unsteady both on ground strokes and volleys. She put far more sting into her shots than during any previous match of the tournament, seeming to increase the speed of her strokes, even at the expense of many errors. Her service was decidedly the best she has shown so far in the tournament at times being as severe as ever.

C., tomorrow. Both gained their final brackets today, Tilden eliminating Takechi Harada, Japanese ace, 7—5, 6—1, 6—2, and Richards outscoring Dr. George King, New York surgeon, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

In the semi-final of the junior invitation tourney John Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., defeated Julius Seligson of New York City, national indoor junior champion, 6—4, 8—6, while Berkley Bell of Austin, Tex., eliminated Warren Coen Jr. of Kansas City, 6—1, 6—4.

Both favorite teams came through in the semi-finals of the doubles. Tilden and Sandy Wiener defeated Phil Neer and Luke Williams, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4. Richards and Frank Hunter eliminated King and Watson M. Washburn, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4.

MISS RYAN SWEEPS SERIES

Manchester, Mass., July 31.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan of Santa Monica, Cal., defeated Miss Eleanor Goss of New York, 6—0, 6—3, in the final of the women's invitation tennis singles at the Essex Country club here today and thereby won a leg on the challenge cup offered as trophy.

Miss Ryan won her second victory of the day when teamed with Miss Eleanor Goss of New York. She defeated Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., and Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., 9—7, 8—6, in the final of the women's doubles.

Miss Ryan made a clean sweep of the finals by teaming with Edward G. Chandler, Berkeley, Cal., to win the mixed doubles event, 6—1, 6—4. Their opponents were Mrs. J. D. Corbiere, Boston, and Bradshaw Harrison, San Francisco.

The Question.

Will the Sox finish the season in the first division?

Where Asked.

Michigan and Randolph.

The Answers.

A. Doak, 908 Wilson avenue, salesman. — The Sox rank first in fielding and second in batting. A club with these assets ought to go far in any pennant race. If their pitching holds up, I look for the Sox to finish well up in the first division.

Mrs. R. E. McCarty, 455 N. Waller avenue, housewife. — I don't believe they will. I've been disappointed with their showing thus far. They seem to lack the pep and punch necessary for a championship contender. They talk about needing a hard hitting outfielder. Why didn't they buy Schult, the Milwaukee star recently sold to the Browns. There are good pitchers available too, if the club wants to spend the money.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each que tion accepted for the Inquiring Reporte to ask. Send name and address wi your question to "The Inquiring Re porter," Chicago Tribune. For today question L. G. McDonald, 5061 Washing ton boulevard, was awarded $5.

Henry Osterbasch, 6029 S. Fairfi avenue, trainman. — You bet they'll finish in the first division. They are leading the league in fielding and second only to the Yanks' in hitting and are well equipped with reserves. They have had a lot of hard luck, but if th continue to keep their heads up, the be up in the money.

Miss Marguerite Smith, 17 Madis street, Oak Park, st dent. — Why should they? They've punch both afield a at bat and if there a city series this y they'll win in a ro Wait and see. wouldn't be surpris if they give the Yankees a battle f league honors.

Archie Conahan, 5421 W. Ada street, clerk.—I think the Sox will finish no lower than third. Hunnefield has plugged a bad hole at shortstop. The pitching has been fair, but the club needs at least one more good hurler, especially since the injury to Blankenship.

New pleasure in driving your Ford. Smoother stops in traffic.

A result now scientifically achieved through the improved Mobiloil "E"—the same fine oil that you may have used for years. This oil simply adds one more superiority to the many others which have made it the favorite oil among experienced Ford owners.

The ability of today's Mobiloil "E" to keep Ford transmission bands soft and pliable is a real achievement. It decreases wear on the bands. Replacement is needed less often. Thus operating costs are cut considerably.

And the same marked freedom from carbon.

For years, Ford owners have remarked on the unusual freedom from carbon which accompanied the use of Mobiloil "E." It has taken years of study on the part of the Mobiloil engineers and chemists to retain this characteristic and at the same time keep transmission bands soft. The two benefits are not ordinarily combined in one oil.

Mobiloil "E" is scientifically correct in body and character for the Ford engine. It does not reach the combustion chambers in excessive quantities. It burns clean. Hence it leaves but little carbon.

An economical demonstration

It will cost you only a little over a dollar to fill your Ford crankcase with the new Mobiloil "E." Any Mobiloil dealer will be glad to assist you in discovering for yourself the new smoothness of operation that follows the use of this unique lubricating oil in your Ford car.

NEW YORK SPEED BOAT RACES TO BE HELD AUG. 7-8

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—Arrangements for this year's speed boat regatta for the championship of New York state, to be held in Jamaica bay, have been completed, according to an announcement by the Rockaway Park Yacht club, under whose auspices the races will be featured, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 7 and 8.

In anticipation of great crowds flocking to the regatta the chamber of commerce of the Rockaways has made special arrangements through the traffic committee to direct the automobiles coming by way of the Cross Bay boulevard to Rockaway beach and otherwise assist in making the regatta a gala event.

INDIANA OFFERS COLLEGE DEGREE IN GYM COURSE

Bloomington, Ind., July 31.—[Special.]—According to announcement today, the school of education of Indiana university is now offering a new course leading to the degree of bachelor of science in physical education. The course is so arranged that, through proper selection of electives, the student may prepare himself as director of playgrounds or supervisor of community recreation.

A special four years' course has been outlined by the school of education and the physical educational departments for students desiring to major in this particular branch.

TOLLEY STAGES A STRONG COMEBACK IN BRITISH GOLF

LONDON, July 31.—(AP)—Cyril Tolley today shot a 147 at Addington to tie with T. A. Torrence for the golf illustrated gold vase, which is one of the cherished amateur trophies in Great Britain.

His showing has rejoiced British golfers, who had about despaired of him after his elimination in the early rounds of the Muirfield championship, his drubbing by Bobby Jones on July [illegible] and a long string of other failures in recent years.

Tolley got back into the golfing limelight again by a remarkable first round of 70, equalling the amateur record for the course and the best professional mark made by Abe Mitchell. Tolley's showing was all the more interesting as he was erratic off the tees and took penalty strokes.

RIDGEMOOR.

The "Pater-Filius" tournament, which Latin scholars say means "Father and Son" event, featured the day. R. E. Williams shot a 77—5—72, and his son, Roy, went around in 84—10—74, for a net total of 146 to win. There was a quadruple tie for the Burr Oak Trail trophy among J. C. Corcoran, 86—14—72; E. W. Uhleman, 87—17—70; R. Russell, 74—4—70, and Francis X. Busch, 79—8—71. The latter three had their scores raised to par 72, because their handicaps brought them below. Corcoran won the draw.

LAKE SHORE.

No tournament competition was scheduled for Lake Shore, allowing the experts to concentrate on today's interclub match with Northmoor to be played at Lake Shore. Twelve men will represent each club in match play.

SHORE ACRES.

There was no tournament competition, but seventy-five members played the course.

P. A. DETT defeated Arthur Crawford, 3 and 2, in one semi-final match of the Grovenor's trophy tournament, and C. A. Nance defeated F. M. Hatch, 3 and 2, in the other. J. N. Murray, 1 down, was low man in the match play against par competition at North Shore. Eustace Vynne, who was 3 down, was second, and A. R. Camp, 5 down, was third.

SUNSET RIDGE.

George Bay took both first place tournament awards. He won the match play against par and finished ahead of the others in the ball sweepstakes by going around in 86—17—69. Tied for second place in the match play versus par were I. B. Connor and W. Pohlman, each being three down. In the ball sweepstakes L. T. Ellin, 81—10—71, was second. He was followed by W. Pohlman, 85—13—72; R. E. Umberger, 83—10—73; J. P. Barben, 86—13—73; C. D. Wagstaff, 86—13—73; J. L. Wilds, 94—21—73; J. H. Linderman, 102—29—73, and R. M. Golding, 95—21—74.

BEVERLY.

George B. Butt won the Midsummer trophy by defeating M. J. Moriarty, 1 up, in the final match. P. M. Gilbert, 90—24—66, and F. M. Dering, 87—21—66, tied for low net, while Hardy Corey, 83—2—81, and T. J. Vernia, 91—10—81, tied for the blind bogey prize.

HINSDALE.

Goodwin Clark went around the Hinsdale course in 77 and took the low gross trophy and the ball sweepstakes class A event. R. L. Hurst, 85—14—71, and P. B. Shillitto, 86—15—71, tied for low net. The blind bogey number was 85, with N. B. Freer the winner. Results of the ball sweepstakes: Class B, R. L. Hurst, 85; class C, F. G. Allen, 95; and class D, W. C. Castle, 102.

LA GRANGE.

K. Rice took the minimum of twenty-eight putts on eighteen holes and won the prize offered for that event. A medal play twosome low net event was won by M. L. Joslyn, 82—11—71, and A. R. Johnston, 82—7—75, whose total was 146. Almost the entire membership of Edgewood Valley will invade the La Grange club next Thursday for an interclub match.

SIXTEEN qualified and were paired for next Saturday's first round match play for the second annual Sam Rosenthal trophy event at Ravisloe. H. J. Lurie, 96—26—70, and J. M. Levie, 94—24—70, tied for the trophy offered the medalist in the qualifying round. The pairings:

H. J. Lurie vs. L. H. Kohn; Edgar Stein vs. E. Heyman; S. Wolback vs. Sol Stix; A. E. D'Ancona vs. E. A. D'Ancona; J. M. Lederer vs. C. S. Lederer; M. Schamberg vs. Felix Norder; T. Portis vs. L. E. Ascher; and E. K. Eichengreen vs. J. M. Levie.

Incidentally the draw brought two pairs of brothers together in the first round schedule. The D'Ancona golfers are twins. "A. E." qualified with an 85, beaten by "E. A.'s" 79. The Lederers are also brothers.

DIXMOOR.

The weekly meeting of the Pro-Amateur League of Chicago was held at Dixmoor, and John Dawson and S. F. Federowski, amateurs, had the best ball of the day, a 64. Next were Packey Walsh and C. B. O'Neil. They had 67, and inasmuch as Dawson and Federowski were both amateurs the money for first prize went to Walsh. Eddie Murphy, Ridge professional, had the best individual score of the day, a 36—37—73. The next meeting of the league will be held at the Gary Country club next Friday.

CALUMET.

J. E. Rowland, 77—6—71, won the class A ball sweepstakes. Francis Julian, 83—13—70, won the class B, and A. L. Davis, 89—20—69, won in class C. Mr. Rowland also won the match play against par competition, coming in only 1 down. W. L. Eulass, 2 down, was second.

BROOKWOOD.

R. H. Quayle, 81—16—65, won the ball sweepstakes. F. D. Hunt, 92—26—66, was second and Dr. Ralph Crimmer, 96—30—66, was third. Bob Quayle won the class tournament. In the semi-finals for the Founder's cup Sam Rogers defeated F. C. Bear by default and W. H. Brown defeated H. Kurhmeyer, 7 and 6.

MISS HADFIELD WINS WISCONSIN GOLF FINAL, 4-2

Milwaukee, Wis., July 31.—(AP)—Frances Hadfield, Blue Mound Country club ace, became state woman champion for 1926 today at the Tripoli Country club when she defeated her club mates, Jean Cannon in the Wisconsin women's golf association tournament, 4 and 2.

Approaching and putting told the story. Miss Hadfield was outdriven, but crisp irons and a true putting touch overcame the advantage Miss Canno gained with her wood.

Miss Hadfield went out in 43, two over par, to be two up at the turn. The match ended on the sixteenth green when Miss Cannon was over the green on her fifth, while Miss Hadfield was down in a par five.

Robert Nylen Wins County Golf Tourney

Robert E. Nylen is the men's county golf champion, winning the title at Garfield park yesterday from Robert Crowe Jr., 1 up in 37 holes.

Crowe had the best medal score for the regular 36 holes. Nylen had rounds of 73—68—141, while Crowe shot 72—66—138. The extra hole was 3 and 4.

The Biggest Feature in Automobiling is Exclusive With the Franklin Car

PROBABLY no other industry has made so much progress in the same length of time, as the automobile industry. Yet, because it still holds the spirit of youth and impulsiveness, it has under the guise of progress put forth a lusty crop of "revolutionary features".

During this entire period, many of these radical innovations have flared up only to flicker out. But one revolutionary principle has survived as fundamental, is now eloquently endorsed, and is dominating the interest of the world's greatest automotive engineers.

That feature is air-cooling.

Franklin developed and perfected it. It is exclusive with the Franklin Car. And, today, 23 years after the Wright brothers flew for the first time, aviation — the most modern industry — has followed Franklin's lead and adopted air-cooling.

See What the Government Has Done

Today, the air-cooled motor is the recognized standard for U. S. Navy planes. It is rapidly becoming standard for commercial planes as well. Already, six out of the ten government air-mail lines have chosen air-cooled planes.

There isn't a single logical reason why every motor car should not be air-cooled. There isn't a car, of any make, that would not be greatly improved by this feature.

In a new way, airplanes are showing how air-cooling increases power efficiency, augments reliability, widens the margin of safety.

W. B. Stout, the eminent aviation expert, recently prophesied what Franklin long ago prophesied: that all motor cars must come to air-cooling.

Byrd and Cobham Used Air-Cooling

In the air, not alone efficiency and comfort, but life itself is at stake. Aviation simply had to come to air-cooling.

Ask Cobham, fresh from his conquest of burning African deserts. Ask Byrd, with his remarkable North Pole flight still on every one's lips. It was a question not merely of selecting planes that would fly, but of choosing ones that would keep on flying. They know that without air-cooling their deeds would scarcely have been possible.

The Broad Influence of Air-Cooling Is Amazing

Air-cooling is the magic solvent of automobile drawbacks.

It eliminates cooling trouble. That is why Henry Ford said, "We'll use air, instead of water, for cooling planes."

Air-cooling permits flexible construction. It frees a car of all the rigidity and cumbersome bulk of radiator-supporting parts.

That is why in sheer riding comfort the New Franklin is without an equal. Only this air-cooled car lends itself to such structural advantages as full-elliptic springs, four-point body suspension, and an amazingly flexible chassis frame.

And what is the result? This, for one thing: drive in the New Franklin over the roads that drivers of other cars most complain about. In this car of peerless flexibility, you will hardly be conscious of any under-wheel roughness. All will seem delightfully smooth, as the bumps and jars are magically absorbed, and you are eased from physical and mental strain.

Why Franklin Holds So Many Road Records

Along with the uninterrupted power of the air-cooled motor goes scientific light, unsprung weight and nicety of balance. That is why the New Franklin is the finest road car. It rarely has to slow up. And no other car can run all day, throttle wide open, without loss of power.

Air-cooling eliminates nearly 200 parts necessary in the water-cooled car, with their attendant liabilities.

That is one reason why the New Franklin is the most economical car—why it was easily first in its class in the famous Yosemite Economy Run. In tire and fuel savings, it is equally incomparable.

Only Franklin Could Do This

On July 1st, 185 stock Franklin Cars, operating in 185 different parts of the country, impressively revealed the greater reliability that goes with owning an air-cooled car. The dealers announced in advance that they would drive 100 miles, all the way in low gear—and actually did so without overheating their engines to the slightest degree.

Only the Franklin Car could have done this, because only the Franklin is air-cooled.

What Is the Sign When You Pour Water or Anti-Freeze Mixtures?

It means more than the loss of a little time, or a small visible expense. It's your cue to swing over from unreliability and needless bother to the trouble-free reliability that sound fundamentals assure. Substitutes for fundamentals soon reveal their weaknesses, and you pay for them.

Motorists are tiring of these old ways, and are keener on the scent of the new. And the genuine new means air-cooling and the Franklin Car. Is it not significant that 50 per cent more Franklins have been sold to owners of water-cooled cars so far during 1926 than in the same period of 1925? That year, you remember, was the most prosperous in Franklin history.

If you like a car built close to the ground, get a Franklin. If you demand exceptional dignity, grace of contour, harmony of line and charm of color, come and see what the celebrated de Causse has done with the exceptional materials and principles that Franklin engineers have placed at his disposal.

New Price $2790, Fully Equipped

SANGOR PICKED AS ROSENBERG'S FOE ON AUG. 13

La Barba to Battle Salt Lake Boxer.

JOEY SANGOR.

Announcement was made yesterday by Promoter Jim Mullen that Joey Sangor, the aggressive Milwaukee bantamweight, has been selected to meet Charley Phil Rosenberg, world's 118 pound champion, in one of the ten round bouts of the boxing show at the Cubs baseball park on the night of Aug. 13. The weight will be 124 pounds and Rosenberg's title will not be at stake.

Appearance of Rosenberg, however, will give the fans an opportunity to judge for themselves whether Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., has a chance to dethrone the champion when they meet in Chicago on Sept. 10.

Rosenberg will have to fight all the way to escape defeat. Sangor is one of the most aggressive fighters in the bantamweight class. He continually bores in and Rosenberg must fight all the way to protect himself and at the same time land enough counting punches to keep the score even.

LaBarba to Meet Palusa.

Another champion, Fidel LaBarba, holder of the world's flyweight title, also will appear on the card. The 112 pound titleholder will clash with Emil Palusa of Salt Lake City, one of the hardest hitting fighters in the division. LaBarba surprised the fistic world when he won the title from Frankie Genaro and has defended it successfully ever since.

LaBarba is training every day at Mullen's gymnasium. He moves about the ring with the speed and ease of a ringmaster. Paluso is expected to arrive Tuesday. The Salt Lake battler is under the management of Leo P. Flynn.

Myers to Box Dakotan.

Spug Myers of California, who stopped Billy Bortfeld of Milwaukee at the White Sox park in Mullen's last show, will meet Russie LeRoy of Fargo, N. D., in one of the other ten rounders. They will scale 139 pounds.

The other ten spot will bring together Leo Wax, welterweight champion of Australia, and Clyde Hull of Texas. They will weigh 147 pounds.

A scale of prices, $2 to $10, plus tax, will prevail. Tickets will be placed on sale this week.

Boxing fans will have an opportunity to see local talent in action at the three shows to be staged in Chicago this week. With few exceptions, most of the contestants are products of amateur ranks.

Tomorrow night at 74th and Aberdeen streets, Mique Malloy will stage his first professional show. Mique's card is topped by a ten rounder between Charley Glaser and Don Davis, local 120 pounders. Paul Allen and Charley Rychell will mingle in the 8 round semi-windup at 126 pounds. The other bouts will bring together Happy Childs and Erland Peterson, Hy Gottfreed and Frankie Frisco, Marty Fields and George Kerwin, and Joey Weiss and Henry Cullen. The show will open at 8:15 o'clock, and prices of $2 and $3 will prevail.

Eddie Shean, the west side featherweight who stopped Allentown Johnny Leonard in the sixth round at Cleveland last Friday night, returned to Chicago yesterday with a pair of badly injured hands. After the fighter's weapons were examined by Dr. John P. O'Connell, one of the boxing commission physicians, he was taken off the card at the Cermak-Mills stadium on Thursday night. Shea was scheduled to meet Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming cowboy who has been in Chicago for several days training at the Mullen gymnasium. As soon as Promoter Paddy Driscoll learned of Dr. O'Connell's decision, he got in touch with Joe Glick, the Brooklyn boxer who is looked upon as one of the best junior lightweights in the country. A definite answer is expected from the easterner today.

Benny Valgar, the French lightweight, and Charley O'Connell of Cleveland, meet in the semi-windup which will be supported by three other contests. It will be the first professional show to be staged on the west side since the passage of the boxing bill.

Harry Forbes, the former world's bantamweight champion, has made the matches for the show at De Paul university field on Friday night. Archie Bell of New York and Bobby Hughes of New Orleans, bantamweights, top the card. Frankie Welch and Glen Milligan, welterweights, will mix in the semi-windup, while the other two ten round affairs will bring together Billy Showers of St. Paul and Mike Dale of Decatur and Tony Sanders and Ever Hammer, Chicago lightweights.

PAUL POSTPONES M'TIGUE BATTLE UNTIL AUGUST 25

New York, July 31.—(AP)—So that he will have more time for training between fights, Paul Berlenbach has gained a postponement of his match with Mike McTigue from Aug. 18 to Aug. 25 at Ebbets field. This clash between two former holders of the light heavyweight title is one of an elimination series planned by Promoter Fugazy to determine a challenger for the new champion, Jack Delaney. Berlenbach is matched to fight Francois Charles, French champion, at Ebbets field on Aug. 11.

Twins to Coach Sport Teams at Kalamazoo

Kalamazoo, Mich., college athletic squads this fall will be coached by twin brothers. Chester S. Barnard, the present coach, will have Lester S. Barnard associated with him in the development of the teams. The Barnard twins graduated from Springfield, Mo., state teachers' college in 1916. Trainer Hurley didn't say if he got his check for $89,000, the winner's share of the pot. President Sweitzer of the Illinois Jockey club was waiting to sign the big check, he announced after the last race was run.

If we can't find Mr. Hurley tonight to present the check to him, we will put it in the mail and he will get it Monday morning, one of the high officials of the Jockey club announced. "And the check will be as good as Uncle Sam's gold bonds," he added.

British Boxers Sail for America to Seek Fortunes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 31.—Jack Hood, Alf Mancini, and Teddy Baldock, British boxers, sailed for America on the Berengaria this afternoon to seek their fortunes.

THE SPORTING GOODS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

CASEY, CALL THE WAGON.

FOR some reason that remains unknown to the best minds of the business, the prize fight trade has an unerring tendency toward burglary, bribery, and kindred diversions of the criminal classes.

JAMES FARLEY.

A community that has looked upon the cauliflower with grimaces of disgust, not to say nausea, for five, ten, or twenty years, is induced to sample this piquant fungus again. The first few morsels may be fairly tasty, but in time the flavor becomes rank, and eventually, upon taking a forkful of something that tastes like a burgoo of insoles, the community tips over the table and asserts that it again has had enough cauliflower.

Regarded strictly as an athletic pursuit, boxing, or fist fighting, would seem to have no greater native ingredient of larceny or other malpractice than football, hockey, or any other violent muscular pursuit. Why, then, is a prize fighter more likely to rub mustard in his opponent's eye or masticate his opponent's bicep, or slug his opponent while the opponent is down?

The prize fight business is an outlaw business in most states, if not in every state in the Union, including New York. In most of the states where it now is tolerated the prize fight business exists by special enactment superseding the older and more permanent law which holds that prize fighting is a low practice. Repeal the special enactment and prize fighting immediately becomes illegal. The situation is much the same as though you were to pass a special law to permit murder under the supervision of a state commission.

The business has had the benefit of three special enactments in New York. Twice it reverted to its natural habits of thievery in all its branches and the sanction of the law was withdrawn. At this time it operates under the Walker law and once more the conduct of the business has become such a nuisance to the community and such an imposition upon the humble customer that the enabling law might be repealed without causing any great popular distress.

Authorities on such matters have stated that the secret of the success of such clowns as Marceline, Groc, Slivvers, and Charlie Chaplin was their pathetic earnestness, and one is struck by the similarity of the method employed by the New York cauliflower commission and also by the similarity of effect.

The honorable commissioners will state that boxing is an honorable game of clean sportsmen and at the same meeting will do their utmost to find a match for Mickey McTigue, who, in his time, was the dreariest and most timorous champion since Jess Willard. The customers do not wish to see Mickey McTigue fight anybody, but when he is placed on the card at the Garden they will go to see him for the same reason that a man with a discriminating taste in liquor will drink gasoline in Nebraska.

Some years ago the very name of Mickey McTigue pained the boxing commission severely and he was suspended for refusing to defend the championship. But that was before he came under the management of Jimmy Johnston, a manager who chances to be a friend of Mayor James J. Walker and also a friend of James Farley, the chairman of the commission.

There is something touching and peculiar about the eagerness of the commission to perform acts of kindness for Jimmy. For Jimmy was convicted in the United States court of withholding money collected as war tax on the receipts of a fight show and he does not seem to be especially qualified to receive favors from the defenders of an honorable game for clean sportsmen.

Jimmy has flapped a garrulous lip now and again at various ringsides, darkly intimating that he knew something sinister about one or two gents who cover fights for the New York papers. He was displeased by a story that one writer had done about Mickey McTigue, and told that writer that he had a good mind to call on his editor and have him fired.

"You should go ahead," the writer told him. "What do you want from me? My permission?"

There has been considerable loose conversation hereabouts concerning frowsy ethics on the part of boxing writers, the intimation being that some boxing writers are grafters receiving money from Tex Rickard and other promoters and also from the managers of various fighters. There is no question whatever that Tex Rickard has included some writers on the pay roll of graft that he is compelled to maintain as one of the operating costs of a business which requires a special superseding legal sanction. But the matter never has been threshed out in print or in court and the consequence is that the entire personnel of the working press row at the prize fights falls under a certain suspicion.

It might be a generous act of Jimmy, therefore, if he would call on the editors of the New York papers and snitch whatever he may have to snitch. However, one doubts that he has any information worth snitching because the boxing writers on the whole are more careful of their associates than those who associate with Jimmy.

JACK IGNORES WRIT; PLANS TO BATTLE TUNNEY

"It's Move to Shake Me Down," Says Champ.

Denver, Colo., July 31.—(AP)—Unperturbed by injunction proceedings brought by B. E. Clements of the Chicago Coliseum club to halt his match with Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey today declared that the court action would not interfere with his training for the Tunney bout and that he would leave for Saratoga Springs, N. Y., tomorrow.

"The whole thing is an effort to shake me down," the champion said at his training camp at Colorado Springs today, "and I am not going to fall for it. I am not in the least disturbed. My attorney here will handle the entire matter."

Old Contract Cited.

Interest in the Clements injunction proceedings, filed in federal court here yesterday by former United States District Attorney Granby Hillyer, centered about a copy of what purports to be an agreement by Dempsey to the transfer of his contract with Floyd Fitzsimmons to fight Harry Wills, to the Chicago Coliseum club, providing that the club has until Aug. 5, 1926, to pay the champion $300,000 and which was attached to the Clements application for a temporary injunction.

The agreement further provides that an additional $500,000 must be paid the champion ten days prior to his fight with Wills and bears the champion's signature date at Chicago March 3, 1926.

Twenty Days to Answer.

When the application was filed Judge J. Foster Symnes granted Dempsey twenty days in which to file his answer to the complaint.

The complaint further sets forth that the club has been ready at all times to carry out the terms of its agreement with the champion and that it also has sold since April 17, 1926, a total of $150,000 of tickets for the fight.

Rickard Isn't Worried.

New York, July 31.—(AP)—To speed up a decision on the licensing issue, Tex Rickard will have Jack Dempsey file a formal application for a fighting permit with the state athletic commission upon the champion's arrival here from Colorado Springs, probably the latter part of next week.

The commission already has sanctioned Dempsey's match with Gene Tunney in the Yankee stadium Sept. 16, but doubt exists as to the action which may be taken by the license committee, an associated but independent body.

Rickard took cognizance today of the effort of B. C. Clements, Chicago promoter, to obtain an injunction against the Dempsey-Tunney fight in papers filed at Denver, but declared his confidence it would not interrupt plans under way here.

British Polo Stars Invade U.S. for Open

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—When the Homeric leaves for America on Aug. 4 it will bring to the United States the greatest congregation of high class polo players ever assembled. The visiting players are coming here to participate in several tournaments of importance at Rumson, Philadelphia, and Meadowbrook. The players will take part in the open championship in September, this being the outstanding event of the season.

Among the well known British players who will be on board the Homeric will be Maj. Vivian Lockett, one of the stand-bys of British polo and a player of considerable ability. Maj. Lockett is coming to this country as a guest of Laddie Sanford to play on his team, the "Hurricanes." Capt. C. T. I. Roark, who made a profound impression here last fall, will again be a member of Sanford's team. Bobby Strawbridge, the youthful international player who has been playing abroad all summer, will make up the fourth member of the "Hurricanes."

Lord Wodehouse, so long a power in Hurlingham polo, is another noted English player who will make up the party on the Homeric. Lord Wodehouse, who played with Sanford last year and who has acquired to a great extent the American style of play, will be a member of Frederick H. Prince's team, the Princemeres.

Lewis L. Lacey, the great Anglo-American player, will again lead an Argentine team in this country in quest of the United States open championship, which they won in 1922, beating a Meadowbrook four, 14—7.

The Midwick polo team, which created an upset two years ago, when it won the junior and open championships, will return again. This team will play in several tournaments at Rumson and Philadelphia.

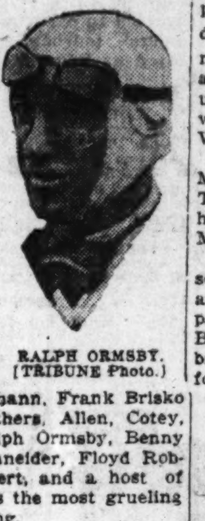
Stars in Auto Races Today at Hawthorne

King Gasoline will reign at Hawthorne race track this afternoon, when 43 auto pilots circle the one mile dirt track in a series of races. Motor racing railbirds predict a new set of records from one to 50 miles in the Red Grange sweepstakes, the event in which will be determined the pilot who will receive the lion's share of $2,500 in cash.



RALPH ORMSBY.

The bringing together in one race of such bitter rivals as Wilbur Shaw, Dutch Baumann, Frank Brisko the Marchese brothers, Allen, Cotey, Gus Schrader, Ralph Ormsby, Benny Schoeff, Louis Schneider, Floyd Roberts, Dutch Koehlert, and a host of other pilots insures the most grueling brand of auto racing.

No Qualifying Heats.

Every entrant will be given an opportunity to win the final of the big race, for there will be no qualifying heats.

Illinois Central trains will run to the track from Randolph street at 1:30 and 1:45. The trains will stop at Van Buren, 12th, and Halsted streets.

List of Drivers.

With the addition of post entries, the following drivers and cars have been nominated to start:

Wilbur Shaw, Clemons; "Dutch" Baumann, Fronty; Ralph Ormsby, Fronty; Jimmy Copple, Clemons; Carl Marchese, Gallivan Special; Les Allen, Chrysler Special; Le Roy Wallace, Wallace Special; D. D. Morris, Boyle Valve Special; Emil Miller Jr., Miller; Louis Schneider, Boyle Valve Special; Jack Brogan, Goldblatt Special; Joe Pecaro, Sill's Special; Al Cotey, Elcar; Gus Schrader, Dodge Special; "Dutch" Koehlert, Koehlert Special; Le Roy Ellsworth, Ellsworth Special; Ervin Kesting, Rajo; Bennie Schoeff, Fronty; Barney Sullivan, Schoeff; H. Barnard, Frontenac; Eddie Kelly, Rajo; Clyde Currey, Wel-Ever; Arthur Snodgrass, Pontiac; William Klaus, Rajo; Roy Westcott, Dodge; F. Challender, Fronty; Roy Ketcham, Dodge; Frank Hefling, Roller Skate Special; Glen Price, Dodge; C. E. Mason Fronty; M. J. Hodge, Fronty; Frank Brisco, Brisco Special; Floyd Roberts, Bakersfield Special; Stag Nowicki, Nowicki Special; Willard Schomaker, Fronty.

Charles A. Coey will referee.

SQUARES, NIESENS CLASH TODAY IN DOUBLE HEADER

Harmons to Play St. Michaels.

A double header between the Niesens and the Logan Squares at the Squares' park, Kedzie and Elston, featured today's semi-pro baseball program. Jimmy Hutton, who succeeded George Halas as manager of the Squares plans to use Lathrop and Miller on the mound, while Niesen will rely on Paddock and Winkler.

The Harmons will be hosts to St. Michaels at the Cermak-Mills stadium. The game should be a battle of left handers with Sullivan pitching for St. Michaels and Steele for the Harmons.

The Detroit Clowns will make their second appearance of the season against the Chicago Blues at the Blues park. Dave Black will pitch for the Blues. Another double header will bring the All Chicagos to Cermak park for a pair of games. Schedules:

150 Kids to Compete in Purple Swim

One hundred and fifty children between the ages of four and fourteen will take part Saturday in the sixteenth annual water carnival of the Northwestern university summer swimming school in the Patten gymnasium pool.

Two hundred of the six hundred pupils of Tom Robinson's summer classes will compete. But aside from a few championship races for the more experienced swimmers, events for the youngsters will make up the program. There will be fifty twenty-yard free style races for them, with the swimmers classified according to age and size. An exhibition of Coach Robinson's new game, "Cito," also is billed.

Splash Party Carded.

One of the features of the afternoon's entertainment will be a "splash party," sometimes termed a "Royal Gorge." About 150 children jump in and surround the edges of the pool, hanging on with their hands. Then they demonstrate the back and front kick of the crawl stroke. The tremendous force exerted by the three hundred legs kicking simultaneously throws much of the water to the center, where it rises one foot higher than the surrounding sides.

Immediately after the events, which mark the closing of the school, Coach Robinson will pack his things preparatory to leaving the following Monday for a three months' automobile tour of the northern states in the interests of swimming and allied sports.

Will Visit 14 States.

Tom's itinerary will carry him through fourteen states and two Canadian provinces. He will start in Wisconsin and then go to Minnesota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington, British Columbia, Alberta, back through Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, and Illinois.

Every place along the road where a pool is available the Kiwanis clubs, Rotary clubs, Northwestern university alumni and other organizations have made arrangements for the purple leader to give his swimming and life saving exhibitions.

ALEXIS SIGNS COACH.

Galesburg, Ill., July 31.—[Special.]—John Tuitte, former Lombard athlete, who has been coaching in Pikesville, Ky., has been engaged to coach Alexis High school next year. He succeeds Alvin Clark, who has resigned to enter a medical school in Chicago.

ILLINOIS CLOSES ANNUAL SUMMER COACHING COURSE

Instructors Scatter for Vacations.

Urbana, Ill., July 31.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois summer course for athletic coaches, which closed this week, lived up to tradition by having the largest registration in the middle west and probably in the country for schools of this type.

More than two hundred students representing 23 different states and one foreign country attended the Illinois course. Although this registration was not as large as in former years, this was not surprising in view of the numerous summer courses which have sprung up all over the United States.

When the Illinois course was established in 1914 it was a pioneer. Now, numerous universities conduct these schools and many coaches operate them as profitable side lines. The Illinois course, however, is not a profit making enterprise for individuals, but instead a regular part of the summer curriculum for which students receive credit if desired. It was a matter of much gratification to Carl Lundgren, director, and his staff of instructors that the course had such a large and representative attendance.

Coaches Start Vacations.

With the conclusion of the summer course the athletic camp disbanded and the Illinois coaches scattered for their vacations. However, Craig Ruby, basketball coach, will teach for two weeks at Little Rock, Ark. Gilmour Dobie left for his home in Ithaca, N. Y.

Milt Olander, Illinois assistant varsity football coach, who understudied for Coach Zuppke in teaching the Illinois system of football, was another successful instructor. Coaches Gill and Lundgren handled their specialties, track and baseball.

Ward Lambert of Purdue university, who collaborated with Ruby in basketball, left for Rochester, Ind., to conduct a two weeks' course.

Sterry Brown, who was in charge of swimming, closed his connection with Illinois this week. Brown has accepted an appointment as swimming coach and instructor at Michigan State college, Lansing, Mich. Brown was trained by the famous George Corsan of Canada and served as instructor at Fortress Monroe, Va., during the world war. He was swimming coach at the University of Michigan for one season.

The regular university summer session does not close for two weeks, when the scholastic fates of several candidates for the football team who are making up work will be known. However, Coach Zuppke has little to fear this fall in the way of scholastic ineligibility, as only a few men are in any danger.

Illini Worry Over Huff.

The one great concern in the Illinois camp has been the condition of George Huff, director of physical welfare, who was operated on in London July 1 for appendicitis and other complications.

It is regarded as certain that Director Huff will not try to complete his European tour which was interrupted by his illness, but will return to the United States as soon as he is able to travel. It is hardly believed that he will be able to leave his bed before another week and it may be that he will not attempt to take on the reigns of administration next fall. During his absence Carl Lundgren has been director.

With the coming of August the athletic association office is busy making ready for the mailing out of football application blanks and information leaflets. This material will be dispatched about the middle of August. A lively interest in requests for information has been manifested recently.

FIRM IN PUBLIC FAVOR NOW MADE BETTER THAN EVER - - -

"...that the American family may have, at a moderate investment, a car which gratifies their finer tastes as well as satisfies their every need"

Dual Air Cleaning In this new Oldsmobile, a master air cleaner eliminates the injurious particles from two-thirds of the air before it enters the carburetor directly—while the second cleaner, in connection with crankcase ventilation, cleans the balance of the air.

Crankcase Ventilation In all internal combustion engines water is formed by condensation. Cold engines do not burn all of the fuel on starting. This water and liquid fuel pass into the crankcase and form crankcase dilution.

Excessive dilution is eliminated by crankcase ventilation. It draws off water vapor and unburned fuel that may have passed into the crankcase. Crankcase ventilation improves performance and gives longer life to the engine and oil.

Oil Filter An oil filter has been added to this Oldsmobile, prolonging still more the life of the engine and the useful life of the oil. Should the filter become clogged with sediment, the lubricating system functions in the common manner. All principle parts are pressure lubricated.

Harmonic Balancer The Harmonic Balancer, developed by General Motors engineers, counteracts vibration and gives Oldsmobile a smoothness, at both low and high speeds, you will quickly recognize when you take the wheel.

Twin-Beam Light Control Head lamps have double-filament bulbs, one filament for "bright action" and one for "dim action". On "dim action" the light is bright but thrown at a downward angle that protects the oncoming driver and gives ample vision to the Oldsmobile driver.

Other Features Larger L-Head Engine, Two-Way Cooling, Three-Way Pressure Lubrication, Full Automatic Spark Control, Thermostatic Charging Control, Tapered Dome-Shaped Combustion Chambers, High Velocity Hot-Section Manifold, Special Design Light Cast-Iron Pistons, Honed Cylinders, Silent Chain Drive, Balloon Tires, Exclusive Chromium Plating, Duco Finish; new beauty of line and appointments in Fisher Bodies; many other features of demonstrated worth, at no increase in standard prices and on the G. M. A. C. Time Payment Plan, if desired.

OVER the span of months and miles, in the hands of thousands of owners, Oldsmobile power and performance, dash and endurance, comfort and driving ease, demonstrated Oldsmobile's unchallengable right to the now familiar praise . . . "The car you can recommend to your best friend—it asks no favors, fears no road!"

But even that could not satisfy a policy pledged to progress.

THE NEW LANDAU
Body by Fisher
$1190
F.O.B. LANSING

Today Oldsmobile embodies new features of known value . . . improvements of demonstrated worth.

Providing even greater power, even longer life, even smoother performance; offering added driving ease and security; added qualities of luxury and comfort . . .

. . . the car so firm in public favor is now made better than ever.

Harry Hartz, Race Wizard, Goes Out After 1926 Crown

Steady Driving Piles Up 2,194 Points on the Big Tracks.

THE veteran automobile race driver, Harry Hartz, has all but annexed the racing championship of 1926, having piled up a total of 2,194 points in the present season, the contest board of the American Automobile association, which regulates racing on the major tracks of the nation, announced yesterday.

Roaring along behind Hartz in the race for the greatest number of points, and the year's championship, are 23 other drivers, his closest competitor and the only one who has a chance to win being Peter De Paolo with 1,475 points. To overtake Hartz, De Paolo must perform amazingly for the remainder of the season.

The standings of the drivers were revised at Atlantic City on July 17 when more points were piled up by those who finished. The standings of the first ten now are as follows:

Hartz, 2,194; De Paolo, 1,475; Bennett Hill, 867; Frank Lockhart, 825; Norman Batten, 615; Fred Comer, 594; Earl Devore, 525; Dave Lewis, 500; Earl Cooper, 415, and Frank Elliott, 382.

Hartz is perhaps the most consistent winner automobile racing history has ever known. And behind his prowess, an official of the contest board revealed, there lies one of those "inside" tales of the track which seldom become known to the general public.

His first year as a driver was 1922. In the race for the championship he finished third. The following year he ranked fourth and in 1924 he dropped to sixth, but was back in third place again in 1925. And this year, unless De Paolo hoists himself by his own bootstraps, Hartz is going to rank first. No racing driver has ever equaled that record.

And queerly, he hasn't done it by roaring around the tracks of the country at highest speed, but by taking it easy.

It all harks back to the years of the mighty and gargantuan engines, beside which the present motors are mere miniatures. Then Hartz was only a racing mechanic. He rode with Eddie Hearne, and Eddie taught him. Hearne knew engines and automobiles; knew them so well that he could all but tell how many more miles a machine was good for before it blew a tire or went dead.

Hearne nursed his cars along. He seldom ran first, but he always finished and, far more than the average, ran in the money. It was better, Hearne contended, to finish, to get a small "cut" of the money, than to flash like a meteor half way through the race and then come to inglorious rest in a pit along the track.

So he ran almost leisurely while the others were running fast and traveled fast when the others were slowing down—he ran his race in the miles closest to the checkered flag at the end of the mill. He petted and babied his car through the first long miles, and it paid him in profitable coin at the last.

When Hartz ceased to be a mechanic and was mounted in his own car he lived by what Hearne had taught him. So when the 183 cubic inch motors came down to 122 inches, developing a new fragility, if there is anything in racing engines that can be called fragile, Hartz was in his element.

Now this year the engine size again has been reduced, this time to 91½ cubic inches. Thus it is a year made for Hartz. But it is not made for De Paolo, for Pete is of that school which wants out in front.

As a result De Paolo's task of overhauling Hartz is weighted with a two-fold difficulty—Hartz's long lead and his ability to nurse his "boat" safely into port.

WORK BENCH WISDOM

BY F. E. EDWARDS.

[Chief Engineer, Automobile Testing Laboratory.]

CARBURETION SECRETS.

WHEN we consider what the modern carburetor is called upon to do, and also the diversified kinds of fuel that it has to do with, it is probably not to be wondered at that out of 100 cases in the laboratory, 48 had recommendations of carburetor adjustment.

We arrive at this recommendation only after everything else about the motor has been found O. K. and where the amount of fuel used to develop horsepower hours is excessive. The horsepower is measured and the fuel is weighed. We have arbitrarily set eight-tenths of a pound of gasoline per horsepower hour as good, and this power being measured at the rear axle would probably equal six-tenths at the motor. This figure varies from .48 on one car to 2 pounds on some others. This economical figure of .48 pound so astonished us that we made the test again and again, with the same results.

In the early days of automobiling, gasoline was a very much different fuel from what it is today. It was much lighter, and much more volatile, in fact so volatile that the writer has seen the fumes ignited at a distance of six feet from the fuel. This early gasoline was tested with a hydrometer and tested about 68 Baumé. Today's gasoline is not so tested, but is tested and rated by its initial and maximum boiling points, the fuel starting to boil as low as 100 degrees F., and it should all be boiled away at approximately 450 degrees F. We have distilled some, however, that had 5 per cent left at 500 degrees F., and which did not all boil over until a temperature of 585 was reached. This test rather convinced us that reports of dealers mixing gasoline and kerosene together are true.

We have had one case where the difference in fuel alone made a difference of over 33 1-3 per cent in the power of a motor. This motor developed 34 horsepower on our fuel, which is always the same, so that we can use it as a standard. By switching the carburetor onto the fuel in the car's own tank it developed 45 horsepower. This performance we repeated three times with identical results. A sample of fuel was then taken from the car's tank and analyzed, showing a trace of tetra-ethyl of lead and some benzol. With the foregoing it is seen what the carburetor manufacturer is up against when he has to provide an instrument that will not only carburete all kinds of fuel, but will also furnish the correct mixture at all speeds.

Most of the troubles we find are due to improper adjustment, where the carburetor has been blamed for most likely ignition troubles, and as so often happens, the adjustment being the easiest thing to reach, it is tampered with. With fuel strainers and air cleaners on a car, if a man used the same fuel all the time his carburetor would need but little attention.

It will be noticed that all our economy readings are in pounds of fuel for a horse power hour. We use this instead of miles per gallon, because it is the only way to determine the fuel economy of a motor. If the fuel factor is low, the miles per gallon will be high, although we have had cases where the fuel factor was high, and the miles per gallon was high also, which indicated that the carburetor setting at the driving speed only was good. In this particular case, the average miles per gallon was low because the driving was not done all at one speed, and with ideal road and wind resistances. With fuel strainers and air cleaners on the modern motor, and if the same fuel is used all the time, it is very unwise to tamper with the fuel adjustment.

More Parks.

Three auto parks are to be established in Berlin, where for a nominal fee motorists will be provided the services of police watchmen to guard against thieves. There are fewer than 200,000 motor vehicles in the German capital, a city of 4,100,000 population.

No Cuban Tax.

Tourists' cars are now tax free in Cuba for ninety days, according to an announcement made by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club.

This new ruling is a modification of the national transportation tax law.

One Plate.

Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, and North Carolina require only one number plate, which must be displayed on the rear of the car. Two number plates are required in all other states and the District of Columbia.

Emmerson Calls for Reports on Motor Accidents

POINTING out that statistical data is essential to any intelligent campaign for the reduction of automobile accidents, Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson yesterday declared himself for the adoption in Illinois of some system requiring reports of all motor vehicle accidents resulting in injury or death.

"Some of the states have adopted laws for the reporting of accidents by the persons involved in them and by public officials," he said, "and we need some such law in Illinois.

"We should be able to know what specific faults in driving result in the greatest number of accidents and at what points accidents occur. This would enable us to direct attention and, if necessary, legislation toward the elimination of dangerous practices. It would also call attention to highway intersections and grade crossings where dangerous conditions result in frequent accidents.

"A study of this subject is now being made in my department with a view to possible legislation. I believe that some system of this kind is absolutely essential before we can make much headway preventing accidents on the highways of the state."

One of the states which has an accident reporting system is New York. Police authorities and persons involved in accidents are required to make reports to the state giving all of the important details of accidents.

These include information relative to the driver or drivers of the cars involved in the accident, age, sex, driving experience, etc.

The questionnaire also requires information as to whether the accident involved pedestrians, an automobile, a railroad train, a street car, horse-drawn vehicle or other vehicles, or colliding with a fixed object. It asks for the number of persons killed or injured, and whether or not they were passengers or pedestrians.

The cause of the accident is gone into fully by the questionnaire with questions as to what the driver was doing; the condition of the driver, whether he had a physical defect or was intoxicated; the condition of the vehicle, including brakes, steering mechanism, headlights, no chains on a slippery road, etc.; what the pedestrian, if one was involved, was doing; the condition of the pedestrian, whether intoxicated, having a physical defect, confused by traffic, or whether his view was obstructed; the condition of the roadway and the condition of the weather; condition of light and the situation at the railroad crossing if one was involved, showing whether gates were down, crossing was guarded or unguarded, and whether or not the proper signals were given.

It also includes questions relative to the names and addresses of witnesses and of persons arrested, if any.

MANY CAMPS.

Kansas has 55 motor tourist camps in and around cities and towns approved by the board of health. These camps have water supply and sanitary arrangements.

27,000,000 in 1930.

Prof. C. E. Griffin of the business administration school of the University of Michigan estimates that 27,000,000 automobiles will be in use in the United States by 1930. Prof. Griffin is a recognized authority on the automobile industry.

"Although any ventured estimate cannot be absolutely accurate," he said, "it is certainly possible to say that should this be the saturation point the automobile industry would not stop. The present output of 4,000,000 cars each year would be necessary at this point merely to replace wornout cars.

TELLTALE KNOCKS.

An engine that does not knock on hills when filled with carbon is timed too late. Such an engine will often climb hills without overheating, but it will be slow on the level and will overheat when forced much above 30 miles an hour.

PONTIAC SIX

CHIEF OF THE SIXES

The Pontiac Six is scoring the most spectacular first year success ever recorded in automotive history—because it meets the driving conditions of today like no other car in the world at its price.

Without an excess ounce of bulk—without an unnecessary inch in length, it is ideally suited to the congested highways of today. Having the largest engine of any six costing less than $1,000, it flashes swiftly through congested traffic; and so sturdily is it constructed that it can be held at top speed for as many continuous hours as the driver likes.

Yet despite its highly desirable external compactness, the Pontiac Six is a supremely comfortable car. Step into the Pontiac Six Sedan. Note its roominess. Mark well the wide, inviting seats and ample leg room.

Then remember that with all its luxurious provisions for comfort, the Pontiac Six turns in a 38 foot circle—and that it can be quickly and easily parked in places too small for other cars of equal passenger capacity.

Oakland Six, Companion to Pontiac Six—$1025 to $1295. All prices at factory. Easy to pay on the liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

Motor Fans Place Approval Stamp on New Models

Buy Better Cars as Record Season Gets Under Way.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., July 31.—(Special.)—At this particular time—the closing of one season, and the opening of another—interest in the automobile industry is centered in new cars which have been on exhibition, and the announcements from other manufacturers that 1927 models are just about ready to be shown to a critical public.

The reception accorded new cars to date indicates an active period ahead for most of the leading manufacturers. Motorists are buying better grade cars, and more of them, and are getting more for their money than ever before. Competition in the low, medium and high priced automobiles, is showing no signs of easing up, and is working to the financial advantage of every buyer of a vehicle. The interest that the American public feels in small cars which promises to reduce many of the present problems of motoring, has been considerably greater than anticipated. This is evident by the fact that the first of the European type of American light cars, introduced a month ago, has been inspected by many millions of people. Production had shown an almost daily increase, and is now unable to keep abreast with demand.

The present week saw the introduction of the new styles in Studebakers, Essex, Cadillac, and Buick. The Studebaker came out with three new sedans, the Essex with an all-steel coach, and the Cadillac displayed what the company considers the most extensive collection of body models presented by one organization during the entire automobile history.

Following the partial closing down of a majority of the plants, an annual event in the industry caused by inventories, vacations and plant improvements, the factories are getting back to normal production, and in many cases capacity output. This is evident by the substantial increase in skilled labor, which is noted in many plants. The Ford company is beginning to reap the results of its recent price cut. Sales have increased in many sections of the country and a number of departments in the Detroit plants have increased schedules and are now running five days per week instead of four. Shipments are said to be running in excess of 6,000 cars each day, an increase of approximately 1,000 cars over a month ago.

What announcement, if any, Ford has to spring on the public is still his own secret. Rumors are many from which to choose. Smoke continues to belch from all the Ford Highland Park and River Rouge stacks, nearly one hundred thousand men are passing in and out daily and not one of them has yet announced the nonreceipt of his weekly pay envelope—a sure indication that business is being carried on—even if not in as great volume as it was several months ago.

The fact that practically every concern that has so far announced new models has made the introduction without price changes would seem to indicate that the policy of manufacturers is to produce better rather than cheaper cars. Body improvements are being stressed.

The larger tire companies are working on experiments which may soon lead to the production on a large scale of balloon tires for drop center rims. Changes in the industry as a result of the new type rims are expected to be almost as widespread as those which followed the introduction of balloon tires. General adoption of drop center rims by British automobile manufacturers has hastened the production of this type of tires in American plants. Nearly all American motor companies are understood to be considering adoption of the drop center rim.

Speed Up Traffic.

The board of estimates of New York City has started a series of public hearings on the proposals that the city acquire street surface railways which are found to be obstructions to traffic. If an equitable arrangement can be made, the lines will be removed and bus lines substituted.

The Inquiring Reporter

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to the Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. D. Evans, 2453 N. Central Park avenue, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

What are your views on the speed trap disclosure?

Where Asked.

Dearborn and Ohio streets.

The Answers.

C. Wayland Brooks, 7423 Rogers avenue, commander marine post, American Legion — I think the disclosures and crusade against operators of speed traps constitute an excellent piece of work on the part of the investigators and believe that it will rid the county of a bunch of the worst leaches on record. The fact that many of them operate under the guise of authority makes the situation all the worse. They have been a barrier too long on the splendid highways built for the use of motorists.

Willis Herman, Jackson and Wabash, clothier—The speed trap crusade now so well under way is one of the most needed reforms of today. The disclosures of practices on country roads about Chicago so far indicate that the speed trap evil has grown out of all proportions and that drastic steps must be taken. Most of the victims are law abiding citizens. I have been a victim and I know how the trappers work.

H. C. Randell, 9 West Pearson street, salesman—The disclosures indicate just what everybody has believed—that many officials are using the vehicle law for their own financial gain. It is a shame that the roads built by motorists and designed for motor use can be made toll gates for a few highwaymen and that they can get away with it for years at a stretch.

Harry Lasius, 2237 Fletcher street, dispatcher—I am glad all of the dirt on the roads is coming out and is being swept away. I have paid several fines and have been held up without cause several times in Broadview and other neighboring towns. We need this protection on the roads.

Tyrrell A. Richardson, 1118 North State street, assistant state's attorney—It is a fitting retribution to visit on those who have violated their oath of office. Law enforcement officers who themselves violate the law should be subjected to more drastic action than law abiding citizens who have fallen into their net.

Where They're Made.

That Michigan leads the world in the manufacture of automobiles is clearly shown by official figures recently made public by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The figures show that the world's output of motor cars in 1925 totaled 4,800,321. Production in Michigan for that period was 3,131,524.

Michigan has produced approximately 24,000,000 vehicles since the industry began to flourish there. This figure is interesting, as the total registration of motor cars in the world at the beginning of 1926 was 24,564,574. In other words, Michigan made automobiles are just about equal to the number of motor cars in existence today, production elsewhere being only sufficient to cover annual scrapping of vehicles.

Break Park Records.

The fast growing love of motorists for the great outdoors is indicated in a remarkable gain in the number of visitors in the California National parks this season. All previous records have been broken.

In the Sequoia park the increase in tourists over the same period in 1925 is 144 per cent. There were 52,487 visitors so far this year.

General Grant park has registered 28,939 visitors, an increase of 45 per cent over last year.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

THE Studebaker corporation has announced its new line of cars, consisting of three custom made sedans. These cars are in addition to the present line of Studebaker models and include a standard six custom sedan, a big six custom brougham, and a big six custom sedan called the President. No changes other than refinements have been made in the motors.

A new all steel body of unusual design is the chief feature of the new Essex coach announced and placed on display yesterday by the Hudson Company of Illinois. The new car is one result of the new $10,000,000 plant recently completed by Hudson for the manufacture of the steel bodies. No mechanical changes are noted in the new model.

Interest on the Chicago row last week centered in the announcement of the new line of Buick models and their early display by the big Chicago organization. There are sixteen body styles included in the 1927 offering, mounted on chassis of 114½, 120, and 128 inch wheel bases. Four are sport type open cars and 12 closed models. A score of interesting refinements and improvements are noted in the new Buick engine, which is claimed to be without vibration at any speed. The roadster and coupe models are new designs with high decks. General Manager Yonkers of the Chicago branch announced that while his quota of cars for the year just past was 17,000 in the Chicago territory, this year his quota has been increased to 21,000.

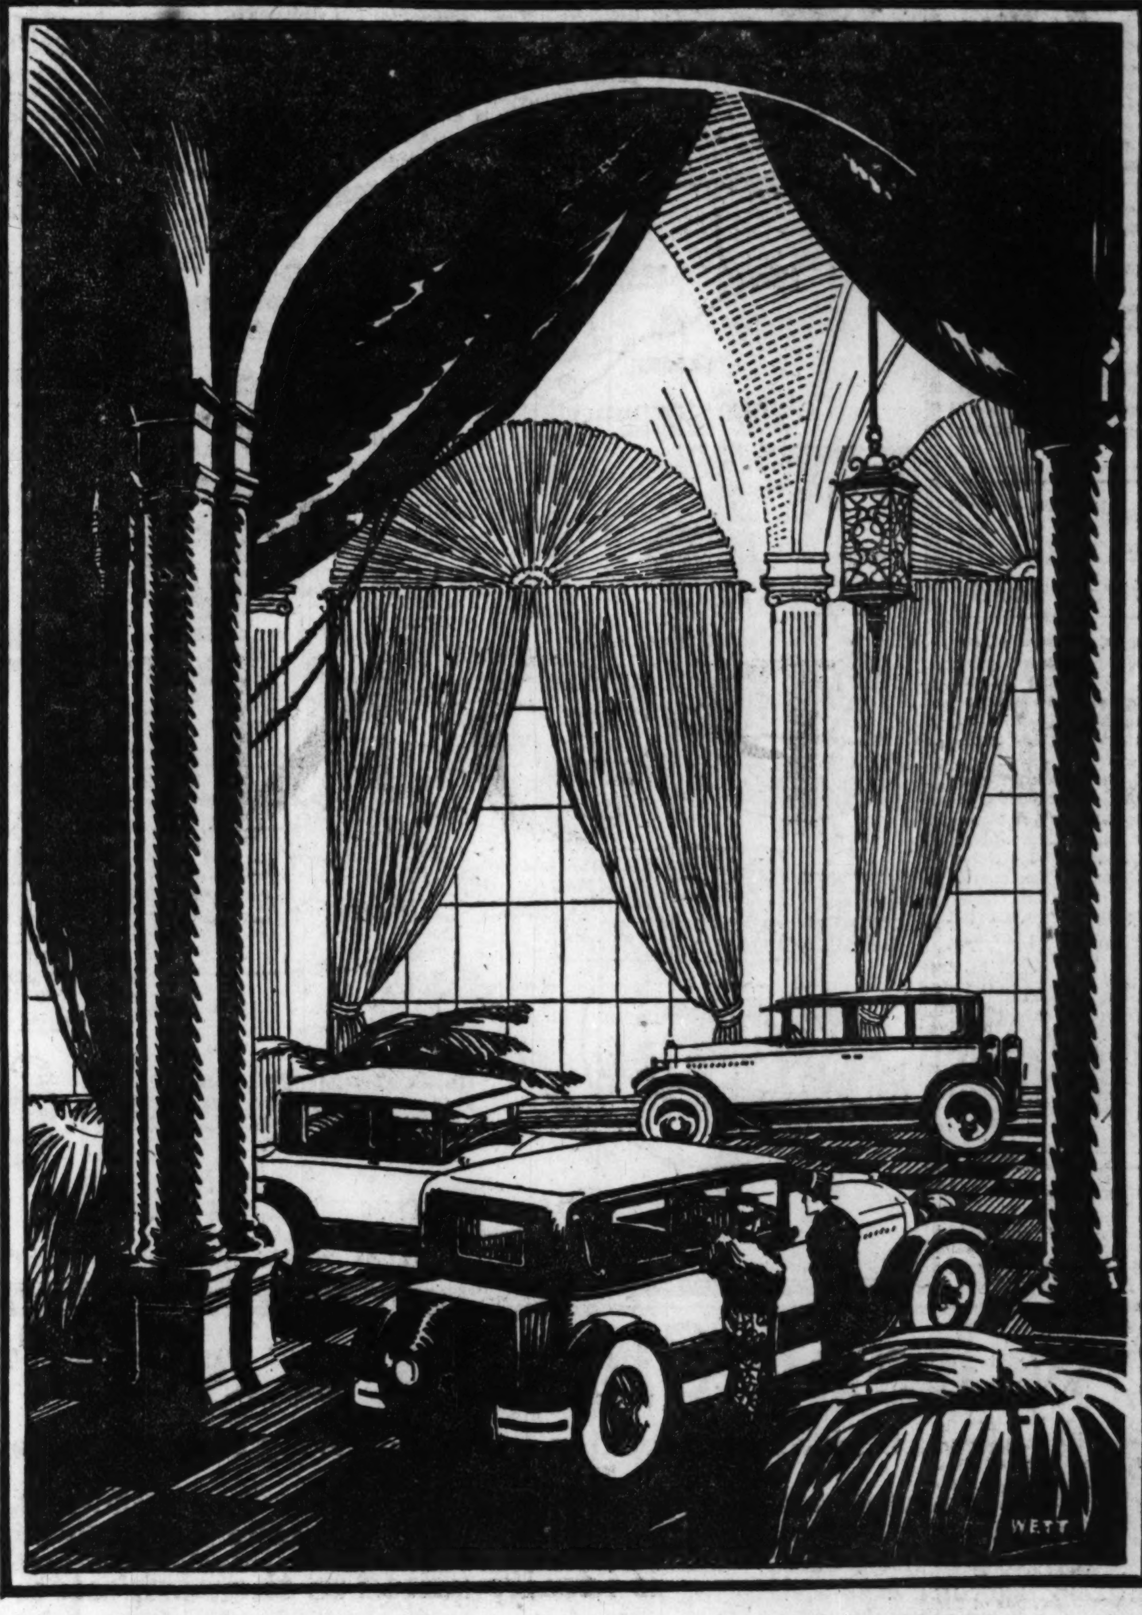
With sales records for the last twelve months showing an increase of more than 37 per cent over the preceding year, Cadillac made its anniversary of the introduction of its current model yesterday by announcing numerous new body improvements for its product. Further refinements in both chassis and coach work are included in the line and five new body styles have been added to meet individual tastes. The complete Cadillac offering now includes fifty body types and styles, 500 color combinations, and an extensive choice in upholsteries.

Among the sensational business increases disclosed by fiscal year audits the Auburn company yesterday presented a record in the jump of 200 per cent in production and sales for the 1926 period, as compared to 1925. This increase compares to 17 per cent, the average increase shown by the entire automobile industry during the same period.

Two new seven passenger models have been announced by the Stutz Motor Car company. They are a sedan and a sedan-limousine, both powered by the Stutz vertical eight engine and mounted on the new safety chassis. The models are on 145 inch wheelbase, which accentuated their lowness, and they are equipped by the new safety glass developed by the Indianapolis factory.

The Flint Motor company plant was sold to General Motors recently for $3,762,900. The plant will be used for a new unit of the Fisher Body company in producing bodies for Buick, which is completing expansions which will increase Buick production to 1,200 cars a day. Flint will preserve its identity and continue to manufacture Flint six models at the Durant factory in Elizabeth, N. J.

FISHER BODIES
GENERAL MOTORS



LOOK AT THE NEW CARS AND SEE—BODY BY FISHER

The new car announcements of General Motors have swept Fisher into the greatest eminence in motor car history.

Everywhere you see the emblem—Body by Fisher. In all price classes, it is the inescapable badge of quality. The leaders, such as Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Pontiac, all display as one of their proudest assets the symbol—Body by Fisher.

It is their assurance of public satisfaction—in safety, in charm of line, in beauty of color and appointment, in comfort and convenience.

Fisher—the greatest body builder in the world—stands head and shoulders above all others in quality. The new General Motors cars all help to prove Fisher leadership.

Opening of New Pavement Makes Good Touring News

Torrence Avenue and 127th Street Enter Picture.

ROAD conditions in the vicinity of Chicago as reported by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club are as follows: Torrence avenue is finished and open from the south limits of Chicago to the Lincoln highway. From 130th street to the city limits the city is surfacing the road, which will be open in a few days.

Graceland avenue in Des Plaines is finished and open for travel from the Des Plaines river road to the Rand road.

Paving of 127th street has been finished so that the entire 8 miles from Western avenue to Palos Park is thrown open today.

The mile of new road connecting Willow Springs with 95th street was opened July 24.

The new concrete road from Ill.-21 at Lake Villa west to Fox Lake is entirely completed; distance 6.6 miles. There is a fair dirt detour of less than .2 mile east of Fox Lake, which will be eliminated Aug. 2.

Ill.-4—Temporary detour on oiled earth road just north of Springfield on account of bridge construction work at Sangamon river; detour in Virden. Detour in Madison over paved roads.

"Indiana state road No. 1 is virtually closed between Columbia and Franklin," says a bulletin issued by the state highway department. "Owing to paving the detour around this construction is poor and narrow in many places. The paving projects are between Columbus and Taylorsville and from 2 miles north of Franklin. Northbound traffic from Columbus is detouring at the corner of Jefferson and Third streets in Columbus and southbound traffic at 1 mile west of Taylorsville."

Ind.-2—On account of paving, detour is marked at .5 mile east of Schererville via Griffith and Ridge road from Hammond and points west and north. Eastbound traffic detour at .5 mile west of Schererville and return to the Lincoln highway .5 mile east of Schererville. Road narrow but surface good.

Ind.-46—Closed between Kimmel and Merriam on account of construction. Detour north on Ind.-11 (gravel road) to Albion, then over 9 foot pavement joining Ind.-46 just west of Kimmel.

Motorists traveling in Wisconsin are advised that motor vehicle laws are strictly enforced at Oshkosh. Road conditions in the Badger state are as follows:

Wis.-18—Gravel detour between Stevens Point and Hunters Corners. This detour will be eliminated Aug. 4 and the highway will be open for travel. There is also a good dirt detour maintained from Stevens Point to Milladore.

Wis.-50—Road closed to travel from New Munster east; good detour provided.

Mich.-11—State line to Benzonia, pavement; Benzonia to Mackinaw City, pavement and good gravel.

Mich.-12.—Sault Ste. Marie to St. Ignace, good gravel and pavement; St. Ignace to Bryan, good gravel and pavement; Bryan-Manistique-Escanaba-Powers, pavement; fresh tar between Bryan and Rapid River; Powers to Menominee-Dickinson county line, gravel with 3 miles under construction; no detours but project is passable. Then to Ironwood, good gravel and some pavement.

Mich.-15—Menominee-Powers-Escanaba-Rapid River, pavement; Rapid River to Trenary, good gravel; Trenary to Carlshend, good passable earth road; Carlshend to Cooper Harbor, good gravel, stamp sand and pavement; detour via Mich.-35 between Carlshend and Negaunee.

Safety Law.

Under an act of the last general assembly the Illinois state highway department has erected signs at all crossroads along state highways requiring motorists to bring their cars to a full stop before crossing or driving onto the state road.

These signs are distinctive in character and have a high visibility, being painted in black and yellow. Efforts are being made by state authorities to secure general observance of the law.

More Busses

Motor busses are now providing public transport service over 5,000 miles of route in territories which have no rail communication, according to a survey of eight states by the U. S. bureau of public roads. In Kentucky there are 15 counties which have no rail communication that are served by 19 bus routes operating 31 vehicles.

CARS IN AFRICA.

Africa has doubled its use of motor vehicles in the past four years, the registration was 65,757 in 1922, and totaled 147,689 by the end of 1925.

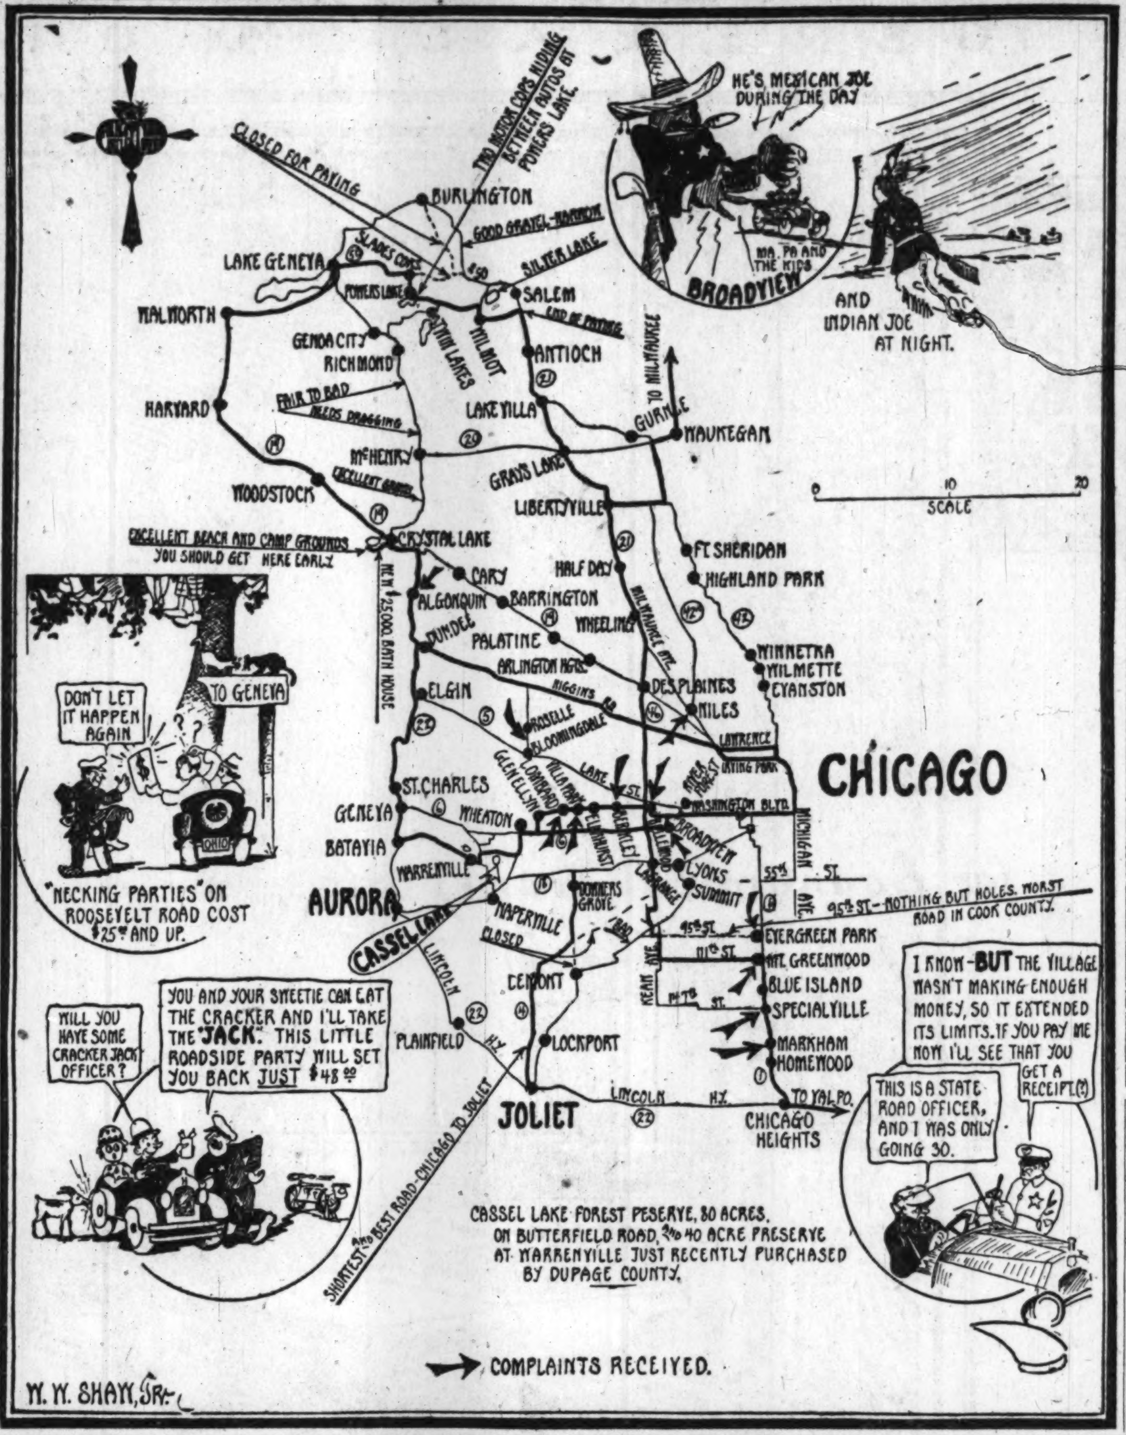
TRIBUNE TOURS

HOME TRAILS—AND TRIALS—FOR MOTORISTS.

THE first twenty miles are always the hardest for the Chicago motor fan who hankers for his old time week-end outing on the open road. Even so, this suggested Sunday circle is worth the effort of piloting a car through the congestion of Chicago gateway highways in order to enjoy the beauties of the Fox river valley and palatial estates and lake country northwest of Chicago.

A study of the map will be sufficient for the average car driver. It shows the last minute pavement progress around home and suggests a circle tour to Lake Geneva and return that should be made every year if the trail fan wants to keep up with his pleasure mileage. Speed traps are indicated, but the recent highway justice campaign has reduced the chances of trouble with legalized highway bandits to a minimum.



State Licenses for Ghost Cars Puzzle Downstate Board

THE Franklin county board of review started something new yesterday when Chairman Lloyd Pickard announced that the automobile dealers "blue book" would be used in relisting automobiles for taxation.

The board found, in checking the assessment lists with the records of licenses issued from Secretary of State L. L. Emmerson's office, that about 5,000 of the county's automobiles were not given to the assessor. The board will attempt to find out what these five thousand people did with state licenses for which, according to the assessor's records, they had no car.

The board also found that a "standard price" of less than a hundred dollars prevails in automobile valuations as shown on the tax records. A few cars in the county were turned in at $300 and better, but for the greater part the valuations were below $200 and most of them were valued around $50.

NOISES IN CHASSIS.

Most continuous noises in the car originate in the chassis, not the body. The reason is that, since the body is made of wood, the friction between joints cannot be constant, owing to the natural wearing of the wood. Metal is different.

Highway Builders Call for Plans of Modern Road

DUPAGE county, with the financial assistance of the Metropolitan Super-Highway association, has launched a novel competition for the collection of modern highway designs.

Commissioners of the county recently determined to construct three superhighways. In order to assure the construction of the best possible roads, they announced a contest yesterday for plans showing the most utilitarian super-highway, one that is practical from an engineering viewpoint and will in a manner accentuate the natural beauty of the area through which it passes.

The first prize will be $1,000 in cash, the second prize will be $300, and the third prize will be $200. Anyone interested in the super-highway idea is eligible for this competition. The judges of this competition are: D. H. Burnham, president Chicago Regional Planning association; Hugo E. Young, engineer Chicago Plan commission; R. F. Kelker, consulting engineer; George A. Quinlan, superintendent of highways of Cook county; Claud Hanson, superintendent of highways of Kane county; E. L. Gates, superintendent of highways of DuPage county, and G. N. Lamb, state district engineer.

All plans must be submitted and in the hands of the Metropolitan Super-Highway association, Burnham building, Chicago, on or before noon Nov. 1, 1926.

The right of way on which the road is to be built is 200 feet in width.

Prizes will be awarded for the most original, practical, and economical plan of a road suitable for the territory extending from Chicago westerly through DuPage county to the Fox river valley. Provision must be made for the best transportation for present and future development of the territory which it serves and also provide for all intersecting highways.

It is the hope of the association and DuPage county that this competition will result inan unusual wealth of ideas and suggestions in relation to super-highway construction.

Big Business.

The traffic of stolen cars in the United States is said to rank next to bootlegging as the leading profession of the underworld. Due to poor activity, the mobility of the automobile and the closing of eyes by purchasers, the thief does not have much trouble in disposing of his loot.

Friend of the Motorist.

Indictment of five village officials charged with conspiracy and assault in the operation of Cook county speed traps, won last week through the intensive investigation carried on by Charles J. Mueller of State's Attorney Crowe's office, will not end the general crusade to wipe out legalized highway banditry.

The Friend of the Motorist department of THE TRIBUNE is still open to motorists throughout the country who have been victims of vehicle law enforcement injustices and will continue to turn legitimate complaints over to the proper authorities and see that they are acted upon. The Chicago Motor club has established a permanent bureau of inquiry with branches in 39 counties of the three states bordering Chicago, and state officials have pledged their coöperation in winning a square deal for motor car drivers. Address your complaints, together with the names of witnesses and other evidence, to The Friend of The Motorist, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Big Membership.

Growth in the interest in automotive engineering is reflected by the receipt of an average of about 75 applications a month for membership in the Society of Automotive Engineers. During the first 18 weeks of this year 283 applicants elected qualified as new members, bringing the total membership to 5,668 on May 10, an increase of more than 300 over a year ago.

BRAKE FORMULA.

The Scotland Yard braking formula for passenger vehicles in London calls for a stopping distance in feet equal to the square of the speed in miles per hour, divided by 10. This corresponds to a retardation of about 11 feet per second.

Registration Card Is Passport to Canadian Roads

THOUSANDS of American motorists planning automobile trips into Canada were warned yesterday that the ports of entry of the dominion may bar them if they forget to take their state license registration cards with them.

In Ontario alone, according to the American Automobile association, there has been an average of 25 cars refused admittance daily during the last few weeks because the motorists were unable to show their registration cards to customs officials.

It is essential that you carry your home state license registration card, which corresponds to the car you intend to enter Canada.

If your visit to Canada is not to exceed 24 hours and you propose to return through your port of entry all you need do is deposit the registration card with the Canadian custom official, who will return it as you return to the United States.

If your stay is to exceed 24 hours or if you propose to leave Canada by a port other than that of entry it is necessary to obtain a touring permit from the custom officials, which is good for thirty days. This touring permit costs only 50 cents. It should be well guarded, as it must be returned to the custom officials at the port of exit. When a touring permit is issued the motorist does not deposit his state license registration card.

For a stay of more than 30 days it is necessary to be bonded by the custom officials. The amount of bond depends upon the valuation of your machine.

MOTOR FAN.

Mrs. Mary Swinton, 84 years old, of Ticonderoga, N. Y., has just purchased an automobile and intends to learn to drive it.

How Long Should a Man's Legs Be?

Abraham Lincoln is quoted as answering, "Long Enough to Reach the Ground"

How long should an automobile's wheelbase be? Auburn answers—"Long enough to give the greatest comfort!" But, do you sacrifice ease-of-steering in order to enjoy long wheelbase?

Not in the new 7-passenger Auburn Straight Eight. It actually steers easier than the average small car and yet it is the longest car built in America today—146¼-inch wheelbase.

Did you ever try to follow one of the modern busses through traffic—try it once and notice how easily it handles and remember it has 300 inches or more wheelbase. And these busses are not only operating in congested Fifth Avenue but over the sharp curves of the mountain passes from Denver to San Francisco.

To understand why and how Auburn specializes in long wheelbase, you must know about Auburn's policy. It is not one of expediency. It ignores fads. It does not design cars for temporary sales reasons. It aims always at a continued effort towards finer engineered, better designed and more enduringly built motor cars. In short, its sole objective is to build the very best car in every way in the world. To do this, the comfort of the Auburn car must be of the greatest. And comfort is dependent first upon adequate wheelbase. Our engineers have experimented with distribution of weight, dimensions and balance—not simply to obtain long wheelbase for the sake of wheelbase but to obtain the greatest riding comfort on all roads at all speeds. This goal could only be reached through long experimenting. Special steering processes, increased bearings and special engineering, too technical for the layman, were necessary to produce the new Auburn with its low body design, low center of gravity and ease of handling combined with this unprecedented comfort.

Seven adults enjoy uncrowded seating and leg room and a riding ease never before experienced in any car.

See it, drive it and if it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

IOWA HAS TARIFF OF ITS OWN IN LOW RAIL RATES

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sioux City, Ia., July 31.—[Special.]—Iowa has a sort of protective tariff all its own. It is in the shape of certain low railroad rates inside the state which have served to erect walls around many thriving cities and their radius of trade.

Iowa's walled towns were built up behind low intrastate rates set up by the state railroad commission back in the days of Gov. Larrabee, forty years ago during the great agrarian uprising which followed the civil war period. The rates have survived to a degree unknown in many other states, for they still prevail as a basis, the increases of the interstate commerce commission simply being tacked on from time to time.

Neighboring States Complain.

The result is that, on certain classes, Iowa today carries freight inside the state at rates so low that neighbor states are complaining that Iowa enjoys a discrimination for which other states pay. They regard it as a curious circumstance that Iowa, which is loudest against the railroads has perhaps the lowest intrastate rate in the middle west.

Iowa's attitude towards the railroads is largely a hangover of the granger days of more than a generation ago. Back in the 70's and 80's, the agricultural states were swept by movements to get higher returns for farm products and to curb monopolies. They were directed chiefly against the common carriers, the makers of farm machinery, and the bankers who held mortgages on the old homestead. The farmers' wrath was especially poured out upon the railroads. One of the results was the creation of commissions, state and federal, and the subjection of railroad corporations to control of the state.

Lay Between Basing Points.

Iowa was among the leaders. The state was between Beelzebub and the deep sea, so far as freight rates went, as it lay between the two basing points, the Mississippi and the Missouri rivers. The rate structure theory rested on theoretical water competition and also upon the way the railroads built to the rivers. There was a low rate from Chicago and the east to the Mississippi river, plus a high local rate when the freight got into Iowa. Then there was a low rate to Missouri river points.

It was grand for the towns on the Mississippi and Missouri rivers, but it was hard on the communities in Iowa between the rivers.

The river towns kept expanding, but the interior towns were hogtied by the rate situation. There were years of agitation, and in 1888 the state railroad commission put in a rigid mileage scale, still called the Larrabee rates, which gave Iowa low charges on intrastate traffic.

Still Rate-Making Basis.

Other states were socking it to the railroads, who had it coming, in this period. But, for some reason or other, there has been less disturbance of the intrastate rate scheme set up in Iowa than in adjoining states, and today the Larrabee scale is still at the bottom of the rate structure.

Outside traffic experts declare Iowa's local rates on grain and live stock are relatively as low as on the class which has built up the jobbing centers. They say that this affects rail earnings in such a way that other states pay for it in higher freight charges than they might otherwise have to bear.

Iowa points out that if the short haul rates went up it would drive more business from the rails to the trucks. The granger hangover, as seen in the difference of attitude towards the railroads and the public utilities, is another curious phase in Iowa to be discussed in a later article.

COAL COMPETITORS MAKE BIG STRIDES IN LAST FEW YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 31.—[Special.]—Competitors of coal have made rapid strides in their invasion of the fuel field the last few years, according to elaborate comparisons made public today by the bureau of mines.

It is indicated by data that while coal production in 1925 was far below the war time maximum, production of oil, natural gas and water power has enormously increased.

In making comparisons, F. G. Tryon of the bureau reduced the various fuels to heat units. Mr. Tryon ascertained that whereas coal in 1913 furnished 87.1 per cent of the total energy of fuels its production has declined to 71.5 per cent in 1925. Oil and gas made rapid gains during this period.

WALL STREET NOTES

New York, July 31.—(AP)—Wall street heard today that the Tidewater Associated Oil syndicate, which underwrote 1,800,000 shares of common stock last March, will be extended from Aug. 4 to Sept. 20. An extension was requested because the managers have had under consideration certain negotiations which have not yet been terminated. Rumors have been current that the common stock, which has never been offered to the public, may be taken over by another oil company. All the $46,000,000 six per cent preferred stock is reported to have been disposed of.

Negotiations are reported under way for the acquisition by the Texas company of the Crown Central Petroleum corporation. The corporation, which organized in 1924 to succeed the White Oil corporation, controls about 27,000 acres of producing and undeveloped oil lands in the southwest.

An interest in the Creole syndicate, owner of large oil tracts in Colombia and Venezuela, has been purchased by Blair & Co., New York bankers. The deal, which does not carry control, is believed to be a preliminary move in the acquisition of the Creole properties by a larger oil company.

There were 397 commercial failures in the United States last week according to compilations by R. G. Dun & Co. This compares with 359 in the preceding week and 359 also in the corresponding week last year.

Williamson County Ships 300 Cars of Coal in Day

West Frankfort, Ill., July 31.—Three Illinois Central coal trains of a hundred cars each left the Williamson county coal field this morning. The trains were made up from Benton, Herrin, and Dowell. Ninety-five cars of the Benton train were from the West Frankfort mines, while the Dowell train was made up entirely of the output of the Big Kathleen mine.

MINE TO PUT 800 BACK TO WORK.

Taylorville, Ill., July 31.—With the opening of Peabody mine No. 7 at Kincaid on Monday, eight hundred men will be put to work. The mine, one of the largest in the state, has been shut down the last six months.

FARMS ARE NOT TROUBLED WITH PESTS AND RUST

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Aberdeen, S. D., July 31.—[Special.]—Wherever the traveler goes in the grain states nowadays he finds evidence of the effective work of the scientists in their war against pests.

A few years ago it was common to hear distressing stories of the way pests wiped out entire crops, but this season there is little complaint. On a crop survey through Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, and South Dakota, during the last three weeks, I have heard few complaints from farmers and ranchers about pest damages.

There is a slim crop of weeds and insect pests in the corn. Throughout these four states the corn is unusually clean. Iowa corn growers have been given a scare by the stalk corn borer.

Farmers on Watch.

The threatened invasion of the European corn borer put the farmers on the alert. In their search for the new foreign pest, which caused such heavy losses last year in Ontario, Canada, and the northeastern part of the United States, growers in Iowa found an unusual number of corn stalk borers, an entirely different pest.

Tables are covered in the entomology laboratories at the Iowa State college with samples of the pest, sent in by growers.

There is little talk of the Hessian fly, and in the states covered wheat rust has caused no serious damage. Here in South Dakota, where flax wilt causes a lot of trouble, they avoid it by planting wilt resistant varieties or grow the crop only once on newly broken prairie grass sod.

Hessian Flies Scarce.

Dry weather is the worst enemy of flax this year. The crop is expected to be short. The acreage is decreased in both Dakotas. Fields are turning yellow in the central part of the state. Good crops are reported in some of the southern counties west of the Missouri river. Some fields are expected to turn out high yields. Here in the Aberdeen territory there is danger of flax being caught if frosts come as early as usual.

Hessian flies are so scarce that entomologists in Iowa are now finding it difficult to locate enough of them for field observation work. Planting on the fly free dates throughout the grain states has been an effective control measure, which is now as much a part of raising wheat as the planting of the seed.

Experts say that heavy freezes last fall and winter reduced the crop of plant lice that attack vegetables and fruit. They are particularly scarce in orchards this year.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—COPPER—Large sales at 14⅜c for electrolytic delivered practically cleared up all available metal at that figure. Demand continues excellent. TIN—Advanced further, but kept below an import parity. Dealers bought liberally of future Straits. LEAD—Continued its upward trend, with demand good and of a well distributed sort. ZINC—Steady; little change in values. ANTIMONY—A little lower on more liberal offerings.

St. Louis, Mo., July 31.—LEAD—Steady at $8.85. ZINC—Slab, quiet at $7.50.

RUBBER MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—RUBBER—Opened barely steady; smoked rib sheets, Sept., 39.40c; Dec., 40.50c; March, 41.00c. Rubber closed weak. Sept. 38.80c; Dec., 40.00c; March, 40.80c.

Another Chevrolet Achievement

$55 Reduction on 1-Ton Truck

New Low Prices
1-Ton Truck reduced to $495
½-Ton Truck reduced to $375
(Chassis only) f.o.b. Flint, Michigan

Engineered to meet the most severe requirements of commercial haulage, Chevrolet trucks have won worldwide acceptance on the basis of low first cost, low operating cost and slow depreciation. This spectacularly growing popularity has made necessary a greatly increased production—the savings of which are now passed on to buyers in the form of a drastic price reduction. In establishing these phenomenally low prices on the most dependable and durable Chevrolet commercial chassis ever built, Chevrolet again emphasizes the greater dollar-for-dollar economy of buying and using Chevrolet trucks.

Range of prices in the cattle division reached a wider point last week. Hot weather had a tendency to swing demand to baby beeves and light steers, which sustained the recent strength, while medium and weighty steers were neglected at unevenly lower prices. Heavy beeves are as low as any time in years, some showing 50@75c loss for the week. Butcher stock declined unevenly 15@40c, barring a few light heifers. Load lots of yearling heifers reached $10.25 and two head, $10.50. Calves weak to 50c lower. Stockers and feeders steady to 25c lower. Yearling steers topped at $10.65, with medium heavy averaging 1,326 lbs, at $10.10. While the week's top at $10.65 equals the highest since April and stands 25c above the high point last May, the week's average at $9.20 is within 5c of the lowest of the year.

Hog Prices Are Steady.

The small week-end offerings of hogs met fair demand at generally steady prices, with the recently neglected heavy mixed and packing sows finishing in a stronger position, although no price enhancement was noted. Top lowered 5c at $13.75, due to the absence of strictly fancy light, with general average unchanged at $11.90, within 5c of the lowest of the season, which was established last Thursday. Outsiders absorbed 1,500 hogs, and with larger packers among best buyers, only pen holders and inferior grades remained over, numbering about 1,600. A big quota, as usual, consisted of heavy mixed, bringing $10.25@10.50. Heavy "packers" ranged down to $9.60.

While hog receipts during the last two weeks have been heaviest in two months, average weights stand among the heaviest on record, going back over 50 years for an equal for this time of year. Receipts last week at 120,500, however, were below any corresponding weekly total in over five years and 23,500 below the five year average. Estimated average weight at 265 lbs sets up a new high mark, comparing with 262 lbs the previous week, 242 lbs a year ago, 240 lbs two years ago, and a five year average of 245 lbs. The week's general average price at $12.00 was lowest since the first week in April and 25c under the previous week.

Lambs Decline Sharply.

Killing lambs slumped 50@75c during the week, under stress of the largest run in three months, with feeding stock in spots off as much as $1.00 late in the week. Receipts at 80,200 compare with 61,874 the previous week. Quality graded poorest of the season, the 141 cars from the range running more to thin lambs suitable for feeding forced in by dry weather in the west. Heavy feeders around $12.40 were similar to $13.40 kinds a week earlier. Best light feeders late brought $13.50, lowest of the season. Top fat lambs Monday $14.95 and Friday $14.25. Aged sheep closed strong to 25c higher and yearlings steady. Breeding ewes were scarce and firm.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 32,000 cattle, 35,000 hogs and 20,000 sheep, against 26,208 cattle, 35,393 hogs and 22,383 sheep, a week ago and 20,479 cattle, 29,467 hogs and 25,844 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 57,000 cattle, 120,000 hogs, and 75,000 sheep, against 53,941 cattle, 108,376 hogs, and 95,785 sheep a year ago.

JULY WHEAT IS UP 8 7-8 TO 11 3-8c; WILD DAY IN PIT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A wild wave of short covering in July wheat which swept over the market in the last few minutes of trading carried the price up 15¼c from the early low to a high of $1.60, which figure was paid freely around the pit an instant after the bell tapped.

The official close was at $1.56 to $1.58½, there being a wide difference in the price in various parts of the pit. The finish based on the official close showed a net gain of 8⅞c to 11⅜c.

A fairly liberal sized line, credited as being held for a Winnipeg operator, was responsible for the congestion, and shorts who held out until the last minute of trading were badly punished. The trade had ample warning that something unusual might develop, and commission houses generally sent out notices during the day disclaiming any responsibility for executions of orders.

Deferred Deliveries Lower.

Deferred deliveries of wheat closed ¼c lower in the face of the sensational bulge in the July, the like of which has not been witnessed for many months. Sptmbr finishd at $1.43⅝@1.44, and De-September finished $1.43⅝@1.44, and Dehigher on July and ⅜@⅝c lower on distant futures, with July 77⅛c; September, 84⅛@84¼c, and December, 87⅛@87¼c. Oats were ⅛@⅜c lower, with July 41⅛c and September 43⅛@43¼c. Rye was ½@1½c lower, with July $1.04⅜ and September $1.06⅜.

Wheat prices averaged higher the last week, but the net advances were not large considering the claims of serious damage to the Canadian crop. July was 15⅜c higher, and deferred futures up 1⅜@2⅛c as compared with the previous week. Corn gained ⅞c and rye ⅜@1c, while oats were ¼@⅜c lower. Lard was off 10@15c and ribs 17½@70c, while bellies were 20@25c higher.

July Wheat Congested.

There was little evidence early that July wheat was congested, although during the first hour of trading there was scattered short covering which put it to a wider premium over the September. A local house sold out a fairly large line and held the market in check, but toward the last when evening up became general price fluctuations became more violent, and at the finish it was almost impossible for brokers to tell what the market was. There has been no accumulation of cash wheat of consequence here, and the lack of grain to deliver was a factor in tightening up the market. Kansas City received 31,000,000 bu during July, and stocks there are only 6,000,000 bu in the face of the immense movement.

Continued dry and hot weather in Canada and an advance of ⅜@⅞d in Liverpool was responsible for a firm opening in the deferred deliveries with September selling as high as $1.45½, but liberal selling by houses with eastern and Winnipeg connections took the edge off the market and the finish was rather tame at intermediate figures.

Corn Market Easier.

Good rains fell over parts of the corn belt and the market showed an easier undertone on the active deliveries while July acted a little tight toward the last on short covering. Local sentiment was inclined to be bearish due to the partial breaking of the drought. Points in Nebraska received as much as 2 inches of rain, while many Illinois points had heavy rains during the day. Eastern cash demand was only fair. Oats and rye were lower on scattered selling which found support only fair.

WHEAT MOVEMENT BIG

Primary receipts of wheat last week were the largest at this time in more than five years and total arrivals of all grains at primary markets or 30,456,000 bu were the heaviest in over five years. They increased 4,124,000 bu for the week and exceeded last year's by 9,673,000 bu being 4,649,000 bu in excess of the five year average. Corn and oat receipts were lightest for the period in five years. Details follow:

PROFIT TAKING IN LARD

There was selling of lard to secure profits by recent buyers and fair commission house buying on the weak spots. Trading in all was light. More interest developed in meats, particularly in bellies, with July bid up 40c on the buying of 50,000 pounds and September gained 10c. At the close lard was unchanged to 5c lower; ribs, unchanged to 15c lower, and bellies 10@40c higher.

Expectations are for a good increase in lard stocks for the week. Shipments of lard and meats exceeded the previous week but were under last year's. Hog receipts were larger than a week ago and 50,000 pounds of ribs on July contracts. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of 200,000 bu wheat were reported in all positions at the seaboard, with a fairly good demand for red winter. Business in other grains slow.

Chicago handlers sold 10,000 bu wheat, 121,000 bu corn, and 38,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with purchases to arrive of 165,000 bu wheat, 20,000 bu corn, and 75,000 bu oats. Sales of 5,000 bu oats were made to go to store.

Cash wheat basis here was unsettled with No. 2 red and hard winter selling at ¼@1½c under July, with trading over before the final bulge in the July delivery. Basis at Kansas City and Omaha was little changed.

Offerings of cash corn were not large with the spot basis unchanged with No. 2 grades ¾c over to ¼c under September; No. 3 grades ½@2c under and No. 4 grades, 3@6c under. Outside markets were ½c lower to 1c higher.

Cash oats sold fairly at former prices with No. 2 white ½c under to 1¼c over September and No. 3 white 1c over the future.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 582 cars; corn, 30 cars; oats, 53 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 8 cars.

COTTON TRADE BETTER

Trading in cotton in Chicago has increased and brokers report that during the month of July business was the best in months. More outside interest is developing, and spreading operations between here and New York and New Orleans have become important factors. Commission house trade, as well as professional operations, are all larger.

Lower prices were made early on Saturday, with the break due to scattered selling. This was followed by a rally and a close at net losses of 4 to 5 points on futures in Chicago and unchanged to 3 points lower in New York. Spots in the latter market were 10 points lower at 19.05c.

Weather and crop news was more bearish. In Texas the crop is coming along better, and indications are that there will be equal to more than 500,000 bales open in two weeks, as far north as San Antonio. Prices in leading markets follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

Wheat traders were very much mixed after the close because of the unexpected upheaval in July. People who had the July bought were exporters and are understood to have it sold abroad, and wanted the cash wheat. They would take all the deliveries and move the wheat out. Good buying of offers featured the privilege trading after the close.

Private crop reports are due Monday. It would be no surprise to see 600,000,000 bu winter wheat, around 200,000,000 bu spring wheat, and 2,600,000,000 to 2,700,000,000 bu corn, and a small decrease in oats, as compared with the government report in July.

A feature in corn trading was the selling of September and buying of December by a local professional, who has been active in spreading operations on a large scale for some time past. He widened the difference from 2½c to 3c.

Viewing the wheat situation, a local trader says that as far as he can see the supplies of wheat in proportion to the population the world over are the smallest in years.

Indications are that the visible supply of wheat will show a big increase on Monday. There should be a moderate increase in Chicago, with a gain of over 2,500,000 bu at Kansas City.

Primary movement of wheat since July 1 has been the largest in years, aggregating 74,149,000 bu, compared with 42,565,000 bu last year, 44,404,000 bu two years ago, when there was a big crop in the southwest. Kansas City has received more than 29,000,000 bu, against 10,644,000 bu last year and 21,121,000 bu two years ago.

J. P. Griffin believes that wheat prices are to advance, basing his opinion on the liberal absorption of the cash wheat by millers and a belief that there have been good sized sales for exports, which will be filled within the next 60 days. Weather for corn has been most favorable of late, he says, and he believes in selling corn on bulges.

The Winnipeg Free Press crop report told the trade little that they have not known before in regard to crop conditions in western Canada. There has been deterioration from heat and drought.

Le Count's report from Stettler, Alta., said there is a large area of light land and stubble in the vicinity of Drumheller prematurely ripened by heat, with considerable loss. Through that territory the crop is generally good and shows little effect of heat. Alberta's crop, he says, is spotted, but the general average indicates a fairly large crop.

Moosejaw reported Friday was the hottest day of the season and crops were badly burned. Rains could do no good, it was said, only to stay further damage to coarse grains. Oats are short and farmers are hauling water for stock for the first time in forty years.

Winnipeg reported that shorts were covering wheat and there was a fair outside buying of futures, with offerings on a fairly heavy scale in the way of profit taking.

Kinyon's report from Minot, N. D.: "West from Leeds grains are deteriorating, but is improved from July 1 condition. All is short, with thin stands and short heads, and will nearly all be harvested. Cutting has started in many fields. Looks like 5 to 6 bushel crop."

DRY GOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 31.—(AP)—Sales of cotton goods during the week were in excess of current production by a small margain, but production is now being increased. Burlaps were steady with buying confined to immediate needs. The expansion looked for in wool goods after the openings of fancy worsteds for spring is based upon the very moderate provision on staple goods made thus far and the clean stock conditions due to long curtailment. The closing of Japan raw silk markets for holidays left local traders indisposed to force goods and little price change was reported. Silk goods were quiet. The linen demand continued light.

PRODUCE MARKETS

A feature of Saturday's trade in produce was the steadiness in values of butter and eggs, and a decline of ½c in prices of live hens to 23½c.

Potatoes in sacks sold at 5c decline, while barreled stock brought former prices. Arrivals were 28 cars, with 152 cars on track.

There were 23 cars of peaches on track and the demand was fair for Saturday and prices unchanged at $1.75@2.25 for Albertas in bushel baskets.

CANADA WHEAT CROP NEAR RUIN FROM DROUGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Winnipeg, Man., July 31.—The Manitoba Free Press' crop report issued today says that heavy damage to wheat has taken place in the province of Saskatchewan during the last ten days from heat and drought and the yield now promises to be a little better than half of last year's crop. Further deterioration is feared unless immediate rains are received.

Manitoba has come through in good shape and promises a crop equal to or even better than last year. Alberta is much mixed, there being some good and some bad districts. But the crop will be smaller than last year.

Practically the whole west is badly in need of moisture and cooler temperatures. Spring and fall ploughed crops in Saskatchewan are practically a failure.

Montgomery Ward Sales Are Largest for Any July

The business of Chicago's big mail order houses is running strong. Sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. last month were the largest for any July in history and marked the fifty-fourth consecutive month to show a gain over the same month in the preceding year. July sales totaled $11,983,553, an increase of 10.52 per cent over a year ago, while sales for the seven months ended with July totaled $107,200,263, an increase of 14.94 per cent over the corresponding period of 1925.

All Trades Adjusted; July Deliveries Big

All July trades were settled without any defaults on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

The July deliveries of wheat for the day were 1,407,000 bu; corn, 200,000 bu; oats, 204,000 bu; rye, 34,000 bu; lard, 150,000 lbs; bellies, 100,000 lbs.

For the month of July total deliveries of wheat were 1,751,000 bu, there being more sent out Saturday than the combined deliveries for the month previous to that date. Corn deliveries were 10,645,000 bu; oats, 6,417,000 bu; rye, 1,663,000 bu; lard, 13,850,000 lbs; bellies, 1,890,000 lbs; short ribs, 300,000 lbs.

New York, July 31.—(AP)—Resumption of the upward movement of prices characterized the closing session of the month in the stock market. Heavy week-end profit taking, coupled with sporadic short selling, brought about net recessions of a point or two in more than a score of issues, including United States Steel common, but offerings generally were well absorbed, and closing quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to nearly 7 points.

Trading was in heavy volume for a half holiday session, the day's sale aggregating 968,800 shares. Speculators for the advance, flushed with their success of the last week, conducted aggressive buying demonstrations in the motor, public utility, railroad and steel groups, picking out new leaders in each.

Hudson Supplants General Motors.

General Motors quieted down somewhat after its recent sensational advance, closing 1¼ points higher at 189½ after fluctuating between 188¼ and 190⅞. Hudson assumed the leadership of the automobile group by jumping 4¼ points to 72½ on buying credited to William C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, who is also believed to head a group which has been operating on the long side of General Motors. Studebaker and Nash showed net gains of 1⅝ and 2 points, respectively.

Metropolitan public utilities gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength on merger talk and expectations of a favorable Supreme court decision on the so-called "dollar gas law." New peak prices for 1926, or longer, were attained by Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Brooklyn Union Gas and Brooklyn Edison, the last named showing a net gain of 6⅝ points.

Railroad Shares Move Up.

Rails began to make more of a response to the publication of record breaking June earnings statements, Atchison, Rutland preferred, Southern Pacific and Southern railway all showed net advances of 2 points or more.

On the New York Curb exchange several issues that had been in the forefront in recent trading gave a good account of themselves. Rand Kardex had a further upturn of about 2 points. Freed Eisemann also continued in demand, selling up a point to 9, its high figure for the year. Glen Alden improved a fraction. United Gas Improvement opened off at 108 and then rose to 109⅞. American Gas rallied a fraction to 97⅞. Most interest in the oils was devoted to the lower priced shares in which Creole Syndicate featured, selling to a new high for the year at 15⅝. Standard oils were slightly higher.

Bonds Dull and Steady.

The bond market drifted through one of the dullest trading sessions of the summer. The only conspicuous feature was a rally of 4 points in Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s, carrying the price to a new high level for the year above 160. Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s held near their 1926 top price, and St. Paul refunding 4½s gained a point, but Baltimore and Ohio, Frisco, "Katy," and Missouri Pacific issues were heavy. French and Belgian bonds were fractionally higher, and a brisk buying movement developed in Great Consolidated Power of Japan 7s.

Foreign exchanges held firm in quiet trading. Demand sterling was quoted just under $4.85¾, and French francs ruled slightly higher around 2.42½c.

The weekly clearing house statement showed excess reserve of $22,113,820, a decrease of $10,426,350 from a week ago. Loans, discounts, and investments increased $52,000,000; net demand deposits, $41,374,000, and time deposits, $4,363,000.

DU PONT HAS BIG INCREASE IN EARNINGS

The semi-annual statement of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., issued yesterday, shows earnings, after deducting debenture stock dividends and fixed charges, of $19,215,384 applicable to the common stock for the first half of 1926. This is $14.51 a share, comparing with $8.70 for the corresponding six months of last year.

The income includes actual dividends received from the company's investment in General Motors corporation, but not its equity in the latter's undistributed profits. The company's equity in General Motors surplus earnings for the six months is equal to an additional $8.83 a share on Du Pont common, or a total of $23.34 earned or accrued on the stock for the half year.

A federal tax refund to the company of $5,190,000, plus interest of approximately $2,000,000, has been paid as a result of a review of the company's income tax payments over a ten year period.

As of June 30 the current assets of the company amounted to $56,511,897, including cash and marketable securities of $18,375,388. Current liabilities amounted to $7,022,225, being only 12½ per cent of current assets, or a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of 8 to 1.

Two Insull Utilities Ask Authority to Issue Bonds

The Northern Indiana Public Service company yesterday filed a petition with the public service commission of Indiana asking for authority to issue and sell $12,500,000 of its forty year first and refunding mortgage gold bonds to bear interest at not more than 5 per cent per annum.

Another petition was filed asking authority to issue $4,000,000 of Northern Indiana Gas and Electric company first lien and refunding mortgage gold bonds, 5 per cent series. The Northern Indiana Gas and Electric company was merged into the Northern Indiana Public Service company on June 3, 1926.

As a result of this proposed new financing, the Northern Indiana Public Service company will retire $4,500,000 of three year notes which mature June 1, 1927, thus releasing $5,000,000 of Northern Indiana Gas and Electric company first lien and refunding mortgage gold bonds pledged as collateral security

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Celotex company common commanded the greatest attention in the local unlisted securities market during the last week, after numerous transactions around 145 it soared to closing trades at 165, at which price it was in excellent demand. The preferred was in supply, however, and lost about 2 points, selling off to 92 bid, 93 asked. Beatrice Creamery was easier, stock being offered for sale at 64, with buyers at 63. Bucyrus preferred continued strong, sales at 110 showing another 2 points improvement over the previous week's trades. American Furniture Mart preferred changed hands between 91 and 93, 2 points higher. The common, however, was unchanged at 4⅞ to 5¼.

Elgin National Watch improved to 90 bid, 91 asked. W. F. Hall Printing sold off to 30¾, but later rallied to closing sales at 31. The McCord issues were in better demand, the common being wanted at 9, while the class A preferred sold at 70 and the debenture stock between 19½ and 20½. National Theaters was heavy, declining from 8 to closing quotations of 7¼ bid, 7½ asked. Northwestern Yeast common was in good demand at 167. Novadel Process common was actively traded in around 8¼. Considerable interest was displayed in Q. R. S. new stock, which was given to the stockholders on the basis of two shares for one. Closing quotations of 25¾ bid, 27½ asked, compared with early sales around 23. Standard Cap and Seal rallied from 37½ to 40 bid.

The bank shares were irregular. Continental and Commercial National was in good demand, with numerous sales around 454. First National reached a new high in selling up 15 points to 605, but it later reacted to 597. Chicago Union Trust was 4 points better, 266 being freely bid. Union Trust changed hands at 405, at which price additional stock was wanted. Little interest was shown in Illinois Merchants Trust. It remained unchanged at 600@605. Although the bid price of Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company moved up to 575, there were no reported transactions. Union Bank of Chicago was steady at 228 bid, 232 asked. National Bank of the Republic was easier at 284 bid, 288 asked.

Chicago stocks were dull and weak in yesterday's week-end session. Kraft Cheese and Borg & Beck were the only issues to show much activity, with the former advancing 2½ and the latter holding about steady. On light trading, Stewart-Warner gained half a point, but Bunte declined 1⅛, and fractional losses were shown by Auburn Auto, Middle West Utilities, Bendix, Union Carbide, Thompson, and U. S. Gypsum.

MOTOR TRAFFIC HELPS RAILWAYS, LEECH ASSERTS

BY HARPER LEECH.

The only notable consequences of the interstate commerce commission hearing on motor traffic here last week were the definite development and statement of shipper opposition to federal regulation.

It may not be a very hazardous guess to predict that railway sentiment for such regulation will decline rapidly.

As fast as the railroads themselves get to using motors as an auxiliary their feeling on the subject will be divided. Already Charles Dillon and other railway publicists have called attention to the fact that railway demand for bus and motor regulation may prove a boomerang to the railroad's own subsidiary enterprises.

Now that the railroads in some sections of the country are directly, or indirectly through subsidiaries, using the motors and highways to develop new business and handle old business more economically this phase of the issues will become more prominent.

When the railroads employ auxiliaries to the extent that their service becomes practically door to door, their advantage over any independent operator will become so great—their service can be rendered so much cheaper, that they will not be anxious to have it restricted any more than it now is.

The primary advantage of the railroads today consists in their total of about 200,000 stations and industrial tracks—yet capable of indefinite extension. That is why they virtually put the canals out of business and why the lake traffic largely is tributary to them. That advantage cannot be wrested from them by any other agency, as far as concerns the carload shipment of bulk agricultural products, mine and forest products, building materials and other such things, which now and always will constitute the great bulk of tonnage. The advent of the motor truck and the highway, considered historically will prove to have been an extension and intensification of this advantage.

Here are the big facts of the transport situation in America.

Present truck capacity is less than three per cent of the freight capacity of the railroads.

Of that 3 per cent truck capacity, 75 per cent is engaged in private business, mainly supplementary to rail traffic, hardly more "competitive" than the horse drawn dray.

The less than car load business of the railroads which easily constitutes half of all the traffic which the motors may hope to take away from them is little over 40,000,000 tons out of a total of 1,247,137,000 tons carried last year.

The load capacity of all the trucks in the United States is less than 4,000,000 tons. Freight car capacity is 112,000,000, and while the truck has a faster turn around than the freight car, its limitation by distance and its high labor costs make the real differences of capacity more favorable to the freight cars than even those figures indicate.

The railway plant of the United States is growing and has been growing, not declining, since the motor came in—that's the decisive fact.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $603,900,000, a decline of $43,000,000 from the preceding week and also a decrease of $84,400,000 from the corresponding week in 1925. Clearings for July totaled $2,960,900,000, a decline of $155,200,000 from July last year. Balances last week totaled $59,600,000, an increase of $9,000,000 over the preceding week and also a gain of $11,000,000 over the same week in 1925. Balances for July totaled $238,300,000, an increase of $26,900,000 over July last year. The figures for last week, day by day, follow:

Premier Taxi Crash Brings Home Lesson.

The $1,500,000 crash of the Premier Taxi company, in which the stockholders apparently have lost everything, teaches a lesson which investors will do well to learn.

At the time of this writing the receiver for the company predicts that mortgages will swallow all the property salvaged by him, leaving nothing for the stockholders.

The crash which took place early in July, a little over two years after the company was organized, came with such suddenness and was of such magnitude as to cause the city council unanimously to adopt a resolution, introduced by Ald. John Toman, calling for the appointment of a subcommittee of the local transportation committee to make an inquiry and report back to the council.

The language of the resolution was pointed in its criticism of the manner in which "persons in the ordinary walks of life" have lost a great part of their savings through mushroom companies that appear and then vanish after thousands of dollars in damage claims and other obligations have accumulated.

Most of the investors in the stock of the Premier Taxi company—perhaps 5,000 of them—were small investors who put their savings into this new and untried concern on the strength of promises by high pressure salesmen.

Most of the 700 cabs which the company operated were mortgaged to the limit, according to the receiver. Taximeters were mortgaged in excess of their value and tires were rented on a one-eighth of a cent a mile basis.

These things were not told to prospective investors by the high pressure salesmen.

To all who wrote to us, however, concerning this stock we pointed out that a special liability in the form of a chattel mortgage was carried on the company's balance sheet at $1,474,036, which was at the rate of over $2,000 on each cab.

We also pointed out that over a year ago [June 30, 1925] the company's current assets were only $139,961 and its current liabilities were $247,035 and that for the seven months ended that date it showed a net loss of $302,833.

To all who have written to us since the company started operating and selling stock we pointed out that the stock represented participation in a new business venture and was a pure speculation.

Such stock at best is not a suitable investment for the savings of a small investor or for any considerable proportion of the funds of a large one.

Investing in any new enterprise is a speculation and doing so without full knowledge of all pertinent conditions is hazardous.

The desire to "get in on the ground floor" which the salesman stimulates has brought ruin to a vast number of investors.

For every new enterprise that does succeed there are far too many promotions that sell stock, fail, and leave the stockholders holding the bag.

The small investor will do well to avoid all new promotions.

There are plenty of seasoned stocks constantly available in established companies whose success has been demonstrated.

Above all, don't invest in the promises of a salesman.

Before you purchase any security ascertain all the facts and make a careful investigation through a disinterested and impartial source.

Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio

MODERN engineering is rapidly making this Willys-Knight Great Six the fastest selling car of its class.

In Chicago sales are growing with leaps and bounds.

Everywhere throughout the city . . . at the leading country clubs, prominent hotels, exclusive sporting events . . . you will find this famous car in ever-increasing numbers.

You can compare the Willys-Knight Great Six Roadster with the finest and most modernly engineered cars of Europe.

Its motor is an exclusive feature . . . a feature other manufacturers would gladly pay millions to obtain.

This feature, the famous Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor, is patented.

It has been repeatedly proved to be the most efficient type of automobile motor built.

Better and more powerful than any other motor of its size when new, it grows smoother, more powerful, more efficient with every mile.

It has no valves to grind. You never lay it up for carbon-cleaning. These common annoyances you escape completely.

It has no springs to weaken.

It is practically fool-proof and wear-proof.

No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out.

These advantages make fast and enthusiastic friends for Willys-Knight cars. Every owner tells a friend. The story spreads.

And because owners drive them far beyond the average life of the average car, Willys-Knight cars hold top place in resale values.

Today . . . go see the beautiful Willys-Knight Great Six Roadster shown in the illustration . . . any of the dealers listed below will be glad to arrange a demonstration.

This car will actually do over 70 honest miles per hour . . . with all of the tremendous reserve power that this implies.

It accelerates like lightning . . . climbs the steepest hills with effortless ease.

And powerful four-wheel mechanical brakes provide complete safety.

This beautiful Roadster is equipped with an auxiliary seat in the rear deck, so that four full-sized passengers can enjoy its luxurious comfort. A most companionable car for two, when the rear seats are not in use.

It lends itself ideally to the atmosphere of the country club. Golf bags and other luggage may be easily stored in its roomy rear compartment.

See this car if you like the open road. Drive it . . . test it in comparison to the values others offer. Once you drive this famous Willys-Knight Great Six Roadster you'll never be satisfied with any other type of motor car.

Naperville Plans America's Premier Suburban Park Program

NORTH CLARK TO GET TWELVE STORY HOTEL

$1,000,000 Building at Huron Corner.

Probably the most significant building announcement in several years for the near north side and one which hints at the rejuvenation of another important thoroughfare linking the loop with Lincoln park, is the statement that work has started on a $1,000,000 twelve story hotel at the southwest corner of Clark and Huron.

This will be the first tall, modern, steel frame structure to be erected on North Clark street, north of the river. It is believed that this will give impetus to a move to rebuild this famous old thoroughfare between the river and North avenue.

On Site of Derby Cafe.

The new hostelry, to be known as the "Hotel Huron," will be on the site of one of North Clark's most notorious cabarets, "The Derby," closed a year or so ago.

The Huron will contain 286 hotel rooms and four stores. Entrance to an attractively finished lobby will be from Huron street.

The exterior will be of colonial brick, with pulsichrome terra cotta trim, according to the plans by A. L. Levy and William J. Klein, architects, and A. Epstein, associate. It has been designed in the Georgian period style of architecture.

Leased for 20 Years.

The entire building has been leased to Thomas Hennessey, who has operated other hotels, for a term of twenty years, at a net yearly rental of $78,000 for the first five years, $81,000 for the second five years, $84,000 for the third five years, and $87,000 for the last five year period.

The building is being erected by the Huron Building corporation, headed by Hyman Bloomberg and Samuel M. Preiss. It will be financed through a first mortgage real estate bond issue of $600,000 at 6½ per cent, underwritten by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company.

COMBINES BOND PURCHASES WITH LIFE INSURANCE

A. C. THOMPSON.
[Chambers Photo.]

A. C. Thompson, president of the Continental First Mortgage Bond company, yesterday announced what is claimed to be a brand new idea in the real estate mortgage bond world—a combination of six per cent first mortgage bonds with a standard life insurance policy of $1,000, providing for double indemnity and disability benefits.

The plan, which is somewhat similar, though more far reaching, to that of the savings bank-insurance plan of the Harris Trust and Savings bank and others, permits the investor to purchase a living estate on the partial payment plan.

"The minimum deposit specified provides for the accumulation of $500 of securities at the end of a five year period, after which time all premiums on the insurance will be entirely paid from the earnings of the securities themselves," said Mr. Thompson.

"In this way the purchaser creates the nucleus of an estate which gives him the advantages of well invested funds, together with the knowledge that should he not live to complete his project, his beneficiary will receive not only his $1,000 of insurance but the bonds and cash held by the company for him during the period of his life in the plan."

'GREEN GRILL' TO HAVE NEW PLACE ON RANDOLPH ST.

With the opening of the Bismarck hotel and the completion of the New Palace vaudeville theater nearing, the block in Randolph, between La Salle and Wells, is rapidly changing its appearance from one of the dingiest to one of the most attractive in the loop. Old shops are being remodeled and chain stores are fast coming in.

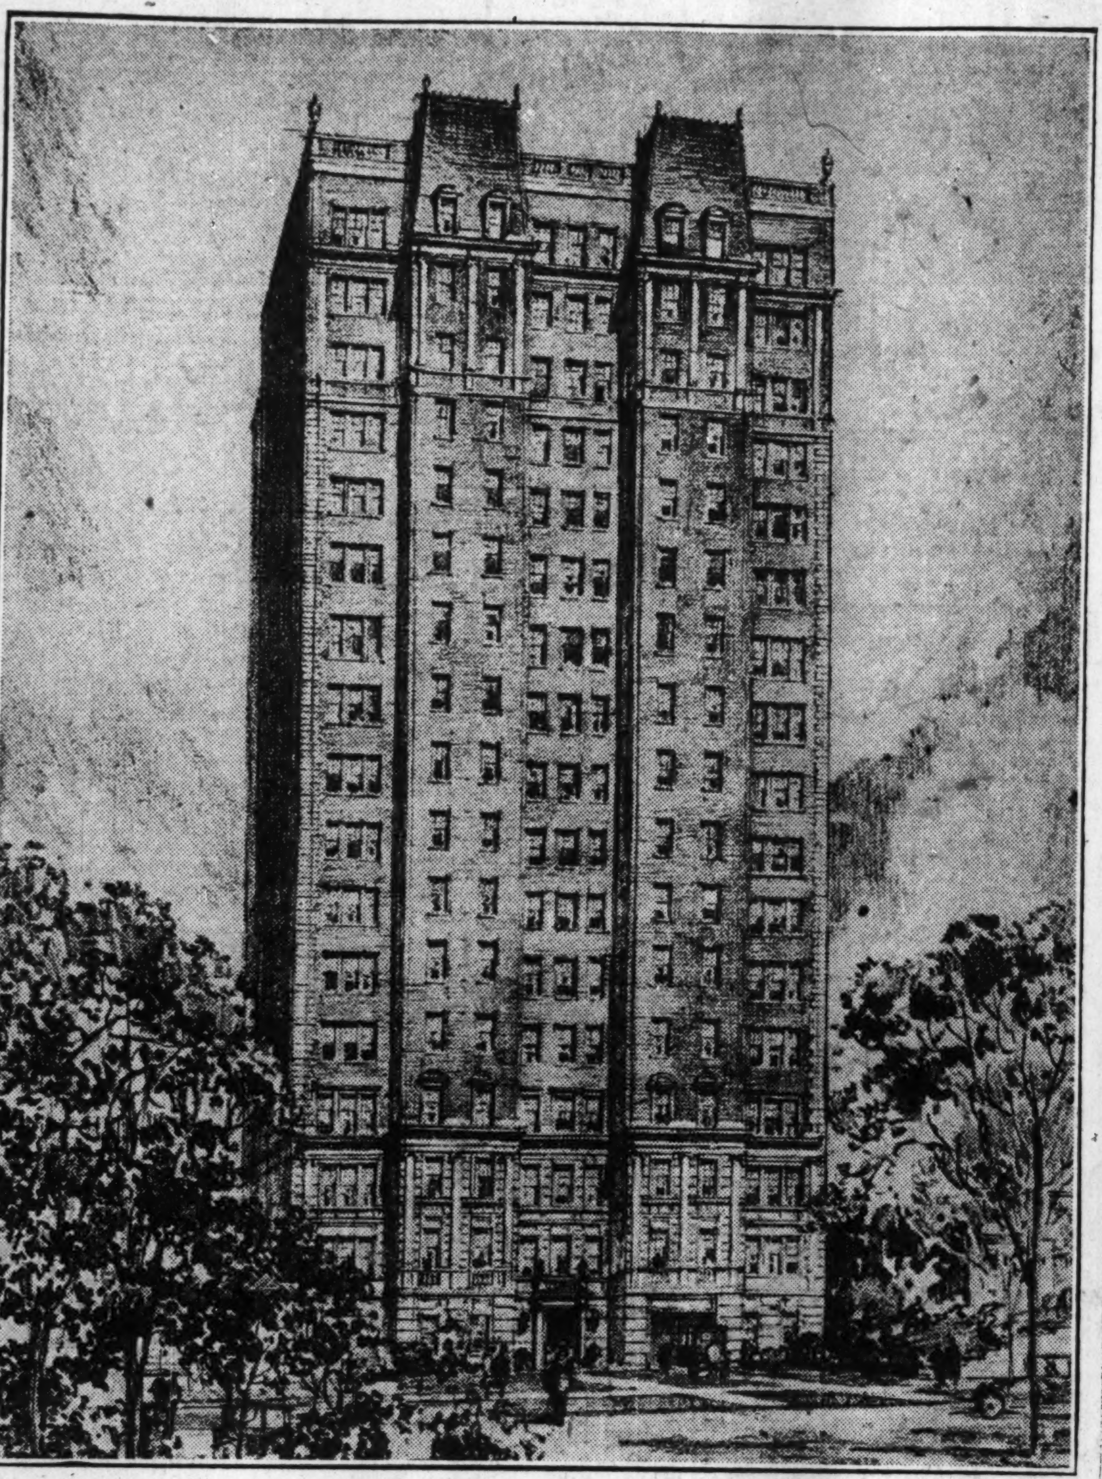
The latest announcement for the block is a "Green Grill" to be installed at 178 West Randolph by Henry Greengard & Son. This will be their third loop eating place of this character.

CRAWFORD AND CHICAGO CORNER SOLD FOR $110,000

The northeast corner of Chicago and Crawford avenues, 99x125, improved with a business block containing eight stores, five flats, and two offices, was sold by Louis Delcarlo and Albert Bonegal to H. Robins and S. Zimmerman for a reported $110,000. G. A. Hawley and Emil Pahl of Magnuson & Co. and J. Schwartz and of Hymen & Beelman were brokers.

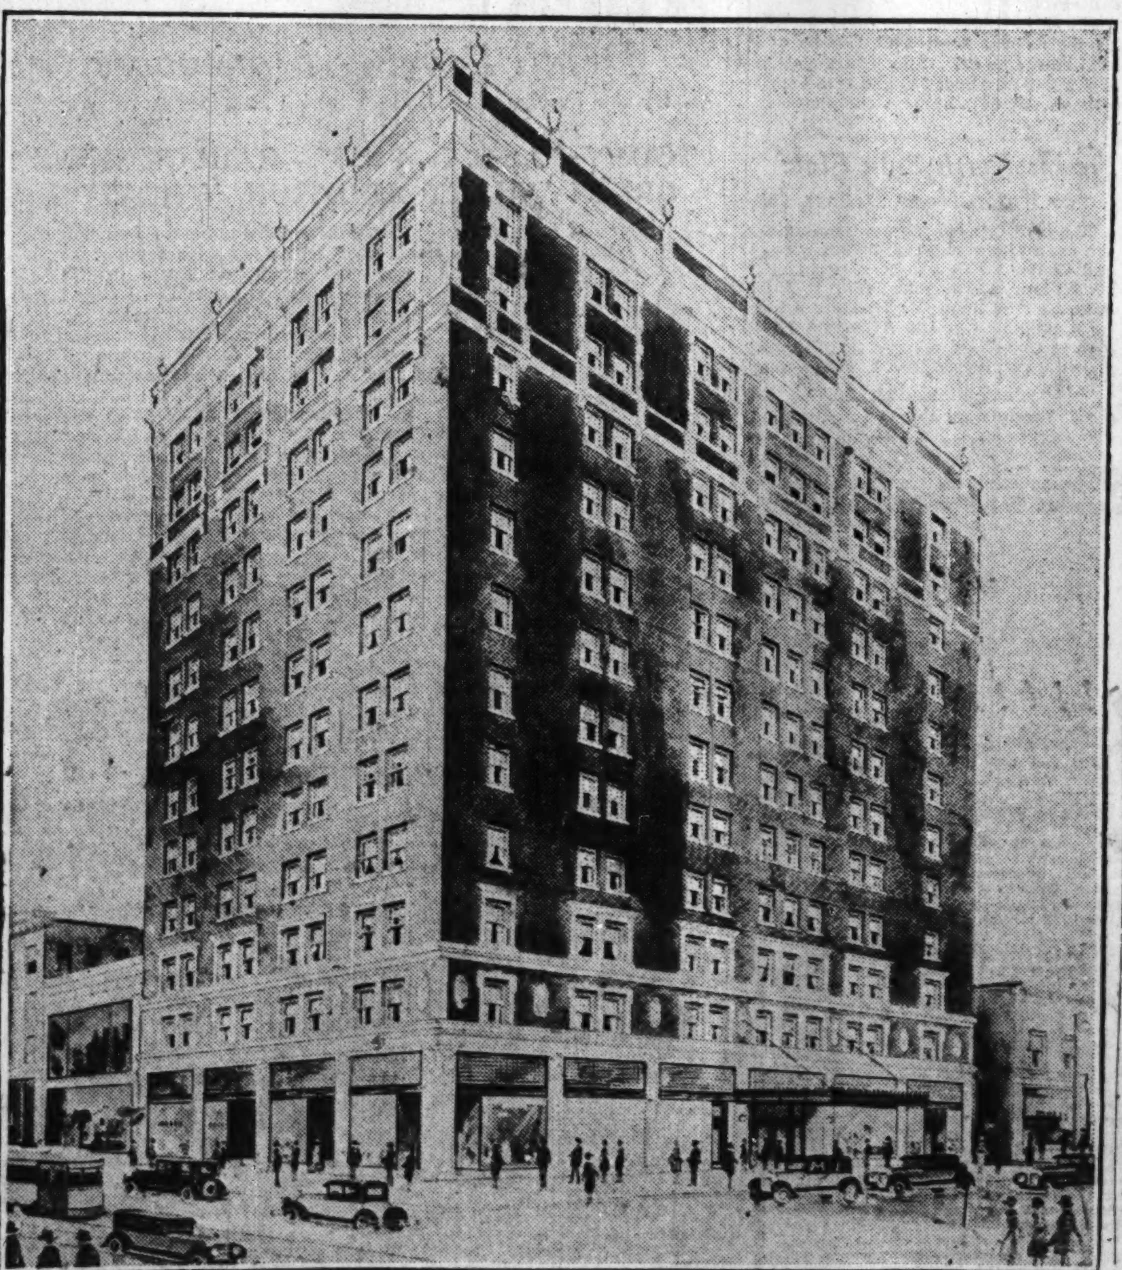
The building at 2441 West Division, containing two stores and four halls, was given as part payment at $70,000.

FULLERTON PARKWAY APARTMENTS



Here we have shown the seventeen story coöperative apartment building which will be erected at 399 Fullerton parkway, as recently told about in these columns. McNally & Quinn are the architects, and their design is a modern adaptation of the French renaissance. There are to be sixteen eight room apartments with three baths and fifteen nine room aptrtments with four baths. The owners will be a corporation formed by J. Edwin Quinn and Frank McNally. The project will represent an investment of $1,500,000, it is stated, and S. W. Straus & Co. have agreed to underwrite a bond issue of $950,000 on it. B. C. Greengard made the rendering.

SKYSCRAPER FOR NORTH SIDE



A. L. Levy and William J. Klein, with A. Epstein, associate, designed the above Hotel Huron, to be erected at the southwest corner of Clark and Huron, on a 66x110 site, as told about more fully in a nearby column. Martin Stolze made the above rendering.

EDISON ELECTRIC COMPANY BUYS 2 FACTORY SITES

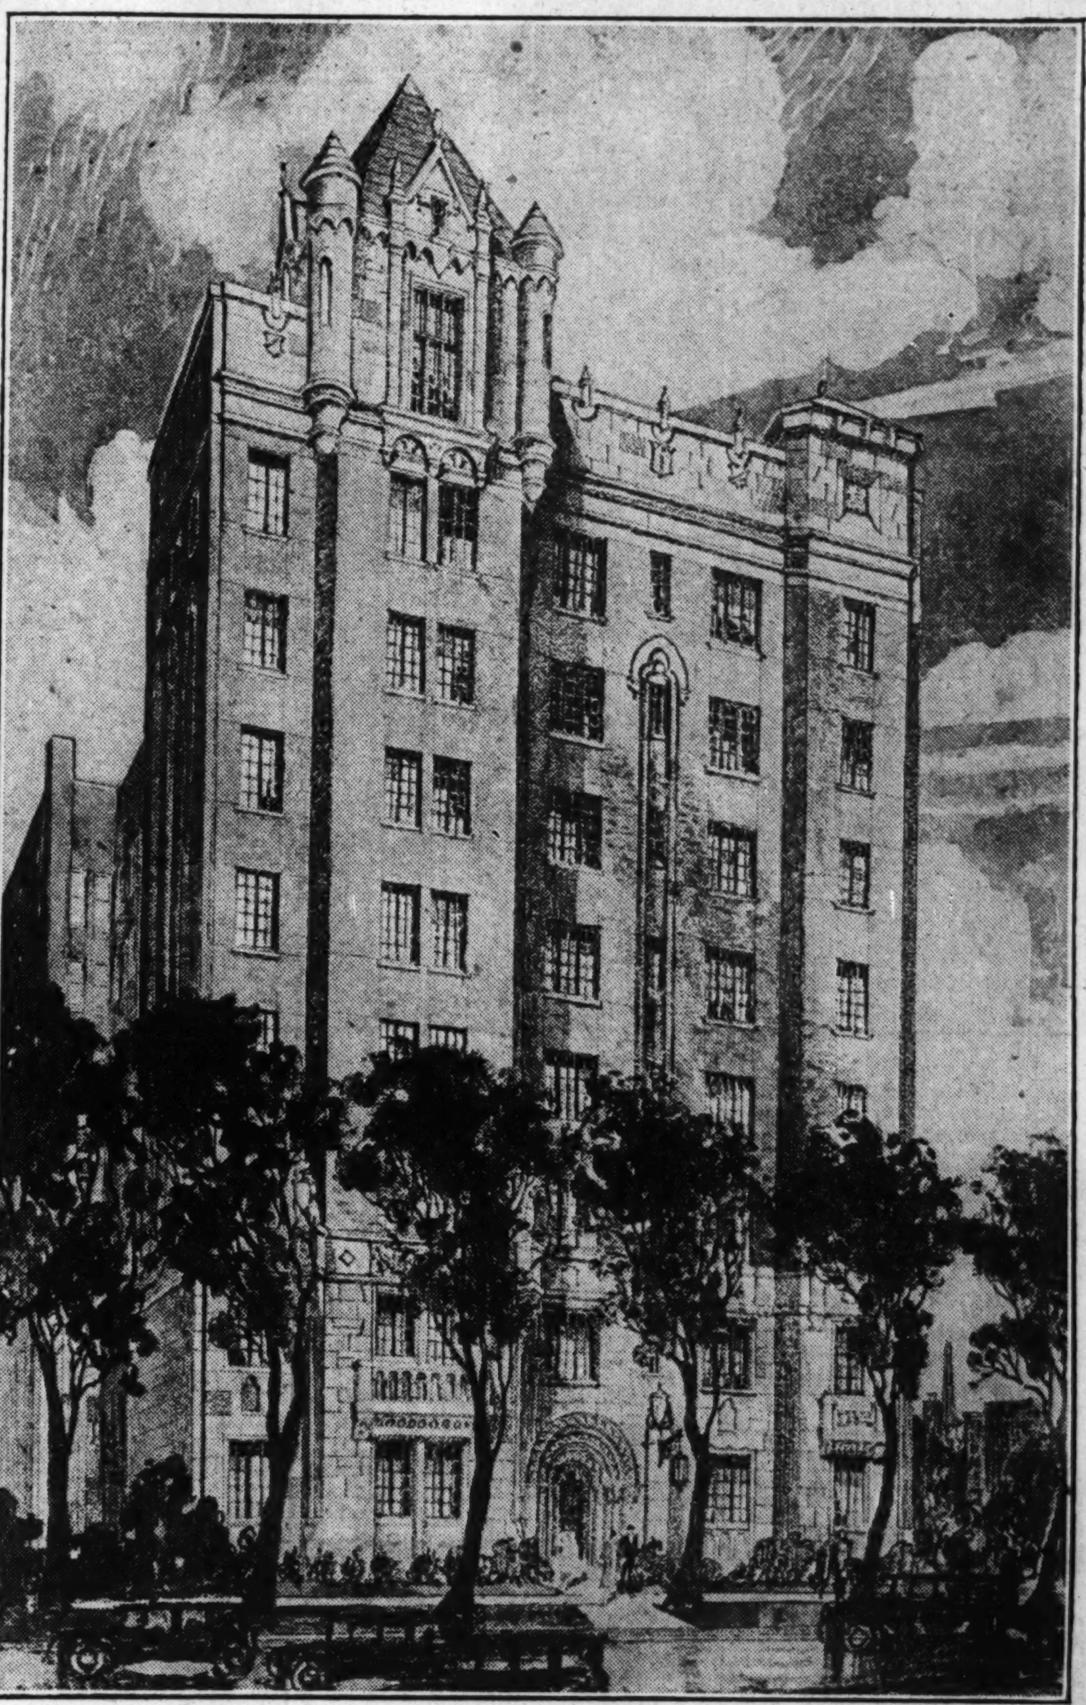
The Edison Electric Appliance company, Inc., manufacturers of "Hot Point" electrical appliances, has recently completed an expansion program of first importance. The firm's present factories have been overtaxed for some time because of its constantly increasing business.

In one deal the company bought a six story fireproof building at 1910-28 South 52d avenue for use as a factory. This building adds 200,000 square feet of floor space to the firm's manufacturing facilities.

And last week the concern bought the property of the R. M. Eddy Foundry company at the northeast corner of Taylor street and Menard avenue, adjoining its main plant, for a reported price of $128,112. The property contains 197,100 square feet and is located on the Baltimore and Ohio railway.

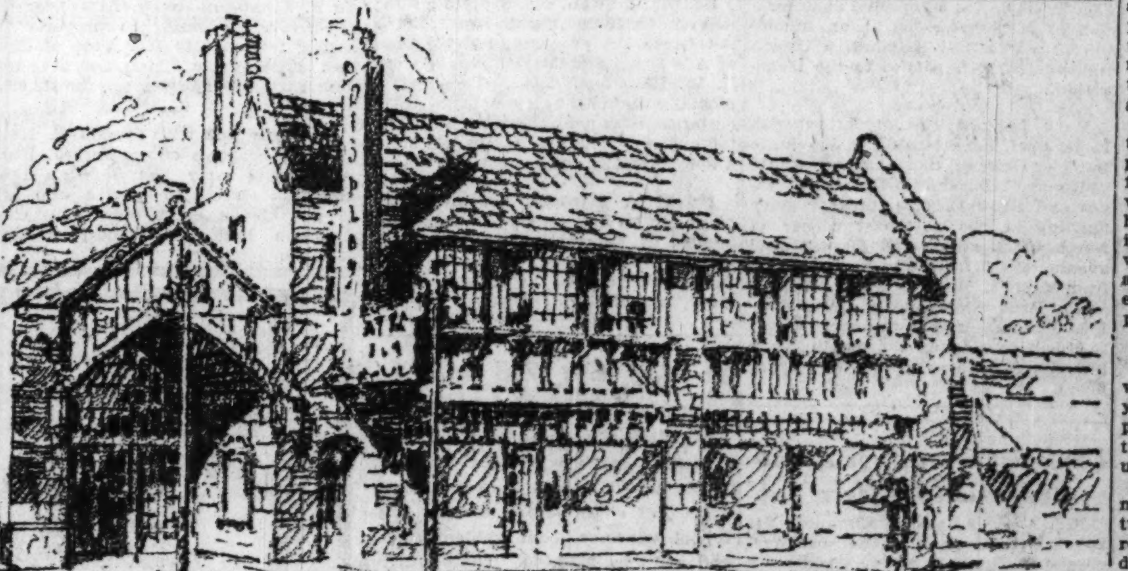
Hodge, Nicolson & Porter, Inc., represented all parties as broker in the latter deal. The legal details were attended to by Ednyfed H. Williams for the buyer and by Castle, Williams, Long & Castle for the seller.

ADDITION TO SOUTH SIDE



Work is to start immediately on an eight story apartment building at 6104-06-08 Woodlawn avenue, to be known as the Midway-Woodlawn. The architect is Frederick Stanton. The design is Norman Gothic, and this feature will be emphasized through a tower on the roof which will contain a large apartment. The main structure will contain 100 apartments of two and three rooms. Garard & Co. have underwritten a $365,000 bond issue on the project. The above rendering made by Charles Morgan.

QUAINTNESS KEYNOTE OF SUBURBAN CINEMA



Barrington believes in keeping its architecture suburban rather than in having it metropolitan, so its new cinema is to be old English in style, with the usual spectacular features of the big city picture palace absent. Betts & Holcomb designed it for W. B. Catlow, owner of the present Barrington Auditorium, which is to be used for civic and various local affairs when the new Auditorium, shown above, is completed. In addition to an 800 seat theater, the building will contain two stores and four small apartments. Further details are given in another column. F. M. Holcomb made the rendering.

KNIGHTLY DAYS TO FIND ECHO IN NEW APARTMENT

Norman Gothic is the style of architecture of a handsome new eight story apartment building which will be erected at 6104-06-08 Woodlawn avenue from plans drawn by Frederick Stanton. The structure will be located in the Woodlawn district, six blocks west of Jackson park and a block south of the Midway plaisance.

There are to be 100 apartments of two and three rooms, all equipped with the latest devices to make living in the city agreeable. Two elevators will serve the structure.

The exterior is to be of red face brick with cut stone trim. The first two floors are to be of cut stone, ornately carved. Construction is to be of reinforced concrete.

An interesting feature will be a tower containing a large apartment. The tower will be perched on the roof in the manner of an old French castle on a cliff or hill. Turrets will recall the day when knights were bold and ladies were even more fair than they are now, or anyhow so 'tis said. The lucky occupant of this apartment is to have a two story living room and it is supposed that he will have a few suits of armor scattered about it in to obtain the proper knightly atmosphere.

The tower also will serve to hide the penthouses which are to be placed a few feet back of it, thus doubly serving the cause of a more beautiful Chicago.

Frederick Winston & Co. are the builders and Garard & Co. have underwritten a bond issue of $365,000 on the project. Work starts right away and completion is expected in five or six months.

MASONS OF SOUTH SIDE ANNOUNCE NEW GOLF CLUB

The Euclid Hills Country club has just been organized by South Side Masons for golfers in their ranks. The club has purchased 160 acres of rolling wooded land on 143d street, a mile east of Keane avenue, from A. S. Johnson for an undisclosed price.

There will be an eighteen and a nine hole course, the former of which will be ready to play in July, 1927. Ladies will be permitted to play on the nine hole course on Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

The club has 350 members and will operate at first as a fee course. A clubhouse is to be built and it will contain the appurtenances for the comfort of the golfers. S. D. Steele of Neil H. Bowles & Co. represented both parties in the purchase of the land.

DU PAGE COUNTY COMMUNITY TO PLAN FAR AHEAD

Park District to Be First Step.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

PAUL H. BOECKER.
[Le Bau Photo.]

Naperville, which prides itself on having been a thriving pioneer community "long before Chicago was ever dreamed of," a city of 6,000 and growing fast, is contemplating one of the most ambitious and far seeing park developments of any city in the Chicago district. If it is carried out, as proposed by the Naperville Association of Commerce, of which Paul H. Boecker is president, the city will place itself near the top notch in the list of progressive communities of the world.

The development, which is contingent on the city voting shortly its approval of a park district and board of commissioners, is divided into two parts.

Plan River Park.

One contemplates the creation of a lovely park along the banks of the Du Page river, which winds through the town in such a picturesque manner that it's almost unbelievable that the town hasn't awakened to its beauties long ago and converted them into a public breathing space.

The second, and equally important step, is to acquire several thousand acres of land on all sides of the community, for future development as parks. With old Pa Dearborn reaching out farther and farther with his suburban subdivision development, this latter step is one that must be taken promptly or never taken at all.

Will Surpass All America.

This means that if Naperville takes these two steps it will place itself on a pinnacle of progressiveness from which it can look down on Lake Forest, Winnetka, and other north shore towns and with equal equanimity on Hinsdale, Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, and other western suburbs. There'll be no city of its size in the Chicago district, and so far as we know, none in America with such a park and playground area.

Of course, the land to be acquired will not be paid for entirely by Naperville's present citizens. Bond issues will see to it that future generations pay their proportion. But the present residents will reap much of the benefits sure to result from increased property values inside the city limits as Naperville develops this magnificent park project.

Urges Civic Awakening.

Chance S. Hill, Chicago landscape architect, has made a report on the proposed river park development to the Naperville Association of Commerce which, if carried out, will give the city one of the most interesting and beautiful river parks in America.

"Here is your community, destined to grow rapidly, and yet it has not possessed itself of any portion of the frontage along a picturesque stream winding its way through the very heart of the city," comments Mr. Hill in his report. "This stream, even when subject to such utter neglect and abuse as it now suffers, is conceded by every beholder to have a remarkable picturesque quality.

"Wide Awake in Most Particulars."

"Here is your community, rich and wide awake in most particulars and yet with apparent indifference on the part of most of its citizens, allowing, through delay, its choicest piece of natural beauty to be destroyed."

The Naperville Association of Commerce has a membership of more than two hundred. Truman Myers is secretary and Winn Knocke was president preceding Mr. Boecker.

BARRINGTON TO HAVE QUAINT OLD ENGLISH MOVIE

Betts & Holcomb, Chicago architects, are going to give Barrington, through W. B. Catlow, owner of the present Barrington auditorium, one of the most attractive small playhouses to be found in any suburb. Instead of the garish, over decorated filmum palace some of our Chicago movie magnates delight in, and often inflict on our suburbs, Barrington is to have a smart little cinema of old English half timbered effect.

It's to be on Main street, a block from the center of town, and will have 800 seats with provision for more if needed. The lobby will be a story and a half high with timber roof. It is proposed to eliminate the conventional canopy and replace it with an awning secured to the lamp posts, shown in the drawing. Another novelty is contemplated: the regulation orchestra pit will be replaced with a musicians' gallery on one side of the proscenium opening and organ console gallery on the other.

Mr. Catlow hopes to start work on his new Auditorium theater at once. It will be ready around the first of the year. The cost is estimated by Betts & Holcomb at $95,000. It will have a frontage on Main street of sixty-six feet, with a depth of 190 feet.

LABORITE SEES ELECTRIC LINE AS TOILERS' AID

Brings Work Nearer to Homes.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Electrification of the various railroad suburban systems in the Chicago terminal district will have a great beneficial effect on all classes of wage earners, asserted Irwin "Bosco" Knott, business agent of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, local No. 9, last night in discussing the city's housing problem.

IRWIN "BOSCO" KNOTT.

The change from steam and grime to electricity, said "Bosco," is bound to reduce the congestion which now exists in many parts of the city, districts in which live wage earners who have large families and small pay envelopes. Heretofore, pointed out the union leader, most of these workers lived in proximity to places of employment, transportation being the most important factor entering into the selection of homes.

"But with the time of travel now to be greatly reduced by electrification and new districts being reclaimed for home building purposes many workers and their families are given an opportunity to purchase homes," Knott said.

Hard Roads Are Factors.

"Land values of these new districts are so priced that virtually all classes of wage earners can have a healthy whack at them; it gives them an opportunity of building their own homes. Hard roads, too, are important factors in influencing wage earners to cut adrift from the congested city districts and live out in the open country. While the out to the country movement has started it will become more pronounced in six months."

Since the Illinois Central railroad began electrification of its suburban system eleven months ago from Matteson to Randolph street, "Bosco" supervised the stringing of wires and the installation of other electrical appurtenances. He also had direct charge of similar work for the South Shore and Skokie Valley lines. On the three jobs wires were strung for a distance of about 185 miles. The I. C. job alone totaled approximately 125 miles, during the erection of which two electricians were killed and three injured. When the wires were strung for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad thirty-six men were killed and fifteen were injured.

Knott on Job.

It was said yesterday that no labor disputes marred the electrical installation on either of the three transportation systems. From the time the jobs were started until completion Knott personally supervised the work. This was something new in the trade union movement.

If any of the electricians had a grievance, imaginary or real, it was taken directly to "Bosco" who would thrash out the complaint and decide whether there were grounds for adjustment. In the meanwhile the complainant was told to resume work immediately, the manifestation of any sign of hesitancy being cause for discharge. In the event the "kick" was justified it was taken up with the employer and adjusted accordingly.

Practically 50 per cent of the electricians who worked on electrification of the I. C., the South Shore and Skokie Valley lines came to Chicago from the Pacific coast states, the camping ground for wobblies or ultra radicals. But under the direct union control system inaugurated by "Bosco" the grievances were handled in such a way that it is said even the radicals were satisfied with conditions. On practically all the electrical construction the electricians received $12 a day, for eight hours' work, double time for Saturday afternoon and Sunday employment.

Conservative Leader.

It was said the electricians from the Pacific coast were employed on a union permit system; the mechanics from local No. 9 of course worked on their own union cards.

In the labor movement of Illinois "Bosco" has been the leader of the conservative element which has openly fought all forms of radical propaganda and communist agitators in labor's ranks. He was generally selected as the lead-off man in labor conventions by the conservatives to put a crimp in plans of communists to start a one big union and to follow other ideas which smacked of Moscow odor.

He has said on various occasions that he could walk into a labor convention or meeting of any kind and put his finger on the ultra radicals by the shapes of their heads. He said most of them resemble children who fell out of perambulators on their heads when in a state of infancy.

"Yes, sir," said "Bosco" at the 1924 convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor, "by their heads ye shall know them."

Crawford-Chicago Corner Changes Hands; $110,000

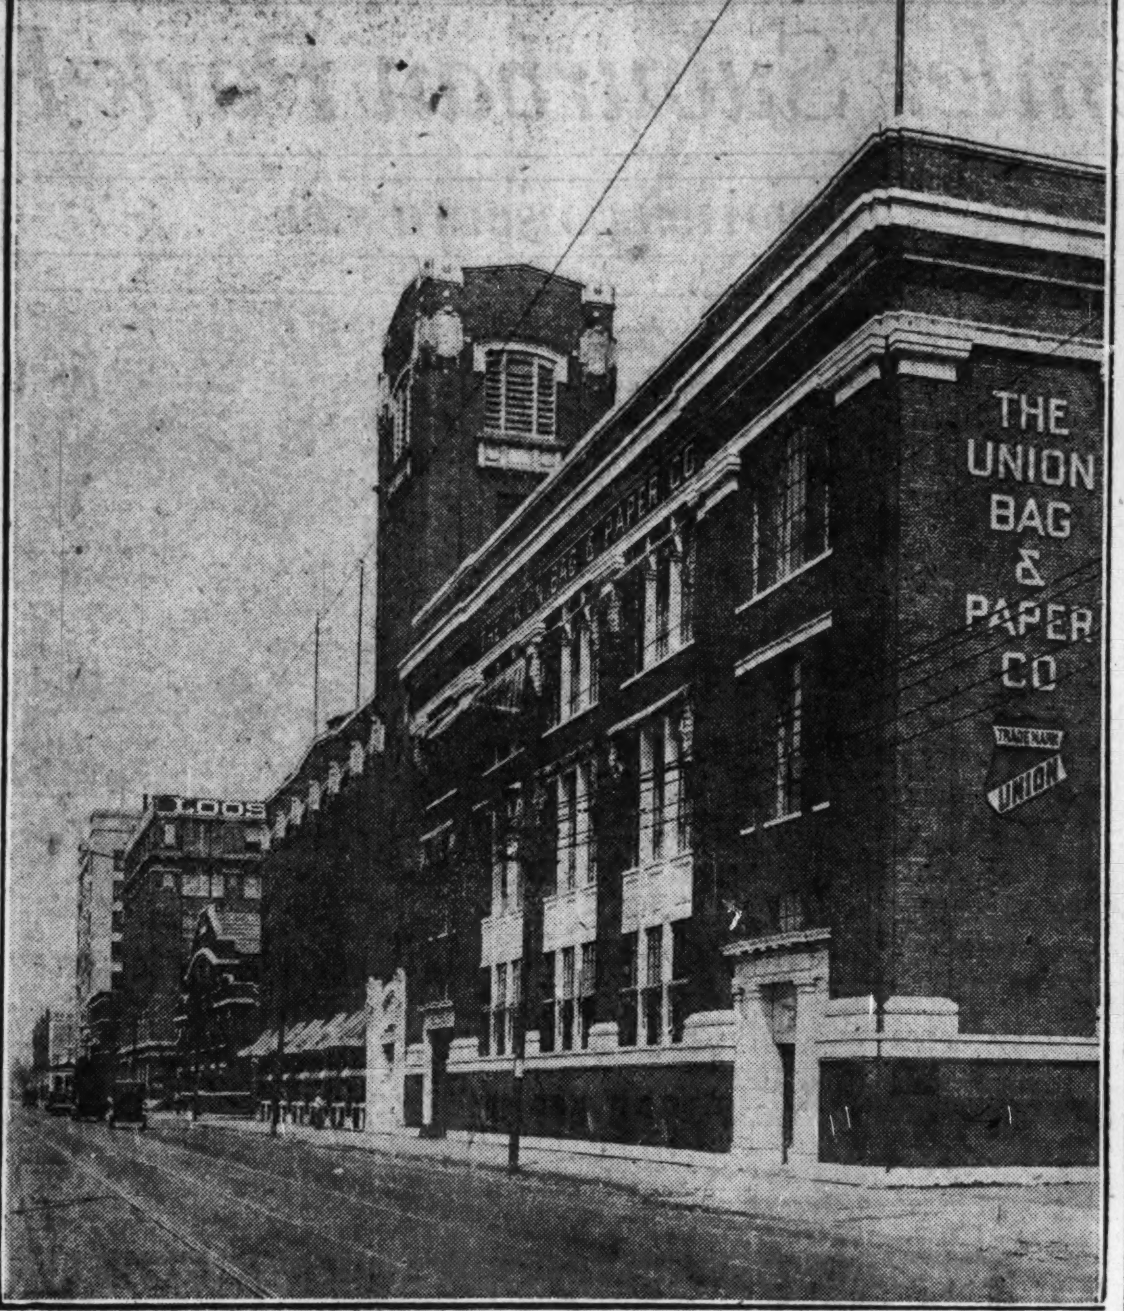
Louis Del Carlo and Albert Bolognesi have sold to Madeline Zimmerman and Harry Robbin the two story building, 97x125, at the northeast corner of Chicago and Crawford avenues for a reported $110,000, subject to $62,400. It contains eight stores six apartments, and several offices.

The buyers gave in exchange the two stores and dance halls at 2441-43 West Division street, at an undisclosed price, subject to $32,300. Magnuson & Co. were brokers.

Twelve Flat Building at Vernon Avenue-82d Sold

The twelve flats at the northeast corner of 82d and Vernon were sold by Anderson & Nelson to Isaac Kauffman for a reported 68,000, subject to $35,000, through M. Hoffman & Co.

USING GOOD TASTE AND COMMON SENSE



Here's a picture sent The Tribune by J. R. Whidden, sales manager of the Central Manufacturing District, which shows what can be done if owner and architect combine to use a little good taste and common sense in the construction of roof tanks. It's the building of the Pullman Couch company at 3759 South Ashland avenue, in the Central Manufacturing District.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To Aug. 1, 1916; 10 Years Ago Today

P. D. Armour III. has closed the purchase of three tracts of land in the north part of Lake Forest, comprising about 165 acres, which, it is stated, he will improve as a handsome country residence. He acquired from E. C. Waller a tract of 150 acres on Green Bay road, from the estate of C. O. Young six acres, and from Daniel Voltz nine acres. The consideration is withheld on each transaction, but it is said the total was around $200,000.

The six apartment building at 2207-09 Beacon street, lot 59x125 feet, west front, was sold by Walter G. Young, real estate operator, to Clyde A. and Ella T. Gable for a reported consideration of $28,000, subject to an incumbrance of $20,075. Lamont & Clasen represented both parties to the transaction.

Mark Levy & Bro., together with L. R. Cerf, have leased for the State Bank of Chicago, trustee of the estate of Henry C. Durand, to Gustav Mavrakos and Peter Briskas the four story building at the northeast corner of North Clark street and West Grand avenue, 40x80 feet. The lease extends from Aug. 1, 1916, to April 30, 1931, and is for a reported term rent of $95,250. The lessees plan to expend about $5,000 in remodeling the building into five stores, with a hotel in the upper floors.

To Aug. 1, 1896; 30 Years Ago Today

The property at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Madison street has been leased by A. Montgomery Ward & Co. from the Catholic bishop of Chicago for a term of years extending from July 15, 1896, to May 31, 1940. The annual rental is fixed by the lease at $6,500 until June, 1910; $7,600 from 1910 to 1925, and $11,400 for the rest of the term. The ground fronts thirty-eight feet deep on Michigan avenue and is 162 feet deep on Madison. The property is occupied at present by a six story building, which will be replaced by a modern structure to correspond with the present building of the firm.

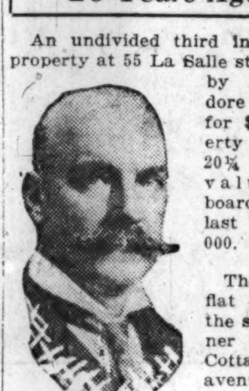
A. MONTGOMERY WARD.

Eckhart & Swan, who operate a flour mill at 68 North Canal street, have purchased the property, 122x279 feet, at Ada street and Carroll avenue from F. W. Hess for $75,000. The land is partially occupied by three large grain elevators with a total capacity of 800,000 bushels. The purchasers will build a new flour mill to cost $80,000.

Bright & Burfiend are preparing plans for an apartment building to be erected at Emerald avenue near 68th street for Dr. McNat. It will be 50x76 feet, three stories high, with stone front, and will cost $16,000.

To Aug. 1, 1906; 20 Years Ago Today

An undivided third interest in the property at 55 La Salle street was sold by Judge Theodore B. Wagner for $1. The property is 16½ by 20¼ feet and was valued by the board of review last year at $59,000.



THEODORE BRENTANO.

The store and flat property at the southeast corner of 65th and Cottage Grove avenue, with 98x108 feet of ground was conveyed for a consideration of $1 by L. H. Thompson of Neenah, Wis., to Jay W. Thompson, and was conveyed subsequently by the latter to Robert Bartlett for $70,000, subject to an incumbrance of $27,500.

William A. Bond & Co. sold for Jessie F. Dickinson to Dr. Alexander C. Soper Jr. the residence property in Junior terrace, 280 feet west of Halsted street [now Clarendon avenue] with a three story residence for $12,000.

In connection with Walter S. Ross of Perry Ulrich's office, Burt J. Fitzgerald sold sixty feet between 13th and 14th streets to parties who are to put up an eight story mill construction building to cost around $100,000.

Elmhurst Man Buys Acres in Bartlett for New 'Sub'

Frank W. Moreau of Elmhurst has purchased 135 acres in the northwest corner of Bartlett, a tiny community in Cook county, just across the Du Page county line, and will place it on the market soon with sewer, water, and sidewalks installed. Every fifth lot is to be used for immediate building.

St. Michael's Will Build South Shore Drive School

St. Michael's parish of the Roman Catholic church will build a branch to its parish school in South Shore drive just south of 82d street. The school will have about eighteen rooms and will cost $150,000. There will be accommodations for 800 pupils. The main school building of the parish is at Brandon and 83d, where 1,800 children are in attendance. Father Lange is in charge of the parish.

Opportunity ! ! ! ! ! !

We are opening two New Sales Divisions to operate on the North Side and the West Side.

We will need Division Managers acquainted with the North Side or the West Side, and who can qualify by their past record and conduct to join a high grade go-getting group of real salesmen and saleswomen—who believe in the future of Chicago and in the tremendous profits that will be made in years to come in Chicago Real Estate.

We need Sales Managers and Salesmen for these two New Sales Divisions, and will give them the kind of support and co-operation for which this organization has already established a reputation.

We will teach salesmen from other fields this wonderful business, just as we ourselves, from other fields, have learned it and have taught others.

I will be glad to interview personally men and women who want to mould a future for themselves in a sound business and in a real organization.

We provide every last thing that a sales organization should require—and we back that up through a group of executives, every one of whom has an established reputation in this business as being able, aggressive, human and square.

See me today—I will put my time against yours.

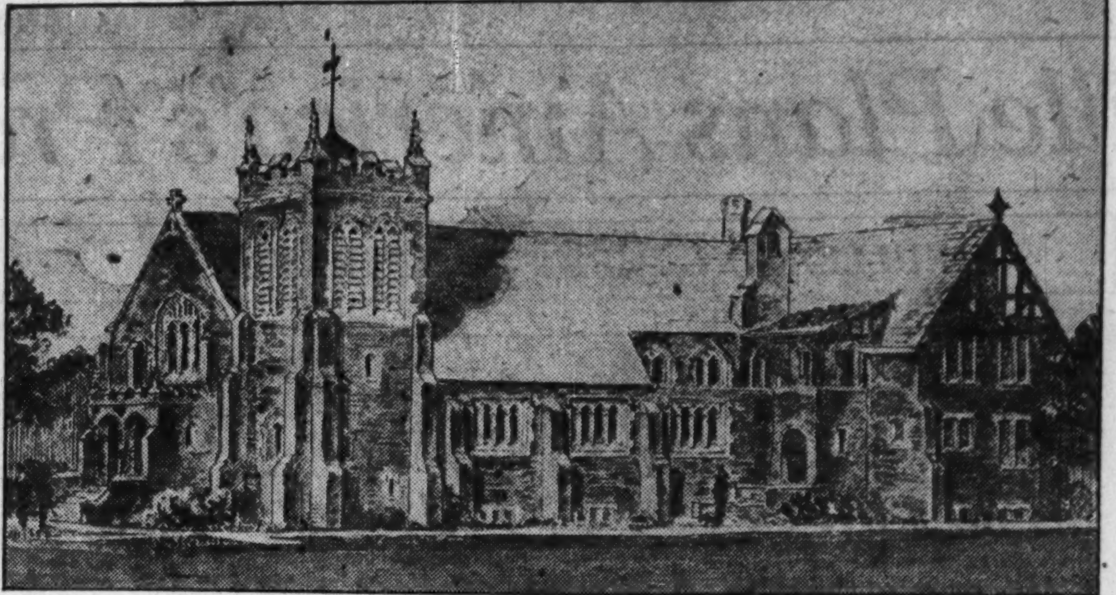
OUT OF THE PAST



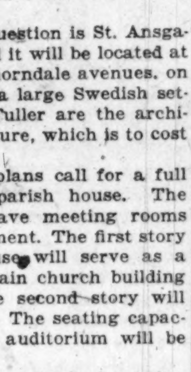
The gentle spirit of Jennie Lind, the "Swedish nightingale," will very likely hover over the new church which will be erected at Maplewood and Thorndale avenues for the congregation of St. Ansgarius Episcopal parish. For the noted songbird, during her tour of America long ago, gave $1,500, which helped to start the church. And now the new building is planned partly as a memorial to her. Otis & Fuller are the architects.

NEW NORTH SIDE CHURCH HONORS NOTED SONGBIRD

Episcopalians Plan a New Home.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

It may seem a bit out of place to have the name of Jenny Lind, the "Swedish nightingale," figuring in Chicago real estate news at this date, but it does, and here's why. Some seventy-five years ago, when she was making her triumphant tour over America, she gave $1,500 toward the construction of a Swedish church in Chicago.



JENNIE LIND.

And although this church went out of existence for some time, its former members revived it and they have launched a campaign to put up a new structure which will serve in part as a memorial to the singer.

The church in question is St. Ansgarius' Episcopal and it will be located at Maplewood and Thorndale avenues, on the north side, in a large Swedish settlement. Otis & Fuller are the architects for the structure, which is to cost $50,000.

The architects' plans call for a full basement and a parish house. The basement is to have meeting rooms and athletic equipment. The first story of the parish house will serve as a chapel until the main church building is completed. The second story will house the rectory. The seating capacity of the church auditorium will be 300.

The Rev. W. Blomquist is the pastor of the congregation, members of which have contributed $6,000 toward the new edifice. The bishop and council of the Episcopal church in Chicago purchased the lots on which the church will stand.

The first building occupied by St. Ansgarius was located at Illinois and Franklin streets. The congregation now numbers about 150 and it is hoped to have the development completed in a year.

Trades North Side Flats for Farm Near Dixon, Ill.

The eighteen apartment building at the northeast corner of Clifton avenue and Center street has been exchanged by William Hardt with Mary E. Haddock and William E. Hackett for a farm near Dixon, Ill. Theodore Eiseman of Delano, Kastens & Co., William Hardt & Co., and Maher & Maher were brokers.

BUYS RIDGEWOOD DRIVE RESIDENCE.

Dr. Van Nuys has bought the residence at Ridgewood and De Tamble for a reported $28,000. F. B. Williams was broker.

Beg Your Pardon

Margaret J. Dahlman was the only broker in the recent Casa del Mar club transaction, announced in this section two weeks ago as contemplated for the southeast corner of 74th street and South Shore drive.

The Forrester building is to be erected at 1312-14 Lunt avenue and not at 1910-12 Lunt avenue, as stated in The Tribune last Sunday.

Samuel Rifus Will Erect Garage in Phillips Avenue

Samuel Rifus will erect a large public garage in Phillips avenue, north of and adjoining the B. & O. railway, on a piece of property fronting 188 feet on the west side of the street, which he recently purchased from Charles Corkery for a reported price of $25,000. Louis A. Snitzer was broker.

"PAPER CENTER OF U. S." GETS MORE TENANTS

The Conway building's claim to being the paper center of the United States, based on its having seventy-five tenants identified with the paper industry, is strengthened by a lease closed yesterday with the Container Corporation of America.

This concern has rented practically the entire ninth floor. It is a merger of the paperboard division of the Chicago Mill and Lumber company, Philadelphia Paper Manufacturing company, Cincinnati Corrugated Box company, and the Mid-West Box company. All the companies, with the exception of the last mentioned, including the Paepcke-Leicht Lumber company and the lumber and wood box divisions of the Chicago Mill and Lumber company, are now located in the Boyce building, 510 North Dearborn, and expect to move into their new offices on Sept. 1.

A NEW IDEA FOR 5 SALESMEN

These are facts, straight from the shoulder. I spent 9 years working out a new idea in real estate, right here in Chicago. The plan works. Real estate experts, architects and banks who have seen this plan pronounced it the best ever conceived. Six months ago I made arrangements to put the idea to work on a larger scale. During the past six months I have, with several assistants, been doing research work, compiling data, and making charts and drawings to help my new sales force. I want just 5 men who can help do a real job.

No Limit To Earnings

The nature of my plan is such that any salesman can make more money than he ever made before. That's a bold statement, but I mean it. This is not subdivision work, not homes, but the application of a scientific system of selling improved property located in a busy section of Chicago, where deals run into millions of dollars. Contact is with substantial buyers, for investment principally, and there is no limit to the possibilities. If you like real estate, enjoy meeting people and selling something worth while; and want to set yourself for maximum earnings on a permanent basis, with steady growing business, every month and every year to an established clientele,

Get in on this

Only 5 men will be added now. Telephone me at Central 8147 as soon as possible to arrange an interview. I can show you a real idea, and a real opportunity.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

CHICAGO ZONING LAW PUT IN PERIL BY AMENDMENT

New York Observes 10th Birthday of Act.

EDWIN W. SIMS.

Chicago's zoning law, designed to permit the city to grow along orderly lines, to segregate residential districts from commercial and industrial localities, while at the same time enabling commerce and industry to march forward unhindered is in danger of defeating its own aims, according to Edwin W. Sims, an attorney with the firm of Sims, Welch, Godman, and Stransky.

And the harm to the well ordered growth of the city that might result from any crippling of the zoning law can be visualized when is considered the remarkable success of the zoning law in New York City, which has recently observed the tenth anniversary of this ordinance.

The law is credited with raising the standards of construction in the "big city" during this period to a position second to none. Chicago's zoning law was passed by the city council on April 5, 1923.

Row Over Rezoning.

The attack on the ordinance here is the result of an amendment to the law which rezones the Keeney industrial district from an industrial to a residential section. This area is bounded by Central, Mansfield, and Bloomingdale avenues and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway.

It was purchased by the Phipps Industrial Land Trust on the understanding that it had been zoned for industrial purposes and would be so used. But despite the opposition of the Chicago Real Estate board, the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers' association, an amendment was passed by the city council re-zoning it for residential purposes.

Mr. Sims has recently filed a bill in the Circuit court attacking the validity of the amendment, asking that it be declared void and that the cloud which it puts on the title of the Phipps trust be removed.

Depends on Fairness.

"The zoning plan means much to Chicago," Mr. Sims said. "The success of the plan depends upon the fairness and intelligence of the exercise of the zoning power. Abuses will defeat the plan. The zoning principle is a good thing, but a continuation of the present loose and unintelligent method of exercising the power in Chicago will ultimately defeat the purpose of the law.

"Chicago's growth depends upon its industrial expansion. It is a fine thing to have parks and wide boulevards, flower beds, and lawns and shrubs, but if the city is to continue its development as a great city, industries which provide employment for its citizens must be encouraged and maintained.

"Many areas originally zoned as industrial have been encroached upon by other usage, and the areas now available adjacent to railroad tracks are very limited, especially on the northwest side. If property adjacent to railroads, naturally adapted to manufacturing purposes and zoned for such purposes can be lightly re-zoned for apartments or other uses, it will reduce the values of other property zoned as industrial, deter the industrial growth of Chicago and destroy the confidence of the public in zoning."

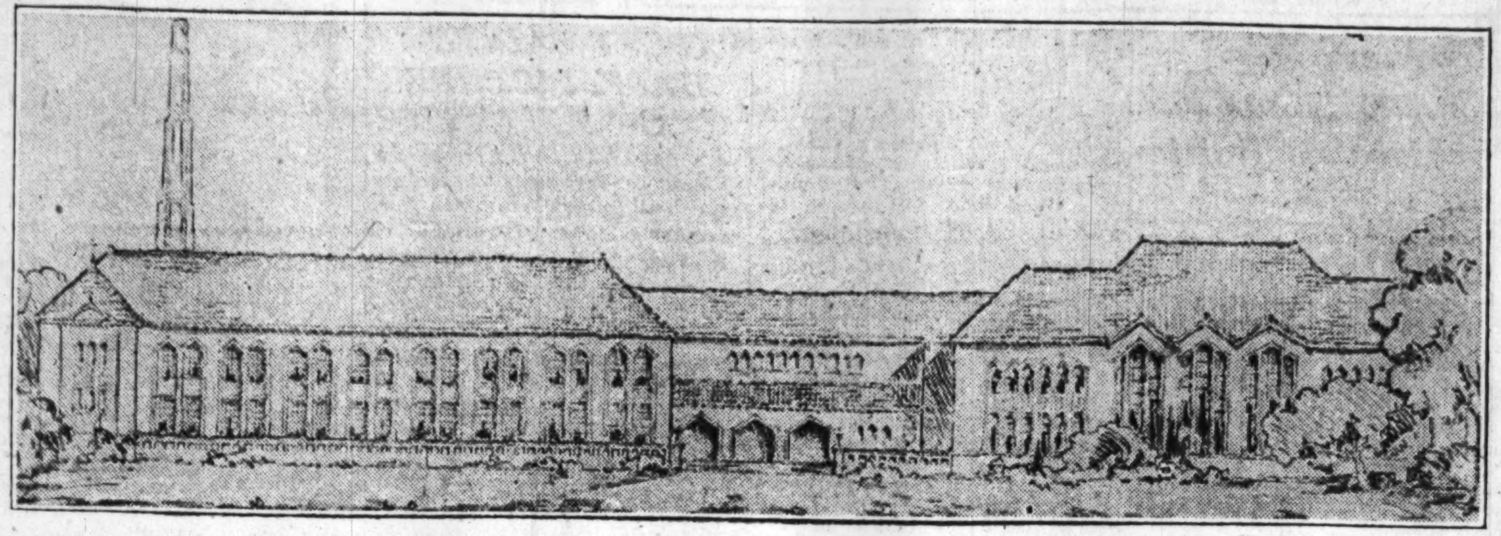
Success in New York.

In discussing the operation of the zoning law in New York, it is stated that although many sections of the city have undergone marked change during the last ten years, the character of building has advanced, thus giving the metropolis its enviable position.

The board in its decade of existence has handled 20,000 cases, of which 17,000 have been settled. The operation of the law in New York has been particularly difficult in many respects because of the haphazard growth of the city in its early days and the congestion.

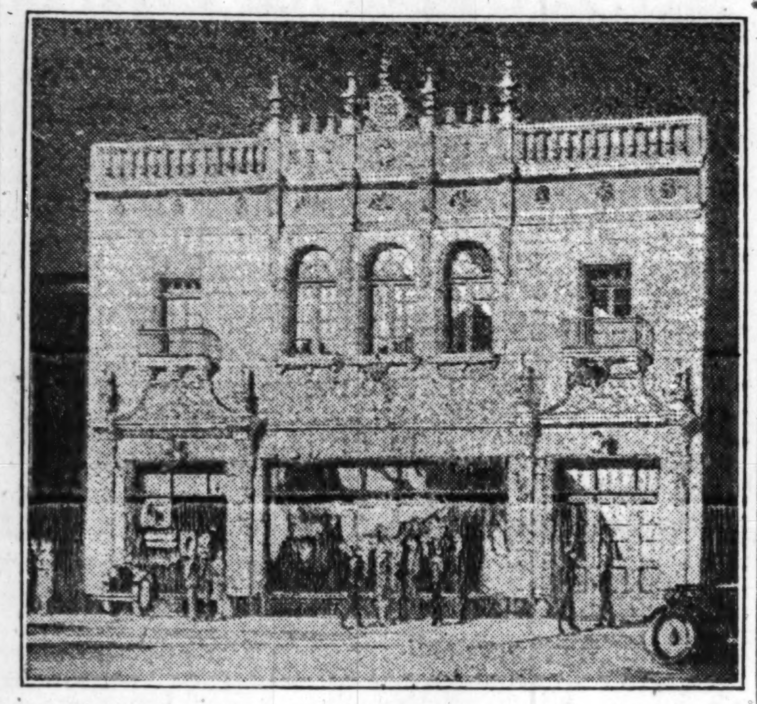
New York found that only a few changes were necessary to make its law more flexible and to take care of conditions for which it had not been able to make provision.

NESTLED AMIDST GIANT OAKS



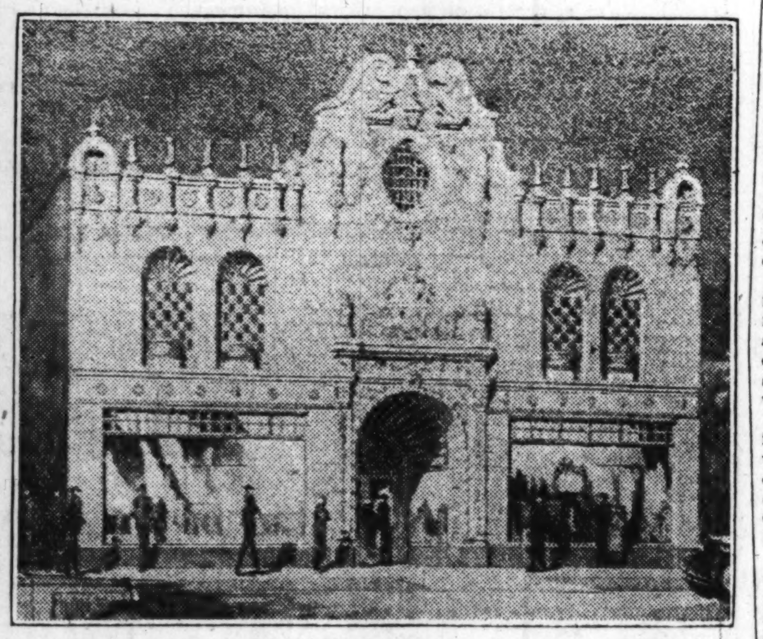
Work is under way on the first unit of a group of buildings which is to be erected for the Holy Child High school at Waukegan, Ill. The group is to consist of a high school, an auditorium and a gymnasium, a dormitory for boarding pupils, and a convent and chapel. The high school is now in process of construction. Barry Byrne is the architect. The school's campus comprises a ten acre tract, covered with giant oaks, lying along Sheridan road. The institution is conducted by the Society of the Holy Child Jesus, a religious order founded by Mother Connelly, an American woman, in England, during the middle of the last century.

ON HALSTED STREET



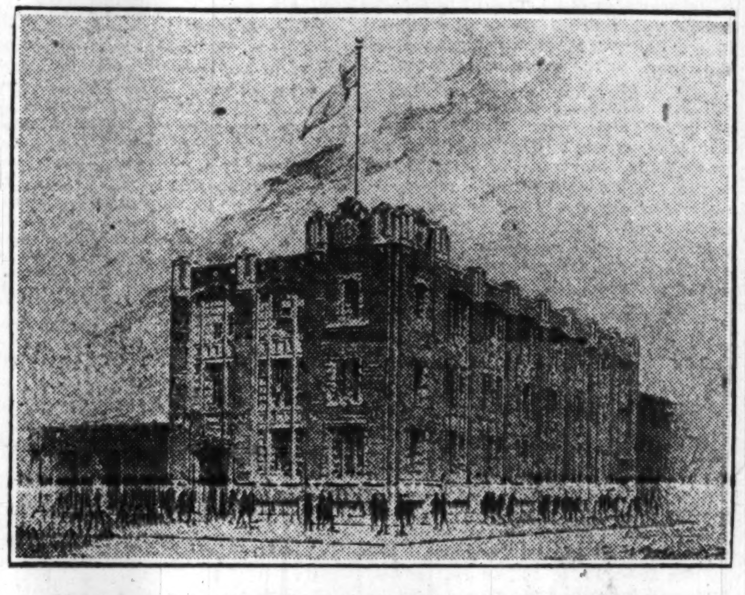
Charles Lange & Bros., Buick distributors, are building their fourth automobile sales building. Their new structure extends from 3161 North Clark street through to 3152 North Halsted street. It's to be of Spanish style architecture and it was designed by Clarence Hatzfeld. L. B. Sugarman made the above rendering.

CLARK STREET FRONT



The picture shown above illustrates the Clark street elevation of a $150,000 building which has been started at 3161 North Clark street for Charles Lange & Bro. The structure will contain automobile showrooms, stores, and offices. Clarence Hatzfeld is the architect. The design is Spanish, and provision is made for an artistic lighting arrangement at night. L. B. Sugarman made the above rendering.

SUPPORTED BY FARMERS



Work is under way on the new $200,000 home of the Prairie Farmer, the oldest publication in Chicago, at 1230 West Washington boulevard. Mundie & Jensen are the architects. Completion is set for November.

PRAIRIE FARMER ERECTS NEW HOME TO COST $200,000

Under Construction on West Side.

The Prairie Farmer, one of the oldest agricultural journals in the world, is to celebrate its eighty-eighth birthday some time next November by moving into a handsome new home which is now under construction at 1230 West Washington boulevard. This farm paper is the oldest publication in Chicago, having been founded in the year 1841.

The new home is to be three stories in height, of Gothic design. The foundation has been built to carry two additional floors when needed. Mundie & Jensen are the architects for the structure, which will represent an investment of $200,000 when completed.

The history of the journal is most interesting, being so closely connected with the growth of Chicago—the agricultural center of the nation. The first office was located in Lake street, near Clark, and here, it is said, the first issue of our own TRIBUNE was set up.

The Prairie Farmer was started as the monthly organ of the Union Agricultural society, organized in 1838. John D. Wright was its first publisher and he was a prominent figure in the little town of Chicago in those days.

When the great fire swept over the city the paper's office was at the northwest corner of Lake and Wells streets. About the only thing of value saved from the building was the subscription list of 30,000 names. A press brought from Springfield enabled the paper to publish without losing an issue and an appeal to the subscribers to pay their subscriptions a year in advance permitted publication to go on.

Burridge D. Butler purchased the paper in 1908 and he is now publisher of it. Clifford V. Gregory has been editor in chief since 1910.

Brokers' Notes

Lewis G. Hurlbut, president of the Real Estate corporation, has resigned from his position and disposed of his interest in the corporation. He will open offices in the loop in the fall and will specialize in real estate promotion, manufacturing plants and business blocks in Chicago and other cities.

A. G. Briggs & Co., 1203 West 79th street, have opened a branch office at the southeast corner of 95th and Crawford, with John J. Kilgallen in charge.

PLACES REALTY VALUE OF CITY AT OVER 3 BILLION

Olcott Book Barometer of Land Market.

The land value of Chicago and its suburbs is placed at approximately $3,275,000,000 in a review of "Olcott's Land Values Blue Book," the 1926 edition of which has just been issued. The publishers of the book estimate that the increase over the past year was was $250,000,000. Statistics gathered by George C. Olcott show that with few exceptions there has been a constant increase in real estate values from year to year, with the advance especially marked during the last six years.

Mr. Olcott in an analysis of the last twelve months divides the upward trend of the realty market into three main phases. In the first was the broadening of the market through expansion into suburban territory. The second was the speculation in business centers having a promising future. The third was the raising of values in older districts in sympathy with the increases of newer territories.

Suburban Districts Active.

In the suburban territory the entire Chicago area was affected. Of course, the principal acre activity followed the transportation systems. So the most marked movements were along the new Skokie valley line, especially about Niles Center, the extension of the Metropolitan elevated, and along the electrified suburban right of way of the Illinois Central. In much of this new territory acre prices have jumped almost out of sight.

The older residential sections of the city remained firm, with advances in the most favorable districts along the lake.

The North Michigan avenue territory made notable increases, with a prospect of further jumps. One of the most interesting features was the activity occasioned by the Wacker drive improvement, which set favorable building sites skyrocketing.

79th Street Busy.

In the business center speculation the 79th street district took the palm, with other thoroughfares in the neighborhood reacting in sympathy.

Mr. Olcott's book indicates that districts that have been asleep for years are awakening and taking their part in the realty market's activity.

Salinger to Subdivide 23 Acres Along 55th Street

Oliver Salinger has purchased twenty-three acres of property along 55th street, lying south of the Indiana Harbor Belt line, west of Crawford and east of Keeler, giving title to the Chicago Title and Trust company as trustee. He will subdivide the property for business and residential uses, with the business portion along 55th street and Crawford avenue.

Catholic Bishop of Chicago Buys in Michigan Avenue

The Catholic bishop of Chicago has acquired the six apartment building at 4117-19 South Michigan avenue for a reported price of $36,000 from Joseph Donnersberger. The structure will be used as a convent in connection with St. Elizabeth's school. McMahon & Hoban represented all parties in the deal.

WILL REMODEL 6 STORY BUILDING ON WEST ADAMS

Morris, Mann & Reilly, Inc., manufacturers and importers of women's fashion accessories, have leased from Florence H. Matz, Grace H. Perry and Bessie H. Gay the six story mercantile building at 320-322 West Adams street, 53x170 feet, for a term of years beginning Dec. 1.

The building formerly was occupied by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. as a part of their wholesale store. The new occupants will remodel it immediately and plan to make it one of the most attractive structures in the district.

Morris, Mann & Reilly, Inc., for more than twenty years occupied the building at 111-119 South Wells street. The present lease was arranged by Harold H. Egan of John R. Magill & Co. The legal details were arranged by Darrell S. Boyd, John L. Shorthall and Russell Mott representing the lessors and M. Paul Noyes representing the lessees.

CANADA REPORTS HEALTHY GAIN IN BUILDING VOLUME

Building activities in Canada, and particularly in the western cities, made a considerable gain during the first six months of 1926, according to figures just made public by the dominion bureau of statistics of the department of trade and commerce. The building permits issued in the sixty-three principal cities totaled $78,620,362, a 19 per cent increase over the same period of a year ago.

The Canadian figures are in marked contrast to those of the United States, where building activities showed a decrease for the same period, as shown by statistics gathered by S. W. Straus & Co.

The most spectacular gain was registered in Winnipeg, where the permits jumped from $2,412,940 to $8,069,600, an increase of 234 per cent. Vancouver, the fourth city, had $7,756,825, as compared with $4,899,543 a year ago. Montreal led in volume, having $12,682,238, a gain of $1,300,000.

Rosedale and Magnolia Apartments Change Hands

George Psaltis bought the twelve flats at the northeast corner of Rosedale and Magnolia from Archie S. Macfarlane for a reported $85,000, through John J. Kern & Co.

FARM AND GARDEN

Turkey Gobbles Sound Golden on Nebraska Sand

State Experts Are Helping Ranchers Toward Leadership.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

LINCOLN, Neb. — [Special.] — Nebraska's sand hill country is destined to become one of America's big turkey raising sections. Signs already point in that direction.

With prices for the Thanksgiving bird high enough to attract large shipments of turkeys into this country from the Argentine, sand hill ranchers have concluded that here is an industry that will justify a little specialization and that will fit in nicely with their varied program of agriculture. Low production costs are possible here, where ranchers have a wide, open, sunny range upon which turkeys can run over clean sandy soil; and there is an abundance of insects, pure water, and fields of alfalfa, the things that make possible the raising of turkeys profitably.

There are facts to indicate that turkey raising would be a safe business for many years. There is little danger that too many turkeys will be produced in this country for another decade or more. America's appetite for turkey meat is as good as ever, and yet, while or population has been climbing higher and higher each year, the turkey population has been on the decline for at least thirty years. From 1890 to 1920 turkey production dropped from nearly 9,000,000 to less than 3,000,000. The goose and the duck population also has fallen off at a rapid rate. There is need for more turkeys in this country, and, with proper methods in feeding and management, they still can be grown profitably in the middle west states, even where the range is limited.

Farmers Excel in Dressing.

In the western counties of this state ranchers are raising several thousand turkeys each year and are making money selling them at from 26 to 39 cents a pound. Along the Nebraska-Colorado line, for example, ranchers last year sold many of their birds coöperatively, dressing most of them before they went to market. For Thanksgiving birds they got the following prices: No. 1, 35 cents; No. 2, 26 cents; old toms, 31 cents. At Christmas time they got 39, 30½, and 34 cents, respectively.

It is estimated that less than 10 per cent of the birds sold by the coöperators graded less than No. 2s, according to D. N. Propps of the state-federal station at Mitchell, Neb.. Mr. Propps says farmers do a much better job of dressing than the dealers, and the dealers admit it. Demonstrations are given so that every rancher who is to deliver birds dressed sees how it is done before he attempts to kill or dress.

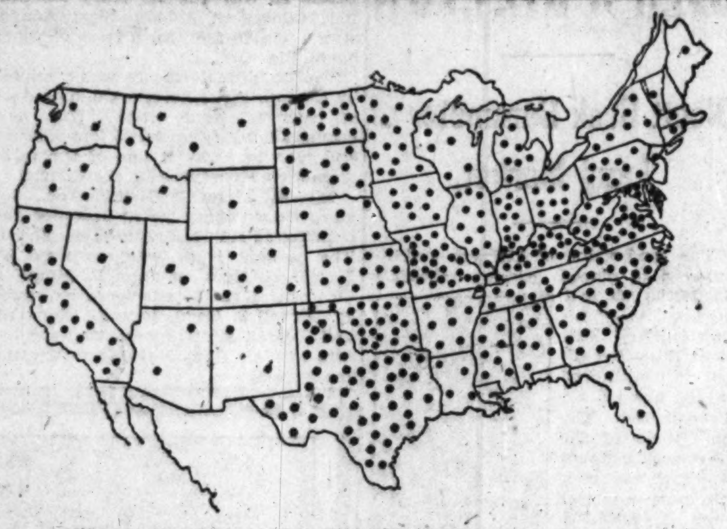
No one knows exactly how many turkeys Nebraska is producing today, but in 1920, official figures show, only about 50,000 were raised in the state. Turkeys at one time were produced on many farms in eastern Nebraska, but diseases are supposed to have driven them out. Today, with better methods advocated by the experts at the Nebraska state agricultural college, there is evidence that turkey raising is on the increase.

Many large flocks are to be seen thriving on the edge of the sandhill country, and flocks no doubt will be reëstablished in the older sections of the state where they once were common. The fact that such wild birds as Chinese pheasants, prairie chickens, and quail thrive in the newer sections of the state indicates that the turkey ought to do well there. In traveling through the Platte river valley recently I saw hundreds of coveys of pheasants that run free and wild with a law to protect them. They are so tame a driver could crack them with his whip as they dart in the weeds and grass along the highways.

"Bad Luck" Is Blackhead.

F. E. Mussehl, head of the agricultural college poultry department, says that blackhead, a disease of the intestines and kidneys, is perhaps the chief cause for decline in the poultry raising business in the central west. He says there was a time when a flock of turkeys could be seen in almost any farmyard in this section of Nebraska, but for many years there were few to be found because of "bad luck."

WHERE TURKEYS GOBBLE.



AMERICA NEEDS MORE TURKEYS.—This map shows where the turkeys are raised in the United States. Each black dot represents 10,000 turkeys, or a major fraction thereof, according to federal experts.

"This 'bad luck,'" he adds; "is but another name for blackhead. The disease is carried by chickens, but rarely shows up among them."

He thinks that one of the great causes for heavy losses of turkeys is that they have been allowed to run in the same yard and over the same range with chickens. Chickens carry the disease to turkeys.

Mr. Mussehl recommends isolation of chickens from the turkeys. Chickens may be kept in the poultry yards and the turkeys allowed free run of the range after they are a few weeks old. Clean water supply, clean feed, and clean yards are the three things that are necessary to safe turkey raising.

"Our turkey raising program should be built on these three essentials rather than on ipecac, catechu, or Epsom salts," Mrs. Mussehl said. "A few dollars spent in providing covered feed troughs and water pans will be more wisely invested than if spent for so-called blackhead 'cures.'"

Wide open range perhaps has been emphasized too much in the past. The modern poultry specialist has found that sanitation is the important factor and that turkeys may be raised successfully, even on limited range. In fact, Mr. Mussehl has found that a small yard covered with several inches of sand or gravel will be much more practical than free range for poults during the first six weeks. After that the ideal place for the young turkeys is in an alfalfa field, where they can pick up grasshoppers and other pests along with leaves from the alfalfa. He says it is not wise to allow poults to use range which has recently been used by chickens, since the soil is likely to be infected with the blackhead parasite, scientifically known as a protozoa.

Shows High Average.

Last year, in one of Mr. Mussehl's tests on a limited range, he successfully raised and marketed sixty-nine turkeys out of a brood of seventy in a yard 24 by 50 feet. The yard was covered with a six inch layer of sand and gravel. Bronze turkeys, the largest variety grown in this country, were used in the tests. Mr. Mussehl has another thrifty flock of poults in the same pen this year. He washes and soaks the pens frequently to cleanse the gravel. At the beginning of each season the top layer of gravel is removed and new, clean gravel is put in its place. This is particularly important where soil blows upon the gravel covered pens, favoring contamination.

In the breeding flock Mr. Mussehl advises using four toms with thirty-five hens. Turkey eggs may be hatched with turkey hens, chicken hens, or with incubators. Artificial incubation, according to this authority, has several advantages and is likely to become more popular. It avoids contact between the poults and the older turkeys, which lessens the danger of blackhead and other diseases, and it keeps the turkey hen free to lay eggs. With turkey eggs worth from 20 cents to $1 a piece, it is important to keep the hen laying. It is possible for one turkey hen to lay nearly 100 eggs during a season. The late eggs can be hatched in incubators, producing turkeys for the January and February market.

Lower Temperature Better.

It takes turkey eggs 28 days to hatch and they have about the same incubation requirements as the hen's eggs. Because the turkey eggs are larger, Mr. Mussehl recommends keeping the temperature of the incubator about a half degree lower than is recommended for the machine when hen eggs are being incubated.

Under the present methods of raising turkeys, the grower should be satisfied if half the eggs hatch. On that point Mr. Mussehl says one of the problems which apparently must be solved in lowering turkey raising costs is that of obtaining higher fertility and hatching power.

Mr. Mussehl does not advise brooding more than 100 poults in each unit, but this number can be cared for in a 8x10 or 10x12 foot portable brooder. Within about six and a half months last season he produced fifty-five turkeys that weighed 9½ pounds each. He calculates that it takes about four pounds of grain to produce one pound of turkey.

With proper sanitation there is no reason why farmers in the heart of the corn belt cannot successfully raise turkeys, provided they will keep them entirely separate from chickens.

Creamery Man Writes Lesson in Loss for Dairies

LINCOLN, Neb. — [Special.] — Ole Hanson, manager of a farmer owned coöperative creamery at Orleans, Neb., in the Republican river valley, was impressed by the big loss his company had suffered because farmers had brought to the plant so much low grade cream to be made into butter. So Hanson decided he would sit down and write out an object lesson to the members of his organization and show them where $25,000 had slipped through their fingers in a year's time, all because the dairymen were careless in the handling of their cream.

Hanson took his object lesson notes, written in longhand, stuck them up on the wall of the creamery, photographed them, and sent a picture of the exhibit to H. J. McLaughlin, secretary of the state department of agriculture, here at Lincoln.

From the photograph Hanson's notes are reproduced here in substance to show other dairymen where they may look for the leak holes in their own buckets and stop them to increase their yearly profits. The little object lesson was put up where the dairymen could read it when they delivered the cream to the coöperative plant.

"Your creamery," says Hanson's notes, "manufactured 2,000,000 pounds of butter last year. Four hundred thousand pounds of this butter was an undergrade, due to poor quality of cream. Three hundred thousand pounds of our No. 2 butter sold at a discount of 5 cents a pound; net loss, $15,000. One hundred thousand pounds of No. 3 butter sold at a discount of 10 cents a pound; net loss, $10,000. That is a total net loss, due to producing poor cream, of $25,000.

"If the cream had all been of as good a quality as our No. 1 we would have had $25,000 more net profit."

Then three points in his object lesson follow: "No. 1 butter, or 75 per cent of our business, is made from cream delivered to our station twice a week or oftener. It is free from objectionable flavors and odors. This is the only kind of butter we ever put into our 'Gold Mine brand.'

"No. 2 butter, or 20 per cent of our business, is made from cream held so long on the farm that it has become too stale and sour to pass as No. 1. It must be sold at a discount. It cost this company $15,000 last year to make this kind of butter.

"No. 3, or 5 per cent of our business, is made from cream so old and stale that it will not make table butter any more. It is usually sold to cheap restaurants in the east at a discount of 10 cents or more per pound. Had all our cream been as poor as this 5 per cent your company would face financial ruin in one year."

ORPHANAGE WILL BUILD ADDITION IN CARLISLE PL.

The Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan Home, Inc., has purchased a piece of property in Carlisle place, just west of Albany, from Max Wolf for a reported price of $16,500. The property measures 50x155 feet and this purchase gives the home a quarter of a block. Work is to start within a year on a sort of convalescent home for children on the site. The home will be three stories high and will contain quarters for children recovering from sickness or slightly ill. Samuel Oman is the architect. Pritzker & Pritzker handled the legal details for the home in the purchase of the property.

Banker Buys Home at Park and McDaniel, Evanston

Albert K. Scheidenhelm, assistant cashier of the State Bank and Trust company, has purchased the six room stucco house at the southeast corner of Park place and McDaniel avenue, Evanston, on a lot 50x165 feet, from J. S. Small for an undisclosed price. As part payment Mr. Small took the vacant property, 60x145, in Central Park avenue, on which he will erect a home immediately. R. H. Peterson of the Evanston office of Quinlan & Tyson, Inc., was broker.

Forest Preserve Buys 65 Acres Near Midlothian

The forest preserve commissioners bought sixty-five acres near Midlothian Golf club, running northwesterly from the Midlothian pike, from Gertrude Gilson for $51,322.

Kenmore Avenue Building Changes Hands: $190,000

The Bryn Mawr hotel apartments at 5051 Kenmore were bought by Maurice A. Barancik for a reported $190,000 through Krenn & Dato.

EXPERT PAINTS DARK PICTURE OF FARM LIFE

ST. PAUL, Minn.—The present net earnings of the average American farm family total approximately $100 a year, according to the best estimates.

Farmers are receiving on an average less than 2 per cent on their capital.

Only 6 per cent of rural homes in Minnesota have complete modern plumbing.

Only one in every twenty Minnesota farm homes has a radio.

Farm mortgage indebtedness has been continuing on the increase rather than on the decrease.

These were a few of the points made by Dr. F. W. Peck, director of the extension division of the University Farm school, in a talk to members of Kiwanis clubs who gathered at the farm school to learn about the agricultural situation.

1320 NORTH STATE STREET

100 PERCENT CO-OPERATIVE

An APARTMENT THAT PAYS YOU DIVIDENDS

YOU can buy an apartment in 1320 North State Street for as little as $13,900 and your share in the cost of maintaining the property will be only $1,711.22 a year, of which about ten percent applies to reduction of the mortgage.

You could not rent such an apartment for less than $3,360 a year or $1,820 a year more than you will pay under the 100% cooperative plan. Your saving in rent will amount to 13 percent on your original investment.

Allow yourself 6 percent a year on the $13,900 required to buy an apartment and you still will enjoy a saving in rent that will repay your entire investment in 14 years. In the meantime the value of your investment will increase in proportion to the increase in value of the entire property.

These are features of 100% cooperative ownership exemplified in 1320 North State Street. There are many more. May we explain them—without obligation?

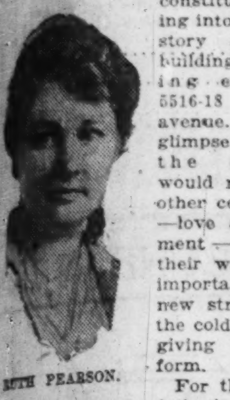
NORTH SIDE FLAT BUILDING SERVES AS A MEMORIAL

Erected to Honor Name of Teacher.



RUTH PEARSON.

To the casual observer concrete, brick, and masonry are the principal constituents going into the seven story apartment building now being erected at 5516-18 Winthrop avenue. But a glimpse behind the operations would reveal two other components—love and sentiment—which in their way are as important to this new structure as the cold materials giving it visible form.

For this edifice is in the nature of a father's memorial to a daughter who has passed on.

A. E. Pearson, the builder, is naming the structure the Ruth Manor to commemorate his daughter, Miss Ruth, who died last February. Miss Pearson was twenty-seven and was for three years a kindergarten teacher in the Nettlehorst school.

Will Be Unfurnished.

The Ruth Manor will contain twelve three room, twenty two room, and thirty-three one room apartments—all to be equipped with the most modern conveniences. They will be unfurnished.

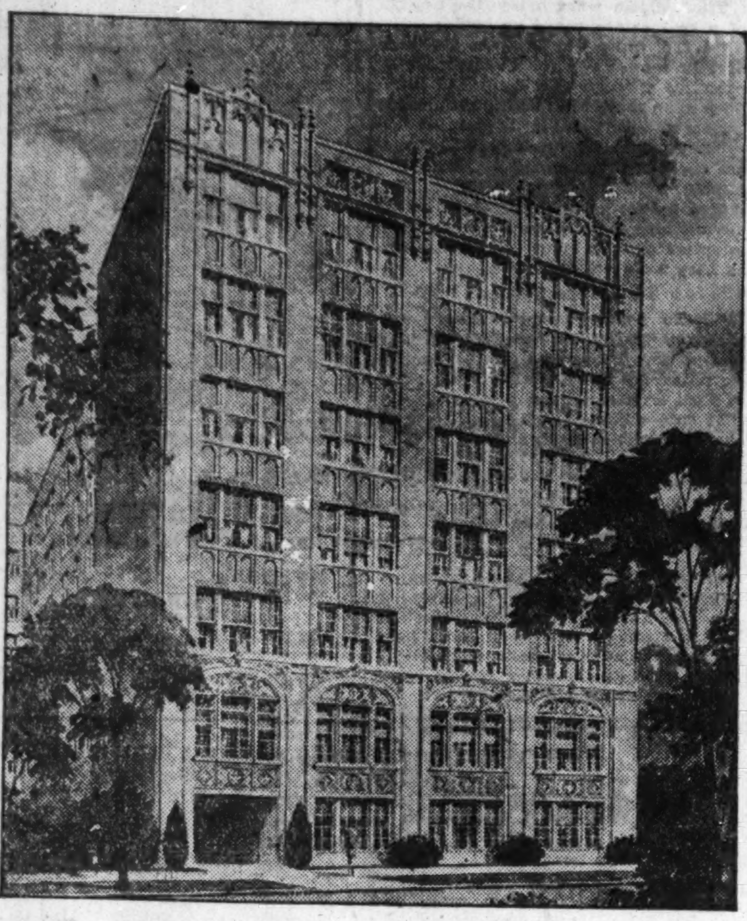
The exterior is to be of buff colored face brick, with the first two floors of terra cotta. The returns will be of face brick. Mr. Pearson says the reason all sides will not be of face brick is the likelihood of tall buildings on both sides of his in the future.

Gothic in Design.

Edmond Grossman is the architect for the structure, which will be Gothic in spirit. The project will represent an investment of $425,000. The Chicago Trust company has underwritten a bond issue of $205,000 at six per cent for ten years on the development. Completion is expected in February.

The owner is the Ruth Manor Building corporation, of which Mr. Pearson is the president.

THE RUTH MANOR



The seven story Ruth Manor apartment building, now under construction at 5516-18 Winthrop avenue, will serve as a memorial to Miss Ruth Pearson, the daughter of A. E. Pearson, president of the building corporation. Edmond Grossman is the architect, E. S. Bloomster made the above rendering.

42 BUNGALOWS BEING BUILT IN THROOP STREET

Work started July 26 on forty-two six room brick bungalows in Throop street, between 93d and 95th streets, which are being financed under the Metropolitan fifteen year deferred payment for group construction plan. Forty-two construction loans ranging from $5,600 to $7,000 were made, involving a total consideration of $239,600.

Edward George McClellan is the architect for the bungalows, which are to be completed by Oct. 1. All are to have face brick fronts with sixteen foot turns. The building valuations range from $7,000 to $10,500 and the lot valuations from $2,400 to $3,500. The loan was negotiated by H. P. Seiger and is from Metropolitan Life funds administered in Chicago by the Chicago Trust company.

RICHARD E. SCHMIDT CALLS LOUIS SULLIVAN ROOF TANK PIONEER

Richard E. Schmidt of Schmidt, Garden & Erickson, nationally known architects of Chicago, takes a hand in the roof tank discussion and in addition to calling attention to work done by his office in 1903, generously points out to work done by rival architects in years back. Mr. Schmidt's letter to THE TRIBUNE follows:

"In view of the contest which appears to be going on as to who shall have credit for being the pioneer architect in the design of towers to enclose water tanks, permit me to call your attention to the tower on the Carson, Pirie, Scott building, State and Madison, designed by Louis Sullivan many years ago; the tower of the P. Schoenhofen Brewing company, 18th street and Canalport avenue; that of S. Franklin & Co.'s picture frame factory at 1210 South Morgan street, both designed by our office about 1903; also the Chicago Carbonic company's tank tower, designed by George C. Nimmons about 1905.

"The above mentioned towers antedate those mentioned in recent issues of THE TRIBUNE by quite a number of years."

Mr. Schmidt is a "Fellow" of the American Institute of Architects.

Is there a "Joker" in the Co-op Apartment Proposition?

Have the thousands of owners who have put more than $100,000,000 in co-operative apartments in Chicago been "stung"? Have they over-looked a "joker" in the proposition? Or have they—as they think—made a sound investment and found a solution to the high cost of maintaining a home?

By Harry A. Rick.

Statisticians estimate that the amount of money now invested in co-operative apartment buildings in the United States exceeds $500,000,000.00. Of this amount, $100,000,000.00 is said to be invested in Chicago alone. Any proposition which has attracted so much money in so short a space of time is deserving of analysis. For it is either taking thousands of dollars away from unsuspecting "easy marks" or it is a genuine solution to a basic problem of housing. In either case the public should know the facts and be prepared to discourage or encourage the movement. For, economically, co-operatively owned apartments work either for the detriment or good of the whole of society.

Unfortunately, but as is to be expected of all new movements, the early co-operative ventures were seasoned with too much speculation by promoters who rushed into it without due consideration of the factors essential to the success of a co-operative project. The financial plan, the plan of ownership, the management, etc., were in some instances hastily decided. These speculative projects have caused misapprehension to exist among many who have not been intelligently or truthfully informed on the development of the movement as fostered by sincere and earnest co-operative developers. The early troubles were largely too many promises of something for nothing.

The Fit Have Survived.

The National, Cook County and Chicago Real Estate Boards found the movement reaching such proportions as to cause them to establish Co-operative Sections of their organizations for the purpose of squelching unscrupulous co-operative projects and to supply information and comparative statistics relative to the financing, building, sale and operation of co-operative properties. Realizing that purely speculative co-operative ventures would ultimately reflect unfavorably upon the real estate body, these real estate boards have been an active agency for the great improvement—and consequently the great spread—of co-operative properties. They have, for instance, adopted certain plans of ownership and recommend them as the soundest, most satisfactory plans to be employed.

Two Type of Co-ops.

Co-operative enterprises fall into two groups. These two groups are known as the "Semi-Co-operative" building and the "100% Co-operative" building. In the case of the semi-co-operative venture only a part of the apartments are occupied by owners. The rest of them are rented by the corporation and, of course, the financial or ownership plan anticipates a fixed and continuous income from the rented apartments. In contrast to the semi-co-operative building, in the 100% Co-operative building all apartments are owned and occupied by owners. The cost of each apartment is determined by the number of rooms and their location in the building. Usually the owner's lease runs to himself, his heirs or assigns, forever.

Each owner agrees to pay, in monthly installments, his share of the total cost of maintaining and operating the building. A certain part of each monthly payment is set aside for the amortization of the first mortgage on the property. For the paid-in capital stock seldom equals the total value of the property. The corporation's equity usually runs between 40 and 60 per cent of the total value of the property. This provision for the amortization of the mortgage is one of the assurances the owners have that their investment is not going to depreciate.

Now, the subject of co-operative buildings carrying mortgages brings us closer to our answer.

Capital's Attitude.

Twenty-five years ago it would have been extremely difficult to obtain a loan for a co-operative enterprise from any important American financial institution—although the safety of "co-op" loans has been tested for over a hundred years in European countries. But today the big life insurance companies, savings banks and other financial institutions have hundreds of millions of dollars loaned on property operating co-operatively. They, of course, are exacting in their requirements. They must be assured that the plan of ownership and operation is built on sound, safe principles. They must know that the location [site] and construction make their loan secure. Their engineers watch every stage of the construction. Their experts appraise the whole. All of which tend to verify the owner's judgment in buying an apartment in a building carrying a first mortgage loaned by a responsible financial institution.

But granting that the capital investment is safe and sound, let us see if there is a month by month and year by year saving for the owners as compared to renting an apartment or owning a house. If "co-ops" fail to give their owners more comforts, more advantages at a lower cost than a rented apartment or a house, then the whole proposition is built on sand and a benefit only to capital. First, let us consider the purely personal benefits of a co-operative home.

In an article discussing the co-operative proposition which appeared in the October 17th, 1925, issue of The Saturday Evening Post, the writer said—"What a buyer of a co-operative apartment purchases is, in the last analysis, a slice of air. He owns this slice of air absolutely. He can partition it off into as many or as few rooms as may suit his tastes and needs, tear down those partitions, shift them about as freely as he pleases. He can finish the interior in any way that strikes his fancy. There is no landlord to veto his desire to drive nails into the plaster, for it is his own plaster." In other words, the apartment is yours to treat as you would your own privately owned house. This, of course, has many incidental advantages not to be had in a rented apartment—you can make any desired investment in decorations, furnishings or equipment, knowing it is your permanent home.

Hand Picked Neighbors.

Next, the co-operative apartment enables you to hand-pick your neighbors. You choose your company, knowing that nobody whose social code of living differs materially from yours will cause you annoyance or embarrassment. The prospective buyer can decide for himself whether he wants to live in close proximity to the sort of families who have already bought in. And after looking up your business and social references they can in turn decide whether you are the sort of person they would like as a neighbor. Moreover, co-operative developments cannot only control the character of your immediate neighbors but they can be a powerful agency for controlling the caste of the entire neighborhood. There is a splendid example of this in Rogers Park.

In addition to these things are many potential benefits which can be realized co-operatively. The purchase of a highly desirable site, with interests pooled for the common good, can be accomplished economically. Better architecture, landscaping, better materials and better construction and oftentimes features, comforts and conveniences which only the extremely wealthy usually enjoy, can be obtained by the whole of the corporation and offered to the individual owners at a most nominal cost. There are some splendid examples in Chicago.

Comparison of Costs.

Now, let us return to the question of the cost of living under such a plan. Let us consider the case of a man who has been compelled to pay $100 a month or $1,200 per year to have a roof over his head.

Experts, basing their estimates on thousands of actual cases, find that this man could just about maintain the expenses of a $12,500 bungalow, carrying a mortgage indebtedness of $7,200 for $1,200 per year. This estimate includes interest on the mortgage, all maintenance and operating charges, and presupposes that the owner has invested $5,300 in cash in the property.

Now there are co-operative buildings in Chicago today that can demonstrate that this same man could invest the same amount [$5,300—on the installment plan if he chooses] in a 5-room co-operative apartment of superior advantages and live in that apartment for less than $55 per month for eleven years and for considerably less than this figure thereafter, and own his own apartment home.

The man paying a monthly rental of $100 for 10 years would pay out $12,000. Whereas, if he purchased a 5-room apartment home at $5,300, he would, at the end of a 10 year period, have saved over $3,000 and have had the benefits of living in a better home.

How these savings are accomplished is obvious to anyone who can see that one lot, one heating plant, one plumbing system, one roof, one architect's fee, one legal fee, one building profit, etc., for fifty or one hundred families cost vastly less than fifty or a hundred such items that must go into the cost of any building, large or small.

Prominent Owners.

It works out well on paper. But, you ask, do good business men who can see through any set of figures actually buy and live in "co-ops"? And the answer to that questtion is convincing enough to convert any "doubting Thomas" to a serious and thorough investigation of the co-operative homes available to him. For a list of prominent "co-op" owners looks like a Blue Book or a Who's Who in itself. We have not the space to list them, but here are a few: Charles Evans Hughes and Elihu Root [both ex-secretaries of State], Mrs. William Vanderbilt, Percy Rockefeller, Henry F. DuPont, Edward H. Swift, Stanley Field, John T. Mitchell, John G. Shedd, etc., etc. The writer is inclined to think such men would have found the "joker"—were there a "joker" to be found.

An Inquiring Reporter Asks About "Co-ops."

QUESTION:

In your opinion, will owning an apartment home in a well financed and well managed, 100 per cent co-operative building lower the cost of comparable living advantages, and is such an investment a wise move for a renter to make?

ANSWERS:

Hiram S. Cody, Vice President, Chicago Trust Co.:

"Generally speaking, I would say 'Yes' to the entire question. There is no doubt that co-operative housing is basically sound, as the history of loans on such properties prove. The life insurance companies to which we sell mortgages have the highest regard for first mortgages on this type of building."

J. F. Hecht, President, Cook County Real Estate Board:

"With proper safeguards such as you have outlined, I consider the co-operative apartment an advanced step. It fits into the modern scheme of business economy where large enterprise can be run on a more economical basis than the single enterprise. If well planned and soundly financed there is no doubt the average householder can secure a better location and better living conditions for less money by owning a co-operative apartment than he can by renting or owning an individual home."

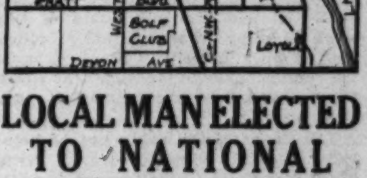
Adolph Radnitzer, President, National Republic Mortgage Co.:

"Yes, I think the co-operative apartment development is the way necessity has devised for lowering the cost of living for the man of modest means living in a city where home values and rentals are high."

STATE PARK TO BE BOUNDED BY FINE CO-OP BUILDINGS

Over in northwest Rogers Park is a 15-acre Garden of Eden that many Chicagoans have never seen. It is known as Indian Boundary Park, owned and maintained by the State of Illinois and containing picturesque lagoons, shrubbery, playgrounds, beautiful walks, but no trafficways.

Gubbins, McDonnell & Blietz, always alert to their clients' interests, saw this beauty spot as the front yard of a large co-operative development they had planned. And now scores of families who are living in the buildings built directly on this park are thanking Gubbins, McDonnell & Blietz for their long-sightedness in selecting this rare site for their co-operative development. Located close to good schools, good churches and all forms of transportation, the families who are now applying for apartments in Park Castles (the newest unit, just completed) will also have this beautiful state park directly under their windows. The map below shows the location of Indian Boundary Park and its accessibility.



LOCAL MAN ELECTED TO NATIONAL CO-OP BOARD

In recognition of the constructive service he has rendered to the co-operative apartment movement in Chicago, Mr. Irvin A. Blietz, of Gubbins, McDonnell & Blietz, was elected to the office of vice-chairman of the co-operative section of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at their annual meeting held June 9, 1926.

PARK CASTLES—One of Chicago's Finest Co-Ops.

Park Castles, with no streets between it and Indian Boundary Park, exemplifies most remarkably the advantages which a 100% co-operative project now makes it possible for a family of modest means to enjoy.

Literally and figuratively, a man's home may now be his castle. For Park Castles is built on castle lines and contains 66 apartment homes of 4, 5 and 6 rooms, ranging in price from $4200 to $8500, requiring only reasonable down payments and none of the cares of a house.

Here branches of a picturesque lagoon form a castle moat spanned by artistic stone bridges. Approaching over these decorative bridges, one enters Park Castles through massive wrought iron gates into a Spanish vestibule. Once inside, one is struck by the spaciousness of the rooms, the light, the vistas through the halls and windows. Surely you will say that such a complete home cannot be offered at these prices. But, the answer is the Power of Co-operative Purchasing combined with Gubbins, McDonnell & Blietz's remarkable building and financing facilities.

And here one finds luxuries few private owners could afford. A complete gymnasium, Roman swimming pool, handball court, a nursery in charge of a trained nurse, etc. Everything for the wife! Everything for the husband! Everything for the children! Here you and yours can live as you've wanted to live—for much less than it now costs you to rent an ordinary apartment. And again, the answer is Co-operative Purchasing Power.

Applications are now being filed rapidly. You are invited to see Park Castles today, or any day or evening. Entrance through park. Note the location on the map above—7000 North and 2400 West.

Few there are who do not admit the wiles of a little cabin in the woods. Like a Circean siren of old, it lures each year countless city dwellers to its side. Unlike the enchantress, however, whose magic potion degraded while it bewitched, the spell cast by the little cabin is at once vastly invigorating and soul uplifting.

This cabin shown here nestles among the woods of Whitefish lake, Wisconsin. It is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Vestal and was designed by Ralph C. Harris, architect, 190 North State street, Chicago.

Built of natural hemlock found in the vicinity, part of the work was done by the owner and part by Indian labor easily procurable in the northern region around Duluth. Its total cost was approximately $1,400.

As can be observed in the plan there is a sizeable living room with large fireplace, a dining room, a kitchen with sink and pantry and two bedrooms on the second floor, each with a closet and with screened windows on two sides.

This cabin stands on concrete posts for foundation with supporting members of pine. All the other material is natural hemlock. The exterior is of 1x10 inch hemlock boards, used as deep siding. The interior walls are ⅞ inch by 4 inch mashed hemlock nailed horizontally. The flooring throughout is the same material. The roofing is a prepared roofing, stained green.

Exposed Rafters for Ceiling.

The ceiling in the living room and bedrooms has open, exposed rafters. In the living room, which is a story and a half high, there is a large fireplace of colorful field stone which was secured in the raw from the country around.

Running water is obtained in the kitchen by a driven well and pulling pump in the sink. There is also provision for an old fashioned wood range, in addition to an oil burning stove for cooking purposes in hot weather.

All the windows and doors of the cabin as well as the porch are provided with copper screens. This converts the porch into an excellent sleeping room, especially convenient when extra guests arrive.

The floors of the cabin are of hemlock, a bright, beautiful brown. This effect is secured by staining them with one part golden oak wood stain to four parts boiled linseed oil.

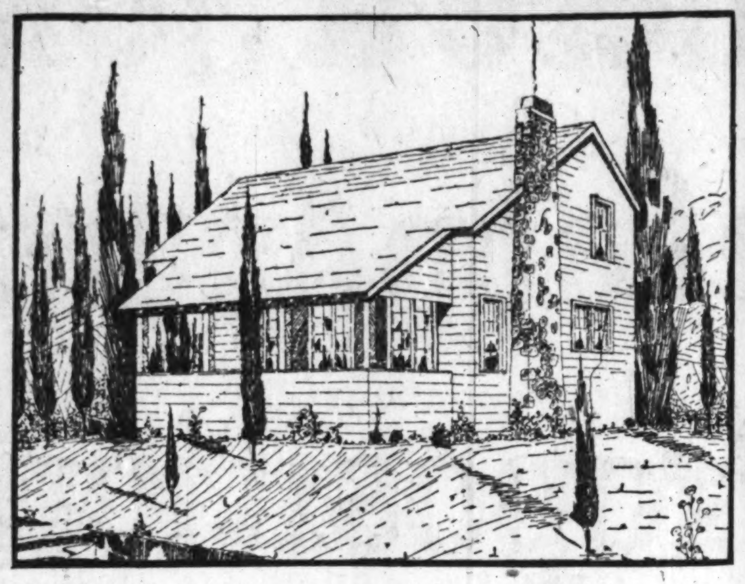
Of Native Trees.

A cabin such as this, or a log cabin if preferred, can be built from almost any of the native trees available—oak, chestnut, cedar, yellow pine, spruce, or Douglas fir. Pines and cedars are usually given the preference, as hard wood is more difficult to tool.

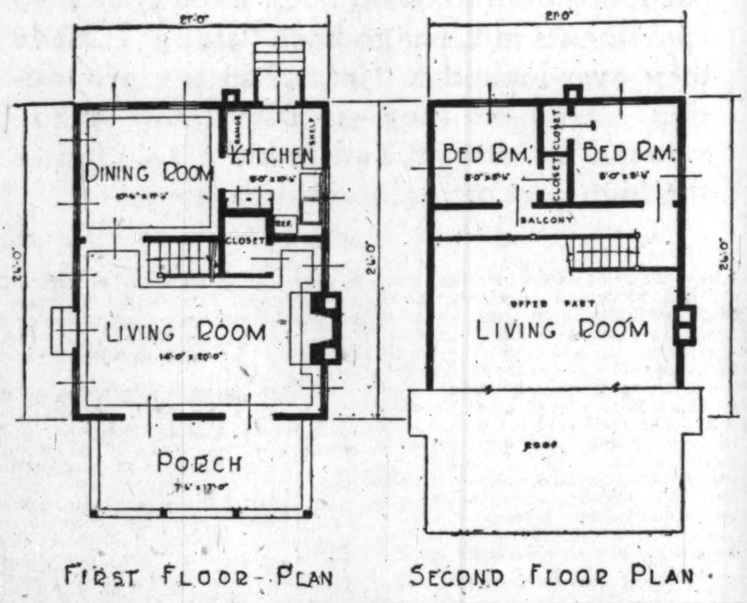
No cellar has been planned for this cabin, assuming that the location is dry. Sometimes a small pit four or five feet deep is dug underneath part of the cabin and reached by means of a trap door in the floor. This can be used to store food and other household necessities which have to be considered even in so informal a domestic régime as cabin housekeeping.

The stairway to the second floor is of rustic design and an open balcony at its head gives an artistic touch to the story and a half living room.

'NEATH WHISPERING PINES



You may not be able to do all the building of this little cabin in the woods yourself, but if you help some you can have an immense amount of fun and, incidentally, keep down the cost to about $1,400. Ralph C. Harris, architect.



ANOTHER PIANO STORE.

The store at 6451 South Halsted street has been leased by Tatar Bros. to Leo R. Spiess for a term of years at an average rental of $4,200. The lessee will use the store for the sale of pianos and musical instruments. Cerf & Ehrenhajt arranged the lease.

ILLINOIS REALTY BOARDS URGED TO CURB LAND TAXES

GEORGE W. ROSS.

The Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, which recently announced the addition of two field men to its official staff to follow up its enlarged program of service and to establish contact with the local real estate boards of the state, has brought out its first bulletin.

In it George W. Ross of Moline, president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, in a letter to the member boards, congratulates them on their many achievements and then goes on to say:

"We have work yet to do. Land ownership is the foundation of our economical structure. It now bears an unjust share of the tax burden. This must be changed if land is to be reëstablished as a desirable field for investment. If real estate owners and brokers are to be protected from unjust taxes and harmful legislation, this association must give that protection.

"The state association must vigorously push its campaign for membership until every broker who will accommodate himself to our code of ethics shall become a realtor."

New Boards Formed.

The bulletin also tells about the formation of new real estate boards at Hoopeston, Berwyn-Cicero, and Bloomington, and of an increased program of activity for the Freeport real estate board.

The bulletin summarizes the objects of a real estate board as being:

"1. To unite the real estate men of this community for the purpose of exerting effectively a combined influence upon matters affecting real estate interests.

"2. To enable its members to transact their business connected with the buying, selling, caring for, and loaning of money on real estate to better advantage than heretofore by the adoption of such rules and regulations as they may deem proper.

To Govern Conduct.

"3. To promote and maintain the high standards of conduct in the transaction of the real estate business expressed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and to enforce that code among its members in their dealings with one another and with the public.

"4. To advance the civic development and the economic growth of this community and of the state of Illinois."

EVERYONE has, or should have, a warm feeling for his home—be it a mansion, a time-worn house, or rented rooms. But how many times the costly repairs of the average home, or the annoyance of constant moving, make one feel that some day—soon—he will build a home that will give Permanent Satisfaction.

The Lehigh Prize Home is now in its second week of public demonstration.

Come this week, yourself, to see this home, which was selected as a prize winner by a jury of eminent architects from hundreds of competing designs in the Lehigh Prize Home Competition.

Never before has one home so successfully combined the five most important factors in home construction: Moderate cost; Attractive design; Skilful Planning; Permanence; Fire-safety.

It demonstrates the practical advantages of concrete masonry construction.*

Avoid the common mistakes in house construction

There are definite ways in which home builders often make mistakes, which result in discomfort and direct financial loss. A visit to the Prize Home will help you avoid them.

First: PLANNING—Frequently a home is built from a complex, "tricky" plan, making it difficult to care for, and almost impossible to sell if the occasion arises. The Lehigh Prize Home has a simple, balanced design—a charm that will always endure. In its planning every inch has been used for some good purpose.

*Concrete masonry calls for the use of concrete masonry units (block, brick or tile) for walls, with an exterior finish of portland cement stucco.

Second: COST—Often one unconsciously builds a home with little regard for carrying charges on mortgage indebtedness. This Prize Home, moderate in cost, will have unusually low carrying charges since this type of construction commands a high appraisal value.

Third: REPAIRS—Many materials require constant repair or replacement. In the Prize Home the walls are of concrete building units, surfaced with stucco. Repairs and depreciation will be slight. Concrete cannot rot, rust or decay and never needs painting.

Fourth: FIRE-SAFETY—Many homes are built without thinking of the fire hazard. In the Prize Home, walls of stucco—sills and quoins of concrete units—chimneys of concrete block—roof of concrete tile—these are safeguards against fire risk.

The Lehigh dealer can help you

When you decide to build, go to the dealer in your community who displays the Blue-and-White Lehigh Sign. He handles Lehigh cement because it is dependable. Is it not reasonable to expect such a dealer to protect your interests in other ways by handling a line of thoroughly Dependable Materials?

A competent contractor can save you money

Make sure of Competent Workmanship. A good contractor will save you money through skilful building economies.

An architect's supervision

A good architect will invariably save you more than his fee, in correct planning, in accurate estimates and specifications.

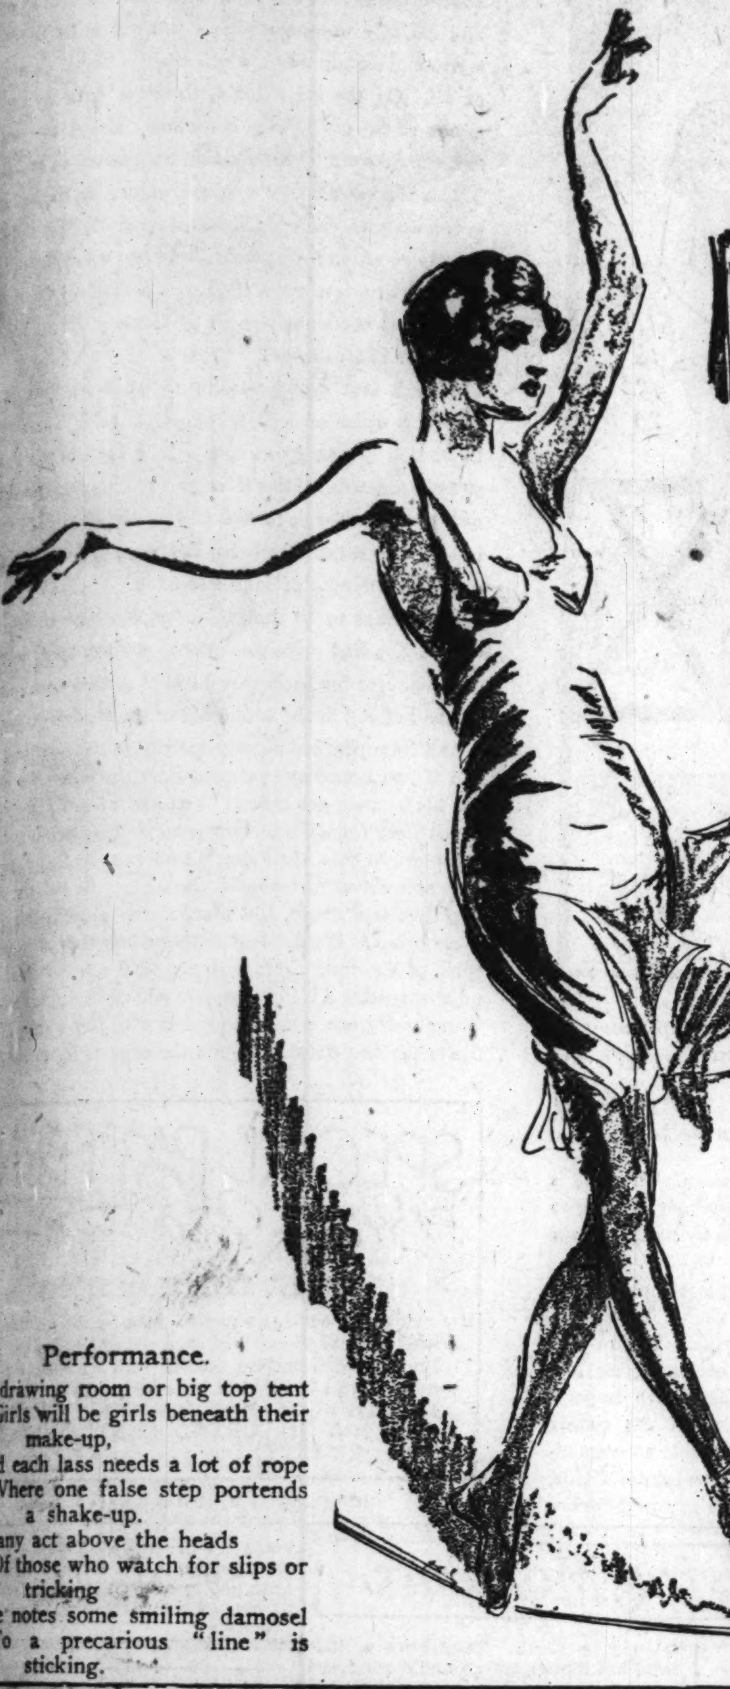
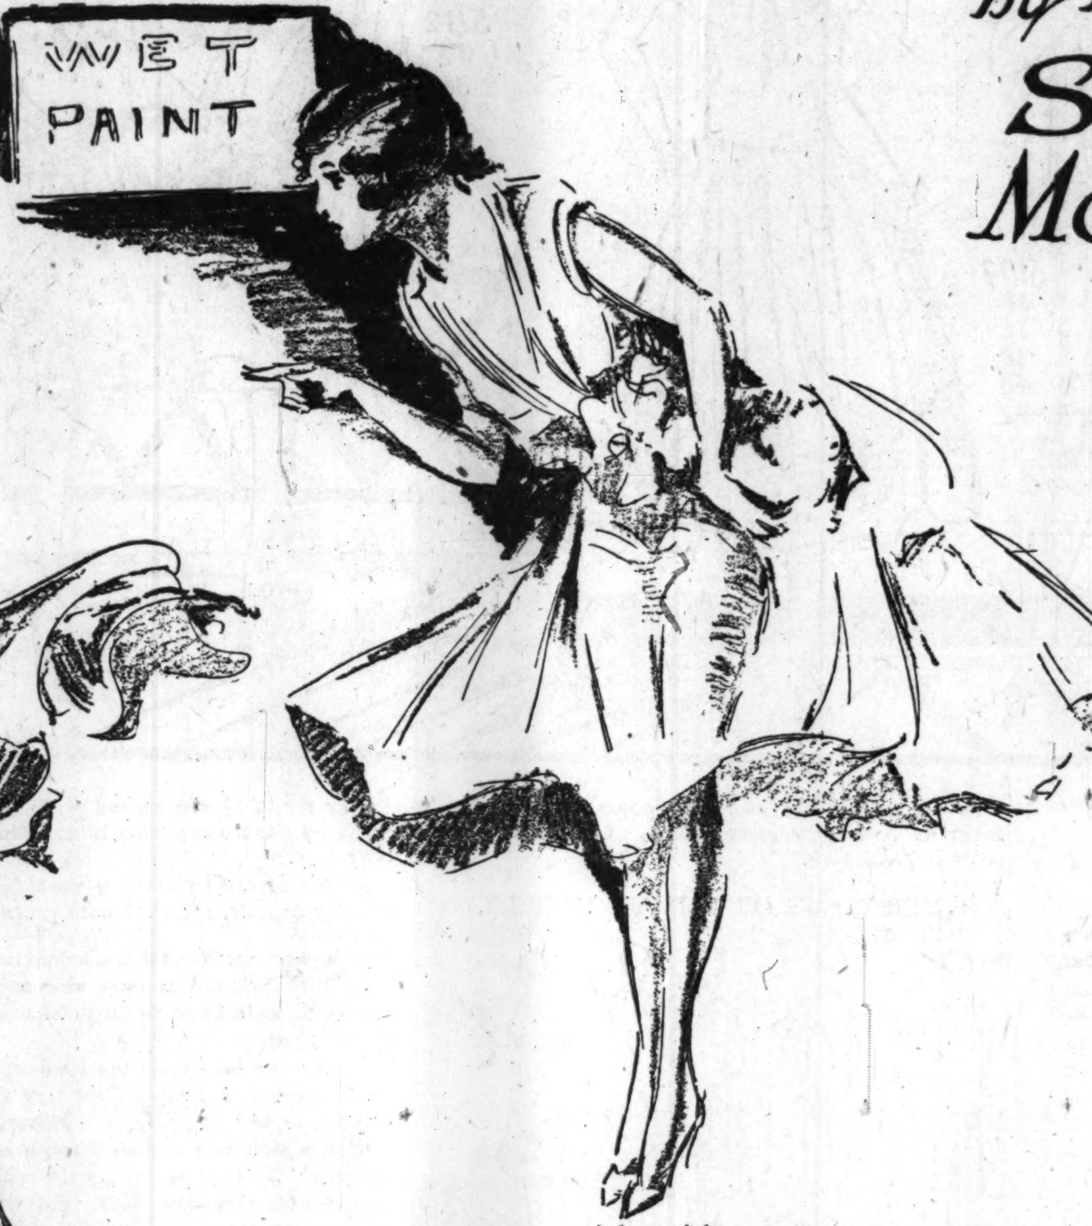
MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

by
Sara Moore



Performance.

In drawing room or big top tent
Girls will be girls beneath their make-up,
And each lass needs a lot of rope
Where one false step portends a shake-up.
In any act above the heads
Of those who watch for slips or tricking
One notes some smiling damosel
To a precarious "line" is sticking.



Admonition.

A sign WET PAINT hung on the door
And every one who passed before
It touched the color just to see
How very wet wet paint could be.

A date with ——*; I've marked it stet;
I have been warned away—and yet—
His friends have labeled him—all wet.

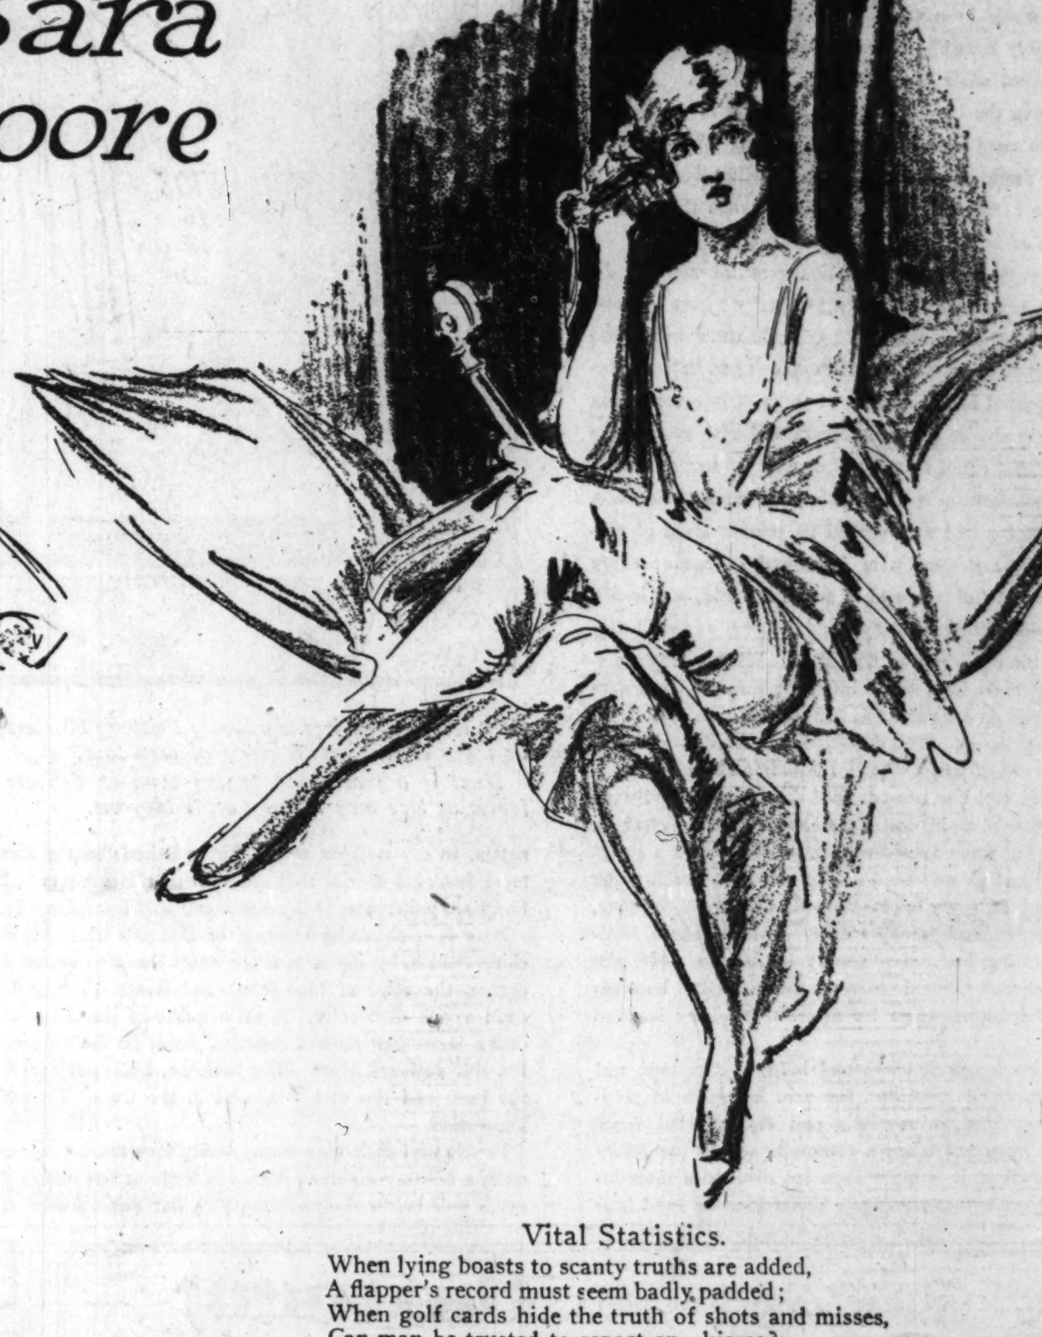
Name furnished on receipt of stamped, self-addressed envelope.*



Vital Statistics.

When lying boasts to scanty truths are added,
A flapper's record must seem badly padded;
When golf cards hide the truth of shots and misses,
Can man be trusted to report on—kisses?

SHEER BEAUTY IN LACE TRIMMED SUMMER FROCKS

By HELENE GERO

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—During the last few years (the tailored years of fashion) laces, beloved of the old-fashioned summer girl, have seemed doomed like her to an unsought and endless existence "upon the shelf." But with the more feminine character assumed by the present mode laces have come into their own again and now take an important and distinguished place upon the stage of this summer's fashions.

Do you recall the old saying, "Fashions always come in again if you wait long enough"—or something to that effect? Well, we've waited—patiently—and laces are "in" again. It would be a wise little 1926 frock, however, that could possibly recognize its respected progenitor in the befrilled, belaced affair of a preceding generation.

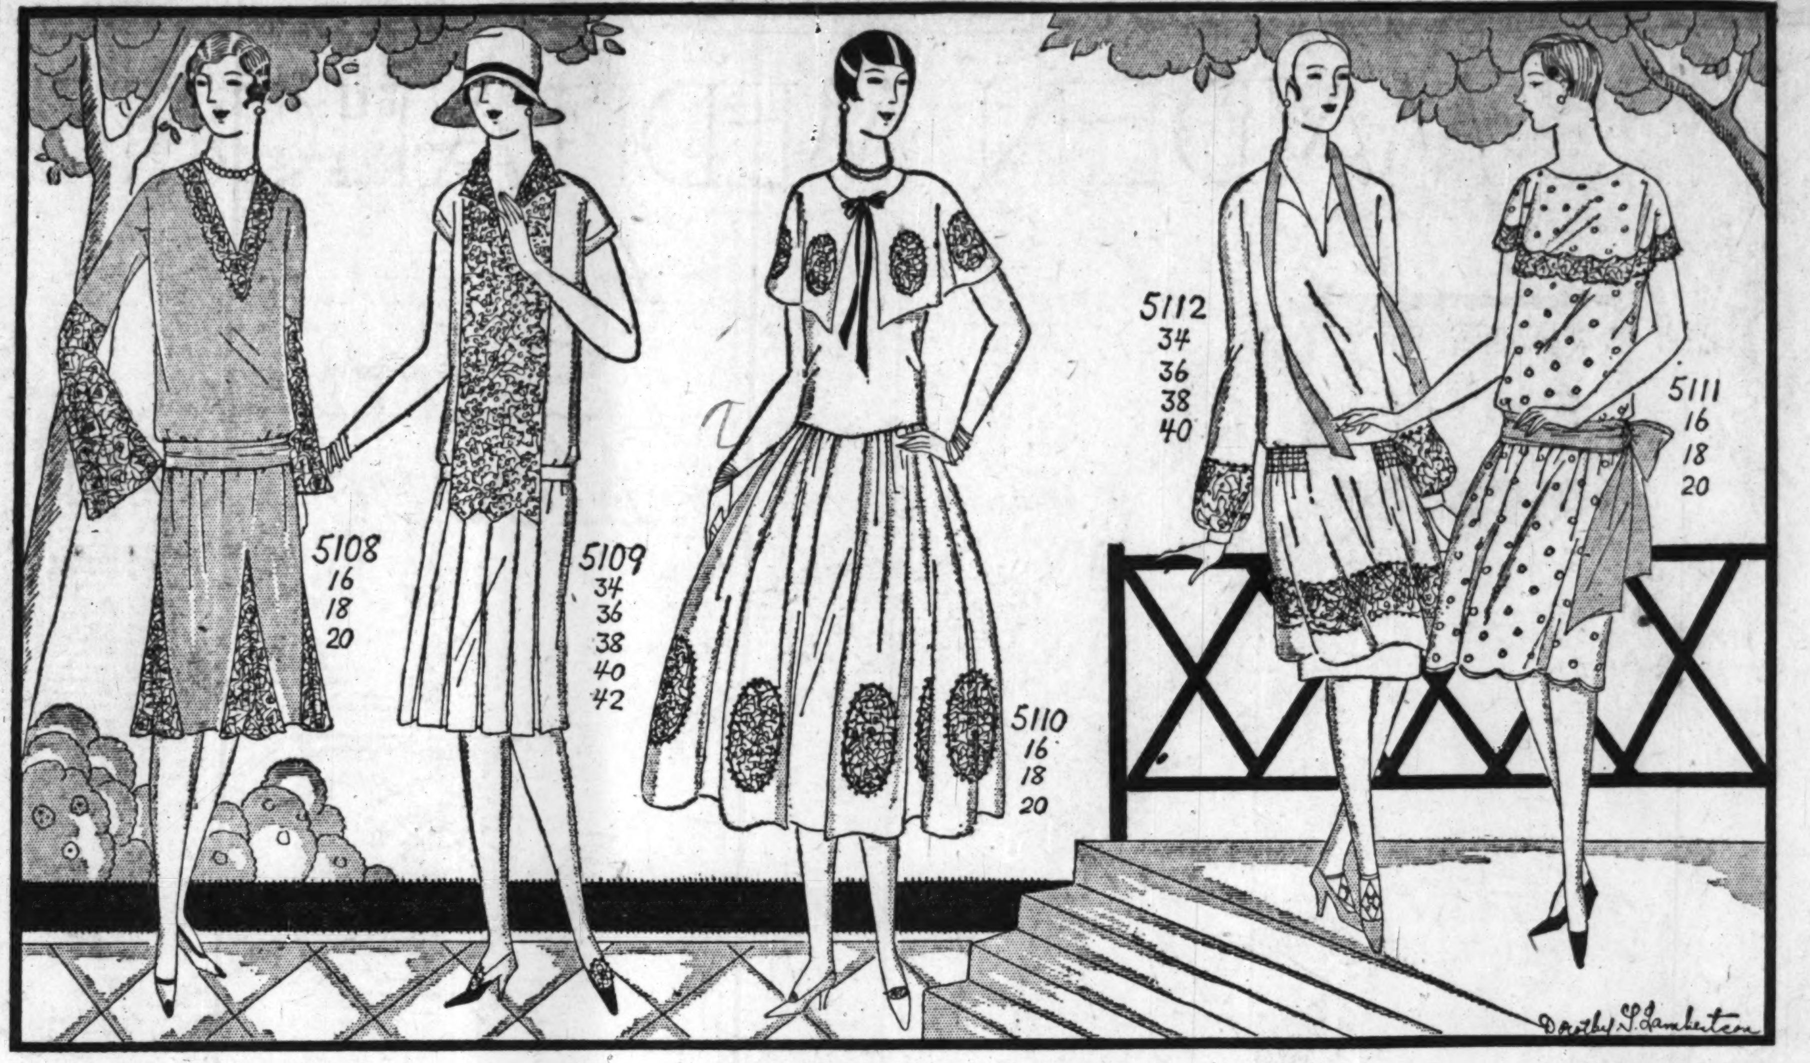
Those were the halcyon days of lace—the more lace the better—lace used not wisely but too well. When Nancy got a new frock, mother, sister, grandmother were pressed into service in adorning the new creation with the fashionable quota of lace. Hundreds of yards, truly!

What occupation and conversation were thus afforded the by-the-day seamstress! "Yes, my dear," we hear her say, "I just covered her dress with lace; you could hardly see one tiny speck of the silk for all the lace upon it." A summer girl boasted of the number of yards of lace used upon her frocks in almost the same breath and with exactly the same zest that she flaunted the number of her proposals. And just imagine the work of laundering those confections, for dry cleaning had not reached its present stage of perfection. Those dresses were laundered at home; every little, cherished frill was washed and dampened, and ironed and fluted—and what not—by hand.

But see the other side of the screen. What a lovely picture Nancy must have made billowing through the mazes of a schottish or drifting airily across the lawn to look at the moon—perhaps! How delightfully feminine were those gracious frocks of yesteryear, but how impractical!

And so we laid our lace-trimmed dreams aside and went in for the simple, sophisticated frocks that were one straight, unadorned line from shoulder to hem. But here's a secret that might just as well be divulged now as later: Lurking in the head of every close-cropped, Charleston-stepping, auto-driving, modern young woman is the insistent feminine. Throwing her unfashionable inhibitions aside, she casts last season's tailored modes to the winds and becomes the eternal feminine again for at least one brief laceclad summer.

But she no longer flounces and billows. Gracious, no! Being modern and ingenious, she uses her laces in modern and ingenious ways—subtle and sophisticated ways. Though we have not taken a consensus among the lordly males of creation, it is quite apparent even to a most indifferent observer that gentlemen prefer blondes (and brunettes, to say nothing of the Titian-haired) in the softer, more feminine dresses that are with us this summer. And theirs are preferences that no wise and wily female can deny.



At the extreme left is a lovely Brittany blue crêpe de chine creation with insets of ecru lace.

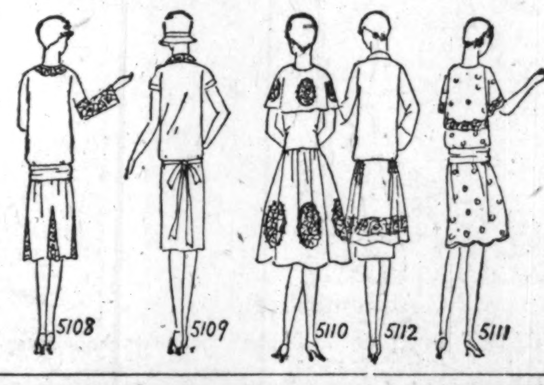
Next is a frock that proves even as delicate a fabric as lace may take on a military air.

In the center the charming gown of organdie takes us back to crinoline days. Of course the color is petal pink.

The model shown second from the right may be worn by the woman who is not now the sylph she once was.

At the extreme right is a youthful little thing of white georgette, splashed with green polka dots.

OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S MODELS.



Here is a charming creation of Brittany blue crêpe de chine (which, by the way, is the exact shade to accent and deepen the color of blue eyes) and insets of sheer lace, dyed a rich écru color. A satin girdle of the same tone, drawn sheathlike around the hips, holds in the fullness of the soft gathered skirt. The neckline, high and round in the back and low and V shaped in the front, is a smart innovation.

Paradoxical as it may seem, dainty lace takes unto itself quite a military air when it goes in for long vest effects that reach well below the waistline of a flat crêpe frock. The frock is cornflower blue, the lace a deep cream. The skirt is plain in the back, and the front, while seemingly keeping to the straight and narrow, attains to fullness by means of four flat box plaits.

And now we have those two inseparable companions of youth, organdie and lace. Here they choose to be picturesque as well as young in a blouse that is slim and molded, a skirt long and bouffante, a bertha quaint and drooping. We must not forget the color, which is petal pink, youth's very own shade. Savoring of the stately garden party, such frocks, with their invariable accompaniment of large-brimmed, sometimes enormous-brimmed hats, are the smart rule for the informalities of gay midsummer dances at the country club and roof garden evenings in tow

We all have our own pet colors, those of us who ha studied ourselves at all, and, unless we are still in our te and daringly unconcerned, we will put miles between o selves and certain colors which we have found do not suit at all. On the other hand, there's a color or two whi seems to be universally becoming. Beige, we ventur say, can be worn by ninety-nine women out of one hundred That's the reason why we have chosen to show this be georgette with filmy dyed lace to match. Its style is u usually smart and adaptable; for, when a full tunic is gen restrained by four rows of gathers over the hips, it may worn most becomingly even by those of us with an ex pound or two to spare.

A frock that would a-teaing or a-dancing go is of wh georgette, splashed with green polka dots. The soft wh lace-edged bertha grows into a long cape in the back a strays from conventional ways by dropping fascinating over one shoulder to form a tiny sleeve. Naturally the sa is of green satin. And, by the way, green satin slipper complete the note of color ensemble.

This brings us to the subject of footwear styles in ge eral. More and more are colored slippers being worn, an ever and ever the heels grow higher. A three-inch spike he means nothing in the tilting life of the modern young thin

And from slippers we skip merrily to hats—quite a jum But if you notice one you must see the other; for as hee get higher hats get bigger. You simply can't ignore the hats. They force themselves upon your notice, and, if for n other reason than their size, it's no exaggeration to say th they are perfect cart wheels. Brims may be straight or th may flop and droop, but always they must be big. Ofte these hats are black. Just as frequently they carry out th color of the frock. Many times they are devoid of trim ming excepting a bit of grosgrain ribbon to define the crow Occasionally one sees a lovely hat with just a single lifeli flower perched dangerously on the edge of its curving bri

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

ONE of the lovely bordered chiffons or georgettes will be suitable for this charming afternoon frock, No. 2689, and nothing could be much easier to make than a dress in this design. One of the pinky beige shades of chiffon, shading to deeper tones in the bordered design would be lovely.

The dress is cut in two pieces—front and back—and at the hip line the pattern extends straight out sufficiently to give the desired fullness on the sides when gathered and brought into place. There are drop shoulders, and these form short sleeves. If long ones are preferred a one piece pattern is provided that is set onto the drop shoulders plain, and at the wrist gathered into a narrow wristband. The bordered part will be pretty for this part of the sleeve, having the wristband of the plain material. A narrow band of the dress material should be stitched over the side gathers.

A front facing pattern is provided, and this should be basted in position on the front and stitched either side of the center, and close to the line, say ⅛ inch at the finish at the bottom, and a scant quarter inch at the neck. Then cut through both thicknesses between the stitching and turn the facing to the wrong side. Baste and press. Before turning the facing to the wrong side tiny clips will have to be made at the bottom of the opening so it may be turned to the wrong side and basted in position without puckering. The front opening is then turned back to form the revers. String ties of any desired length can be added, tacking them to the dress under the revers, if one likes.

Pattern No. 2442 is a smart design for a girl's dress. The back and front are each cut in one piece, and there are drop shoulders that make sleeves unnecessary unless one wishes full length ones. In that event one piece sections are provided that may be attached to the drop shoulders and gathered into narrow wristbands at the lower edges. The dress is slashed in from the underarm seams and the lower edges are gathered. Tie strings set on at the sides are tied in bows with ends over the gathered parts.

A dress of this kind is easily cut and made, and the design is suitable for any of the crêpes, taffetas, chiffons or challis. The dress is to be slipped on over the head, and a slash in the center front makes this possible. If one of the printed materials is used, it will look well to trim with a plain color, matching the most prominent color in the design.

If the dress is to be finished without the full length sleeves, there is a pattern for bands for the drop shoulders. Use the plain material for the bands, also to bind the neck, and for the bands around the bottom of the skirt. The tie strings should be made of the plain color, also. Make these strings double and sew together in a narrow seam on the wrong side; and then put a tape needle in one of the ends and sew to one end of the opening. Then the needle can be pushed through easily to the opposite end, thus pulling the tie right side out with but little trouble. It will then be necessary to baste along the seam edge, using the point of the needle as you work to keep the seam well in place. Turn in one end of each string and blind stitch together.

For an afternoon frock or one for an informal dinner, pattern No. 2685 would be a good one to use. And while the design is suitable for taffeta or satin, it is also good for georgette crêpe. If red is becoming, a brilliant shade, with the embroidery done either in the same shade or black, will be stunning. Then, too, flat crêpe would make up beautifully, and azure blue would be about as lovely as could be.

The slight fullness given across the front by the fullness on the shoulders is good, and the circular insets at the sides of the skirt give the desired fullness to the bottom of the dress. The pattern provides for either long or short sleeves.

THE CHEEKIEST PERSON I EVER MET

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Robbing a Child.

As a boy I attended school in a city of 5,000 inhabitants. We were poor. During vacation I always tried to make a few pennies. Noticing a lot of old iron scattered over the school yard in small pieces, I gathered it up in an old coal bucket, carried it three-quarters of a mile on a hot day, and attempted to sell it to a wealthy coal mine owner, who owned the principal hardware store.

He asked me where I got it. I told him. He took the bucket, emptied its contents in a bin behind the counter, handed me the empty bucket, and told me that he had the contract for furnishing the school with a new furnace and that the old iron was his.

I was too small to make any resistance. I have given up hope of ever meeting again his equal for pure, unadulterated cheek. C. M. H.

Nervy.

A woman, with her daughter, stopped me on the street one day. They were strangers to me, so I was quite surprised when the mother told me her daughter liked the dress I was wearing.

She asked what pattern I had used. I told her, thinking, "Of all the nerve!"

Imagine my amazement and disgust when she said, "If I give you my name and address will you mail the pattern to me?"

I wanted to reply, "Shall I buy the material, too?" but didn't.

His Thanks.

My neighbor took great pride in his garden. One day he was called home from the office by the startling news that his house was on fire. When he arrived home he found that the firemen, in a desperate attempt to save the house, had trampled his garden.

"Get out of there!" cried my neighbor, savagely, "you'll ruin my plants!"

Once Was Enough.

"I am going to do you a favor," said my enterprising neighbor one day. "You know so little about children and when you marry you will need some experience, so I will leave Betsy and Fred with you an afternoon a week and the good you will gain from their dear prattling little ways will help you a lot if you ever raise any of your own."

Off she went leaving her imps with me. Only once, though! I felt I had had a world of experience in one afternoon. D. L.

Saving the Linoleum.

The cheekiest person I ever met was a lady I worked for when I was 15. She gave me instructions as to what I should do around the house and ended up by saying that the floor should only be scrubbed once a week so as not to wear off the pattern on the linoleum. R. C.

Cheek, and Then Some.

The cheekiest person I ever met was a neighbor of mine who asked me to lend her my car for the afternoon. I consented unwillingly.

That evening she came over and asked me for two dollars, saying she had had to buy some gas. If this isn't cheek, I don't know what is.

Paying for It.

The cheekiest person I know is the man who came to repair our radio battery. He set a small bottle of strong acid on a valuable rug. My small daughter accidentally overturned it, and it burned a hole the size of a half dollar in the rug.

When he rendered his bill the first of the month there was an item of a dollar and a half for "the acid spilled by the little girl!" D. J. T.

Embarrassing Moments

So He Lost His Home.

A phone call coming late at night got me out of bed and I lost little time donning robe and slippers as I sprinted downstairs.

Seating myself at a table, I shouted "Hello! hello!" several times without a response, so called my landlady to discover the trouble.

She came into the dimly lighted room on the run and when she reached my side, convulsed with hysterics, she removed, with difficulty, the radio ear phones from my head and handed me the telephone from a table adjoining the radio set.

My face burned with embarrassment and if I live to be a hundred I will never feel as cheap again, and the worst of it all was that the joke was too good to keep from the rest of the boarders, who guyed me so that in less than a week I left a perfectly good boarding house, silently, in the still of the night. C. J. M.

It Was Eating Corn.

My brother and I are from Kentucky. One summer we were visiting friends up north. They gave a little informal dinner for us and during one of the courses the host asked my brother if he would have some corn.

"Sure," he replied, and passed his glass.

The host looked rather startled and my brother became red as he saw that he had meant the vegetable.

They turned it off with a laugh, but I was never more embarrassed for any one. A. B.

Admiring Her Own Work.

I am an admirer of pretty fancy work and do quite a lot of it. I presented my girl friend with a centerpiece at a bridal shower, and some time later visited her in her home.

The centerpiece was on the table and forgetting it was the one I had given her, remarked, "O, isn't this a beautiful piece of work!"

Imagine my embarrassment when she replied, "Yes, I think so. It's the one you gave me." J. L. F.

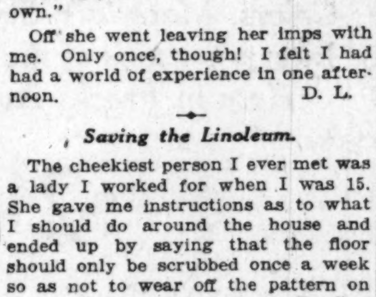
Patriotic, but Wrong Tune.

It was at the Municipal pier, July Fourth. The band in the auditorium started playing its last number. Every one stood up, expecting the national anthen, but it was a medley of American songs. So every one sat down again. Then I thought I recognized "The Star Spangled Banner" and stood up promptly. Imagine my embarrassment when I found myself the only one in several thousand standing at attention. The song was a patriotic march. D. B.



Tidy, Curly Hair in Summer

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I use a hair dress which every girl and woman would delight to know, especially in summer. It keeps my hair wavy, fluffy, glossy, tidy. I never go to a hairdresser, never have a Marcel wave. I get all that curl and glow by using this dressing twice a week in my room.

Great experts made this dressing especially for me. It is not sticky or greasy. It quickly does to perfection all my hair needs to be beautiful, wavy and tidy.

Now all toilet counters supply the same dressing under the name Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c. My guarantee comes with each bottle, so you risk nothing by a test. Go try it. You will find it just what you want. It is one of the best helps I ever found to keep women looking nice.—Adv.

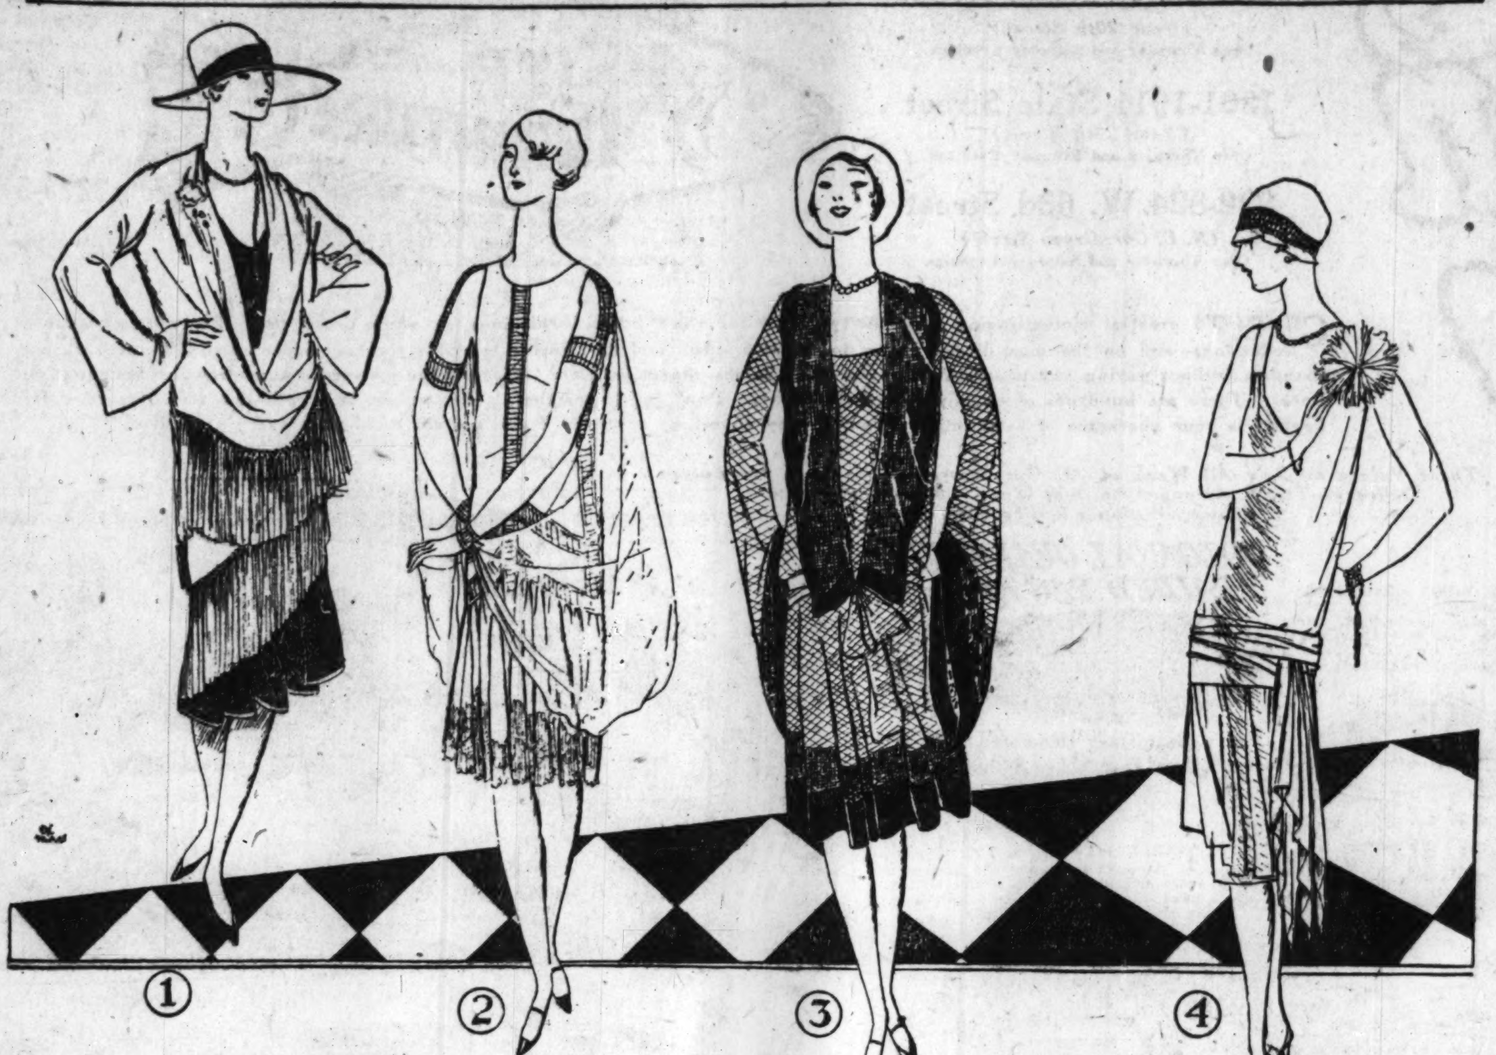
The Last Word in Paris Fashions

PARIS DONS ITS BEST FOR LONGCHAMPS.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



1—A different kind of summer wrap, made from a violette crêpe georgette shawl with fringed borders.

2—This dance frock of orchid georgette and lace is trimmed with bands of irridescent bead embroidery.

3—This Redfern afternoon frock of voile has a trimming of black lace and mousseline bands.

4—This grége chiffon frock depends on its double crushed girdle and pointed panels for its distinction.

PARIS. — [Special Correspondence.]—Last Sunday all Paris put on their smartest clothes and went out to Longchamps, to curtsy to the King and Queen of Spain and to put something down on the greatest race of the year—the Grand Prix. All Paris means the haut monde, the tourists and the hoi polloi. It is everybody's day, and a day is a day on this occasion. That means you get out by noon and you don't get in until morning. Both the weather and the royal presence united to bring out every kind of chic. Women sweltered in furs, because they thought that their fur laden clothes represented the final mot of style, and other women more expert and of greater assurance put on their "lighter than air" toilettes for the first public appearance this season.

Fanny Ward, the perennial marvel of eternal youth, looked as blonde and [illegible] as ever in velvet and fur, but she was probably the only woman in all of that immense crowd who could get away with it gracefully. Lady Grammond and her majesty represented the heart's desire of the day in cool crêpe and diaphanous laces. In fact, these vaporous toilettes were the insignia of the grand cachet of the summer mode. Cute little Dorothy Gish looked quaint but warm in her period taffeta, and Dora Duby, the boneless Charlestonner of the Casino de Paris kept the photographers busy with her American Burbank printed silk frock, well ventilated by lace and open work.

The chic of Paris could not be summed up at the race alone. Around champagne laden tables in the Jockey club, later at the Pré Catelan and the Chateau du Madrid, the observer could cull the choicest blooms of the family of chic. The whole show could then be summed up in next to nothing in the weight of dresses and coats, with a general fluffiness and flou, in contrast to the spring mode of strict simplicity. There were lots of those Reboux two toned feather boas, big hats and gowns of chiffon or georgette trimmed with lace, fringe and other summery ornaments.

The general impression of these summer styles is a lack of standardization and a great deal of simplicity. Taste and personal inclination have a chance to express themselves, if they do not get into the realms of the freakish. Coats for hot weather are as filmy as the dresses they cover, and for this reason they get little exercise in Paris, where the climate is usually cold, but it is at Biarritz and the Lido, where the sun gets in his deadly work, that they shine. Just as in New York and Chicago.

Our first model today is one of these well ventilated, nonheating summer wraps, and something quite new. Bernard created it for Valentine Tessier, the French actress, and he has been quite busy since re-creating it for his fashionable private clientele. It is made of a crêpe shawl, with heavily fringed edges, which is folded over and made into a coat with long loose sleeves. When we saw one of these shawl-coats in violet georgette at Longchamps last Sunday, my friend, who is a designer with one of those monumental salaries you read of in movie columns, and myself decided that the secret of its cut was perfectly safe with Bernard. It is so arranged that the points of the shawl, with their fringed borders, make an irregular pattern of its double hemline and it is held in place at the closing, or allowed to drop in a long point in front. I saw the same wrap later at the Pré Catelan when everybody who had put a bet on Take My Tip was celebrating and those who had backed the favorites were consoling themselves with long cool glasses of something or other. This time it was in white, as chaste looking as Mont Blanc, and it was worn over the gown you see on our second figure.

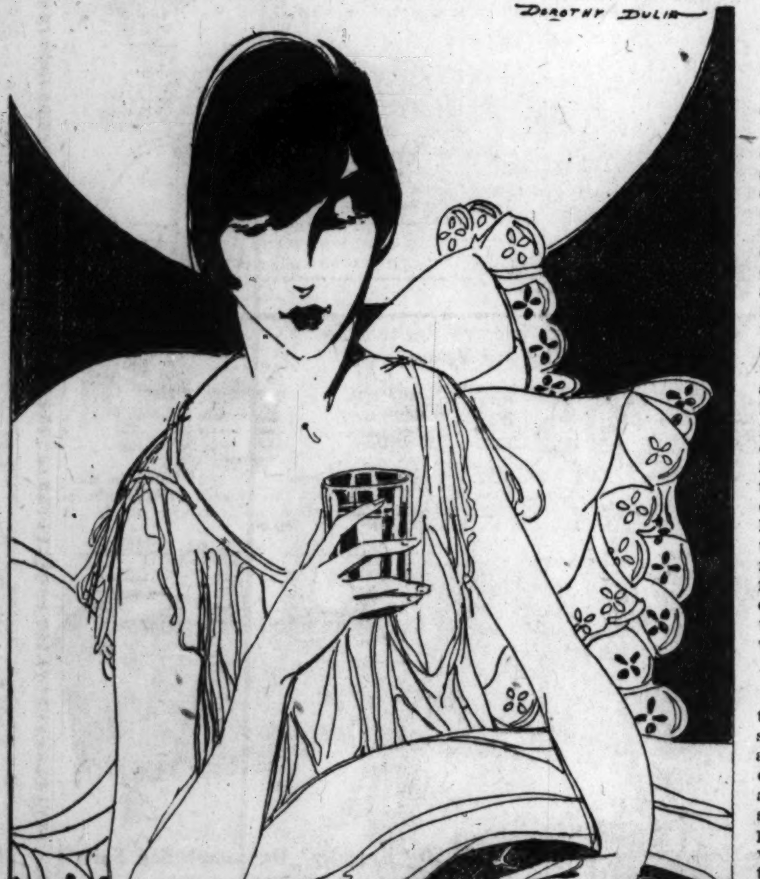
This frock is a creation of Suzanne François, that clever young designer who has just made her mark in the couturier field in Paris. It is composed of pale orchid georgette, white and iridescent jeweled bands, and lace that is both white and orchid. One of the charming features of this dress is its mock sleeves. These are made of embroidered bracelets of georgette and beads, attached to the mainland of the dress by similar jeweled bands that pass over the top of the shoulder. Embroidered bracelets fit the wrists closely and anchor the orchid georgette wings that hang from the shoulders of the gown in back. This kind of an arrangement is universally becoming. It makes beautiful arms and wrists look lovelier, and gives the illusion of beauty to those arms and wrists which leave much to be desired in their natural state. The long bodice is embroidered with vertical and curved bands of iridescent beaded georgette, and the skirt, which is shirred intensively in front, is made of lace. Such a frock minimizes the jewelry upkeep, for it is most distinguished when worn without any jewels whatever.

Our third model is an example of the diaphanous afternoon frock that was worn by many smart women on the day of days at Longchamps. The material of this voile gown shows a fine line diagonally set check, and the colors are in primrose pink and green. It is trimmed with wide bands of black mousseline and black lace that is set over the silk voile. The long blouse crushes at the hips and terminates in ties of voile at the center front. It has a deep rever collar of lace and mousseline meeting at the waist line, and the exaggerated sleves are cut in one with the blouse, bordered at their lower edge by black mousseline and lace. The skirt is circular in cut from side hip to side hip only, and is straight in the back. It is banded with the lace and mousseline that finishes the sleeves. Redfern created this gown for a woman who, in the States, would be professionally called "a stout," and it suited her perfectly, for the lengthening effect of the sleeves, and the revers, the slenderizing of the fitted hip line, and the flat folds of the skirt made her appear only graciously rounded.

Our fourth model, a dinner and dance frock from Germaine Lecomte, was one of the prettiest seen at Pré Catelan after the races. It is made of grége chiffon, neither beige nor gray, but between the two, an exclusive shade of the present season, and it has the kind of simplicity that is always distinguished. The softly bloused waist is suspended from two straight shoulder bands in scant shirring, and the girdle is a wide double one, from the upper crushed tier of which hang three pointed chiffon panels. The straight skirt is covered by a circular tunic that touches the hem line on the left side and rises above the knees on th left.

INTESTINAL HYGIENE

by Antoinette Donnelly



Medical Authorities Urge Salt Water As a Substitute for Cathartics.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—The fact that you cannot have healthy hair, a good complexion, clear eyes, pep, physical and mental, a pure breath, and a dozen other of the necessary qualifications of personal attractiveness without a clean digestive tract is fairly well established, now, in the layman's mind. It is also well recognized that constipation is one of the banes of civilization. How prevalent the trouble may be gained from investigations made a short time ago which disclosed that the average expenditure of the people of the United States for cathartic drugs was over fifty million dollars a year.

In part, the condition is due to the prolonged consumption of a diet which is faulty and, again, it is brought about by sedentary habits of life. People living under civilized conditions do not need to exert themselves to secure a living as do people living under primitive conditions.

How is one to escape the thickheadedness, the lassitude, the sluggish and out-of-sorts feeling and the countless other ills ascribed to constipation?

It is generally recognized the cathartic habit is an enslaving one. A great deal of study has been given to the problem of inducing satisfactory evacuation of the bowels. In recent years several methods of controlling constipation, which do not involve the use of purgatives, have been introduced. Of these Drs. E. V. McCollum and Nina Simmonds of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., speak in their book, "Food, Nutrition, and Health."

Controlling Constipation.

Agar-agar is an indigestible carbohydrate from seaweed, the authors say. It has the power to absorb considerable amounts of water, forming a bulky jelly in the alimentary tract which distends the intestines and stimulates them to peristaltic movements. Unfortunately agar-agar does not absorb water readily unless it is heated in water, when it becomes so bulky that it is not possible for one to eat an amount sufficient to accomplish the desired result. It does not "jell" so well when eaten dry, in which form it has but small bulk.

Mineral oil is a second method, bran a third. Bran is bulky, and when eaten in considerable quantity distends the intestine and because of its rough character tends mechanically to irritate the bowel. Many persons whose digestive apparatus is in a fairly healthy condition but fails to evacuate its contents promptly are greatly benefited by taking bran.

Yeast is a fourth method of promoting intestinal hygiene. It has been widely adopted during the last few years. Yeast cells produce fermentation and have a laxative action. Many persons have found relief from constipation by the adoption of the practice of eating daily a large amount of yeast.

Bowel movements, our authorities further report, have been promoted in many people by drinking liberally of cold water early in the morning. This seems to be effective for many fairly healthy individuals whose intestines are nearly normal anatomically, but are sluggish.

Saline Solution Is Best.

But the practice meeting the strongest approval of these two professors of the Johns Hopkins school of hygiene and public health is that of the isotonic salt solution, of which they say: "A practice which is much more effective, and which has been known and followed for many years, is that of drinking, on first rising in the morning, a liberal amount of water containing the proper amount of salt. This is not quickly absorbed and excreted by the kidneys since it contains the same amount of salt as does the blood. Under these conditions the salt water merely runs through the stomach and the intestine and washes them out.

"In the morning the stomach and upper intestine are empty except for saliva and a small residue of secretions. One is, at the time, about twelve hours away from the last meal of the preceding day. Everything which is of value has been secured from the food taken during this time. Anything further which is absorbed does more harm than good.

"If one takes the following solution on arising it will pass through the stomach and intestine and wash them out. The solution to which we refer is a quart of water which feels neither warm nor cold [body temperature], containing two level teaspoonfuls of common table salt. This solution has about the same concentration of salt in it as is contained in the blood. The water containing this amount of salt should taste slightly salty, but not bitter. One should take this salt water an hour or more before breakfast. It has been found by several years of experience that if one drinks as much of this as possible with comfort [some individuals take only two cups, some three cups, and others the entire quart] and then lies down for about half an hour, the solution passes through the stomach and intestine more quickly than if one stays on his feet after taking it. This differs, however, with individuals. One can soon tell, after two or three mornings, which way it works most effectively."

Intestine Is Washed Out.

One should not eat breakfast until the salt water has passed out of the stomach, we are advised. If it is taken at the proper temperature it will pass out in from a half to three quarters of an hour, although it may pass out sooner. In a healthy person there is practically no absorption of the salt water by the system. By following this practice the intestine is washed out thoroughly at the beginning of each day. Many hundreds of persons have done this daily for years with the most gratifying results, the physicians report.

Salt water as a substitute for cathartics is an old remedy, described in old medical literature. With a healthy person no harm can possibly be done by taking it every day for an indefinite period, the Johns Hopkins authorities repeat.

There are a few persons whose intestines have been damaged by long established bad habits and poor nutrition for whom the isotonic solution is inadvisable. When one cannot take the solution and have it pass through the intestine in about an hour or an hour and a half there is usually something wrong with the digestive tract and these persons are advised to consult a physician, since to suffer from constipation is detrimental to health.

BRINGING UP PARENTS by Doris Blake

"Difficult Children Are Merely Mirrors of Unhappy Homes," Says Psychologist.

WHAT is the atmosphere of your home? And how do your children react to that atmosphere?

Those quarrels which relieve your own feelings so much—what do they do to your children? Or, do you ever give a thought to the influence of jars and disputes in an unhappy home? Where there is friction between children and parents, do you parents consider the possibility that it is difficult points in your characters that are responsible?

In bringing up parents now, the first question you are urged to put to yourself is: "Have I produced the right atmosphere? If not, why have I failed?"

The "difficult child" met with in the nursery and out in the world is being held up as Exhibit A of what the wrong home atmosphere will produce. The refusal of parents to accept responsibility for their share in the matter relieves them not at all of blame, in the mind of the psychologist. And the psychologist's work is complicated by the refusal of some parents to accept any share in the blame.

"'That the child is extremely difficult to handle, obstinate and wilful,' they will proclaim with increasing warmth," writes Dr. Alice Hutchison, English psychologist, "but the merest hint that such qualities are shared by one or the other parent, or are the outcome of friction between the parents, is repudiated with scorn."

Setting a Good Example.

For the production of better and happier future citizens, fathers and mothers are urged to view their own faults with the utmost courage and sincerity and to correct their failings in so far as it is humanly possible. Displays of anger or irritability by a parent are the worst possible example for a child of any age.

In other words, to solve the character problems of their children parents must first solve their own.

Dr. Hutchison presents two types of mothers who produce the wrong home atmosphere for children. One is the mother who in her childhood may have suffered much unflattering criticism of her personal appearance or of her intelligence, or she may have been painfully conscious during her school days of her inferior social standing. As a result she may have developed a sense of general inferiority, which evidences itself by a readiness to take offense and a tendency to magnify and distort any criticism.

Such a person will not be easy to live with, and will create much unhappiness for herself while remainng ignorant of the true cause of it. Both marriage and motherhood will be apt to accentuate the position, since husband and children are an extension of one's own personality. The children will suffer, either through the difficult situations which arise both in the home and outside of it, or through sharing the mother's sense of inferiority.

The opposite type is the woman who, from her youngest days, has been spoiled and flattered and led to expect as her right that every one should yield to her wishes. Whether she marry a man of her own type or one who accords consideration to and expects it from his fellow creatures, friction will constantly arise and exercise its disturbing influence on the children at an age when they need calm and stability.

"Here again," says Dr. Hutchison, "no solution will be found until the true state of affairs is recognized and an attempt made to remedy it."

Causes of Irritation.

Parental unhappiness may depend upon more obvious causes. The affection which existed at marriage, for instance, may have had but slender roots and so have shriveled and died. Husband and wife may have sharply opposed types of character which produce constant irritation and quarrels. Jealousy directed against a man or woman, or against absorbing work, or which is focused on one or the other child, plays havoc in many homes. The causes are innumerable. But always unhappy parents have a baleful influence upon their children.

Apart from the obvious heritage to the child of manifold nervous symptoms, unhappiness and crippled development, unless he comes under a strong counteracting influence, is the certainty that he will become an unhappy parent and breed unhappy children. Or, he may arrive at the regrettable decision that he will forego marriage and with it the possibility of such a fate.

Harmony Is Soon Felt.

"Happiness suggests harmony," continues Dr. Hutchison. "Whenever we enter the harmonious type of home we at once feel an atmosphere of peace. Children quickly and quite insensibly adopt the tone of their home atmosphere. If we address a child rudely he will certainly reply rudely. If we speak to him politely we shall almost certainly secure a polite response.

"We are therefore prepared to find that happy parents beget happy children, and since happiness is an evidence of harmonious balance in the individual, there is also much less likelihood of a deflection in the child's development.

"We cannot, however, at once conclude that no difficulties exist in such a home. Experience, in a fair percentage of cases, teaches the contrary. But it also justifies us in saying that parents of this type, who have tackled and solved many of their own character problems have, if one may so express it, 'a heart at leisure from itself' to consider the problems affecting their children."

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

recipes have been scientifically by Miss Eddington with current materials and are indorsed by her.

CAMP COMMISSARIES.

ROBABLY more people do holiday camping in August than in any other month of the year. For a month now the main requests to the cooking editor have been of camp supplies and menus. whole books, or long chapters in different books, have been de to this subject it is a bit hard valuable suggestions in two or hundred words. Camp cookery, other cookery, is something to be and, not something to be picked at just the minute when it must there are some fundamental to be followed, although a of some scores of camping show that people vary in their as to what is good out of doors as they do in their homes. people like best the items that cooked by the expert with the pan—and these are many, from fish, fried chicken, bacon and camp fried potatoes and other vegetables, or vegetable stews onion and tomato base, to corn pancakes (some sweet) and pud . Crackers softened in a butter made in a frying pan are an ex substitute for bread. Other can do enough cooking with a only as utensil—including the of coffee and tea—while others have a rather complete outfit for frying and baking. The more dicated the eater the more likely that one get on with a small num of utensils, or none in some cases, meat hanging from a string can to a turn, potatoes baked in ashes, fish, too, in a layer of clay be cooked in the same fashion, or have you?

First Principle.

discussing fundamental princi perhaps a first one can be stated saying that it is best to provide the same food for the camp that is accustomed to at home, that is, not have radically different foods want to be happy. But in pro the accustomed items it is just to reckon on needing twice as when at home.

ond Principle—The Staples.

e can be but a slight difference ion as to what are the prime ities, yet even the list of these vary a good deal except for such as salt and sugar, and perhaps and tea. Some people would include flour, yet it is of great use if for no other reason that that many items may be made to further and be more attractive. gravies and sauces need flour. beans for those who know how them in the ground, or even them, are a great resource, and with them salt pork will be . And as to that there are so uses for salt pork that the one has learned them may rank as resourceful camp cook. No fat need be taken along for cook and fried pork gravies and sauces stews can be made in variety. It is used for the fish chowder, and is good in the potato soups or and in the corn soup, or chowder, cabbage soups and stew. Rashers bacon are great because of their in cooking, but not half as can be done with bacon as with pork, although it may be used for things.

subject of staples can be a good prolonged, now that we have the dried milk, dried fruits, vegetables and such items as meal, rice and the cereals. A set staples in a book on camp foods: "Bread, meat, oatmeal, jam, sugar, paraffin" [this last . And with these the wayside such as milk, butter, eggs and vegetables were reckoned. Again this author states the matter thus: "The staple camp foods are bread, biscuits [meaning what we call crackers], oatmeal, meat—including fish and bacon—eggs, cheese, butter, milk, sugar, cocoa, tea, jam, marmalade, golden sirup, potatoes, other vegetables, rice and fruit. If zealots like to make their own bread they can try, but less pushing people will be content with the variety sold at the village shop. Bread can be kept in a canvas bag for a week, if necessary. Biscuits should be plain and must be kept in tins. Oatmeal should be the best that can be got. Tastes differ, but a good blend is coarse oatmeal and rolled oats. There is no finer dish than camp porridge, and for three reasons. First, because in camp one person stirs the pot the whole time and dares not shirk the task; secondly, because the porridge is served directly it is cooked, and, thirdly, because porridge is a true open air food. Porridge and new milk is the foundation of camp breakfasts, and the same dish will be found acceptable at supper." A double amount may be cooked so as to have it for a cold pudding.

Cooking.

The book from which the above has been taken glorifies, over and over, the English Primus stove, but we may say, without departing from well known facts, that the English in general are neither resourceful nor good cooks. The morning porridge or "cereal" can be cooked in any of the fireless cooker ways and be the better for it. If a fireless cooker is not taken along the porridge may be started over the fire and then buried in hot ashes, or partly cooked and closely wrapped in paper, each sheet put on separately so as to shut in as much insulating air about it as possible. Or if the supply of paper is short what is possessed—it is an excellent plan to take along as much as is convenient including both newspapers, paper napkins and waxed paper—may be torn fine and stuffed around as a thick lining for a canvas or other pail, and the partly cooked and closely covered cereal shut in here with a good cushion of paper over. This can be used over and over.

An iron pot of the Dutch oven type can be used for frying, stewing, and baking in the ground. Beans boiled up and buried with a piece of pork may come out as a wonderfully appetizing dish. Chicken can be fried in can be baked in it and set to one side of the fire, perhaps on a bed of coals with hot ashes underneath.

Those who cater to the camper have no end of devices to offer. The iron post, with swinging rings like stove holes, is one aid that enables the camper to do a great deal of cooking over one small fire. As to the fire: in these motoring days the fuel, or at any rate the kindling, is often taken from home.

Luxuries.

The Englishman in his second list of staples names a number of items that may be considered luxuries, or we may count them as desserts in our camp menu. If there are youngsters in the party these may also be counted as a part of the entertainment, and such items as marshmallows to toast have a good deal of social value. Ingredients for candy making may be reckoned as of the same worth. And whatever you do, you who superintend the commissary, keep some of these for an emergency. Even if you do run short of some other things, keep some of these till the last, for then they may save discontent and give the most gratification. Candy, salted nuts, dates, raisins, fruit cake, sweet chocolate, if it is a good sort, and fruit, belong in this list.

Camp Fudge.

You can make a fudge that will be as soft and creamy as milk chocolate, and perhaps may be called that, as follows: Two cups of sugar, one or two tablespoons of cocoa, according to taste, but resemblance to milk chocolate may be closest with the small amount, three tablespoons of dried milk, two-thirds of a cup of water. Dissolve the sugar thoroughly and do not stir after the whole boils. Cook to a soft ball stage when tested in water, or take your candy thermometer along in its box, and cook to 238 degrees on it. Leave till cold and then stir or beat until it begins to thicken, or is creamy. A great deal depends upon good judgment at this point and also upon cooking the whole without stirring, as can easily be done over one of the dry heat stoves.

Camp Onions.

A famous English traveler says: "Nothing is so good a substitute for meat as an onion," and he ought to know, for he lived in upper Egypt for days on nothing but dried rusks and raw onions. But it is best not to try to cook onions in camp unless you know how to do it well at home, but cooked in a potato or fish chowder they may help enormously. The combination should be a little fried out salt pork with its fat, a layer of potatoes, then one of onions, and so forth, the whole covered with water and cooked, and then milk should be added, which may be the dry milk, used according to directions. When fish is to be had, include layers of it with the potatoes and onions. The final addition, or one that can be made to advantage, is a layer of Boston crackers split, put in just before the stew or chowder is served. By the way, onions can be baked in the ashes without removing their skins and may be served with plain butter, or a sauce.

Butter Sauce.

A butter sauce, sweetened, may be used with crackers for a dessert, but it is most common to make it without sugar. Then with the crackers it becomes a relative of milk toast. Or made plain, it is excellent with slices of hard cooked eggs (in the shell), served with boiled fish or even served over plain boiled potato. For each cup of boiling water use one tablespoon of butter blended with two tablespoons of flour. Pour boiling water over and stir till it thickens, and while the flour gets well cooked, adding a scant teaspoon of salt per cup.

Camp Fried Potatoes and So Forth.

Put two tablespoons of fat, preferably that from just tried out salt pork, into a large frying pan. Have the fat ber that the cold potatoes will cool it for a minute or two. To this add a pint of peeled and evenly sliced raw potatoes and sprinkle a little salt over them if the salt pork fat was not used. Do not have enough fire finally under the potatoes to brown them before ten or fifteen minutes. To burn them is to spoil them. Then turn, when they have browned, on one side, cover them closely, and cook them until they are light brown next the pan. This light brown shows that the fire is just right. The cover during the second half of the cooking keeps them from drying too much.

When skillfully cooked these rival French fried potatoes and can be eaten with the fingers. They will not be greasy if the pores of the slices are quickly sealed with the hot fat.

Potatoes are a great resource in camp, if you know how to make them so. And there are other dishes like potato pancakes which are distinctly masculine. Boiled potatoes and fried bacon are to the king's taste often, and to have some left over to heat up in the bacon fat is good management. To vary the bacon cooking sometimes cut it in bits and stir every minute while it is cooking and serve fat and all like a gravy with the potatoes, or over lettuce—wilted lettuce—after adding a bit of vinegar, and perhaps a trifle of sugar, as well.

Cheese in the Menu.

Cheese is portable and palatable, besides being substantial fare. The fol-

My Idea of a Real Vacation

What is your notion of the ideal vacation? A fishing jaunt, an ocean trip, or a lake voyage, a stay at a fashionable resort, a stretch of lazy idleness in the woods, a long motor tour—or what? Write us your idea of the ideal vacation. We'll pay $1 for every letter we print. Address Vacations, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Back to the Farm.

When I was a boy my summers were spent at home on the farm, together with my father and brothers, making hay and doing the other work that goes with farm life We worked hard, and on some occasions early and late, and accomplished a good deal. We had a good home and many hardships that some other country boys had we did not know at all, but, boylike, we did not see that phase of our life and often wished for a summer of idleness.

My idea of an ideal vacation now would be to go back to the old farm for the summer, help in the hayfields, plow corn, pick blackberries, cut weeds, and do all the other things we used to dislike with greater or less intensity. That would be a real vacation. Of course, such a summer would bring with it the evenings lying on the grass listening to the katydids and other night sounds I always did like. It would bring an occasional hunt for squirrels in the early, dewy mornings, and a swim in the creek on a hot afternoon. But the part of the vacation I would relish most would be the old associations of the regular day's work.

ACCESSORIES THAT ADD CHARM.

DECORATIVE accessories, more than almost anything else, change a room from an uninteresting show room, into a delightfully homelike and fascinating interior. Individuality is markedly expressed in the selection and placing of small articles about the room. Furniture is essential, of course, but it is the accessories which give an artistic finish to the room. Never before have the shops been filled with more lovely things than they are today. Mirrors and fire screens, to give a nicety to the fireplace, wall brackets and end tables to heighten the charm of upholstered groups, lovely console sets, all sorts of lamps and shades, everything to make a room interesting is now to be found.

In the entrance hall, where so little furniture is placed, incidental pieces are especially important. Upon them rests the whole responsibility of imparting that essential "first impression" which should be indicative of the refinement and good taste of the house.

Pleasingly arranged is an apartment entrance in which the hall is of the narrow type. Directly opposite the front door is a double doorway into the living room. This is fitted with a gorgeously graceful pair of wrought iron gates. Against the wall at each side is a narrow console table of wrought iron with malachite marble top. An accompanying mirror hangs above each table. Woodwork is marbleized to match the table tops, and the walls are lemon yellow.

On each of the console tables is a bowl of heavy crystal fruit, in all colors of the rainbow, electrically lighted from the bottom of the bowl, so that they send out a fairy-like display of jeweled rays.

The living room is replete with fascinating objects. Dominating the room is the fireplace group. The mantel is made of malachite marble and irons and fender are of wrought iron. At one side is a davenport with down filled seat cushions, upholstered in bottle green mohair. Extra cushions are of deep, burnt orange velvet.

An end table holds a smoking set and one or two magazines. Opposite the davenport, at the other side of the fireplace, is a tuxedo arm chair covered in bright, vermilion red brocade. This brings a wonderfully vivid color note into the room, setting it apart from the commonplace drabness so often seen. Beside this gay red chair is a low, black lacquer table for the accommodation of any odds and ends that may be needed to complete absolute comfort. In addition, it is accompanied by a wrought iron reading lamp with a parchment shade banded in black and vermilion, with a hairline of bottle green. Walls and woodwork in this room are a light, neutralized green. Adding to the various objects of wrought iron, are decorative wrought iron poles at the windows, from which are hung blocked linen draperies showing a conventionalized pattern on a light green ground. These are lined with light green sateen and are caught back, just above the sill, by wrought iron pieces. Glass curtains, reaching to the sill, are of peach colored silk gauze.

Another interesting combination is afforded in one corner of this same room. It is so arranged that the kitchen may be reached either from the living room or the adjoining dining room. The door into the kitchen, in the corner of the living room, is hidden from view by means of a delightful scenic screen, done in modernistic fashion. Before the screen, which is quite high, is a barrel arm chair, upholstered in old burnt orange velvet. It is accompanied by a low coffee table of carved walnut, with malachite marble top. This makes a charming setting (conveniently placed with reference to the kitchen), from which a hostess may serve afternoon tea, or after dinner coffee to her guests.

In keeping with the rest of this delightful room is a truly beautiful secretary desk placed against the wall between two windows. It is finished in deep green lacquer, with characteristic touches of gold and black, and is accompanied by a lacquered chair. Instead of being glassed the doors of the upper cabinet are fitted with antique mirrors.

Lending interest to another living room is the group shown in today's illustration. The commodious arm chair is upholstered in heavy, natural colored linen, decorated with crewel embroidery in many soft colors. On the little walnut coffee table beside it, with its nicely turned pie crust edge, are gold coffee cups and a black luster jar. An adjustable bracket lamp of wrought iron has a natural colored parchment shade, banded in mauve with hairlines of black and shellacked to a high glaze.

Open book shelves always add a decorative refinement and interest to any room. The set shown today is painted deep turquoise, to match the woodwork. Above it hangs a colorful floral plaque, flanked by a pair of jade pink, clouded glass candlesticks, fitted with candles to match. Completing the group is an old mirror in a dull brass frame. The walls here are pale mauve and the floor covering is a deep bronze brown. Window draperies in the room are of striped silk rep in mauve, turquoise, lemon yellow and mulberry, with hairlines of black, turquoise being the dominant color. They hang straight to the floor, by means of wooden rings, from wooden poles, painted turquoise. Glass curtains are of mauve casement gauze.

Unusually novel in the way of decorative accessories are imported flowers made entirely of feathers. Especially lovely is a bouquet which I saw in a delightful living room. A wide lipped, green glass bowl is filled with tulips in pink, mauve and rose. They are most realistic, each petal being made of a separate feather. A bowl of these as a center piece on the dining room table, or on a hallway console, or used on an end table in the living room brings a note of pleasing color and freshness into the room. They are wonderfully effective and may be had as tulips, lilies, jonquils, narcissus, and other small flowers.

Varied Activities of Women

Miss Ortha Cassell runs a beauty parlor for men in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Mary Talbot, deputy constable of Whittier, Cal., totes a gun just like a man.

At the age of 107 years, Mrs. Joseph Churchill, of Hollister, Cal., is still agile enough to do her own housework.

Mrs. Mary Copeley Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, recently celebrated her eighty-third birthday surrounded by her children.

The National Council of Mexican Woman has started a campaign against the sale or display of immoral postcards, pictures, or publications in that country.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Offers a Radio.

"I have a one tube radio set I would gladly give to some one who has no set and cannot afford to buy one. P. M."

With every one's interest turned to radio, this offer should attract a great many people. If you'd like to have this set let us hear from you at once.

Attention, Camera Fans!

"I have what is, I think, nearly a complete outfit for developing films, sizes 4x5 and 5x7, which I will gladly give to some one who can use it. "E. M. P."

Here's a generous offer which should attract the amateur photographers. If you'd like to have this outfit, write us at once.

Ice Box Badly Needed.

"Is it possible for some one to help me get an ice box? I have five children and have no way of keeping their food and milk fresh. Mrs. M. J."

During these hot summer months an ice box is quite necessary, especially in families where there are babies. May this mother have the one you are about to discard?

Wheel Chair Request.

"We have an invalid sister who is entirely helpless, and we would like to get a wheel chair for her. We are not in a position to buy one and thought one of your cornerites might have one to give. Mrs. J. G."

If this invalid could be taken out into the warm sunshine, it might add to her comfort and happiness. She'll need a wheel chair, though. Can you help her?

Family Needs Clothing.

"My husband has been sick and has been out of work for two months. I could get a job and help, but I haven't proper clothing. I wear size 44, and shoes size 6. My little girls are also in need of everything. They both wear clothing size 4 and shoes size 5½ and 6. Can you help us? "Mrs. A. D."

The clothing you have discarded would improve this mother's chances of earning a living for herself and her little family. And the clothing your children have outgrown could be put to good use here, too.

Widow Needs Rugs.

"I am greatly in need of a 9x12 rug for my living room. I am a widow trying to make my living by keeping roomers. The rugs are so shabby and I can't buy new ones. "Mrs. C. W. B."

Can you help this widow in her struggle for a livelihood? The rugs you are about to replace would solve a problem for her.

For a Young Photographer.

"I have a plate camera, 4 by 5, with tripod I would like to give some boy interested in photography. L. N."

Are you an amateur photographer? And would you like to have this camera? You may be able to do a lot of good work with it.

Has Magazines to Give.

"I have a large collection of health magazines and also some scientific magazines and books pertaining to psychology. Any one interested may have them. J. S."

Thank you, J. S.! I am sure we'll have a number of interested readers who will be glad to take advantage of your offer.

Material for Quilts.

"Have you the name of any one who makes rag rugs or piece quilts? I have quite a lot of material suitable for such things which I would like to dispose of. Mrs. L. J. F."

These pieces will make attractive rugs and quilts, and if you'd like to have some of them let us know at once.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Marie, the eldest, was playing and singing one of the late song hits, while the entire family joined in on the chorus. When half through, the baby, sleeping in the next room, set up a wail. Every one stopped singing, and mother, of course, hurried to his crib. Four year old Jack, much annoyed at the sudden interruption, piped up, "Heck, what're we stoppin' for him for? How in the dickens do we know but what he's tryin' to sing wiv' us 'stead of yelling' to stop us?" C. M.

My little 3 year old nephew was playing over at his aunt's house across the street. When he started for home he saw the little twins that lived next door to us playing out in the street. He was afraid to pass them because they would always fight with him so he sat down on the walk, thinking they might go into the house. Just then a neighbor girl came along and my nephew ran up to her, took her by the hand and said: "You had better go across the street with me because those kids are afraid of me." M. P.

Recently we took a little boy from an orphanage for adoption. When we were leaving the building with our new son, a little chap, well aware of what was happening to his friend, accosted us.

"Lady," he asked, "how much did you pay for Tom?"

"Why——," I began inadequately.

Eagerly he continued, "Well, I thought if you paid as much as a hundred dollars, I would let you have me at fifty." V. H. W.

And Now Sally Joy Plans a Free Show for Girls and Boys

By Sally Joy Brown.

GOOD MORNING, girls and boys! Are you wondering what our next party is to be? Well, I'll tell you. We're going to see a wonderful special vaudeville performance at the Majestic theater a week from next Thursday, Aug. 12.

We all know the Majestic and the splendid shows it always has—so, when I tell you about the special features they're arranging for us you certainly won't want to miss the party. We've all seen "slow motion" pictures in the movies, I know. Well, that is the idea for one of the acts—living athletes going through the most intricate balancing performances by slow motion! As the Herbert and Bolt trio performs its feats we'll have a great chance to see exactly how each stunt is done—and you'll marvel at the way the performers can stay so long in positions that most athletes must hurry through in order to do at all.

The Gaudsmith brothers have trained dogs that will surprise you with their skill. There's a trio of song and dance artists—West, Gates, and Kane—who are big hits everywhere, and a clever play I'll tell you more about later, and lots of other features. But I've told you enough so you can start your letters, as that's the main thing. Remember, all you have to do is tell me why you'd like to be one of the party, and I'll give the hundred invitations to the girls and boys whose letters show they'll enjoy the party most. I'll pick the winners next Thursday morning, so your letters must be in the mail by Wednesday afternoon, and the winners' names will be in next Sunday's paper. The party will be on Aug. 12, a week from next Thursday. Do not forget to write your name, address, and age plainly.

Now, here's the news for the Sox winners! The names are below, and the party will be tomorrow. That's unusual—to have a party on Monday—but we want to see one of the big New York games, with the Sox and the Yankees in one of their greatest battles, so we must go tomorrow. Invitations have been sent to all the winners, though, so you'll have all the information and plenty of time necessary to arrange to be at the meeting place promptly:

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that the penguins, those queer sentinels of the Antarctic, should hoard pebbles as a miser does his gold, and should seem to have approached the establishment of a legal tender in stone money!

The penguins sit at the edge of the pack ice through most of the year and forage in the open water beyond it. When the short Antarctic summer comes, however, they go treking to the south in search of land as a foundation for their nests.

These nests are started by the females. They select some windswept spot where the snow has been blown away and the ground is exposed. Each picks out a home site. She sits upon it and the warmth of her body thaws the still frozen frame for her nest.

About this time the male penguin arrives. His first thought is the winning of a mate. He approaches a female who has established a base, bearing gifts. He carries a pebble in his mouth.

These pebbles are highly prized in penguin land. These queer birds know that a little later on the ground will thaw and the snow hereabouts will melt. The colony will then be a sloppy place. Unless proper precaution is taken every residence will have water in the basement. Wet eggs will not hatch.

The female penguin must have pebbles for her nest. Such pebbles will support the eggs above the dampness. They will keep the floor of the nest properly dry.

But pebbles are scarce here in the Antarctic. There are thousands of nests all about, acres solidly covered with them. The owner of each nest is equally anxious to get pebbles for her paving. The demand is intense.

The female, holding her claim, pays no attention to the male at his first approach. He brings pebbles and lays them before her. She still pretends indifference. By the time he has brought the sixth pebble, however, she is likely to relent. The two put their heads together and squawk loudly. Thus do they publish their bans.

Then they work busily lining the nest with precious pebbles. Whenever possible they pile up two or three inches of them. The male resorts to many devices to get pebbles. He is given to stealing them from any drowsing neighbor who becomes less than vigilant. The success of the penguin home depends upon pebbles. They constitute penguin wealth.

Short Lessons in English

By Mary Griffin.

DO YOU KNOW:

That you are overworking the word "fun" when you could often substitute:

Sport,
Diversion,
Amusement,
Entertainment,
Recreation?

That in place of "delay" you could often use:

Linger,
Loiter,
Saunter,
Hesitate,
Lag?

The errors in the following sentences? (Answers below.)

1. We have an Airdale puppy.
2. Uncle John is going to make her a visit.
3. She is bound to go to the party.
4. We called twice previous to seeing her.
5. Have you even seen a skarab?
6. Come in to see me the latter end of the week.

DO YOU KNOW:

The source of each of the following quotations? (Answers below.)

1. "To set the cause above renown,
To love the game above the prize."
2. "A fool there was and he made his prayer
(Even as you and I)."
3. "A still, small voice."

ANSWERS.

Sentence errors:

1. "Airedale" is misspelled.
2. "Uncle John is going to pay her a visit," is correct.
3. Use "determined" in place of "bound" in this sentence.
4. "Previously," the adverb, should be used in place of "previous."
5. "Scarab" is misspelled.
6. Omit "latter." It is superfluous.

Quotations:

1. Henry J. Newboldt ("The Island Race").
2. Rudyard Kipling ("Even as You and I").
3. Old Testament.

Bring Out the Hidden Beauty

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or wrinkled complexion is one fair to look upon? Mercolized Wax will gradually and gently peel off the devitalized surface skin, revealing a new, fresh, white, beautiful skin underneath. The new complexion is a perfectly natural one, therefore in no way to be compared with a make-up. The wax leaves no trace but that of increased loveliness.

A New Skin—Your Own!—at small expense and effort. Simply apply Mercolized Wax at bedtime as you apply cold cream; wash it off in the morning. Fine, almost invisible skin particles are flecked off with the wax. No harm possible. No detention indoors. The lively young, healthy underskin is brought gradually to view—you have the exquisite complexion of robust girlhood—and every one will tell you.

You Look Years Younger—Assist Nature if she needs your help. Obtain an ounce of Mercolized Wax from your druggist or department store, use as directed—and you will bless the day that you made the acquaintance of this wonder working product.

MR. NICKELDICK AND MR. SLIG
ARE GOOD COOKS, BUT THEY CAN'T EAT THEIR OWN COOKING
BY WM. DONAHEY.

TILLY, Mr. Nickeldick's colored cat, had gone off for a week's vacation and was attending the camp meeting at Wobbleville. Mr. Nickeldick was taking his meals at the Palace restaurant, which was run by a Greek rabbit.

About the same time Mrs. Slig took the little Sligs and set off to visit her mother in Shagbark, so Mr. Slig ate his meals at the Palace restaurant with Mr. Nickeldick.

The cooking at the restaurant was none too good and in a few days the rabbit and the opossum grew mighty tired of the place.

Ate their meals at the Palace restaurant.

"This restaurant might do for ordinary rough eating, but it can't compare with good home cooking," said Mr. Slig one evening after he and Mr. Nickeldick had finished their supper.

"I-I-I wish I had some of Tilly's good fish cakes and prune whip," said Mr. Nickeldick sadly. "She is a wonderful cook."

"Mrs. Slig can bake the best beans you ever put in your mouth," continued Mr. Slig.

"No one can possibly bake as good sponge cake as my colored cat," said Mr. Nickeldick, "and her clover salad, O ME! there is nothing like it."

"One of Mrs. Slig's custard pies is a meal in itself!" exclaimed Mr. Slig, smacking his lips.

"O, dear!" sighed Mr. Nickeldick, "I wish I had a real good home cooked meal."

"Let's do our own cooking," suggested Mr. Slig. "We can do it just as well as not."

"A good idea! A good idea," cried Mr. Nickeldick. "You come over to my house in the morning and we'll get breakfast together."

The next morning Mr. Slig appeared at the Nickeldick house and the rabbit and the opossum set to work getting the meal.

"Let's make a tomato omelet," suggested Mr. Nickeldick.

"I don't like tomatoes," answered Mr. Slig.

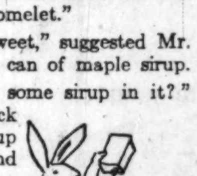
"Well, we can put anything into an omelet," said Mr. Nickeldick. "What would you like in it?"

"I like potatoes," answered Mr. Slig, "and onions and celery."

"Very well," said Mr. Nickeldick. "You shall have them. You peel the onions while I get the potatoes ready and I'll look around and see what else I can find for the omelet."

"I like things sweet," suggested Mr. Slig, glancing at a can of maple sirup. "Can't we have some sirup in it?"

Mr. Nickledick measured out a cup full of sirup and poured it into a bowl in which six eggs had been broken.



Measured a quart of sirup.

"I'll slice up an apple and a couple of bananas," said Mr. Nickledick. "Fruit is always nice and it is so healthy."

"Make it rich," cried Mr. Slig. "I like things rich. Put in some cream and plenty of butter."

In a short time everything was ready and mixed together in the big bowl.

"Don't you think the omelet ought to have some sort of flavoring?" asked Mr. Nickeldick. "Something to give it tone?"

"I'd suggest a little lemon extract," said Mr. Slig.

"I don't like lemon flavoring," answered Mr. Nickeldick, "but I'm fond of vanilla, so I'll put in a little of each and we'll both be satisfied."

"A little peppermint is nice," suggested Mr. Slig. "It will give character to the omelet."

Mr. Nickeldick poured in a generous supply of peppermint and then put the omelet into the skillet. While he cooked it Mr. Slig made toast and broke four eggs into the coffee—"to settle it," he told Mr. Nickeldick.

When the omelet had cooked for half an hour the two animals decided it was done, so they put it into a dish and sat down to breakfast.

Mr. Slig thought the omelet was fine, but Mr. Nickeldick was of the opinion that it tasted too much of peppermint.

"Probably if the omelet had a little sage in it to kill the taste of peppermint, it would be fine," said Mr. Nickeldick.

After breakfast the two animals set to work to wash the dishes, but there was much grease on them and it would not come off.

"I think you ought to use hot water," suggested Mr. Slig. "That will soak the grease off."

"Hot water!" exclaimed Mr. Nickeldick. "I should say not. Hot water might crack the dishes and if anything happened to the dishes the colored cat would have a fit. She's extremely proud of not having broken any of this set of dishes."

Mr. Nickeldick rubbed and rubbed but he could not get the grease off the plates.

"We might try turpentine," suggested Mr. Slig. "That might cut the grease."

Mr. Nickeldick got a bottle of turpentine, but it made the dishes smell terribly. "Gasoline might be better. It won't smell so badly," said Mr. Nickeldick.

They tried gasoline with better results and finally the dishes were all cleaned. Next they washed all the cooking dishes, and when they were dried and put away it was almost noon.

"Soup ought to be easy to make."

"Well, we'd better start lunch now," said Mr. Slig as he put the frying pan away. "It's ten minutes to twelve."

"Let's cook something simple for lunch so we'll be through with the dishes in time for supper," suggested Mr. Nickeldick.

"Soup ought to be easy to make," said Mr. Slig.

"Yes!" agreed Mr. Nickeldick. "We can put in what is left of the omelet and add a few onions and some garlic."

"Put plenty of garlic in," cried Mr. Slig. "It gives soup a dainty flavor."

The soup boiled for nearly three hours before the cloves of garlic were cooked soft enough to eat. They ate very little of the soup, for they had to hurry through the meal in time to get things cleared away for supper.

"If we want to get to bed at a reasonable time tonight I think we ought to go to the Palace restaurant for supper," said Mr. Nickeldick.

"Yes, I think we had," agreed Mr. Slig, "especially as we are all out of gasoline for washing the dishes."

They buried the soup in the back yard and hurried over to the Palace restaurant, where they had a big meal of sauerkraut and buttermilk.

Classic
SINK FIXTURE

Make your kitchen faucets toe the mark, too

KITCHEN sinks have become quite respectable. Some of them are really beautiful. It's a pleasure to use them.

But until the Classic Sink Fixture came along, the faucets trailed far behind. The Classic was the first combination kitchen faucet, delivering a properly tempered stream of water, neither too hot nor too cold. It won friends quickly by saving cracked china and scalded hands.

Other convenient features were added; the handy hose-and-spray attachment; the long swinging spout; the self-draining soap-dish on its own sturdy pedestal; the drip-free, no-splash nozzle.

With the working unit that's changed as easily as a light bulb

The Classic is a truly up-to-date, wonderfully convenient fixture that really belongs in the modern, well-equipped kitchen.

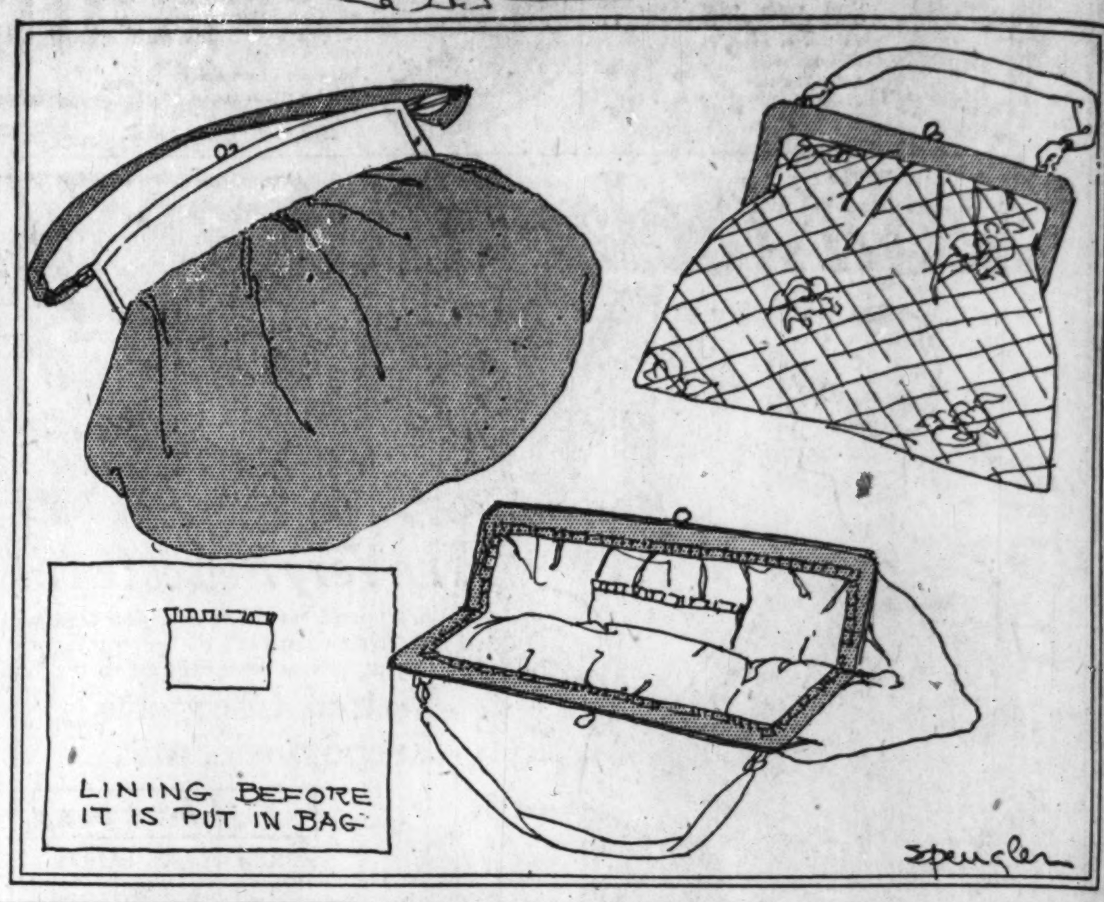
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



LINING BEFORE IT IS PUT IN BAG
Spengler

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, if a personal reply is desired.

POUCH BAGS.

THE shops show a bewildering array of hand bags, many of them made of leather in every conceivable color, and then, again, there are about as many made of satin, velvet, moire, taffeta, and silk poplin. Tapestry is smart, particularly for pouches, and it is possible to purchase lovely frames to attach them to. Of course, beaded bags were never more elaborate and beautiful, and one is shown a large variety from which to choose. But the bags made of silk or satin can be made quickly and easily, and are comparatively inexpensive.

These are sometimes rounding at the lower corners and sometimes slant straight out from the frame and form a right angle corner where sides and bottom meet. The depth and width will naturally depend on each individual, some liking large and others small bags. A quarter of a yard of material should make the right sized bag, making it in the widest part about 9 or 10 inches and between 7 and 9 inches deep.

The frames have holes for sewing the bag to and plaiting the material into the frame is the prettiest way. Lay a box plait in the middle and single ones on either side. The outside the bag is sewed together in a seam and turned right side out.

Then before putting the lining together make and attach a pocket or pockets to the lining. These should be finished across the top with a narrow shirred hem, allowing a quarter inch heading. Then sew the lining together in a wrong side seam, and, leaving it wrong side out, set it in place in the outside. Baste the two parts together, not too close to the edges, and then turn in the upper edges of the outside and lining. Lay the plaits across the top, if there are to be plaits, and if not sew it in plain to the frame.

Some of these bags are embroidered in gay colors and some are made of the lovely quilted materials imported from France.

Bright Sayings of Husband and Wife

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Pretty Thick.

The other day I remarked to my husband that I thought my hair was getting thick since I had it bobbed. He quietly replied, "So's your head." E. A.

This Is Clubby.

Mr.—I see someone is suggesting a matrimonial club.

Mrs.—Well, dear, we'll stick to the rolling pin. It's good enough for me. S. A. E.

Solid Ivory.

One day when I was at my friend's house his mother was being teased about her red hair by her husband, when she said, "Well, I am not surprised that your hair is not red, because ivory doesn't rust." R. W.

Just a Little Longer.

Green—The doctor says I must stop smoking or I'll die.

Mrs. Green—O dear, John! Can't you keep it up until we get enough coupons for that dining room rug? H. L.

But It's the Upkeep.

My husband just bought a new car a few weeks ago. Upon returning from the forest preserve he began to clean it without coming to supper.

"Bill, you seem to love your car more than you love me," she said.

And Bill, with a grin said, "Well, I had to pay a large sum for the car and I got you for nothing." L. P.

Polishing Husband Off.

Hubby was telling me of the way he traveled before we were married and I was tired of listening to his tales, all of which I had heard over and over. One evening when we went visiting he started on his usual conversation, that of "While I was in —— this and that occurred." I asked him how he had traveled when he went to these places.

"I always traveled like a gentleman," he said.

To which I replied, "Well, when you traveled that way did you go incognito?" Needless to say, he cut his travelogue short. Mrs. D. R.

Speaking of Poultry.

He—You were no spring chicken when I married you.

She—No, I was a little goose. D. K.

Heartbroken, Too, Maybe.

I was bitterly lamenting the loss of a handsome cut glass pitcher which had fallen from the buffet.

"And it was a wedding gift, too," I rather tearfully said.

Friend husband soothed me with this consoling remark: "Well, you got me for a wedding present, and I've been broke lots of times since, and you never cried over me." H. G. B.

Take no prisoners

WHEN you go on the warpath for flies mosquitoes and roaches don't let a single one survive! Use BLACK FLAG—it kills them all—10 out of every 10!

It is the deadliest of insect-killers. Bugs simply breathe it and die—strangled! For BLACK FLAG contains a secret, vegetable ingredient which is the surest death ever discovered for insect pests. Not a single bug lives through it. But it is absolutely harmless to humans and animals.

All bugs which invade houses are grist for BLACK FLAG. They all die! This master insect-killer rids a place of fleas, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, moths. Try it! Two forms—liquid and powder. Buy the one you prefer. They're equally deadly. At drug, grocery, hardware and department stores. Powder is 15c up. Powder Gun, 10c. Reasonable protection? Indeed yes! And glance at the low liquid prices shown below. Just compare them!

Defining Social Groups

Persis Standish will answer questions of all kinds on etiquette, manners, and politeness. Self-addressed, stamped envelopes must accompany each request for information. Send your letters to Persis Standish, Sunday Room, Chicago Tribune.

By Persis Standish.

"DEAR Persis Standish: Will you be kind enough to tell me if it is proper to sprinkle one's conversation with foreign words and phrases, such as dulce far niente, toute de suite, etc? Also, please tell me the meaning of the phrase pied-a-terre, and also just what is the beau-monde and the haute-monde? I read the etiquette books and the society columns, and am in a quandary as to my social status. I would like to have your opinion. I am a woman, married. American, white, Presbyterian. I have three children and two servants. My father and mother were both born in Iowa and had a farm at one time. My husband is neither a bricklayer nor a baronet. He is, in fact, a merchant, and we live in a small American city where there is no social register. We speak grammatically, belong to the local country club, play bridge, do not eat with the fingers, pay our bills. To what monde do we belong? This is an entirely serious letter.

"YOUR FAITHFUL READER."

Dear Reader: Two sorts of people are apt to sprinkle their conversation with foreign phrases and words. The first are those expatriates who have wandered about the world so much that they no longer find their own language, whatever it originally was, expressive. In other words, they know so many languages so well that no one serves. The second are those who know a very little about foreign languages and not enough about their own.

Betraying "Little Knowledge."

The first sort season their conversation with the sprinkling, the second flatten its flavor. It is considered bad form to use foreign words and phrases too often in one's conversation because it is supposed to display a certain pedantry. I do not think it displays pedantry, but the contrary thing—that dangerous "little knowledge." It is, however, perfectly polite to use a phrase now and then for convenience and euphony. The catch is to know when and where to use that phrase.

Pied-a-terre simply means foothold. I wish I could get a linguistic one firm enough to answer the rest of your letter as its charming quality deserves. The other two phrases are not quite so easy to render into American.

With me French phrases, like the franc, have fallen more or less into disrepute because of their very flexibility. However, they are convenient currency sometimes, none the less.

In France in the 18th century those phrases had a very definite meaning. But, as Mr. McCutcheon points out, it is a changing world.

Baptizing a Great Class.

Now, as to your status—where shall we find a phrase for it? We cannot say you belong to the great middle class, because that is too British, too un-American. Neither can we claim you for the "common people," because, in spite of the commonness of prosperity, bridge playing and table manners in this great land of ours, that phrase savors too much of Mr. T. E. Powers and his trust cartoons, and that universal complaint of mothers about all objectionable people, "Don't play with them, darling; they are so common."

No, neither of those will do. Let us, my dear, return to the disreputable, the unmoral, the lazy French. How is monde-ordinaire? Let us say that between the beau-monde and that unmentionable monde—you know, the "demi"—there is another monde to which a great many people—nice people, polite people, valuable people—belong, and for the sake of euphony let us name it the monde-ordinaire. Perhaps you will not like my phrase. Well, if you do not, it is because you do not like to belong to the monde-ordinaire. This is not an accusation because I think you do. If you do not you may step out of it into the beau-monde. Any one who has sufficient money, nothing else much to do, and a certain quality in common with elephants. Many do so. I should say it is rather difficult to be precisé about it.

What Beau-Monde Means.

From an American standpoint the beau-monde consists of people whose grandfathers, or even fathers, had perspicacity enough to make fortunes and whose grandmothers, or even mothers, found it convenient to associate themselves and their children with none who were less fortunate than themselves. To progress from the beau-monde to the haute-monde one puts on a lorgnette.

In a school I once attended it was a rule to let in no pupil whose grandfather or father had been in trade. As pupils were scarce the grandfather thing was put out and only those whose fathers were in trade were disbarred. Needless to say, I did not choose the school myself. No child does, and perhaps this is a great mistake. However, it is a changing world, and no doubt now, to get into that particular school one would have to have a grandmother or a mother who IS in trade. For now all the tradesmen are retiring and moving to California, and all granddaughters of the ex-tradesmen, in fact all the beau-monde and the haut-monde are going into business. Even queens are in business these days, and noblewomen. The queen of Roumania and the duchess of this and the countess of that are now identified with that great trade, advertising.

However, I know that having children you have plenty to do. Besides that, I know that you belong to another world that has not yet been mentioned, and that overlaps all the others so that some of its inhabitants are found in each of them. Some of them live in the haut-monde, some of them in the beau-monde, some of them in the monde-ordinaire, and some of them even in the demi-monde. This other world is the monde-intelligent which smiles with you at all the other mondes. For its inhabitants were born knowing the essentials of "etiquette." They were born with and have never departed from the knowledge that the really important things are thought of others, courage, simplicity, sincerity, and self-control.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

lowing is an interesting paragraph on the subject from the English book, "Holidays in Tents," from which we have quoted: "Cheese, like porridge, is an open air food. It is worth while to take pains to secure plenty of the best. In a stationary summer camp it will often happen that the chief meal is taken at midday. In that case the normal supper may well be bread, cheese, and cocoa. Simple as it is, this is always a welcome meal."

Other Matters.

On pain of discomfort or worse, do not depend upon aluminum cups for your coffee. They get burning hot, so that you cannot drink from them.

A supply of the paper shopping bags, as well as some canvas bags that can be hung high, may be invaluable. Cloth bags of any sort have the merit of taking up less room as their contents diminish.

We think it a good plan to eat up, early in the outing, the things that we wanted to take but which require more room than is quite reasonable, such as oranges and apples. But advice or directions to suit all occasions and people must needs be as ample as the moral law.

The book we have quoted from, because it is a record of so many different experiences, advises that every member of the party help in the cleaning up and other work, rather than that these things be assigned to different people on different days. And you who have had any experience in camp with a company of any size will agree with this, because of the unevenness of the comfort secured by the latter method. Some people in the group are sure to be shirkers or helpless, naturally or by choice. And what he says about cleaning up ought to be quoted, but the people who will, will; those who will not we know too much about.

And on the whole, let us say that the people who live in an ordered manner at home will have no difficulty in living so in camp. Those who are accustomed to running out for milk and bread for breakfast, and something for Sunday night supper, must remember that the little places that furnish such things are usually not convenient to camp.

Antiques—for timely disposal

American

Reminiscent of the quaint simplicity of old New England seaport towns are old Boston rockers, Hitchcock, Windsor, slat-back and vase-back chairs, an old wagon seat, hutch and tavern tables and quaint corner stands.

French

Lovely French pieces of satiny old walnut with the soft patina of time undisturbed. A great variety of small tables and bookstands, commodes, stools, daybeds, dressing tables and chairs in the inimitably graceful designs and picturesque styles of France, including many rustic peasant pieces.

This is the first time since the inception of our famous Antique Shops that any such economy event has been announced.

Included in this collection are large and small furniture pieces of various periods and designs, old fireplace fittings, lighting fixtures, pewter, china, copper, old wrought iron, brocades, tapestries, mirrors, and a host of other charming things indispensable to the room or home decorated in the re-created style of historic old days.

The items mentioned indicate but slightly the extent of beauty, value, and interesting antiquity included in this first economy offering of antique furnishings and decorative bibelots.

Antiques, ninth floor, State.

English

Sturdy Tudor tables, chairs, desks, benches, chests, an old Welsh dresser of time-worn oak, and a host of graceful pieces of Chippendale and Sheraton designs in mellow old mahogany, including several sets of dining chairs.

Ravinia's Vistas from Midseason

By Edward Moore.

BEFORE the Ravinia season started Mr. Eckstein sent out a prospectus with a long list of operas in it. The season is now half over, and he has made good with twenty of them. The halfway post is a good place for a little artistic stock taking, to see how much of this preseason announcement remains in prospect.

ALICE GENTLE.
Singing the name part of "Fedora" Saturday.
[(C) Elzin Photo.]

There is quite a bit. It is something one can talk about with some degree of certainty, for Mr. Eckstein has a habit of making his promises come true. Overstatement is not his weakness. Even the plans which he calls tentative are always based upon probability and not remote possibility.

It will take until Labor day, the closing time of Ravinia, before one can tell which item of the repertoire has become the most popular. Up to date the place is held by "Samson and Delila," which is the only work to have been given three times. There was an opera, "La Vida Breve," which was given for the first time at Ravinia last night, and which is reviewed elsewhere in this newspaper. It has been prepared with high hopes, but it still necessarily classifies as a novelty. Its popular success is therefore still in the future.

Two more works are to be brought for the first time of the season this week. "Lohengrin" is set for Thursday night and "Fedora" for Saturday night. These are important items, both as to music and as to the fact that they call for special casting.

But here are Elisabeth Rethberg and Edward Johnson for the soprano and tenor rôles in "Lohengrin," not to mention Alice Gentle as Ortrud and Louis D'Angelo as King Henry. Mme. Rethberg is a Wagnerian singer according to the exacting standards of Germany. Mr. Johnson made his first outstanding operatic success when he sang the name part of "Parsifal" at La Scala in Milan. This will be the first time he has sung Lohengrin in German, though there are still vivid memories of when he did it in English a few years ago in Chicago.

"Fedora" is not given frequently, possibly because it is seldom that the right cast can be assembled. It is only once in a while that a Martinelli is available for the part of Loris, a singing actress like Gentle for the name part, or a Danise for the difficult baritone part of De Sirex, or that a Rothier can be found to give the pathetic touch to the part of the peasant in the first act, which in the interests of good opera he sings by courtesy.

Versatility from Martinelli.

Incidentally, Mr. Martinelli is covering a wide range of rôles this week. He is doing the lyric part of the Duke of Mantua in "Rigoletto" for the first time in his life tonight, the dramatic character part of Eleazar in "La Juive" Tuesday night, and the modern romantic part of Loris in "Fedora" Saturday night. There, if you like, is versatility, and plenty of it.

Turning again to the future, "Andrea Chenier" was on the prospectus, and it now appears that Mr. Martinelli is to sing the name part there, and again for the first time in his life. Mme. Rethberg is to be the Madeleine, a part in which she has scored many successes, and Giuseppe Danise will be the Gerrard, a part that will call for the best of his singing and acting.

"Fra Diavolo," a delight of old time light opera, is on the list, and so is "Mme. Sans Gêne." The latter is new at Ravinia; as a matter of fact it is old nowhere, since its first performance on any stage took place in New York in 1915. Here is another case of what looks like good casting—Miss Gentle as Catherine Huebscher, Mr. Martinelli as the Sergt. Lefebvre who afterwards became a marshal of France, and Mr. Danise as Napoleon Bonaparte. As for "Fra Diavolo," one may look forward with some confidence to the appearance of Mario Chamlee as the robber chief and Virgilio Lazzari in his great comic part of assistant brigand.

Again there is "The Tales of Hoffman," with Mr. Chamlee in the name part and Lucrezia Bori in the two rôles of Giulietta and Antonia, also Helen Freund as the doll. More prospects of a good performance.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" are always operatic best sellers. They are on the list. So are "Lakme" and "La Navarraise."

In point of fact, as the announcers say at the circus, the great show is only just half over.

On the Acquisition of Claire Dux.

It will be Berlin's loss, but it will also be most decisively Chicago's gain, when Claire Dux becomes Mrs. Charles H. Swift. For Claire Dux for years has been personally and vocally the most popular artist in Berlin.

I had an example of it one day last summer when the police lines were up for the passage of President Hindenburg to the reichstag. Police lines mean something in Berlin. When they are formed automobiles can keep off the street and the place for pedestrians is on the sidewalk. Belonging to the latter class, progress was barred. But the name of Claire Dux was a bit of magic, an open sesame. My party crossed triumphantly and the rest of Berlin stayed where it was.

It is more than art, it is personality that so affects an ordinarily unimaginative traffic cop, the same sort of personality that has made Claire Dux one of the best known and best loved artists from one end of the United States to the other. For people were bidding for her services far in advance when she decided to give up her concert career. Her advance bookings extended far into 1927; San Francisco called for her in opera and a recital tour of the orient had been all but arranged.

There is no particular need of discussing her art just now. It has all been done before in enthusiastic terms, and it was and is all quite true. Anyway, she is giving it up. But ever since her first visit to America it always has been one of the interesting events of the season to see how she won her audiences before she even began to sing. She radiated friendliness to every one, and every one was hers. Some artists have the ability. Galli-Curci has it, so has John McCormack and Schumann-Heink. People felt, as soon as Claire Dux appeared before them, that here was no mere musical performer, but a wise and kindly soul who wanted them to enjoy music as she enjoyed it. They did and she did. Incidentally, she was as fine and sincere an artist as she was a personality, perhaps the one because of the other.

At any rate, it is Chicago's gain. Of this there can be no question.

Bolm Finds European Ruts.

Adolph Bolm is back from a flying trip to Europe, bringing with him enough scores for several seasons of ballet and promises of more to follow. A good part of Europe, he reports, is uncommonly enthusiastic over the art of the dance, Germany particularly so. Incidentally, though he says little about this, he was offered enough engagements in Germany to keep him busy for a full year.

The great trouble, as he sees it, is that with audiences anxious to see the dance and managers ready to present it, there are only a few capable of producing it. The only ones that are doing anything constructive, he says, are the Russians with ballet and the Americans with jazz. Elsewhere the traditions and theory of the dance are having a hard time, though much music is being written and many interesting decorative ideas evolved.

France, in Mr. Bolm's belief, has settled into a rut, not only

LAURELS FOR THE MONTH IN MOVIES

By Mae Tinee.

JULY'S SIX BEST PHOTOPLAYS.

RANSON'S FOLLY.
LA BOHEME.
ELLA CINDERS.
THE DEVIL HORSE.
THE SON OF THE SHEIK.
PALS FIRST.

GOOD MORNING!

Whassamattah? Whassamattah?

WHERE are those leads I asked you so nicely to send in to start this "best photoplays" writeup? Take it back! You sent them in all right, but they didn't, this month, happen to be the right kind. In them, you see, you're not supposed to tell how good or bad I am or what I know or what I don't know—or—like that. You're supposed to write a snappy, interesting lead—better than I could write it—that's why you're being asked—to introduce my following tabloid backward glances over the month's best films. Not like this:

RICHARD BARTHELMESS
The Lieut. Ranson of "Ranson's Folly."

> "O Mae Tinée, we've not forgotten; the films you liked we thought were rotten.
> "The six you picked today are punk, but go on—rave about the junk!"

Nor vice versa. More like this:

After I say "Good Morning!" you come along something as follows:

"Well, brothers and sisters, August's gone, September's here, October's coming—Christmas is near—AND—speaking of August—didja see any pictures in August? And IF you did——" but I should go ahead and write your lead for you!

No—YOU write it. Sign your name and address and if the lead's printed we'll—print your name and address in the paper. FAME! And won so cheaply! It is not often that Opportunity knocketh thus lustily at your doors.

Well—July's gone, August is here, September is coming and fur coats are dear—AND, speaking of July—didja see any pictures in July? If so, what did you think were the six best ones? The ones with their little names smiling so happily at you from the top of this column? They pleased me.

"RANSON'S FOLLY" came along Fourth of July week and was an appropriate seasonal offering with its American flags, uniforms and truly martial atmosphere.

It was from the story by Richard Harding Davis and Richard Barthelmess starred in it, as you'll remember. His was the rôle of Lieutenant Ranson, the dashing young officer of pioneer days who joined the United States army because of a yen for excitement and danger. His escapades and romance worked up into fascinating picture material.

This film was intelligently produced and had plenty of suspense that was well maintained throughout.

"LA BOHEME," screen adaptation of the opera, featured Lillian Gish and John Gilbert and was a thoroughly artistic offering. I liked it immensely—better than many voice-of-the-fan-ers who thought Miss Gish's "Mimi" much too ethereal and unearth-y. What she has not, of course, is sex appeal. Her pull in this picture was that of a beloved and wistful child, and as such I found her charming.

John Gilbert as Rodolphe was perfectly delightful. The supporting cast was fine. The direction—by King Vidor—was masterly, and "La Bohème" was staged, costumed, and photographed with a true eye to authenticity and effect. A production entitled to most sincere praise and consideration.

"ELLA CINDERS" was Colleen Moore's latest contribution to the silent drama—a Cinderella affair that pleased those of us who aren't grown up and the rest of us who refuse to grow up. It sported the good old Cinderella plot brought up to date, with Lloyd Hughes as a modern prince delivering ice a la Red Grange at the door of poor stepchild Ella who lived with her cruel stepmother, Ma Cinders, and her two cruel sisters, Lotta and Prissy Pill.

". . . No deep scientific work," seddi of it in the original review. No 'moot' questions are brought up for discussion. The 'searchlight of candor' is turned on no 'issue' whatsoever. 'Ella Cinders' is just a sweet, simple, old fashioned little affair, nicely directed and photographed, pleasingly acted by everybody, and bringing little Colleen Moore to those who like her as they like her best."

"THE DEVIL HORSE" I thought was one splendid animal picture, with Rex, that glorious black stallion, doing the sort of work that sets you asking the question, "Do animals have souls?" Brains, certainly they have—bigger and better than those of some humans.

The story was a fascinating one—flung against the grand and glorious scenery of Montana and Wyoming. Hordes of Indians; wild horses obedient to the commands of the respective leaders, The Devil Horse and the Killer; soldiers, war dances, the champion cowboy stunt rider, Yakima Canutt—all are there to give the film zest and color.

I got real pleasure out of it, and if you haven't seen it—hope you like it as well as I did when it you DO see. If you DID see it—wasn't it splendid? I ask you! (Lots of "its" in that parrygraf!)

"THE SON OF THE SHEIK" broke the Roosevelt's theater records. Record box office receipts taken in during the run of "The Sheik," with Valentino, were topped the opening Monday by those that rolled in to pay for a sight of "The Sheik's" little boy Ahmed grown up.

Ahmed's adventures in pursuit of the fair lady of his heart have been incorporated into a lively and colorful romance that provides Mr. Valentino with everything he needs to be as those who admire him want him.

Lovely Vilma Banky is most winning as the heroine. A fine supporting cast plays up in great shape, and it goes without saying that from the production standpoint neither money nor thought has been spared on "The Son of the Sheik."

"PALS FIRST" was a thoroughly enjoyable little picture, with lots of suspense that kept you suspended for as long as was strictly good for you. Time came for you to know what was to be known and you were told—but not before. To maintain mystery on the screen is not easy—as proved by the number of so called "mystery" pictures that do anything but fool you for a minute.

Lloyd Hughes, Alec Francis, and George Cooper had the three male leads and Dolores Del Rio was the leading woman—vurr' beautiful and sinuous and with an interesting and somewhat unusual technique.

The film had laughs, good direction, photography, and subtitles. It never let your interest lag for a minute.

Films in the honorable mention class were "The Showoff," "Partners Again," "More Pay—Less Work," "So This Is Paris," "The Road to Mandalay," "Mantrap," "The Cat's Pajamas," and "Padlocked."

NOW—you have a whole month ahead of you to think up that leading paragraph—or two paragraphs or more—to start "August's Six Best" with. I shall eagerly watch for your contributions and tenderly read them and be simpally heartbroken if on the first of September—my goodness, do you know that's the beginning of FALL?—I have to write my lead myself!

See you tomorrow!

The Battle of Ideas

By H. L. Mencken.

ONE of the curses of the United States is the fact that a great deal of its public opinion, and perhaps most, is formulated by men who are not free to express their honest views, even assuming them to be intelligent. I allude to public jobholders, from the President down, and to newspaper editorial writers, college professors, and so on. Such men, as every one knows, spend a lot of time discussing economic theories, often indignantly. But of what value is the opinion, say upon socialism or the federal reserve system, of an economist whose job depends upon the good will of a board of trustees made up of bankers and manufacturers? And of what value is that of an editorial writer whose boss is a speculator on the stock exchange?

Here, obviously, the freedom of the expert is quite as important as his honesty, or even his competence. If he is not free, then he is scarcely worth hearing, however ingeniously he may argue his case. I long ago made a private rule about such fellows, and have followed it, I think, to profit. When I hear anyone arguing violently for this or that, I always inquire into his private circumstances. If I find that he is perfectly free, should he be so inclined, to express an exactly contrary view, then I am glad to listen to him. But if I find that the expression of a contrary view would lose him his job, or bring down some other swift and harsh punishment upon him, then I am always too busy to give ear to him.

This rule works very well, and saves me much vain listening. The opinions of Gov. Peay of Tennessee on the evolutionary hypothesis are barred out by it, for Peay would have to go back to work if he changed them. The opinions of congressmen about prohibition go in one of my ears and out the other, for the drys among them would lose their jobs if they turned wet, and the wets would be retired if they turned dry. Such men are like lawyers; they argue beautifully, perhaps, but what they say is not worth hearing.

My rule has the curious effect of making me listen with special attention to the ranting and moaning of a class of men whose ideas are very far from my own, to wit, the class of liberals, radicals, and other such dreamers. I am against them congenitally, as I am against wowsers, and the more I hear from them the more I am against them. Nevertheless, I always give heed to them politely, for they are at least free men—it at least costs them something to cherish their brummagem notions. They would suffer no punishment if they changed; on the contrary, they would gain something valuable.

All this is not mere theory: I point to the cases of many American Socialists, now docile ex-Socialists. Down to 1917 or thereabout these gentlemen bawled for the Marxian millennium with great passion, and were denounced for it violently by all good men. When the United States got into the war, and the jails began to yawn, they got converted over night, and began to belabor Marxism just as passionately. The flop was very profitable to them. Their old books had to be peddled laboriously among the comrades, few of whom had any money; their new books became best sellers, and got into all the libraries. More, they were appointed to gaudy boards and commissions, and invited to dinner by Judge Elbert H. Gary. The newspapers, having reviled them for years, suddenly took to greasing and tickling them.

Nevertheless, their new books did not convince me, though I was in favor of the doctrines they set forth. I preferred their old books, which were idiotic and preposterous, perhaps—but at least honest. Those old books cost them something; their new books got them something. If they switched back to the Marxian rumble-bumble today it would ruin them; hence I am not interested in hearing their reasons for staying where they are. But in the old days they were perfectly free, without damage, to throw Marx overboard, and so I was interested in their reasons for whooping him up.

Their successors of today—that is, their successors in heresy—take on all the attractiveness that used to attach to them. There is something about, say, a Scott Nearing that you will look for in vain in the ordinary economist. The man, I believe, is mainly wrong, and part of his wrongness is downright foolish. When he talks of getting rid of the capitalistic system he is almost as foolish as if he talked of getting rid of the human liver. But if I am thus forced to reject his ideas, I can at least admire the man—and an admirable man is far rarer than a sound idea, and far more valuable.

Nearing started out in life with everything in his favor. He came of good stock, he had a charming personality, he had been educated to a razor edge, and he had a good job in a rich university. If he had stuck to the orthodox economics he would have been a full professor by now, with four hours' work a week, a vacation of three months every year, and fine pickings in the way of consultation fees. He would be sitting on gaudy committees with ample expense accounts, and writing sound books for the instruction of sophomores and the consolation of investment securities magnates. He would be fat, respectable, and happy.

Instead he is roving the back lands, lecturing futilely to small and penurious audiences of advanced thinkers, most of them obviously dotty. The newspapers, when they mention him at all, speak of him as if he were a sort of criminal. His books are barred from the colleges, lest they inflame the students and force the professors to answer questions. The chautauquas have him on their blacklist, along with Senator-elect Vare and Earl Carroll. He is depicted universally as an enemy to idealism. Yet it must be plain that it is precisely idealism that moves him. Let him give three cheers for the United States Steel corporation tomorrow, and he will be back at the University of Pennsylvania before nightfall, with a life job and a mail full of invitations to dinner. Let him admit categorically that Dr. Coolidge is a greater man than the late Lenin, and his crimes will be forgiven instanter, and money will flow into his coffers. But he refrains, and it is at great cost.

I confess that such resolution seems to me to be very attractive. The question is not whether it is lavished on a sound cause, but whether it is genuinely honest and unselfish. The question is whether there is only policy in them, or actual courage. Such courage, when it is encountered, almost always carries intelligence with it. The man who stands against the majority has to have sharp wits to survive at all: the business is not for dunderheads. Dunderheads are always very orthodox. Every one of them believes in precisely what all the rest of them believe.

What all this leads to, of course, is the doctrine that causes cease to be plausible and charming when they prevail. It may seem like a paradox, but it is really almost a platitude. In the old days of the czar the revolutionists of Russia were admired by everybody, including even American bank presidents. They were not only heroic fellows; they were also very persuasive. Nobody seriously questioned their politics. When they issued a philippic against the czar the whole world applauded; when they knocked off a grand duke only a few specialists in law and order were shocked.

But once these revolutionists disposed of the czar and got into office themselves their whole philosophy began to wobble, and now it is accepted gravely only by a few fanatics. What ails it is that there is no longer any heroism in it. An army is behind it, with a mob behind the army, and so it is official, which is to say, safe, which is to say, unconvincing. A bolshevik, in the old days, had everything to gain by renouncing his nonsense; hence it took on a certain dignity, even when it was most palpably idiotic. Today he has everything to gain by sticking to it, and so no one wants to hear it any more.

We have had an example nearer home. Ten years ago the cause of temperance was making very fast progress in the United States. Drinking was diminishing everywhere; even congressmen, horse doctors, and newspaper reporters were growing sober. Hard liquor was on the slide; light wines and beer were triumphant, with even softer things coming in. It took some courage to renounce the cup, but on all sides it was being done. Then the silly prohibitionists forced the Eighteenth amendment into the constitution, and set out to execute it with clubs. Now the country is boozy again—and the brave and enterprising young fellow packs a flask of gin on his hip.

GEORGE WHITE HOGS SPOTLIGHT OF REVUE

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It appears to be a George White summer on Broadway. I find the town talking wildly about the young manager's success with his new "Scandals." It has held up amazingly through such heat as there has been, and is beating all the other Broadway revues by thousands of dollars in weekly receipts.

GEORGE WHITE.
May be crown prince of the revue.
[Copyright: Strauss-Peyton]

The situation is interesting to those who have followed the careers of Broadway's showmen There has been for several seasons now a keen rivalry among those who have sought to unseat Florenz Ziegfeld as the master of the revue in America. For twenty years the Ziegfeld "Follies" maintained an undisputed supremacy. Then along came young Mr. White with youth and confidence, and comparatively little money. His first ventures were in the nature of rather weak imitations of the Ziegfeld entertainments. Some times they made money, frequently they drifted perilously close to the rocks.

Curiously, the experiences of the two ran parallel. They are both born gamblers. In the early days of the "Follies," the Ziegfeld enterprise was threatened by the extravagances of its creator. One year he came home from Europe with little more than enough to pay his boat fare. He had lost a fortune, it was said, at Monte Carlo. That was the year Klaw and Erlanger took over fifty per cent of the "Follies," financed the annual attraction, and saved the production. They have been sharing partners ever since. This year the old "Follies" corporation was dissolved.

The first money young Mr. White made with the "Scandals," Broadway reported, he sought to double on the race tracks. His winnings were huge, and so were his losses. He, too, weathered defeat with borrowed capital. But his sworn vow to beat Ziegfeld one day never lagged.

A Lift from Marilyn.

Sensing the danger of growing competition in the revue field, Mr. Ziegfeld began to interest himself in the production of musical comedies. He made Marilyn Miller a star of magnitude, and the young dancer rewarded him by making him another fortune. He made a first class comedy star of Eddie Cantor, and again was successful. He did the same with Leon Errol. But all the time he clung to the belief that his "Follies" would continue at the head of the annual revue list. A year or so ago he began to weaken so far as the "Follies" were concerned. He made the announcement then that he was through investing a quarter million dollars a season in a revue that cost him practically $30,000 a week to run. The percentage of profit had diminished until there was not any.

No one believed Ziegfeld then. The "Follies" were still supreme. But on came the others. Especially Mr. White and his "Scandals." On the road the "Scandals," the Shubert "Artists and Models," and other annual revues, and the "Greenwich Village Follies" became almost as well known and almost as popular as the "Follies."

The Ziegfeld revue this year, built up from "The Palm Beach Girl," which Ziegfeld produced in Florida last spring, gradually assumed the character of a last stand. To build it into an entertainment worthy of those that had gone before, the producer again spent money lavishly. Realizing after a week in Atlantic City that he had the fight of his life on his hands, he began hiring specialists wherever he could get them. But most of those with drawing power on Broadway were under contract.

Among these were Moran and Mack, the blackface comedians. They had signed a contract with Earl Carroll for the new "Vanities," now in preparation for an August opening. Carroll, being generous, agreed to release them for six weeks, and they were put into the Ziegfeld show. So far as the comedy was concerned, they did much to save the second half of the revue. But now they must go back to the "Vanities."

Back to Clothes.

Partly in desperation, partly because he really has come to believe in clean shows, Ziegfeld stripped his comedy scenes of curbstone vulgarities and placed a ban against nudity. When "The Palm Beach Girl," then called "No Foolin'" and since then renamed the "Ziegfeld Revue," was produced at the Globe, it was the cleanest and scenically the most beautiful of the local shows.

The resulting publicity was widespread and for a time a box office help. But apparently the taste of the people has not yet changed sufficiently to be depended upon. The Broadway crowd still demands its peck of dirt. The naked ladies are still a lure. The tourists, who make up a large part of the summer trade, still want to see the shocking things they can talk about back home.

And so, as I say, I find Mr. Ziegfeld on my return to town backed against a wall of urban scenery, surrounded by chastely clothed ladies, making what may prove his last fight for the show that was the "Follies," and a reputation as the greatest producer in his field that was not only national, but international.

He is not whipped. As a showman he still is supreme in his own field. His musical comedy ventures still top all the others. There is more "class" discernible now in the Ziegfeld entertainment than in all the rest of them combined. But there are too many signs that Broadway and the taste of Broadway, such as it is, have beaten him this year for it to be easily denied.

There is irony in that situation. That the man who brought the modern révue to its highest and, broadly, to its point of greatest achievement should be beaten finally by the very thing he created carries an element of Frankenstein justice that may be poetic, but is also a little to be regretted.

Ziegfeld is only 60 and still full of fight. But the dangerous George White is still in his thirties, and he knows the newer Broadway, I suspect, better than his one time master.

Dog-days on Broadway.

Not much has happened in the way of new plays produced since we were last on Broadway. They started an all colored musical comedy, called "My Magnolia," that had been something or other on the road, but it lasted only four days and appears to have had nothing to recommend it but a troupe of dancing darkies who hoofed it and perspired generously in a lost cause.

There is a new farce called "The Blonde Sinner" that is still running. The reviewers did not care much for it, and it is struggling with the competition of poor theater-going weather and some thirty other attractions that are holding on mostly by their choristers' toe nails. It has to do with the hunt of a pair of comic detectives for a missing co-respondent, and is lightened by such jokes as one in which a dumb bride mistakes a reference to the casus belli as a reflection upon her anatomy. Enid Markey is the bride.

There is another mystery play called "Pyramids" which seems to be a light rash following the epidemic of scarlet dramas of other seasons. In this a sacrificing wife, played by Carol McComas, seeks to buy her husband's freedom from Sing Sing by living with the gentleman who schemed to put him there. After several months the gentleman goes back on his bargain, the husband escapes prison, and somebody shoots the dirty cur responsible for the plot. Roy Gordon

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

SPECIFIC dating of the new plays after tonight, when "The Great Gatsby" will be shown in the Studebaker, is lacking. Thus, while the Auditorium is to reopen with a cast doubling in "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "The Mikado," the Princess with "Kongo," and the Great Northern with "The Vagabond King," Mr. Garrity, whose business it is to look after those theaters, says the time will be "on or about Labor Day." He as yet is without information about the Garrick (for which William Anthony McGuire's "Twelve Miles Out" has been mentioned) and the La Salle. A new Passing Show, with a Chicago première, has been talked about for the Olympic, and "Song of the Flame" for the Apollo,—although it would seem to me that the Apollo is the place for a Passing Show, and the Olympic for "Song of the Flame." But the plans for the latter house are changed: "Castles in the Air" continues in such prosperity that it is to be held there, 'tis now stated, until mid-October, at least. . . .

DONALD BRIAN
He is now in Mr. Granville's part in "Castles in the Air."

Mr. Herrmann has "The Poor Nut" booked for August 29 in the Cort; but it seems that "If I Was Rich!" has been doing so well there that he would like to hold it beyond the end of the new month. . . . That "Easy Come, Easy Go!" will be the play for the relighting of the Harris seems as nearly certain as such things ever are; and there is like seeming as to "Alias the Deacon" when "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" shall be taken from the Selwyn. . . . There was more fun in "The Home-Towners" than the length of its run would appear to indicate; and there is no certainty as to what will be next, after five or six weeks of silence and shutters, in Mr. Cohan's handsome and comfortable new theater. . . . Mr. Erlanger confirms a statement printed many weeks ago in THE TRIBUNE that the Marx Brothers in "The Cocoanuts" will be the first offering in the Palace when that house shall have been renamed for him and the Orpheum shall have taken its two-a-day shows west in Randolph Street to the new Palace: the date is now set as October 11, I believe. . . .

Mr. Woods says nothing as to when or with what he will reopen the Adelphi, which is still under rental to the Messrs. Ascher. "Treat 'Em Rough!" something new by Mr. and Mrs. Hatton, has been talked about for that theater preceding "The Shanghai Gesture." . . . The plan for the Studebaker is four weeks of "The Great Gatsby," and then "Queen-High," the song-and-dance version of the farce named "A Pair of Sixes." . . . "Tip-Toes," with Miss Queenie Smith, is expected to be the starter in the Illinois. . . . And that's about all I know or think I know as to what will be on view in the Chicago theaters "on or about Labor Day."

Beg Pardon!—but Not Humbly.

Miss Martha Lorber is identified on the first page of today's Picture Section as one who has forsaken dancing to act a minor rôle in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" while waiting for Miss June Walker to fall ill; whereas, at last report, Miss Lorber has resumed dancing, and is occupying in "Castles in the Air" the soubrette's part performed through many weeks by Miss Joyce White. However, THE TRIBUNE is not to blame: Miss Lorber was in the play in the Selwyn when, weeks ago, the page was prepared for process; and, as she had been put into the rôle of Gloria, it was reasonable to assume that she would stay put.

Clipped Stuff That's Good Filler.

> . . . The impersonal critic is a worthless critic. He is as worthless as an impersonal producer or an impersonal playwright. The chief argument against the impersonal critic, after all, is not that he is impersonal, but that he is a critic. The practice of professional criticism by any such fellow is both ludicrous and objectionable. He is not a critic; he is a reporter. Reporting is the recording of what one has seen and heard; criticism, the recording of deductions made from what one has seen and heard. The difference is the difference between a Sunday newspaper supplement article on the monkeys in the Bronx Zoo and the Darwinian theory. . . .

> A critic is worthy in the degree that his mind feels and his heart thinks.

Miscellany.

The first play to emerge from the Yale workshop of the drama under Professor Baker is named "A Brave Little Woman," and is by Miss Maurine Watkins, for a time a reporter for THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Sam H. Harris, one of the absentee landlords of Chicago theaters, is to put it on.

Mr. Harris makes formal announcement that Miss Jeanne Eagels will in November go into Avery Hopwood's adaptation of the German piece named "The Garden of Eden," although he had previously stated that she would act in one by Owen Davis called, if I be not wrong, "The Yes-Girl."

And Mr. Harris, explaining that he will send "The Cradle-Snatchers" to Chicago in October with Miss Mary Boland in her original rôle, says that he has hired Miss Blanche Ring to act that rôle with a second company.

New plays being tried out in one place or another by resident companies are "The Unsophisticates," by Harry Delf, the dancer out of the varieties, whose "The Family Upstairs" was shown early last season in the Selwyn; "The Fever of Youth," by John Hunter Booth, who wrote "The Masquerader," which Chicago greatly admired when Guy Bates Post performed in it, some years back, in the Studebaker; and "Gentle Grafters," which somebody tags as the 106th play by Owen Davis, although it is a long time since his théâter was stated to have passed the two-hundred mark.

Lew Fields, who for a long time has been what the English term "at a loose-end," is going into the song-and-dance version of "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." with Joseph Santley and Miss Desirée Ellinger. . . . Miss Ellinger, unknown in Chicago, is one of the young women who undertook to sing the title-rôle of "Rose-Marie" in its long New-York run.

The fourth issue of the Grand-Street Follies, for three Summertimes the best of the revues staged in New-York, hasn't clicked and is to be taken off next Sunday. . . . The 1,800th New-York performance of "Abie's Irish Rose" was given last week. The sole remaining record to be achieved by this candy-pull is that of the five-years London run of "Chu Chin Chow."

Miss Alice Brady is said to have been persuaded to take over the rôle in Vincent Lawrence's "Sour Grapes" originated in recent try-out performances by Miss Fay Bainter; but the former's doing so will not be permitted to interfere with a tour planned for her in William Hurlbut's "Bride of the Lamb," wherein, according to the New-York play-reporters, she acts so well as to put her into any authentic list of the five best actresses. . . . "Sour Grapes," with Miss Bainter, has been tentatively mentioned as something for the Playhouse after Mr. Keenan is through there in "Black Velvet."

of ballet, but opera. He cites two performances of Strauss' "Salome," which he chanced to see one at Riga, with Maria Kouniezova, the other at the Paris, Opéra, with Genevieve Vix. Latvia, of which Riga is the capital, has a population of 2,000,000, yet the performance had far more vitality and interest than the one at Paris.

Some of the best of Mr. Bolm's ballet gleanings will be presented this year during the season of the Allied Arts.

Johnson, Again on Europe.

More about Europe from Manager Herbert M. Johnson of the Civic Opera company:

"Milan, July.—Well, here we are on the last stand before starting for home, wearied by the continuous complaint to be heard everywhere concerning everything American, and glad to be on our way to America and to Chicago.

"Countless bad or mediocre singers have demanded our attention, with very few in sight worth the trouble of hearing. By far the greater number of the latter are Americans. Two or three years hence it is quite possible that an American management seeking voices in Europe will be embarrassed in choosing between the number who are legitimate prospects for each vacancy. But that time is not yet. Nor is the material at hand eligible for the big rôles.

"A Chicago girl, Gertrude Henius, is conspicuous among the group making good in Milan. This city, the symbol of Italy's operatic claims and aspirations, presents unique opportunity to analyze operatic conditions in Europe. Like France and Germany, the Italians do not want foreigners in their casts. They created opera, gave it to the world, and taught its principles to the other nations. To them La Scala is the operatic holy of holies, yet the season recently closed had to call upon Americans, French, Russians, Finns, Norwegians, and Spanish to complete satisfactory casts. And the creators of opera were glad to secure these artistic visitors!

Garden Gets an Ovation.

"The difficulty of casting experienced at La Scala is duplicated in France, where everything foreign is anathema. As relates to Americans, it is easy to understand their antipathy, after observing the American invasion at its height. The French like our custom and are eager for our money, but we are in Paris in such a swarm that they are submerged, denatured. I previously discussed numerous causes for our unpopularity, but in addition to those I recited it must be remembered that the army of tourists is by no means made up of our best or most representative citizenry. The American Express company in Paris, when we were there recently, had the aspect of a bargain sale rush just before Christmas at one of the cheapest of the State street stores, and that condition continued from morning until night. Americans of a sort were everywhere engaged in telling French people how we do things back home and how they (the French) should do things over here. It would be amusing were it not so nauseating.

"Notwithstanding the absence of cordiality between the French and 'us,' they did not hesitate to insist upon an extra performance of 'Pelléas et Mélisande' from Mary Garden, in addition to the group of four performances for which she came to Paris. And they treated her royaly. Yet I do not think Miss Garden was any too happy over the event, for she contracted a severe cold before she could escape from the wretched weather that prevailed and returned to her villa, Los Galetz, Beaubien, near Monte Carlo, where she is enjoying a good rest."

Schipa Encounters Loss.

"Tito Schipa, alone of all the Chicago artists summering in Italy, has encountered hard sledding. The great tenor essayed a heroic undertaking in presenting an ambitious season of grand opera in his little home town in order that his aged father might enjoy the best lyric drama without undergoing the rigors of travel. The performances were so conspicuously good that the Italian government rewarded his commendable enterprise by awarding him the order of the Grand Crown of Italy. But with little or no population to draw from it was inevitable that the box office receipts could not meet the heavy expenses he incurred in recruiting a representative cast and building productions, and in consequence Schipa suffered the common fate of those who undertake opera presentation, sustaining a material loss. However, he is very happy over accomplishing his primary purpose in affording his father a gala affair.

"Schipa is making Rome his headquarters, and has decided not to go to South America this summer. He never looked better and his glorious voice is as delightful as ever."

By way of New York comes the information that Florence Macbeth, at present one of the members of the Ravinia company, is to go to San Francisco this fall and sing the leading rôles of "Martha," "The Barber of Seville," and "Fra Diavolo" with the opera company there. She is good in all of them.

Paul Whiteman and his jazz band are now back in the United States after a tour abroad that included engagements in England, Germany, Paris, Vienna, and Amsterdam.

Alexander Gretchaninoff, known in this country only by some meritorious, not to say attractive, compositions, is to be a visitor in person next season. New York will claim his first appearance about the middle of October. It is inferred that he plans to take part in concerts of his own works with various assisting artists and organizations.

Another music maker of the coming season will be George Antheil, who for several years has been living in Paris. He is the composer of the "Ballet Mecanique," which is scored for something like sixteen mechanical pianos and a collection of percussions. Recent reports from Paris indicate that whenever he felt in need of a riot he would give a performance of his own works, and he was always sure of getting it. On his American course he is to play a new piano con-

THE picture represents him in the part he will take in "La Juive" at Ravinia Tuesday night, but those who are unable to go to the opera house in the woods at that time will find him billed as the Duke of Mantua in "Rigoletto" tonight and Loris in "Fedora" Saturday night. He is a brilliant and versatile singer and one of the popular members of the Ravinia organization.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

MR. WILLIAM A. BRADY, in Chicago for the reopening of "The Great Gatsby," speaks with enthusiasm of Miss Helen Baxter, who is Daisy in the footlighting of F. Scott Fitzgerald's good yarn. Others besides James Rennie in the cast are Miss Catherine Willard, who acted here last year with Miss Grace George in "She Had to Know," and Charles Dickson, a star in the early 'Nineties, when he toured the country in "Incog," the farce on which "Three Twins" was based. Mr. Dickson acts Wolfshiem, Gatsby's cautious partner; —and this reminds me that, in the passage in the book wherein is described the rendezvous of Wolfshiem and Gatsby, the novelist makes an error in seeking to tell where the fragrant old Metropole Hotel stood. . . . Owen Davis' stage-version is in a prologue (whereof the action is laid at Daisy's girlhood home in Louisville) and three acts, all laid in or near Gatsby's sumptuous Long Island home. Those scenes of the book which take place on the highway or in New-York are not used in the play.

The Messrs. Shubert, seeking to pep up the attendance in New-York on the show they've based on an imported revue named "Hello, London!" have changed the American title from "The Merry World" to "Passions of 1926." . . . Persons for whose taste I have respect tell me that it is the best of all the revues now to be seen in New-York, and that less than any of the others can it appropriately be called by the new name.

Ben Hecht, who retains his desire to write plays, has written another: he calls it "The Scoundrel." It is to be tried out next week in Baltimore, with Miss Emily Stevens and Miss Elsa Ryan in it.

Miss Dorothy Dickson, once of the Chicago cafés and night-places, is to have in London Miss Queenie Smith's rôle in "Tip-Toes." . . . Miss Dickson is liked in London, where she has had what is there regarded as the high distinction of acting the title-part of "Peter Pan."

Eugene O'Neill's piece named "Diff'rent," acted in New-York back in 1922, was put on last night by the Studio Players in their refuge at 826 North Clark Street. It is to be acted again tonight, August 7, 8, 14, and 15.

"Daisy" is now given as the title of a new play by George Kelly, author of "The Torch-Bearers," "The Show-Off," and "Craig's Wife." Some months since, it was called by another name. . . . "Daisy" is to be staged in October by Miss Rosalie Stewart, who put on the three other pieces by Mr. Kelly.

"Maid Errant" is something new by Robert Housum; and it is to be made known this week in Cincinnati, with Miss Vivian Tobin in the principal rôle. . . . Mr. Housum, who used to write of and about the drama for the Cleveland newspapers, was the author of "The Gypsy Trail," acted eight or nine years ago in the Cort by Otto Kruger and the pretty girl named Mackey whom Beerbohm Tree brought to Chicago in 1916 as Anne Boleyn in his revival of "King Henry VIII." She afterward married Lionel Atwill, and then ran away from him.

Leon Errol, still suffering from the injury to a leg sustained when he was performing in the Illinois in "Louie the Fourteenth," is on his way to Vienna for treatment. . . . 'Tis said that he and Mr. Ziegfeld are about to end their association.

Three casts are to sing "The Vagabond King" this season. . . . As yet, it is not stated if Dennis King will be brought to Chicago for the engagement in the Great Northern.

"Is Zat So?" after a run since January of last year, was taken off last night in New-York. "The Shanghai Gesture," too, was taken off, but it is expected that it will be put back when the weather cools.

Eddie Dowling, who wrote and performed in "Sally, Irene, and Mary," has written and is to perform in "Honeymoon Lane." . . . An old La Salle show was named "The Honeymoon Trail"; and a later La Salle show was named "Honeymoon Town."

Mr. Klaw and Mr. Erlanger, whose firm for years was the dominant factor in the business of the theater in the United States and Canada, explain that they have adjusted their affairs. They don't mean that they are to reunite, but merely that they have fixed things so that there will be no more litigation as to how much of the assets of Klaw & Erlanger each should take. . . . Their partnership, after thirty years, was ended in 1919 because, it was said, Mr. Erlanger discharged one of Mr. Klaw's sons without having consulted Mr. Klaw.

TWICE DAILY

MISS VIOLET HEMING

She's in the new bill in the Palace, acting in a sketch named "The Snob." . . . Miss Heming, who is from the Isle of Wight, has been fairly familiar to Chicago theatergoers since, back in 1911, she acted with the late Alfred Chevalier in the Princess in a piece named "Daddy Dufard." She was with George Arliss in his second engagement here in "Disraeli," and was in the original cast of "Spring Cleaning," three years ago, in the Adelphi.

and Charles Waldron are in the cast, and the same Samuel Golding who wrote one called "Open House" last season is the author.

"Honest Liars" is a farce, called crude by the experts, written by two young college men, Robert Weenolsen and Sherrill Webb. Its scenes are laid mostly in a comic sanitarium, and have to do with the embarrassment of the doctor's wife and a boy friend who, in escaping from a raided roadhouse, find that they are carrying a couple of abandoned babies on the back seat of their car. Two hours of explaining tricked situations and some comedy of the red flannel underwear school. Robert Woolsey is the comedian, and Kathleen Lowrie the heroine.

In the chief cellarette theater of Greenwich Village, the Triangle, they have produced a revue called "Bare Facts of 1926" which seems to promise fairly well—for the Village. It goes best, they tell me, at its weekly midnight performance, when most of the village parties break up and the home boys and girls and the visiting Rotarians are looking for some place to go between then and bedtime.

The burlesques of current plays are said to be good and snappy, and the chorus to be discreetly brassiered in spite of the revue's title and the location of the theater. "Where there are no nudes, there should be no prudes," wrote one reviewer. The theater is below stairs and seats only 125 persons. Roberta Pierre, once a show girl in the "Vanities," and a baritone named Rupert Lucas head the cast.

Well, They Worked.

A certain Scotch merchant was very anxious to increase his trade. Just before Christmas he issued an ad stating that he would give presents to all his customers. The presents were to be coat hangers and cigar lighters. Next day the store was crowded. The two presents, neatly packed in one bundle, were duly given out—a nail and a match. M. B.

Hail New Sousa Piece.

Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa and his band, now on their thirty-fourth annual tour, have been playing at Atlantic City, where 65,000 people paid admission to hear them during a seven day period. They have now moved to Willow Grove, Philadelphia, for an eight weeks' engagement, their twenty-fourth consecutive engagement there. Reports from these places indicate that Mr. Sousa's new humoresque, "The Wets and the Drys," is one of the great hits of his career.

Swedish Royal Pair Feted in Hollywood

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—A great furore was made in Hollywood by the visit of the crown prince and princess of Sweden. At the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio the guests were entertained with a sight of Norman Kerry and his highlanders dashing through a snow and sleet storm in the castle of Glencoe in battle array. Dinner was served later in the castle, where "Annie Laurie" is being made with Lillian Gish.

One of the high lights of filmdom's luncheon to the royal guests was Mae Murray's insistence on her right to be seated next the prince, claiming she is a princess now that she has married "Prince" David Divani. Greta Garbo and Lars Manson and his wife, Karin Nolander, upheld the conversation in Swedish.

Others of note at the dinner included Ramon Navarro, who sat next the crown princess; Norma Shearer who made a gay dinner mate for blushing Prince Erik of Denmark; John Gilbert, Lon Chaney, Edmund Goulding, and Lillian Gish.

Fat Comedian Coming Back?

Rumors are persistent that Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle is acting in a picture being quietly produced at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayers'. It is said that Mabel Normand's successful comeback has encouraged the financial backers of Arbuckle. Fatty already has done some screen work, mostly directing under the name of William Goodrich.

Viola Dana, who has recently been put under contract by the F. B. O. to make one of those sheik pictures, was notified by the wardrobe department that she was to come and get a fitting for her costume on Wednesday. "Fitting," said Viola, looking bewildered, "why, all I wear are two bandana handkerchiefs and a wig. I guess they must want to fit the wig."

A story now popular in Hollywood concerns the always interesting subject of C. B. De Mille, producer par excellence of cinema spectacles. Mr. De Mille is humorously credited with a fairly acceptable opinion of himself and his achievements and it is because of this that the following story gains its point. Two dumbbells are overheard talking at lunch. One says, "Did you hear about the new picture De Mille is making?" "No," says the other. "What is it?" "The King of Kings," replies the first. "O," says the second, "is it an autobiography?"

Alberta Vaughn, now graduated from stardom in two-reelers to five-reelers, was playing one of her new, big rôles in "The Adorable Deceiver" at F. B. O.'s studio. Done up as the poor but proud working girl, Alberta was getting a lot of fun out of a black and red beaded bag she carries in the scene. It kept dripping beads everywhere she stepped and in one scene, when she walked quickly out of the room after refusing to accept the advances of the rich but fresh young man, the beads formed a perfect cascade that nearly interrupted the dignity of her getaway.

Jade—and Then More Jade.

Estelle Taylor was the startled recipient of some unexpected generosity at the Montmartre café just before she left to meet Jack Dempsey at Colorado Springs. Estelle had just stopped a moment to speak to Corliss Palmer, who was lunching with E. V. Brewster. During the exchange of greetings Brewster noticed the lovely jade earrings and necklace Estelle was wearing and promptly invited Corliss to take off her odd and valuable jade ring and give it to Estelle, as it matched her jade things so well. The astonished Estelle received the ring with thanks and now is the proud possessor of a pretty snappy jade jewelry ensemble. Brewster promised to buy Corliss another to take the place of the missing ring.

The death of Willard Louis, favorite player of comedy rôles, shocked and saddened the film colony. His death was from typhoid-pneumonia. While he was at Warner's his funmaking and antics were a constant source of amusement. Louis and John Barrymore were the prize raconteurs of the studio, and it was worth considerable to get a ringside seat when Jawn and Louis began swapping yarns. Barrymore and Louis played together in "Don Juan," soon to be released.

Foul Play for This Heroine!

Ethel Shannon, auburn-haired heroine pursued by many film bad men, lately has become the center of mysterious persecution by a villain in real life. Ethel is engaged to marry Joseph Jackson, former publicity agent for Rudolph Valentino and now a screen editorial man at the Famous Players-Lasky studio. The villain in the story, as yet unidentified, has been calling Ethel up late at night and telling her that Joe has other affairs of the heart with which she is not concerned. And that isn't all. It has been going on for four months, and Ethel has gotten tired of it and turned the matter over to the police. On at least one occasion when the dignified Joe was supposed to be cavorting at a wild party with wild wimmen he was sitting at Ethel's side while she heard the story via the telephone. The whole thing's just got Ethel red-headed. Ethel was married to Robert Carey in 1923 and divorced in the early part of this year.

Louise Fazenda, who is suing her husband, Noel Smith, known as Mason Noel, for divorce, is seen about with Hal Wallis, manager of publicity for Warner Bros.' studio. Louise claims that there is nothing significant in her going about with Wallis, as some masculine escort is necessary if one is to go about at all in Hollywood, and that they are just friends.

Irish-Jewish Epidemic.

A select audience at the world première of "So This Is Paris," Ernest Lubitsch's new picture, at the Forum theater was treated to witticisms by George J. Essel, actor and master of ceremonies. Jessel announced that since the popularity of Irish and Jewish pictures in the movies, such as "Abie's Irish Rose" and "The Cohens and the Kellys," Jewish types had become so much in demand that the supply had not been adequate. In fact, Jessel added, the Jewish producers had been forced to go into the pictures themselves.

A short outline of the picture Jessel is making, "Private Izzy Murphy," was given by him, and it ran something like this:

"A boy and a girl are in love with each other. The girl is a Jew and the boy is an osteopath. On account of the difference in religious belief they cannot get married. Some company comes and the boy springs to receive them, with napkins and a revolver in his hand. To protect himself he runs into the bathroom. Two years later someone stumbles in by mistake and finds him asleep."

Smiles, Bows, Applause.

Following this exposé of the plot of his new picture, Jessel introduced the stars present in the audience. His "Man Ginsberg" handed him a list of the names, among the first being Kathleen Key, who took her bow in a green chiffon straight gown beaded in silver with which she wore a white Spanish shawl. Anna Q. Nilsson came next in another green gown beaded in silver with a circular cape of cream silk lace. Vera Gordon in black crêpe with a black Spanish shawl embroidered in red roses bowed in the spotlight to applause.

Corliss Palmer, introduced as one of California's lovliest women, rose only after urging by her escort, Eugene V. Brewster, and after pulling her white felt sport hat low over her face. She was clad in a simple white silk sport dress with a white flannel coat.

Myrna Loy, in white satin high necked draped gown, wore a white satin coat trimmed with wide bands of black monkey fur. Lou Tellegen appeared with his wife, Nina Romano, striking looking with her deep blue silk gown and smoothly combed long black hair done in a French roll.

Sid Grauman, with his long and fuzzy hair, was next called on, Jessel announcing him as appearing "by courtesy of Nepner Bros.," a local wig maker. Lloyd Bacon, son of the famous Frank Bacon of "Lightnin'" fame, who is Jessel's director, was presented as "the first instance of a Jew liking Bacon." Irene Rich had chosen mustard colored silk for her ensemble made with the smart high neck now popular.

After introducing Dolores Del Rio, who was something of a surprise with her smooth Spanish style hair in a marcel, Jessel remarked that it was confusing in Hollywood with all his East side Jewish friends appearing in the movies with Spanish names. For instance, said he, there was Adolph Rosenweiss now known as Fernando Gonzales.

John McCormick, the famous Irish tenor, was in the audience and rose for his applause when his name was called.

The principals of the cast of "So This Is Paris" were present. Patsy Ruth Miller was in white satin and pearls with a large corsage of orchids and a shawl of batik. Lillian Taswan was clad all in silver sequins. Andre Beranger, Monte Blue, ad Ernest Lubitsch, the director, and his wife, also were there.

Jack Warner of the Warner Bros., whose picture it was, replied gracefully enough to Jessel's remark that Jack had been a butcher in New York and could expect to succeed in films, but no one heard what Jack said. Jessel answered, "All right Jack, I know how it is, I've been in tight places myself."

NORMA ACTS FOR NOBILITY

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer, send stamped, self-addressed envelope—please!

Frank and to the Point.

Miss Mae Tinée: Having read the ballyhoos regarding "Stella Dallas," I must agree with Dr. T. O. M. in his pricking the bubble "reputation" that he exploded like a toy balloon over the atmosphere of that mushy film. The successor of it here was "The Blind Goddess," which, for acting, plot, and cast, had it all over "Stella," and as for "mother love"—say, Louise Dresser gave a sample of it that, for genuine sacrifice for the daughter, made "Stella" look like a dirty deuce in a new deck. And yet "The Blind Goddess" had no such boosting as "Stella" had, probably for the reason that it didn't need it. Such a cast as Ernest Torrence, Jack Holt, Louise Dresser, and Esther Ralston do not require any bazoos to attract the fans.

And, ah! those alleged comedies that precede most of the features—what a waste of time, money, and film most of them are! BUT even they are better reading than the noisome ads that are as useless as butterflies and not so pretty.

Having expelled these few remarks from my chest I may rest better tonight, and feel more kindly toward those who work so hard to please us, or is it the box office? MAURICE V.

Marion in a Mary Role.

Dear Miss Tinée: I've just seen "Lights of Old Broadway," with Marion Davies and Conrad Nagel. Don't you think Miss Davies has stepped into Mary Pickford's kingdom? Only I think she is a sweeter, prettier Irish girl than Mary Pickford. The picture is just exactly what one would expect of Miss Pickford, except for the omission of the policeman! There's always one in Mary's.

You see, I'm Irish from me head to me heels, so forgive me.

Filling Up the Mail Bag.

Dear Miss Tinée: Some time ago I saw the picture, "The Unguarded Hour," featuring Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon. I was so impressed on my first viewing I saw it again.

What impressed me was the mimicry of Doris Kenyon. I didn't think she was capable of such a fine piece of comedy. Hence was delightfully surprised, as no doubt were other fans. I wrote and so told her this and incidentally asked for an autographed photo. This morning it arrived.

Stop, look and listen what she wrote in one corner of it. "For Will R. Stalley, In deep appreciation, Doris Kenyon, New York City." A lovely picture, too.

In the same mail came an excellent picture of Lewis Stone, to whom I had written after viewing "The Girl from Montmartre," and remarked on poor Barbara La Marr's death. The last view the movie public had of her was a happy, smiling, resigned countenance, snuggled in the arms of Lewis Stone.

Also in same mail came a letter from Cecil de Mille saying his latest production, "The Volga Boatman," was being cut and edited, and would be released soon. He, in conjunction with the Los Angeles Times, is conducting an idea contest contestants to couch their ideas in 200 words or less. Prizes totaling $21,000 are to be distributed to the winners. It was from such a contest "The Ten Commandments," was made.

Kind regards and best wishes.

Yours very truly,

WILL R. S.

Editor's note: Heavy and thrilling mails you get, Will R.!

ACTS THE BOOTLEGGING BOOB

JAMES RENNIE

HE'S in the Studebaker in the title-part of "The Great Gatsby," which he originated last season in Owen Davis' dramatization of F. Scott Fitzgerald's good tale. The New-York critics said he was bully in the part. . . . Mr. Rennie hasn't acted in Chicago since, three years ago, he had the part of the pragmatic chauffeur in "The Best People."

Japs Clip 800,000 Yds. of Film Kisses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 31.—More than 800,000 yards of kisses, embraces, and assaults have been cut out of the movies in Japan during the last twelve months by the Japanese police film censors. A year ago the censorship upon moving pictures was centralized at Tokio in order to unify the service, and the report of the first year's work has just been made. The censors were particularly watchful for kisses, than which nothing is more vulgar and suggestive in Japanese eyes, and every osculation was carefully trimmed out. Screen patrons could see the hero and his beautiful opposite prepare for the clinch, watch their lips purse into position and see the faces get, O, so close! But never did lip meet lip, so far as Japan is concerned.

During the year the censors scrutinized 60,000 photoplays, of a total length of 14,800,000 film feet, and trimmed the total to the even millions.

According to the police report, two million people a month go to the movies in Japan, or 4 per cent of the number who patronize the silver screen in America.

BROADCASTERS ACT TO AVERT CHAOS IN RADIO

Ask Station Owners to Sign Promise.

Characterizing it a call to colors for every broadcaster, Paul B. Klugh, executive chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters, has just made an eleventh hour appeal to every station owner who has changed or is contemplating changing either his wave length or hours of operation.

"Such stations will better their own position very little, if any," Mr. Klugh advises, "jeopardizing the entire industry, undermining the costly and ceaseless effort of this association for three years in furthering adequate legislation to meet the problem, and last, but not least, belittling the confidence and trust which the entire public has in radio."

It is true that there are a few points in the waveband which may be availed of, Mr. Klugh continues. The department of commerce could have made reallocations in these few instances.

Certificate of Promise.

"However," he goes on, "the department has stood on the action of the fourth radio conference, which, by voluntary gentlemen's agreement among the broadcasters, recommended that the department grant no more licenses until adequate legislation was enacted."

Accompanying Mr. Klugh's appeal is what he describes as a certificate of promise wherein there are blank spaces to be filled out by the broadcaster, designating his assigned wave length, his name and station, and through the signing of which he promises the National Association of Broadcasters that he will operate the station only upon his assigned wave length and hours, in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by the department of commerce and until such time as congress shall enact a new law.

Season's Busines Theatened.

During the summer months, according to Mr. Klugh, the industry is preparing for its new season. Manufacturers, jobbers and dealers are investing huge sums of money in bringing out their new lines and preparing for the return of the public to their sets. If broadcasters are willfully going to keep changing their wave lengths, a shadow of doubt is cast over the whole future by the actions of the few.

"On the floor of the senate," Mr. Klugh concludes, "it was said, 'there is no finer example of the coöperative spirit in a great and developing industry to be found anywhere in the world than the radio broadcasters of the United States have shown.' This compliment to the industry was well deserved, and expresses in an eloquent manner the faith which the entire public has in the industry. Every station owner should pause to consider this. If each will focus his vision upon the entire industry, rather than upon his immediate problem, he will see the wisdom of remaining upon his assigned wave and hours of operation until congress acts."

It is announced that the open meeting for all broadcasters of the National Broadcasters association will be held in New York, September 15, and the problem of importance to be taken up at that time will be the one of broadcasters changing wavelengths or increasing power in a way to cause further interference.

NAVAL STATIONS REPORT RECORD IN WORDS SENT

Notwithstanding the fact that static was rampant during the last thirty days, the navy reports that its shore radio stations had one of the best months in handling high frequency messages in its history. Capt. Ridley McLean, director of naval communications, reported that, considering the increased static, very satisfactory progress was made by nearly all stations.

Honolulu led with 194,703 words, Washington was second with 154,462 words, and San Francisco third with 147,500 words. Definite plans are in hand for equipping certain vessels of the fleet with standard high frequency apparatus, which, it is said, will improve long distance communication.

WEATHER MAPS TO BE SENT TO SHIPS BY RADIO

How Uncle Sam keeps up with the procession is revealed in the news that steps are being taken by naval radio stations toward the transmission of a daily weather map to ships at sea by radio photography.

During the present week word was received that a complete weather chart had been flashed from Hamburg to a German commercial liner a thousand miles at sea. Now it is revealed that the U. S. S. Kittery recently met with success in avoiding storm centers in the Carribean by plotting the information contained in the daily weather map, which had been sent from the United States by wireless.

Naval Reserve Radio Station Gets NRRL Call

The Master Naval Reserve radio station at Madison, Wis., has been assigned the call letters NRRL when operating in connection with official training of the reserves. This call, it may be remembered, is the one used by the high frequency test station on the U. S. S. Seattle when Lieut. Comm. F. H. Schnell, USNR, made the cruise to Australia in connection with the tests. Lieut. Comdr. Schnell is now in charge of the master station and is active in organizing a "communication unit" in Wisconsin.

WMBB to Take Fans on Tour of Mississippi

The romance of moonlight on the Mississippi will go out through the air to radio listeners on Friday night, Aug. 8, from WBBM. Billy Spears will pilot the radio tourists down the Mississippi and up the Tennessee to the Shiloh national park, the scene of that memorable battle in which the confederate troops, after soundly beating the northerners, were themselves defeated.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, August 1.) (Chicago Daylight Saving Time.)

TODAY'S band concert in Lincoln park will be broadcast by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. This will be given by James G. Henshel's band. The program will include the following numbers: "Love Is King," by Innes; "You're in Love," by Friml; selection from "Lohengrin," by Wagner; "Descriptive Fantasia," by Luders; "Onward, Christian Soldiers," by Edwards; "Glad Girl," by Lampe; and "Whistler and His Dog," by Pryor. Between selections several numbers will be presented by Evelyn Simmons and Florence Clifford, harmony singers.

An hour of music and musical discussion will be given tonight in "Our Music Room," on W-G-N. The composers scheduled for this program are Ethelbert Nevin and Victor Herbert. Both of these are exceedingly popular and tonight's presentation will take in many of their best liked melodies. Among the selections by Nevin to be presented are: "At Twilight," "Little Boy Blue," "A Day in Venice," and his immortal composition, "The Rosary." The Herbert numbers will include "Liebes Scene," "Spring Song," "The Vaqueros' Song," and "Yesterthoughts."

The Neilsson trio is to give the Lyon & Healy Sunday program at 2 o'clock. This comprises Malvina Neilsson, violinist; Hilda Hinrichs, cellist, and Florence Henline, pianist. Their program is unusual in its variety. Following are the selections: "Trio, Op. 1 (Andante con Moto and Allegro molto and Finale)," by Césare Franck; "Nautilus" and "By the Sea," by MacDowell; two Negro spirituals, "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child" and "They Will Not Lend Me a Child," and "Miniatures," Set No. 2 ("Romance," "Intermezzo," and "Saltarello"), by Frank Bridge.

Another recital by Allen McQuhae, the celebrated tenor, will be offered on W-G-N tonight at 8:15 o'clock. The accompaniment is to be provided by Nicolai Berezowsky's orchestra. This performance will be given in New York and brought to Chicago by wire.

Prominent among the afternoon's musical features is the organ recital to be given by Ambrose Larsen at 1 o'clock. His program for this afternoon will feature several novel classical compositions.

Several old time favorites will be given in "The Million Sing" at 7 o'clock. Listeners everywhere are invited to take part in this feature as artists in the studio present the songs. Among the numbers to be given are "Darling Nellie Gray," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "Illinois."

WLIB PROGRAM

HERBERT JOHNSON, pianist, will open this evening's program on WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake hotel, with a specially selected group of classical compositions. Dan Baker, tenor, will follow Mr. Johnson with a program of ballads and favorite songs. At 5:25 o'clock Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist, who is a member of the Drake concert ensemble and the W-G-N studio ensemble, is to offer several solos. Another feature of this musical program will be Edward Benedict, who will give his regular Sunday evening recital at the Wurlitzer organ, from 5:45 to 6:15 o'clock.

KOA BROADCASTS GREETINGS FROM COOLIDGE TODAY

Denver, Col., July 31.—[Special.]—Outstanding events of Colorado's huge semi-centennial anniversary celebration which begins tomorrow will be given the ethereal right of way over KOA.

Five major attractions are already promised microphone listeners and it was expected today that additional events would be chalked up on the radio slate.

Principal broadcasts include a special message of greeting to Coloradoans from President Collidge, direct from the summer White House in the Adirondacks; a public address by Vice President Dawes; "The Spirit of the West" from the Denver municipal auditorium; an outdoor ceremony of public thanksgiving, to be flashed from the Greek theater of Denver's civic center, and a colorful microphone chat, "Historical Glimpses of Colorado," by Joseph Emerson Smith, assisted by fifty Indian tribesmen.

Officials in charges of the celebration state that Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, may also talk.

KYW TENOR TO SING AT FIESTA IN NEW MEXICO

One of Chicago's radio tenors, Lewis Meehan, of KYW, is to be one of the features of the musical fiesta held at Albuquerque, N. M., during the first week of August.

The fiesta is an annual pageant of New Mexico, lasting about one week, at which the beauties of the state are glorified. Meehan is a favorite son of New Mexico. It was during 1916, when he sang at the Montezuma ball at the Alvarado, that the governor and other dignitaries of the state made an official contribution toward Mr. Meehan's musical studies, and he was sent to Chicago, where he became a student of the nation's best instructors of voice.

R. C. A. Controls Radio Service to the Far East

The purchase of the Philippines Radio corporation by the Radio Corporation of America will insure a general strengthening of wireless communications between the islands and the United States. The Philippines corporation was recently merged with the Far Eastern Radio corporation, which now brings all these interests under American control.

Radio Aids Airplane and Photo Survey of Alaska

The map and photographic survey being made of Alaska with the airplanes is coming along nicely, according to reports. Two planes are being used constantly in the work and a third is kept for a standby in case either of the others is forced down. This plane, equipped with radio, keeps in touch with the other two.

W-G-N TO BROADCAST LINCOLN FIELD RACES AND CHICAGO RODEO

Horse racing and the rodeo, "sport of kings" and sport of cowboys, respectively, are two of the August features carded by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

Listeners will be reintroduced to racing on Monday, Aug. 9, when W-G-N broadcasts a complete story of the opening day's program direct from the new Lincoln Fields track near Crete, Ill. This is the first horse race to be put on the air in the mid-west since W-G-N broadcast the Kentucky Derby last May. The races on each Saturday afternoon during August will be broadcast, as will the special Labor day card of races.

The new Lincoln Fields track is owned and operated by the men who comprise the Kentucky Jockey club of Louisville, which is responsible each year for the Kentucky Derby. The Fields will be one of the most pretentious tracks in the Chicago district. Matt J. Winn, under whose direction the new track has been constructed, says that it represents a total investment of over $2,000,000.

One of the features of the establishment are the radio quarters that have been constructed for W-G-N in the clubhouse. The question of broadcasting races from the new plant was discussed with Col Winn while construction was still in progress and he had the architects incorporate a special booth for radio work.

Chicago's rodeo, the annual roughriding and steer throwing event that brings the west's finest cowboys to Chicago, will be broadcast on Aug. 15. The Chicago Association of Commerce sponsors the big event. W-G-N's aerial presentation will include a full description and eye witness picture of the various cowboy sports that will be full of the color and sparkle of the cowhands their fiery mounts, and longhorn opponents.

Quin Ryan, W-G-N's feature announcer, will be at the microphone during the horse races and rodeo.

SEVENTEEN RADIO INDUSTRY BODIES SPONSOR BANQUET

Seventeen of the leading trade associations in the radio industry have joined to sponsor the third annual Radio Industries banquet to be held in New York City on Sept. 15.

This banquet, the third of its kind, will outstrip the 1925 affair, it is said, with a possible attendance of two thousand. More than fourteen hundred radio business men attended the second annual banquet last year.

The associations sponsoring the banquet include:

National Association of Broadcasters, Radio Manufacturers' association, Radio section, Associated Manufacturers of Electrical Supplies, Federated Radio Trade associations, National Radio Trade association, Electrical Supply Jobbers' association, Independent Radio Manufacturers, Inc., Radio Magazine Publishers' association, Talking Machine and Radio Men, Inc., Pacific Radio Trade association, Northwest Radio Trade association, Jobbers' Radio association, Radio Trade Association of Michigan, Electric Club of Chicago, St. Louis Radio Trade association.

HAWAII STUDENTS SEND GREETINGS TO U. S. SCHOLARS

HONOLULU, T. H., July 31.—Greetings from the high school students of Hawaii to their fellow students in the United States were recently extended in an amateur radiogram sent by the principal of the McKinley high school of this city to the headquarters offices of the American Radio Relay league, at Hartford, Conn.

The message, which was started from the Hawaiian station 6CLJ, operated by Masayuki Hismato of Honolulu, and received in this country by R. G. Olson of Tacoma, Wash., operator of amateur station 7AFO, is as follows:

"Greetings to all mainland high school students via the American Radio Relay League, Inc., Hartford, Conn.:

"On behalf of the two thousand students of McKinley high school, Honolulu, Hawaii, I send greetings to high schools in all parts of the United States.

"We feel very near to you all right now, in spite of the more than two thousand miles of water separating us from the mainland. In spite of our location and the great diversity of races, we are progressing in our student body. We are American by birth and choice. The races represented in our student body are Anglo-Saxon, Spanish, Portuguese, Japanese, Hawaiian, Chinese, Porto Rican, Korean and others.

"Our high school has now four splendid new buildings, with an auditorium seating approximately two thousand students, to be built this year. Our courses and subjects are much the same as those taught all over the United States. Just now we are reorganizing our student body government. We take in all kinds of athletics and support our teams with as much loyalty as that shown by any other high school. Our high school paper, the 'Pinion' goes to all parts of the United States.

"We extend a warm Aloha to you all.

[Sig.] MILES E. CARY,
Principal, McKinley High School."

Moody Bible Institute Announces Speaker

Aug. 9 to 12, Norman H. Camp of the institute business staff.
Aug. 13 to 14, J. L. Sayler, a director of the Family Altar league.
Aug. 16 to 21, Miss Anna S. F. Hennings of the institute staff.
Aug. 23 to 28, M. H. Knoblock, institute student.
Aug. 30 to Sept. 4, John L. Meredith, executive secretary of the Family Altar league, which conducts the services for the institute.

WCFL to Broadcast Band Concert on Municipal Pier

Starting today the band concerts from the Municipal pier will be broadcast through station WCFL. The concert will be from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m by Dante and his band.

PERFECT RADIO ANNOUNCER MUST BE PRAISE PROOF

But Don't Blame Him for Everything Wrong.

In a title in a current motion picture one of the characters curses another with the wish that all his children shall be radio announcers. Already the members of the youngest profession are being classed occasionally with baseball umpires, city administrators, and others on whom opprobrium is heaped, justly or unjustly.

If Old Faithful isn't pulling stations in from the four corners of the earth in response to a Jimmie Valentine on the dials, don't blame the announcer. If the soprano gets off to a flat start and pierces the welkin full of holes, don't score another against the announcer. If the wire hum is so loud that your favorite violinist sounds like the night shift at the old saw mill working on knotty pine, don't write a letter to the radio editor and suggest a round-robin denunciation of the announcer.

Must Be Praise Proof.

The successful announcer must be proof against censure and praise, for to the best of the announcers come tributes that may easily convert them to the belief that the transmitter is simply the medium by which they, the announcers, charm the human race and lift its burden of suffering. When one is blazing paths in a new profession, there is no standard by which values may be calibrated. It is quite natural for one to assume that the ability to address anywhere from 200 to 2,000,000 people exalts one to first rank among the seven wonders. One of the traits that makes an announcer good is the ability to absorb flattery and denunciation and remain serene and unruffled.

Stations are distinguished by the quality of their transmission, their signal strength, the quality of their programs and the sound personality of their announcers. A good program may be marred by poor announcing and in poor announcing may be included not only ungrammatical phrasing and mispronunciation, but gratuitous and wordy explanations and light comedy by-play that may be understood and appreciated in the studio but is sad and flat to the rest of the world.

The Announcer's Duties.

The average listener holds that it is the duty of the announcer to convey by word the personality of his station, to let the listener know the call letters of the station, the name of the performer and the title of his selection. After he has done that he is no longer necessary in the picture. The most successful announcers are those who avoid stereotyped phrasing and who, in vocal tone, convey friendliness, good will and a desire to please.

That is the side of the announcer that the listener gets but the announcer also has his duty to the performer and very often it is a difficult duty. Many performers, even though experienced in public performance, quail before the microphone. The announcer must say and do the right thing to put the nervous performer at ease. Then there is the temperamental musician, not always in the class described as artists, who because of some fancied slight, appears but refuses to go on at the scheduled time. Such a one must be coddled and convinced that thousands will go to bed unhappy if the program doesn't go on the air. If you think this part of the job is easy ask any one who has ever managed the tour of a temperamental artist.

Inside the Loud Speaker

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

AN EASTERN STATION is now teaching the Charleston over the air. But is it necessary to teach people the Charleston? You don't have to teach them the measles.

A NEW BOTHER comes over the horizon now, with all the talk roundabout concerning the jumping of wave lengths. Many well-meaning listeners who, because of their location, hear what is only a normal case of interference—the overlapping of one legitimate station on another—may assume that they have come upon a heinous wave length kidnaping, and write letters hither and yon in protest. Listeners can detect wave jumping only by their past experience with interference.

ONE OF THE worst habits of many radio announcers is the exhibiting of their letters of applause. So we hope we'll be pardoned for printing the following, which is displayed only to illustrate the unimportant case in point. The new Broadcast Listener, the magazine of the B. L. A., publishes a letter from a Milwaukee listener which runs: "I am surprised that no one has written you before about the 'Old Time Prize Fights' W-G-N has been broadcasting. As a former college boxer, I can vouch for the realism of the stuff they have been sending out, and let me say that I wouldn't get much more of a kick out of listening to a broadcast of a Jack Dempsey-Harry Wills meeting than I do from hearing Quin Ryan tell us 'from the ringside' about John L. Sullivan and some of the other 'grand old men' of the ring as they walloped each other. Ryan must have sat in some 'pug's' corner a good many times to have acquired such a keen insight into the atmosphere and procedure of the squared circle."

And that's the laugh, much as we appreciate the words. Not until after the "Old Time Fights" did we ever see a prize fight, and that on the eve of the Derby in Louisville, when Westbrook Pegler took us to the Bud Taylor-Tommy Ryan skit. The radio is a gay deceiver. And one of its gay deceptions is the power of producing a better prize out of history than out of the present, in Chicago. For example, look at the Mandell-Kansas affair, the Taylor-Ryan whoozis, and the mythical Dempsey bout.

LINES PENNED ON A WARM DAY BY A NIGHT WORKING ANNOUNCER TO THE ENERGETIC DAY SHIFT.

A toast to the spirited riser,
Who carols the coming of dawn,
Who hops out of bed like a geyser
And gambols about on the lawn,
Who somersaults into the office
Abounding in pepper and mirth,
Who yodels a lay at the break of the day—
I think he's the salt of the earth!
(In a pig's eye, I do—'cause I'm a radio announcer and work nights.)

With early matutinal vigor,
With morning alertness and vim,
With chipper and flourishing figure,
The world is a marble to him.
His zest to be up with the robins,
His 8 o'clock bustle and shove,
His gayety spry and the glint in his eye
Are the elements in him I love!
(Yes, I do! He laughs at my weariness.)

Now me—I arise in a coma,
At breakfast I'm quite a débris,
I grope and depart from my home a
Compassionate figure to see.
It's not until nearly eleven
My energy gets under way—
So I love to have 'round a gazook with a bound
And a zest at the start of the day!

MANY OF THE stars of the radio firmament are famous for talents which, before the advent of radio, they had never known they possessed.

Correll and Gosden, noted for their colored dialect and harmony singing, tell us that they had never sung in their lives before stepping into radio and had attempted the dialect only when telling a joke.

Jack Nelson, WJJD announcer, was studying engineering or something heavy when we knew him at Northwestern and he wouldn't sing or speak in public for any amount of money.

Graham McNamee, who depicts big events on the radio for WEAF, was a concert singer and never even dreamed of being a reporter.

Glenn Rowell of the harmony team of Ford and Glenn was by profession a theater organist up until the day he came to radio.

Thus it is that the radio unveils many a flower that might have been left to blush unseen—or unheard.

RADIO WINNING OVER ARTISTS OF CONCERT FIELD

The war which has been waged against radio by lyceum and concert bureaus gave indications of being near an end here this week when Dema E. Harshbarger, president and general manager of the Civic Service Concert service, announced herself a convert of the ether wave and its possibilities.

"It has been three years of rather foolish misunderstanding," said Mrs. Harshbarger. "Alarmists succeeded in spreading the idea that radio would hurt that portion of the musical world known as the concert field, and, as a matter of fact, it is the very portion of the field radio can best serve and aid.

Trend Toward Better Music.

"No group can war against the world's progress Radio is progressing within itself. There is a decided trend toward better music, thereby creating an appreciation that cannot but add to that vital spot in the existence of the opera and concert—the box office.

"Your true artist is trying to develop a more general appreciation of good music. Today he is realizing that radio presents the greatest of all possible aids toward this goal. Instead of the hundreds in the concert hall he addresses himself to thousands, even millions, when he stands before the microphone. In that multitude there will be found many who will want to know more of music at its best, who will become patrons of the opera and the symphony.

Radio Audiences Appreciative.

"The radio audience is proving itself to be as appreciative and discriminating as the concert hall audience.

"The radio audience is proving that a well defined, well planned series of programs, given by artists of recognized merit, cannot fail to hold attention. Every program builds toward a still greater appreciation.

"It would be foolish to believe this radio audience an isolated group. From their living room they will give their attention to the artist and his abilities. And when it is possible to see as well as hear him, they will flock to the concert hall.

"Radio will conquer its last opposition, if the conquest has not already been accomplished."

ENGLISH RADIO FANS NOW BUY, NOT BUILD SETS

New York, July 31.—[Special.]—England is turning to the commercial receiver, according to Alfred Wragge, manager of the wireless department of Selfridge & Co., Ltd., who has just left New York for London after two weeks of conference with American radio interests.

"Most of the British interest, at the outset of broadcasting and up to a short time ago," he said, "was in homebuilt radio equipment. There always will be a lot of that by the experimenter and the amateur, but most people, knowing little about the technical side of wireless, refrained from purchases of equipment until they were certain that the manufactured receiver met their requirements in efficiency and simplicity. That time has come, and now there is a tremendous market throughout the British Isles for such receivers."

Mr. Wragge declared that it is evident that interest in broadcasting is world-wide, due to the orders and questions from practically every country that reach British experts. He was accompanied to the United States by C. Hart Collins of Hart Collins, Ltd., radio instrument makers, also of London, who is a radio engineer and was vitally concerned in the new sets that will go on the market this fall.

FIVE YEARS OF OPERATION IS 'HAM'S' RECORD

Washington, D. C., July 31.—A record for consistent operation of which any amateur might be proud is that held by Eppa W. Darno of this city, whose short wave station, 3 BWT, has not missed being on the air a single night in over five years. Mr. Darno, who is a member of the American Radio Relay league, has communicated with hundreds of other amateurs during the five year period and can number his radio acquaintances in North and South America, Europe, Africa, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and Asia. In addition to the numerous friendships made over the air, many messages have been handled with other stations of the league's traffic system.

Sam 'n' Henry Will Be Back on Air Again Tuesday

That famous radio expression, "Ten o'clock, W-G-N, Sam 'n' Henry," will be heard again on Tuesday evening.

At that time "Sam 'n' Henry," the colored boys of W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, come back from their vacations. They have kept the studio force well informed regarding their wanderings, and many are the stories they plan to relate to listeners when they get back on the air.

BRITISH BODY SEEKS CORRECT WORDS FOR RADI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 31.—A distinguished committee, which includes Robert Bridges, poet laureate, and Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson, has been holding sessions since the beginning of this month in order to evolve a definite uniform style in radio broadcasting.

Lists of doubtful words employed before the microphones are being carefully considered by the experts. The decisions will be circulated to all stations of the British Broadcasting company and adopted by announcers. These decisions may raise arguments in many cases, but it is believed worth while to create an official standard of uniformity.

Sir Harry Lauder, famous Scotch comedian and singer, has completed a five months' period of broadcasting appearances, during which he did not fill any music hall engagements. He has now started on a tour of the provinces with a reputation as one of the most popular and successful radio entertainers in Great Britain. In his case at least a long period of broadcasting has not in any way affected his music hall contracts.

It has been suggested that license fees should be doubled—from ten shillings to one pound—and the additional money devoted to engaging the greatest artists for broadcasting.

Many listeners support this view. It is said, but it is pointed out that the income of the B. B. C. could be practically doubled if the postoffice restriction on its income were removed. At present this income is limited to £500,000 a year from license fees.

MRS. EDWARD S. BAILEY.
[Monfort photo.]

Mrs. Edward S. Bailey is chairman of the woman's division planning arrangements for the celebration next Saturday of the electrification of the Illinois Central railroad. There will be a pageant at 3 o'clock, with every means of transportation depicted, including the covered wagon, hay rack, stage coach, hansom cab, and top buggy, down to the most modern vehicles.

A Chef Reviews a Mencken Critique

A few weeks ago H. L. Mencken had as his regular contribution to the Sunday Tribune an article entitled "Victualry as a Fine Art." W. L. Gregory, manager of the Palmer house, was so impressed by it that he passed it on to members of the hotel staff; and from A. Deland, consulting chef, came the following impressions. They are reproduced from his letter to Mr. Gregory, and appear in his own style. M. Deland is an honorary president of the Chefs de Cuisine International association of Paris; is vice president of the Societe des Cuisiniers de Paris; representative in Chicago of the New York Vatel club and an honorary member of the American Caterers.

I HAVE read with great interest the article written by Mr. H. L. Mencken in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

This gentleman is right in many points. Cooking must be improved, and such controversies are necessary at this very moment when we are trying to do so. But, in a public discussion of this matter the same public should know he is the most at fault by accepting merely the situation "as it is"; in other words, if the education of this public was betterly achieved in the "Art of Eating," the cooks would have to improve, as their value depends on the guest's knowledge of gastronomy. Fair critics are necessary, obliging cooks to avoid them by continuous efforts to please the palates of their patrons, and it is more pleasant for a chef to cook for connoisseurs who will appreciate a fine preparation, than for the average whose idea it is to swallow up anything without any sense of the table time.

I have personally known an old English gourmet, a great international lawyer, whose best time, said he, was at lunch and dinner, providing the cooking and wines were of the very first class, the effect of which resulted right or wrong on his brains whether the meal had been good or not. "A satisfied stomach," said he, "opens new lands to the spirit's work." I was always anxious to see his notations on his menu card. "O" meant bad, "1" meant passable, "2" pretty good, "3" good, "4" very good, "5" perfect.

"O" and "1" very seldom appeared, fortunately; "5", scarcely, this gastronome pretending perfection never obtained. Nevertheless, every now and than this "5" appeared, and each time a bottle of wine as a reward of superior merit for the chef or station chef, author of the dish. This was not only a moral satisfaction, doubled up by the red nectar of the grapes, but a stimulation for the others, and the best of advertisement for the house. This kind of guests has disappeared, and it is a loss, for they were the buglers sounding all around their relatives the reputation of their choice restaurants.

If used to a properly seasoned cooking, our smelling and gustative systems grow in that way, and by second nature of habit are trained to a certain standard of taste, which can be altered or improved further on according to circumstances.

From Local to International.

We begin eating our local or regional cooking. When older we have opportunities to appreciate national cooking, which is the gathering of local or regional cookings of the same country. Nowadays, international cooking is known all over the world by traveling people, by importation even. Local, national, and international compositions should not be altered at the basis, but, if possible, improved without waiving the fundamental characteristics of the recipe.

"Do not touch the plum pudding," said an old and respectable English noble lady to one of our chefs in London who wanted to make something richer for a high table. She was right. The plum pudding is a sacred relic guarded by centuries. Let it live as it is. Out of his composition many things may be made with another name.

The Irish peasant's old Irish stew of mutton, for instance, would be refused at first sight on many distinguished tables, but let the chef artistically cut the meat and shape the potatoes in such manner that the eyes and the smell are caught at presentation of this old stew, and the palate will appreciate it after its attention will have been stimulated by a nice appearance of the food.

Technical learning of "art eating" is therefore to be obtained out of the theoretical school of gastronomic education, which in Europe is the apanage of aristocrats and wealthy people, but in France it is also practiced by many of the middle class citizens, and if on the artistical cooking they may not have to give their appreciation, they will be second to nobody of the upper class for the classical and local cookings. This is due to the wine, to the climate, the great variation of food and fruits, and to a natural inheritance of our ancestors, something like atavism.

An Effect of Climate.

It has been remarked that climate acts upon the taste. For instance, a cook starting from Paris to Nice [south of France Riviera] will not season enough his preparations for the people of that country and will have to be careful to reach the high taste required there. On the contrary, the same man returning to Paris after a stay of a few months in the south will have to use less pepper, safran, pimentos, and flavoring herbs, the Parisian palates not being used to hot cooking. This is why you will never eat in Paris a curry as made in Bombay, or a Gulyas as made in Budapest. These preparations shall be made sweeter, adapted to the local palates, but this without altering the classical method of preparations.

So let us admit that good gourmets make good cooks. Therefore, it is to the guests to act on this theory. Encourage the chef when satisfied.

Some time ago cooking was backed by the wine cellar, whose profits allowed the kitchen to use more butter, cream, eggs, stocks, etc. Nowadays the cost and selling prices are heavy on the chef's shoulders, and he must not lose sight of the manager's instructions, the per cent profit. This stops often the adding of certain elements of improvement and standarization has followed [too much generalized] putting all houses on very nearly the same level, which is a great mistake.

Doubts Value of Schools.

Each hotel, each restaurant should have jealously kept its special dishes and working practices. Emulation has been waived and cooks work more with the spirit of the man of the hod carrier job, thus relaxing all spirit of conceptions, novelties, and progress.

Concerning the "schools of cooks," I frankly do not believe this would be the remedy. The real school is behind the hot table and before the range. This means an apprenticeship of two years at least in the kitchen and one year in the pastry and ice cream departments. The school of cooks would be useful if, after a stage of theoretical learning, the scholar could pass into practice.

After apprenticeship a cook should travel in America first so as to learn specialties of all shapes, then go to Europe, in France, especially Paris, which is the criterion of cooking. Coming back to America, this man would improve his fellow countrymen by the knowledge he has acquired. But will this suit American born? I am afraid not. The cook is not much appreciated here, certainly, because he is unable to show his talents by lack of opportunity, staying at the back of the house.

What allowed our great chefs, Careme, Laguipierre, U. Dubois, E. Bernard, Casimir, Duglere, Cubat, Escoffier, to become famous? Simply the fact of possibility to approach emperors, kings, chancellors, aristocrats, and gourmets [kings of the table], who popularized them. This example from the upper class should be followed and wealthy eaters should encourage the chefs.

A Word to the Cook.

Cooking has more influence than one seems to think on our health and guests should remember that enjoyment of a good meal properly served by a stylish waiter [to whom a tip in consequence is always given] that somebody, hidden somewhere behind the luxurious dining room in a hot kitchen, has prepared the meal. A little compliment, a good word of encouragement when satisfied, would stimulate that cook. The belief that his work is appreciated would give him another idea of his job.

The cooking business has been a victim of the war. Restrictions obliged new methods, and the loss of many well trained men [the Paris society lost 10 per cent killed, and 6 per cent wounded—on an average of 5,000]. Lots of pastry cooks entered the kitchen department and stayed there. Now things have been put in order and hopes can be made to reach the standard again.

But "necessity makes law," and this is a great undertaking requiring many improvements of which it is not possible to talk of here. It is the American cook's association's duty to unite in this spirit in touch with hotel men and caterers, and the United States is rich and capable to do as in Europe. Special gastronomic clubs like the "Club de Cent" [the Hundred club], whose members signal by reports their satisfaction or dissatisfaction when traveling. This appears in their bulletins. Each hotel, each restaurant, fears their complaints by publicity, but like their compliments.

The remarks on the bill of fare are quite right. It should be reduced—not so much, but good—a normal number of choice entrees, and two day dishes ready for those in a hurry, the entrees finished "a la minute."

Sincerely yours, A. DELAND.

"Peace of mind on your Summer Vacation for 75¢ per $100 if you "CHEQUE" out before you start

"Chequing" out means changing the cash you are going to use on your vacation trip or motor tours into

American Express Travelers Cheques

Anybody can use your cash. It's easily lost and frequently stolen. Stolen or lost it's usually gone "for good". And you are the loser. Nobody but you can use your American Express Travelers Cheques. And if they are lost or stolen (uncountersigned) you get back your money.

Sky-blue in color, about the size of a dollar bill, these Cheques are recognized and accepted everywhere. They are taken as readily as cash, day or night, at ticket offices, hotels or resorts, banks, garages—practically everywhere.

You simply sign your name in one corner when you buy them—sign again, in the presence of the acceptor, when you spend them. Issued in denominations of $10, $20, $50 and $100, they cost only 75c per $100. They come in a handy wallet, are easy to buy, easy to carry, easy to use. Buy them at your bank or any American Express or American Railway Express Office.

Nothing you can do will give you such a wonderful sense of relief, such peace of mind while you are away from home on your holidays, as "Chequing" out.

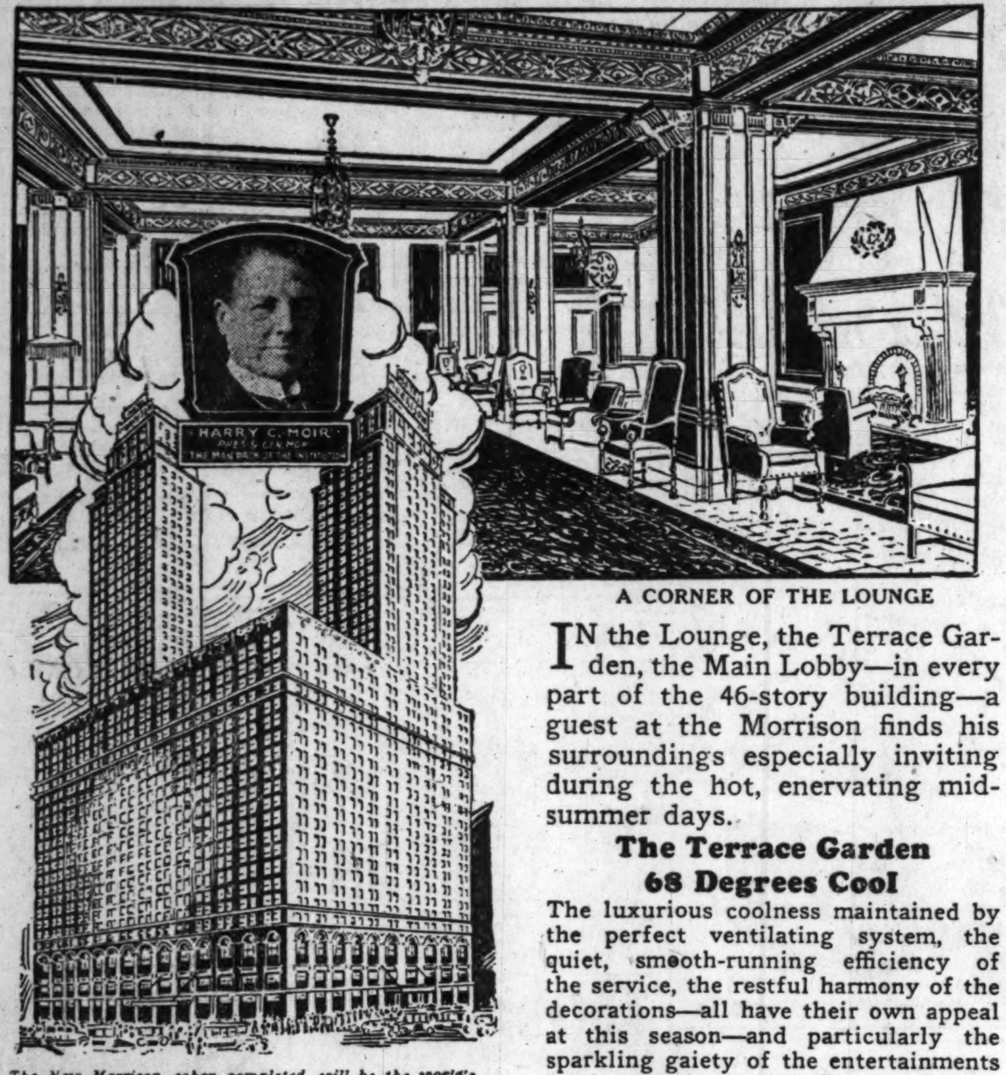
Restful—Quiet—Cool

The Guests' Lounge, in Chicago's 46-Story

Morrison Hotel



HARRY C. MOIR
PRES. & GEN. MGR.
THE MAINSPRING OF THE INSTITUTION

A CORNER OF THE LOUNGE

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms, all outside, and each with bath.

IN the Lounge, the Terrace Garden, the Main Lobby—in every part of the 46-story building—a guest at the Morrison finds his surroundings especially inviting during the hot, enervating midsummer days.

The Terrace Garden
68 Degrees Cool

The luxurious coolness maintained by the perfect ventilating system, the quiet, smooth-running efficiency of the service, the restful harmony of the decorations—all have their own appeal at this season—and particularly the sparkling gaiety of the entertainments in the dance-and-dine Terrace Garden—always "68 degrees cool."

1944 Rooms—1944 Baths—$2.50 Up

The "world's tallest hotel" has 1944 outside rooms, each with bath, running ice water and Servidor; every floor has its own housekeeper; all guests have the use of the hotel's garage. The rate scale offers rooms for $2.50 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 elsewhere—an economy made possible by revenues from store subrentals.

The Terrace Garden's delicious table d'hote Sunday dinner is served from 5 to 9 p. m. at $1.50

A colossal landmark on Cape Trinity. This effigy, 36 feet high, looks down in blessing upon the Saguenay River hundreds of feet below.

The frowning cliffs on which the armies of Wolfe and Montcalm struggled centuries ago is but one of the myriad scenic and historic points of this quaint Old-World city.

Know the thrill of riding the foam-capped billows of the St. Lawrence Rapids. Though in no danger, it does not detract from your primitive joy amid the roar of this mighty cataract.

This Summer-Cruise!

A new, more interesting and less expensive vacation—without a single dull moment!

ON the palatial steamers, you have every possible travel comfort while passing through the most beautiful part of North America. Excellent food, luxurious sleeping quarters, and quiet, efficient service. A lake, river and gulf trip of 1000 miles, lasting two weeks, through the most historic and picturesque parts of Canada. No vacation trip in the Western Hemisphere equals the varied scenes of this 1000-mile panorama of lake and river from Niagara to the sea. Two weeks of real rest—sights you'll never forget. Generous stop-overs at places of interest. Remarkably low rates.

For a joyous, low cost week's vacation cruise de luxe from Montreal to Cape Eternity on the St. Lawrence, touching Quebec, Murray Bay, Tadousac, and the picturesque Capes of the Saguenay. No hurry, no worry—every travel detail is planned for you.

Super-Highways for Super-Touring

TOURISTS—Clip the above map. It will direct you to all places of interest in Detroit

Super-highways—smooth paved thoroughfares 204 feet wide—that is the type of road Detroit is building for the motorist.

Foremost is Woodward Avenue, passing through town after town—so wide you have the whole road to yourself.

Take the Huron River drive—a broad pavement that follows the winding course of an historic river, through a beautiful valley.

There's a new trip for every day. You can make a complete circuit of the woods and lakes region without once leaving concrete.

Stop at a comfortable downtown hotel and enjoy super-touring on these wonderful highways—in the city and around it—to Belle Isle, to Grosse Pointe, the Great Lakes, Bloomfield Hills, the art plaza and the automobile industries.

World Cruise

From New York Dec. 2

See this World before the next

... like a grand procession of all humanity passing before you—religions, costumes, superstitions, industries, architecture!

Countless new experiences each day—instructive, fascinating—priceless memories.

The world cruise of this magnificent queen of the seas gives you 132 such days ... an itinerary of 28,400 miles, 20 countries, 5 continents, 7 seas. Christmas in Holy Land. New Year's Eve in Festive Cairo.

The entire cost, including shore programs, etc., is surprisingly low —as little as 6½ cents a mile. Send for the literature. Compare what you get in luxurious cruising comfort, entertainment and knowledge with a cheerless, rigorous winter at home costing as much—or more.

MISS LESLIE THORNE.
[Reick Photo.]

THE engagement of Miss Eleanor Pettinos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettinos of Oyster Bay, Long Island, and New York City, to Richard Blow, son of Mrs. George Preston Blow of La Salle, Ill., has been announced. The wedding is to take place in Paris.

Miss Leslie Thorne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Thorne, whose marriage to James Cooper Doud of Monterey, Cal., is to take place on Sept. 25, is hostess at a house party at Les Cheneaux, near Mackinac Island, at the summer place of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinsely of the Admiral hotel have announced the engagement of their daughter, Edythe, to James Howard Hales, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hales of Oak Park.

Here's August, with Its Aquatic Delights

By Mme. X.

HAIL, namesake of the great Augustus Cæsar, last month of summer, the thirty-one days most completely dedicated to life saving vacations! The days may be growing shorter, but there is more outdoor entertainment crowded into them than at any other period of the year.

Chicago's one hundred forty-three golf courses [if you count the surrounding countryside as part of the city] are crowded from dawn until the last throb of twilight. Tennis is at the height of its vogue. Horseback riding each day is becoming more popular and swimming pools are the favorite rendezvous for young and old.

The most recent of these pools is that which the Charles Schweppes have added to their Lake Forest place, a delightful and spacious affair designed by Fletcher Steele of Boston and perched almost on the brink of the bluff in what might be considered a challenge to the smiling and blandly indifferent lake. The approach to the pool is one of the charming landscape features of the place. From the front door one looks down a long, green vista to a distant fountain, a stone basin set high on a rocky eminence, a steep embankment embellished with every imaginable species of close growing greenery that delights to hug and creep over bleak stone and crags. A spray of water leaps from the basin, falling back into it and overflowing down a picturesque channel until it falls into the swimming pool many feet below.

The pool is ten and a half feet deep at its deepest end and three and a half at the other. It is seventy-five feet long by thirty-five feet wide. Overlooking it from a flagged terrace at the south side are two charming little pavilions, one a luxuriously fitted dressing room for women, with showers and an electric hair dryer and every other device our modern standards of life have brought into use. The other is an equally completely fitted up dressing room for men.

Matters of Etiquette.

The etiquette of swimming pools has yet to be established, but there are certain elemental truths concerning which a book hardly need be writ before they are accepted as final, and the first one is that a swimming pool is or should be as private and as much a personal belonging to its owner as his bedroom and that no one should invade it without a definite invitation to do so. Yet there are people who think that a swimming pool is a more or less public affair, that it belongs to the neighborhood. One possessor of a fine, large basin found in it one day six people, upon whom he had never laid eyes before. Preferring greater seclusion and privacy than his own pool furnished, he betook himself to the lake not far away. Bathing in a swimming pool is a somewhat intimate companionship and one has a right to be particular about the company one meets there. One can share the air with many people with whom one might not be willing to share a bath.

There are two handsome and roomy pools on the John R. Thompson place on Green Bay road, also in Lake Forest. Other suburbs have charming pools, but Lake Forest, being the favorite haunt of plutocrats, probably has more and bigger ones than its like elsewhere. The Thompson pools hold countless gallons of water and have attractive dressing rooms, red brick outside and completely equipped inside, which make a gay reflection in the mirroring water and add to the architectural effect. The larger of the two pools (which is eighty feet long) resembles in coloring and style one of the first swimming pools built in this part of the land, which Mrs. C. M. Ely constructed some twenty-five years ago as part of the landscape design of her beautiful place at Wheaton, Ill., on the eastern confines of the Chicago Golf club's famous course. That had terraces with red brick pavilions at either end, one a tea house and the other devoted to dressing rooms for the bathers.

It is no sinecure to be hostess at a popular swimming pool. It means an enormous supply of bath towels and also a generous outfit of bathing suits of all sizes and shapes. Also, the emptying, cleaning and refilling of a good sized pool is a formidable item of expense. One Lake Forester who provides such a pool for his family and friends estimated that it cost him forty dollars every time the big cement basin was filled with water.

Sullied Beauties.

It is one of the eccentricities of our summer life today that with over thirty miles of accessible beach and shallow, gently sloping shore, the lake is not a popular rendezvous for the beau monde on swimming bent. It is no particular credit to the dwellers near what might be a delightful source of recreation that this is because pollution of the water, by nearby sewers, goes on year after year. The sewers foul and make unfit for household use the once pure and delicious lake water, one of the greatest assets any huge community like ours could possibly have. It is part of the wastefulness which characterizes us as a nation.

The lake that washes the shore line between Chicago and its northern suburbs is as beautiful in coloring on a summer's day as the Adriatic off the low lying Lido. The same conditions produce the same exquisite colors. The translucent, opalescent hues which shimmer to the distant horizon come from the shallow, sandy bottom under the rippling water, both along the southwest shore of Lake Michigan and upon the Lido's flat, arid coastline.

At one time in the history of the Saddle and Cycle club, a moment when aquatic sports were one of its chief considerations, the directors seriously considered equipping its sizable fleet of sailing sloops and yachts with colored sails like those the Venetian fishermen have used for uncounted centuries, those gorgeous oranges, ochres, soft greens and antique blues, which make the departure or arrival of a flock of these boats one of the thrillingly beautiful spectacles of an Italian tour. The decision not to copy this color scheme was a wise one. It would have been merely a parody. Those rich, gay sails are not our sea language. We belong to the Nordics, whose white sails have carried our civilization to the four corners of the earth.

An Architect's Nightmare.

We get many of our esthetic ideas from over the sea. Some of them are valuable and tend to develop in us a national taste for beauty. But some of these newcomers in the world of art are distinguished more for their sturdy revolt from all that up to now has been accepted by authorities from the times of ancient Egypt and Greece to the present day than for any real contribution they make to what is admirable and to be cherished. A recent letter from a well known authority on matters artistic, who was sojourning in Paris at the time of the writing, describes a modern house in Paris, built by a Frenchman, M. Laroche, from designs by a Franco-Swiss architect. It is constructed on the principle of cubes for a unit. It is devoid of every vestige of wood, its windows and doors being made of metal, with no casements of any kind. In one place there is no stairway, just an inclined plane covered with cocoa matting, up which you toil and down which you slide "like an avalanche of humanity."

The walls are described as being reduced to the thinnest possible construction, the material being wire and plaster; the outer walls are perhaps the thickness of a hand; the inner partitions perhaps a handsbreadth thick. Large areas of glass are a feature of the structure. The thin walls and the acres of transparent material suggest an appalling lack of privacy or any attempt to achieve it. Perhaps the owner lives in it all alone. The interior is done entirely in white except at the end of vistas. What is done with these vista ends is not described. The roof is flat, like a terrace, and has alternating pavement and grass.

There is no furniture, except in the dining room. The Chicago visitor counted only five chairs in the whole establishment. Nevertheless, the house is filled with modern art treasures, paintings by the most celebrated futurists, cubists, abstractists (that last is a new school of art to me)—"a marvelous collection," says my informant, "for any but the layman." The owner of this most up-to-date mansion is "a young banker, an engaging personality, charming with his modesty and simple demeanor." O, how I would like to inquire if he is bringing up a family of children in this modern abode! I can see the little dears breaking their childish way right through those frail walls, tossing their cubist toys through the acres of glass, and tobogganing down that stepless stairway. Fancy growing up in an entirely cubist surrounding! It might produce square headed, hard-angled Robots, but not plump, rollicking, gurgling children.

other side. He lamented the fact that he did not feel able to accept an invitation to a French wedding in an ancient and historic château because of the exhausting nature of the festivities. These began at eleven in the morning, when the guests, men and women, were expected to wear full dress for the wedding ceremony. A breakfast followed, after which there was more jollification, the whole party continuing until late at night. It certainly suggests that only those of perfect physical condition should embark on such a celebration.

A sidelight on the attitude of the French themselves toward their tottering franc is this story, which this same correspondent gave me. The government arrested six men for speculating in the franc. Five they put in prison and the sixth, because he had been backing the franc, they committed to an asylum for the insane.

I wonder if our wandering fellow citizens who are sojourning in Europe this summer will have the same impressions of their native land when they return as those described in the first contribution to the August Atlantic, a piece entitled, "Home!" Says the anonymous writer, a born and bred American, who has made the trip across and back many times:

"Never before have I been so startled on reaching my native shores as I was a fortnight ago. I asked myself over and over again whether America had gone crazy, and where this wild dance, this bacchanalian orgy into which I was plunged by my return, was to end . . . The first thing that struck me was the infernal noise. People in this country seem to have come to enjoy noise for its own sake, as Negroes beat tomtoms in the African jungle."

Nor is this more than the forefront of our offending. Besides being noisy, we are arraigned for accepting what the author of the article terms, "the utter breakdown of the law of protection afforded to a citizen by his government." He is horrified to find that people in the pursuit of their lawful business have to provide their own safety, sometimes by means of armored cars. This is in strong contrast to English methods. To London a steamer from South Africa brought five million dollars' worth of gold, which was transferred to an open dray, covered with a tarpaulin and carried without guard of any sort to the Bank of England.

A Lament for Individualism.

If the law in general in England is rigidly enforced and respected, the life of the private citizen is remarkably free from interference. In this country our critic notes an increasing tendency to place restraint on individualism in private life. Men and women are prone to enforce a type for each community, for each calling in life, an unwritten law which requires that all dress alike, think ditto, have similar houses, eat the same kind of food, pursue the same sports. Those who fail to comply with this requirement are regarded as "queer." even "bolshevik," or "red." This restraint of personal opinion and way of doing things is producing a soul deadening monotony in our daily life, according to our self-appointed judge.

Can we gainsay him or point to anything which indicates a tendency to mitigate these various pretty serious faults? We are clamorous—frightfully, unbelievably so; our crime record is unsurpassed by any other nation or period; our personal liberty, once such a precious heritage, is being taken from us by a self-righteous minority. All we do is to get into our high powered automobiles and ride swiftly away from any consideration of these definite and disturbing problems.

This Motoring World.

Apropos of the all pervading motor car, and the difference it has made in our daily lives—what would our forbears, even our very immediate ones, think of the modern woman who blithely sets out with a woman friend to journey one or two thousand miles in a small car with no strong, experienced male to protect them or to mend the car in case of need? There are those two well known social leaders, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase and Mrs. James Keeley, who are starting in Mrs. Chase's car tomorrow morning at cockcrow, which nowadays is about 5:30 a. m., to explore the highways in Canada and thence for Bar Harbor, Me., via Quebec. They plan a fortnight's outing in Mrs. Chase's car and will return by motor as they set out. It is not at all an unusual enterprise today, but how unthinkable it would have been for their mothers, at the same age, to start off on such a tour!

Not every one nowadays adopts the automobile as a means of locomotion, however. There is that attractive young couple, the David Adlers, who left here last Thursday for a two months' trip abroad. They sailed yesterday on the Leviathan for France and the peak of their tour will be a walking or bicycle trip in the Bavarian highlands, with Munich as their starting place. As John Ruskin said, there is really only one way to see a landscape and to learn to know a countryside, and that is to visit it on foot. Both Mr. and Mrs. Adler are fond of walking and are good pedestrians, keeping an even pace mile after mile. They also are adepts at bicycling—an almost forgotten art to many of us. Those who motor through a neighborhood get but a vague and general idea of its charms, at least so say the lovers of nature's beauties. The writer confesses to an unsated joy in the swift, well tufted, perfectly constructed motor car. Take it by and large, it is modern man's greatest contribution to real happiness and comfort. But I heartily approve of those who prefer walking. It is far more wholesome and much saner than a spin over smooth roads through lovely scenery in a high powered automobile.

Ravinia Vs. Bayreuth.

My neighbor at a cheerful luncheon party a few days ago told me that her sister and brother-in-law, who had been spending five years in Germany and who were both devoted to music and knew more than most of us do about what constituted good music, considered the opera now being given by Louis Eckstein's wonderful troupe at Ravinia Park far better than anything they heard in Europe. They even were quoted as saying that "the opera house in the woods" made Bayreuth "seem tawdry." They knew without being told that the orchestra at Ravinia was the finest that ever escorted the great compositions of Wagner, Verdi, Bizet, Puccini, Massenet, et al. The Chicago Symphony orchestra is one of the greatest assets to those tuneful groves. The chorus, imported from the Metropolitan in New York, is the best trained in the world today. The world famous stars who sing there nightly do not need my pen to extol their merits.

After a rather trying two or three weeks at the beginning of the season, so far as the weather was concerned, old Sol and his sunspots, or the weather man, or whatever power it be that controls the elements, has done much better by Ravinia and its habitués, and we have had a series of most exquisite evenings, with soft breezes, moonlight, and fragrance of flowers as a background for those delicious performances.

One of the attractive features of Ravinia is the masterly way in which the operas are shortened, so that one gets the essence of the piece without having to sit through the often overlong and exhausting entirety. Most operas were written by and for a people who delighted in protracted evenings because they did not have to rise early the following morning. Even today the natives in Italy do not think they get their money's worth if an opera is finished before one or two o'clock in the morning. So the entr'actes drag on forever, and the weary foreigner, the agile American who has traditions and habits of early rising, either sits wearily through to the end or goes out before the conclusion of the performance. Ravinia satisfies one completely in this as in other ways. Vive Ravinia!

NEWS OF NEW YORK SOCIETY

July at Resorts Ends in Brilliance

By Howard White.

NEW YORK, July 31.—[Special.]—In spite of the backward summer and the cold, disagreeable weather of late June and early July, all the fashionable resorts have had the most brilliant month in years. July came to a close in a blaze of glory. Entertainments of every description marked the last week of the month—Venetian fêtes, army and navy balls, "Cheerio II." at Southampton, and dinners and dances too numerous to mention.

Newport lived up to its early promises. Every day for the last fortnight has been marked by a number of brilliant entertainments. Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer gave a large dance tonight at Honeysuckle lodge for their young daughter, Miss Betty Tailer, who recently celebrated her sixteenth birthday. Miss Tailer is a most attractive girl and is popular with the younger set. She is an all around sportswoman and plays a particularly clever game of golf. She won in a mixed tournament this week, making a 200 yard drive on the sixteenth hole and getting a par four. The dance was preceded by a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tailer and many others entertained at dinner before the dance.

Future Functions.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis A. Clarke gave a dinner and dance at Wrentham house in honor of the sixteenth birthday of their daughter, Miss Evelyn Clarke. Among other entertainments scheduled are a ball to be given by Mrs. James B. Haggin on Aug. 7 at Villa Rosa; a coming out party by Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman de R. Whitehouse for their daughter, Miss Alice Vira Whitehouse, on Aug. 14; a fancy dress ball to be given by Mrs. Benjamin Royal Holcombe, the former Mrs. Margaret Fahnestock Stokes, at Gull Rocks, on Aug. 21, and Miss Julia Berwind's annual ball, to be held at the Elms on Aug. 28, in connection with the series of entertainments during tennis week.

Tennis week at Newport comes later than usual this season, but it will be marked, nevertheless, by a constant round of entertaining. The Casino tennis committee, of which James Stewart Cushman is chairman, tried to have the week of Aug. 16 allotted to it, but was unsuccessful.

Among those who have taken boxes for the tournament are Gen. and Mrs. Vanderbilt, Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mrs. W. Watts Sherman, Mrs. Eugene S. Reynal, Mrs. William Fitzhugh Whitehouse, Dr. and Mrs. Roderick Terry, Mr. and Mrs. William Goadby Loew, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. A. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Eppley, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Beeckman, Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart Cushman, Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mr. and Mrs. Edson Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Tangeman.

A Charity Success.

Interest in the Southampton colony for the last few days has centered almost entirely in the production of "Cheerio II.," given in Parochial hall for the benefit of the Southampton hospital last night, this afternoon, and this evening. It was a brilliant success and was attended by the entire summer colony. Florenz Ziegfeld assisted in the last few days in arranging the details of the production. There was much entertaining before each of the performances and this week-end is the most brilliant of the season at the exclusive Long Island resort.

The annual street fair and carnival, which is the feature of the season at Southampton each year, will take place on Aug. 27 and will be a fancy dress affair. Among the amusement features will be a country store, a block dancing party, and a baby show. The junior horse show at Southampton will be held on Aug. 28, and the Consolidated Hampton dog show at the Meadow club on Aug. 7. Harry Pelham Robbins is president.

The ball to be given in honor of the officers of the United States and British navies, who will participate in the international maritime tennis tournament which opens at Bar Harbor on Aug. 3, will be the outstanding social event of the season. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Walter Damrosch, F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart, Dave Hennen Morris, De Witt Clinton Falls, Edward B. Mears, Chester P. Barnett, John R. Rogers, Thomas Pell Sweeney, Charlton Yarnall, and J. A. C. Palmer.

Another feature of tennis week will be a costume dance to be given for the benefit of the Bar Harbor hospital Aug. 4.

A Clubhouse Uncertainty.

There has been considerable comment concerning the proposed new clubhouse to be built at Tuxedo Park. It has been decided only that a new clubhouse shall be built. The plans, site, and other arrangements have not been decided upon, and the house may be a reality within a year or not for ten years. It is believed, however, Tuxedo will have a new clubhouse in the fall of 1927 that will be opened with the annual autumn ball of that year.

The annual junior horse show at Tuxedo, which has become an outstanding event in the junior social world of the metropolitan district, will be held some time in September. Members of the younger set who are in charge of this feature are away at present on short trips with their parents.

Exhibits Mystic and Vivid Share Gallery

By Eleanor Jewett.

VIVID pink and lavender mountains; vivid pink and lavender landscapes; vivid pink and lavender seas; everything that is not vivid pink and lavender is pink and lavender toned down by the addition of green and white, each of these colors being used strenuously; pink and lavender like gigantic booming postal cards thundering the praises of a far country upon the unwitting eyes and ears of the hesitant traveler—such is a little of the impression which Birger Sandzen's collection of paintings leaves upon one's memory.

Birger Sandzen shares the gallery in the Art institute, in which his exhibit is held, with William Schwartz. William Schwartz strikes the cymbals and is on with the dance in another direction. His motif is the darkly mysterious; the pageant of duress where turbulent purples and strident browns thrum on the organ of life, picking out the melody in the bass and translating the musical vibrations into corporeal spirits, exotic, unreal, mannered, but somewhat fascinating.

Exhibits Show Mutual Hatred.

The contrasting exhibits swear at each other in a horrible way. Still, on second thought, it might be difficult to name a better pair to chain together in the same room. Certainly the Greenman portraits and the Sandzen landscapes, ensemble, would give rise at once to a call for medical assistance. The combination would be too awful. The Sandzen and the Schoenfeld would be neither better nor worse than the present arrangement. The Sandzen and the Manoir would detract from the charming combine of Manoir and Forsberg; and to put Mitchell with Sandzen would but wreak confusion where now a splendid single showing of Glen Mitchell's portraits and sketches is one of the goals to be achieved in a visit to the east wing.

Probably Sandzen and Schwartz are best off left undisturbed. To relate the true value of Birger Sandzen, and his handling of such gigantic problems as the western landscapes of this country afford, would take a billboard of print and a vast gallery to picture. Unfortunately both necessities are impossible. Nothing is less like a boarding than the art column, and nothing is less like a vast gallery than the side of the room at the Art institute upon which these flamboyant canvases are arranged.

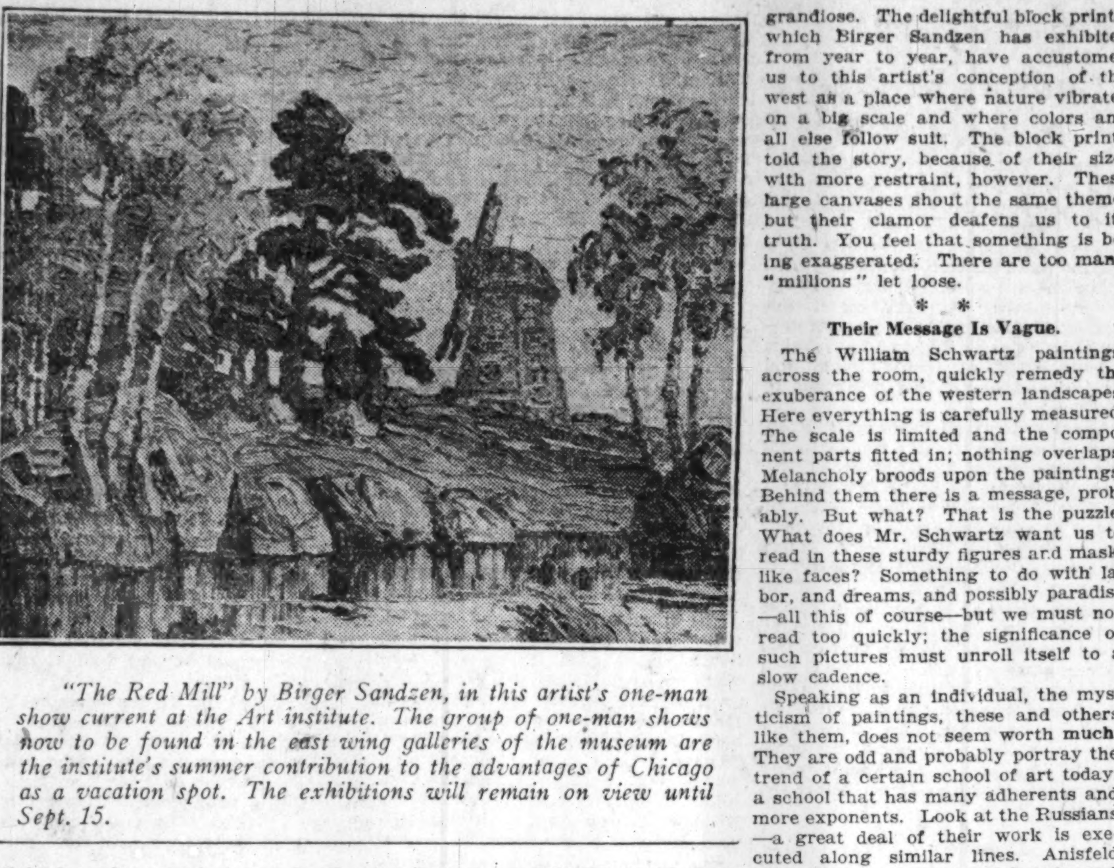
Ice Cream Spilled at Sunset.

Taking each painting by itself, none of them exactly deserves the adjective flamboyant. Taking the exhibit as a whole, no other word exactly expresses it. The exhibit is flamboyant. The landscapes are all striped with the same brush. To describe their composite effect in the least technical language, a monstrous freezer of strawberry and vanilla ice cream might have been pushed over by the careless foot of a jolly friend of nature, all in the glow of a sunset sky, and the painter, Sandzen, happening along at the moment of the catastrophe, quickly effaced the wreckage by pushing the billows here and there with his brushes, and made pictures out of the débris—much as a clever sculptor can carve snow into interesting shapes or model wild animals from a pat of butter.



"The Red Mill" by Birger Sandzen, in this artist's one-man show current at the Art institute. The group of one-man shows now to be found in the east wing galleries of the museum are the institute's summer contribution to the advantages of Chicago as a vacation spot. The exhibitions will remain on view until Sept. 15.

Doubtless Sandzen did nothing of the sort. The whole suggestion is trifling, and trifling is the last thing in the world a surveyor of these paintings feels like being. The work is serious, rather beautiful, and the one complaint that might be leveled at it justly, is that it errs on the side of the too grandiose. The delightful block prints, which Birger Sandzen has exhibited from year to year, have accustomed us to this artist's conception of the west as a place where nature vibrates on a big scale and where colors and all else follow suit. The block prints told the story, because of their size, with more restraint, however. These large canvases shout the same theme, but their clamor deafens us to its truth. You feel that something is being exaggerated. There are too many "millions" let loose.

Their Message Is Vague.

The William Schwartz paintings, across the room, quickly remedy the exuberance of the western landscapes. Here everything is carefully measured. The scale is limited and the component parts fitted in; nothing overlaps. Melancholy broods upon the paintings. Behind them there is a message, probably. But what? That is the puzzle. What does Mr. Schwartz want us to read in these sturdy figures and masklike faces? Something to do with labor, and dreams, and possibly paradise—all this of course—but we must not read too quickly; the significance of such pictures must unroll itself to a slow cadence.

Speaking as an individual, the mysticism of paintings, these and others like them, does not seem worth much. They are odd and probably portray the trend of a certain school of art today, a school that has many adherents and more exponents. Look at the Russians—a great deal of their work is executed along similar lines. Anisfeld had a great deal more of beauty and delicacy in his canvases; Roerich had more that was practical; but there is a quality alike running underneath the compositions. And still—what message does it carry?

Go from this gallery into the one where hang the paintings from the Cyrus McCormick collection or the Francis Neilsen collection. You will find little in those paintings which will mystify you. There will be a great deal that will delight you. If Gainsborough, Titian, Inness, Cuyp, Van Dyck, Israels, and Corot did not need to contrive a riddle in order to create a figment of great beauty, to throw upon the screen of their canvas the shadow of substance that was beauty, why do modern painters think it necessary to paint in pot hooks?

ART NOTES

Irving Manoir is spending a month painting in the high Sierras, near Bishop, Cal. The card that announced his whereabouts gave a most entrancing view of a clear mountain lake encircled by stiff, dark pines and in the background balanced by snow-blanketed, bleak cliffs.

Miss Vera Flaugher, who was graduated from the department of teacher training of the school of the Art institute last June, has been appointed to the post of assistant supervisor of art in the schools of Harvey, Ill.

Arthur Jaffe of Vienna, Austria, is at present occupied at the Art institute, engaged in photographing in colors by a special process several of the rarest rugs and tapestries from the Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick collection. The pictures are to be published later in book form through a reproducing process invented by Mr. Jaffe.

ENGAGED.

MISS ELAINE SCHMIEDL.
[Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]
Mr. and Mrs. John Schmiedl of 3104 Euclid avenue, Berwyn, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elaine, to James B. Durham of Sault Ste. Marie, Canada.

PICNIC.

MRS. EDGAR F. ALDEN.
Mrs. Edgar F. Alden is giving the use of her house at 352 Linden avenue, Winnetka, for a card party and picnic on Tuesday afternoon for members of the Southern Woman's club and the Southern Educational alliance. Mrs. Louis W. Hall and Mrs. E. J. Buffington, respective presidents of these organizations, will assist Mrs. Alden.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Winona Lake World Sessions On Today

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

CHRISTIAN citizenship, missions, sacred music and Bible conference, each in turn, are having international and interdenominational sessions at Winona Lake, Indiana, beginning today.

The Christian citizen conference under the presidency of Dr. James S. Martin will begin today and close Friday evening. Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Congressman Clyde Kelly, and Dr. Clinton N. Howard will be among the speakers.

A world wide missionary conference will begin on Tuesday, continuing to Aug. 10, under the direction of the Rev. John S. Hamilton. Among the speakers will be Dr. G. S. McCune, formerly of Corea; Dr. R. H. Glover, formerly of China, and Dr. W. H. Hockman. Mrs. G. W. Taft of Chicago is corresponding secretary of the general women's committee coöperating.

From Aug. 8 to 29 the school of sacred music will be held. Homer A. Rodeheaver is president and Dr. Parley E. Zartmann is secretary. Sacred Music week will be Aug. 23-29. Dr. Daniel Protheroe of Chicago will conduct one of the week day recitals and the presentation of the Messiah on the closing Sunday.

The thirty-second annual Bible conference will be held from Aug. 13 to Aug. 22. Speakers from overseas are: Dr. H. Tydeman Chilvers, pastor of the Spurgeon tabernacle, London; Dr. Edward Shillito, London; Dr. C. M. Gordon, Australia; Dr. William J. Shergold, London, and Dr. Gifford Gordon, Melbourne. Speakers to the number of thirty from various parts of America, pastors, evangelists, professors, missionaries, women, are on the program.

A conference on economic, international, racial and family relations will open today on the campus of Olivet college, Olivet, Mich., and will contine until Aug. 28. The program is unique in that it consists chiefly in round table discussions, although care is taken to have present leaders of special knowledge and fitness who will speak as occasion demands. Twenty-eight of the special leaders are advertised. The conference is under the auspices of the Fellowship for a Christian Social Order, of which Sherwood Eddy is chairman of the national committee.

Beginning next Sunday and continuing for a week there will be a discussion on international relations in which Christians and Jews can coöperate running parallel with the other discussions at Olivet. The Social Justice commission of the Central conference of American Rabbis and the committee on Good Will of the Federal council of the Churches of Christ in America are both represented in this meeting, which is one of the major efforts now being made to establish a common ground on which churches differing in theological beliefs can unite for social betterment. Ephraim Frisch is chairman of the commission of Rabbis and John W. Herring is secretary of the commission of the Federal council.

The Rev. C. W. Longman will preach at 11 o'clock today at the University church of the Disciples of Christ in the absence of the pastor, Dr. Edward Scribner Ames. His subject will be, "The Functioning of Religion."

Tomorrow begins the Franciscan jubilee year in recognition of the seven hundredth anniversary of the death of St. Francis of Assisi. Pope Pius XI has urged a world wide commemoration of the event. The beginning of the jubilee is marked by the feast of Portiuncula, which derives its name from a little church near Assisi which was given an indulgence at the special request of St. Francis, a favor which was later extended to all Franciscan churches. At St. Augustine's church, 51st and Laflin streets, Bishop E. F. Hoban will celebrate today pontifical high mass and prayers will be said for the beginning of the Portiuncula indulgence. The feast will be celebrated tomorrow morning at St. Peter's church, Polk and Clark streets, with mass at 5:30, 6, 7, 8, and 9 o'clock. Sermon at 10 o'clock. At St. Adalbert's parish a three day's celebration will be concluded today.

An entertainment under the auspices of the Holy Name society showing among other features a complete film of the Eucharistic congress, will be given tomorrow evening at the Clifford theater, 5935½ West Roosevelt road, for the benefit of the building fund of St. Frances of Rome church and school at Austin boulevard and 15th street of which the Rev. John L. Kelly is pastor.

F. B. Colliver, world traveler and lecturer, will speak this morning at 9:45 at the Woodlawn Park, now called the First Presbyterian church Kimbark avenue and 64th street, on the subject, "The Eighth Wonder of the World." Mr. Colliver is just home from a 30,000 mile tour and in two months begins another trip. He was one of those who were permitted to explore the interior of King Tut's tomb in Egypt.

THE REV. KING D. BEACH, D. D.

Dr. King D. Beach will begin today his pastorate of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, Ellis avenue and Forty-sixth street, as successor of Dr. W. R. Wedderspoon, who will in October become pastor in Miami, Fla. Dr. Beach is the son of the late Rev. John R. Beach of the Detroit conference. Dr. Beach was graduated from Albion college, Michigan, in 1905. In 1921 he received the degree of doctor of divinity from his alma mater. He received the degree of master of arts from the University of Pennsylvania, where he was in residence one year. He studied for two years at Columbia university, New York, specializing in psychology, economics, and sociology. While studying in Philadelphia he had charge of the boys' department of the university settlement, and while in New York City he was student assistant at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church. He comes to St. James' from the pastorate of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Grand Rapids, Mich., a church having 1,500 members and a staff of five paid workers. Dr. Beach headed the delegation from his conference to the last general conference of the denomination at Springfield, Mass. St. James' recently dedicated a new stone edifice, the entire plant costing $600,000.

A school of religious education beginning tomorrow and closing Aug. 12 will be held at Harrison hall, National Kindergarten and Elementary college, Evanston, of which Miss Edna Dean Baker is president. The school will be conducted under the auspices of the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church. Courses are open for pastors, student pastors, college and divinity students and directors of religious education. A recreational program will be given daily from 3 to 5 p. m. directed by N. O. Harrington, director of recreation for the city of Erie Pa. A pageant will be presented Aug. 11 under the direction of Miss Lydia M. Glover, superintendent of the division of pageants and costumes of the board. Commencement will be held on the afternoon of Aug. 12 with a banquet in the evening. There are 16 members of the teaching faculty including speakers who come from various parts of the United States. Roger Albright of Evanston is dean of the school which expects a registration of 200.

Dr. John A. Earl, editor of The Baptist, will preach and Miss Lucille Long, known as a radio artist, will sing today at 11 o'clock at the First Baptist church, 50th street, between Drexel boulevard and Ellis avenue.

The Rev. William Thompson Elliott, vicar of the English cathedral at Leeds, who is in Chicago attending the international rotary clubs' meeting, will preach at 11 o'clock today at the Church of the Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues.

The Rev. N. M. Wells, famous as the first Canadian chaplain to go over seas in the world war and who served as senior chaplain of a Canadian division throughout the war, will preach at 11 o'clock at Trinity Episcopal church, Twenty-sixth street and South Michigan avenue.

Bible conferences will be held at Cedar Falls, Ia., beginning today, and at Dixon, Ill., beginning next Sunday, both under the direction of Dr. Parley E. Zartman of Winona Lake, Ind. Dr. H. Tydeman Chilvers, pastor of the Metropolitan tabernacle, known as Spurgeon's, London, and Dr. Charles L. Goodell, superintendent of evangelism of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, will be among the leaders who will speak at both conferences. Dr. Simon Peter Long of Chicago will be one of the speakers at the Dixon conference.

Dr. Max Kadushin has been elected rabbi of the Humbolt boulevard orthodox Jewish temple and will begin his work here Sept. 1.

HERE'S A SUCCESSFUL SELLING GROUP.

I have a group of 7 clean cut, experienced, successful, industrious specialty salesmen—men of splendid appearance, fine character, unimpeachable integrity, unusual personalities. Having just completed a selling campaign, this group is open to consider a high grade selling proposition in the Greater Chicago territory. My men can handle dignified contract selling especially where each sale runs into substantial money. We will positively not associate ourselves with any subdivision, insurance, book, "back door," or wild-cat stock selling, no matter how alluring the prospective earnings may be. It would cost you considerable time and money to organize a successful selling group of this character. Address L 52, Tribune.

A. A. LEWIS REALTY ASSOCIATION WANTS MEN WITHOUT EXPERIENCE.

You have often been tempted to answer a real estate ad because you've heard that there is a lot of money to be made in that business. But you've hesitated because you lack experience. Now, don't let that stand in your way. A large percentage of our men came to us without experience, and they are making good—You can do as well. I do not promise that you can make a fortune at once, but I do say that if you follow my instructions you will work yourself into the best position you ever held in your life.

All I am attempting to do in this ad is to interest you sufficiently to cause you to investigate. I, personally, am going to talk to you and show you what other men like yourself, who came to us without experience, are doing.

See Me Personally,

PART TIME WORKERS.

We want men who are employed during the day to join us and learn our methods of doing business. We have helped a lot of men better their conditions and in many instances given them more for their spare hours than they have received at their regular occupation. We do not expect you to carry on our work without proper instruction, and for that purpose we have retained the services of some of Chicago's best instructors.

We invite you and your friends to come up Monday evening, Aug. 2, 1926, 7:30 p. m., and listen to one of Chicago's well known speakers outline the work to you. Also you will be afforded the chance to meet and talk with other men who have joined us some time ago, just as we are inviting you now, and hear directly from them how they made good and what your chances with us are.

Our work is building and selling homes on easy terms. Also, the selling of wonderful homesites on very easy terms.

We will teach you what you must know to make good with us, and will send you with an experienced man to see how the work is done.

Your willingness to work is all we ask. We will do the rest.

DON'T FORGET THE DATE AND TIME.

DO NOT WASTE YOUR TIME OR MINE. UNLESS YOU ARE WILLING TO WORK AND FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS, DO NOT APPLY.

An executive of one of the largest real estate concerns in the city is desirous of securing 4 men who never have had experience in real estate, but who wish to learn the business.

My personal attention will be given in closing all of your deals and in teaching you in such a way that you will be qualified at the end of this time to hold positions similar to those held by men and women in the City of Chicago who have been associated with me in the past years. Names will be cheerfully given. These people are now earning upward of $10,000 a year.

My 20 years' experience enables me to give you invaluable assistance, and in a very short time your earnings will be far in excess of anything you have ever received.

Essential qualifications: Applicants must be over 25 and must have resided in Chicago for at least five years.

SEE ME PERSONALLY,

ATTENTION!

DO NOT WASTE YOUR TIME OR MINE. UNLESS YOU ARE WILLING TO WORK AND FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS, DO NOT APPLY.

An executive of one of the largest real estate concerns in the city is desirous of securing 4 women who never have had experience in real estate, but who wish to learn the business.

My personal attention will be given in closing all of your deals and in teaching you in such a way that you will be qualified at the end of this time to hold positions similar to those held by men and women in the City of Chicago who have been associated with me in the past years. Names will be cheerfully given. These people are now earning upward of $10,000 a year.

My 20 years' experience enables me to give you invaluable assistance, and in a very short time your earnings will be far in excess of anything you have ever received.

Essential qualifications: Applicants must be over 25 and must have resided in Chicago for at least five years.

Live in Streeterville

Douglas Brougham Lived the Leisurely Life Befitting a Gentleman

Douglas Brougham, in the flapperless nineties, lived north of the river, away from the hectic clatter of traffic. He tarried over a savory breakfast, then drove or, if he chose, walked leisurely to his office, and as leisurely returned.

Streeterville today is the home of those who prefer to make a rite of breakfast; its central location makes this possible.

180 East Delaware

Adds convenience of living to this convenience of location.

LOCATION—

In the heart of a most elite residential section, only one-half block east of Chicago's principal thoroughfare, 180 E. Delaware is within walking distance of the great metropolitan shopping, business and theater centers, select private schools, and renowned churches. In its immediate neighborhood are the Drake and Lake Shore Drive hotels, as well as the homes of Chicago's social leaders. The Casino Club is directly across the street.

BUILDING—

Its exclusive character, intrinsic beauty of design and execution, and convenience are the outstanding attributes of this new group of luxuriously conceived apartment homes. The building incorporates the ultimate in tested and approved appointments of unquestioned good taste. On the ground floor will be an exquisitely furnished lounge, an Old English tea room with excellent cuisine, and a commissary.

APARTMENTS—

They will be unfurnished — three, four and five rooms, convertible, if desired, into six and eight. The apartments are arranged to give infinite comfort and efficiency. The walls will be canvased and paneled. Marble mantels and period design lighting fixtures will grace the living rooms. Crystal lighting fixtures, maids' call in the dining rooms. Chambers will have full length mirrors and large closets. In the bathrooms—colored tile wainscoting, showers, and shampoo sprays, Venetian mirrored medicine cabinet, linen closets. The kitchens will be equipped with mechanical refrigeration, all white cooking ranges, and enameled steel cabinets.

SERVICE—

Maid service will be optional. High speed elevators of micro precision, operated by efficient attendants, will whisk you in a few seconds to your floor. A vacuum heating system will regulate precisely the temperature and humidity throughout your apartment. Rental will include mechanical refrigeration, electric light, gas, laundries, and driers.

Prospective tenants, of course, are being chosen with discrimination.

180 East Delaware

offers the essentials of hotel service at a cost far lower than is possible in hotels. 3, 4 and 5 room apartments, convertible, if desired, into 6 or 8 rooms: $165 a month upwards.

The multiple advantages of location and facility afforded by these apartments have already given rise to a spirited demand for choice reservations. We counsel prompt action.

Personal representatives of the management are on the premises from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. to show you the features and a model apartment decorated and furnished by the French Shops, Incorporated, Chicago, under the personal supervision of Mr. Pierre J. Morel.

WHY PAY RENT?

FOR LOVERS

of reasonably priced beautiful cooperative apartment homes we have developed a building of four and five rooms, such as you would expect to find only along the Lake Shore-dr. at $5,000 to $6,000 more than our prices.

There are four and five rooms having large canvased living rooms and big paneled dining rooms with Spanish bracket lights. One and two bedrooms, bright kitchens with built-in cupboards, large Universal gas ranges, and genuine porcelain enameled refrigerators.

A glistening white tile bathroom with showers, pedestal lavatory, built-in bathtubs. Excellent closet space; also cedar lined chest closets and other ultra-modern features.

The construction throughout the building, the halls, lobbies, etc., is the very best. Storage space and modern laundry facilities in the basement. The very latest Kewanee heating plant.

Can you imagine all this, in the best section of beautiful Rogers Park, two blocks from the lake, with cash payments as low as $1,000 and monthly assessments as low as $47.50?

We have representatives there all day to answer your questions, but they will not urge you to buy. The apartments are at 1522-28 Fargo-av., one block from the Jarvis-av. L station and the Sheridan-rd. busses.

We sell to discriminating people only and invite your thorough investigation.

HOUSES—NORTHWEST SIDE.

FOR SALE—MY HOME IN RAVENSWOOD MANOR.

Having just purchased a large North Shore residence, I am compelled to dispose of my handsome, very modern 12 room home on N. Sacramento-av. near Lawrence-av. This home is situated on lot 37x125 ft. and contains 2 tile baths with showers and 3 toilets. The decorations, improvements, oil burner, electric refrigerator, plumbing, and electric light fixtures cannot be surpassed in a home worth many times what I am willing to take for this. If you are in the market for what I have to offer, call Wabash 9255 or Juniper 9805 for appointment and verify these statements. Having no use for this residence, I am willing to sell at a tremendous sacrifice.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

We make second mortgage loans for periods from one to three years on homes located in Chicago and suburban towns of Cook, Lake and Du Page counties. We limit our service to mortgages on homes, and we construe as a home up to three flat buildings.

All loans are made subject to monthly payments of at least 2% of the principal sum per month plus interest on the outstanding balance at the rate of 6 per cent per annum. Our maximum commission ranges from 5% for a one year loan to 10% for a three year loan.

Our Real Estate Loan Department is well equipped to give prompt attention to the appraisal and the closing of all transactions.

The conduct of this second mortgage business is under the direction of a board of directors which has had wide real estate experience in this and other communities.

STUDEBAKER

ORDERS! ORDERS!! ORDERS!!!

Thrifty used car buyers are cashing in on the popularity of Studebaker's new Custom Sedans.

Orders are pouring in like never before and we are taking in used cars at low prices on account of the popularity of these Custom Sedans. Used car buyers will save considerable money on account of this condition, and at the same time they will buy under the regulations of Studebaker's National Used Car Pledge, which has revolutionized the used car business and eliminated all guesswork in used car buying.

1925 STEARNS-KNIGHT BROUGHAM. This five passenger car is so clean and attractive that it will appeal to the most discriminating buyer. Its original owner, a prominent Loop bank executive, used the car very little. Was chauffeur driven and maintained. Looks brand new, both inside and out. Upholstery is immaculate. Has practically new tires and extras; large trunk, bumper and bumperettes, motometer, etc. Specially priced for quick sale, $1,085.

1925 CHRYSLER SEDAN, 4 door, 5 passenger. One of the biggest Chrysler bargains in Chicago, only $945. Looks brand new with its original finish. Upholstery and inside appointments look unused. Not even a mar or blemish on the body or fenders. Tires only slightly used. Here is a dandy bargain for some one, and there are many people who will be glad of an opportunity to buy it at $945.

REO SEDAN, absolutely like new, reduced to $785. Its bluish green finish is perfect, with not a flaw in the body or fenders. Mechanically it could not be improved upon, and is sold under Studebaker's National Used Car Pledge. There is not worn place in the upholstery or carpets, and the tires are only slightly used. Has every imaginable extra—large trunk, 2 nickel plated bumpers, motometer, extra tire, snubbers, windshield spotlight, etc. It is needless to say that this is an outstanding bargain in a late model sedan.

1925 OAKLAND COACH, driven only a few thousand miles. Looks new and attractive. The upholstery looks new. The balloon tires show practically no use. There is not a dent or a scratch on either the body or the fenders, showing that the car has had exceptional care. The name of its original owner will be furnished, who will verify the condition of the car. He will assure any one that the motor is absolutely perfect, and the only reason he traded it in was because he needed a 7 pass. car. You will be surprised to see a 1925 car in such wonderful condition for only $685.

1924 JEWETT FIVE PASSENGER BROUGHAM. Here is a car which looks as though it were purchased last months, because it has been in storage almost one year. An opportunity to purchase a car which has been used only eight months for only $685. The car's original finish looks brand new. The upholstery, carpets, etc., look unused. The tires are practically new. One of the biggest bargains in Chicago. For quick sale the price is $685.

PAIGE 6-66 FOUR PASSENGER COUPE, reduced to $445. No one expects a better bargain and the first person who sees it will agree that it is very seldom a car of this quality and appearance is offered at such a low price. The finish is beautiful, the motor corrected, and the upholstery is perfect. No dents or mars in fenders or body. Has every essential extra. Today, $445.

1925 TYPE RICKENBACKER TOURING, with winter sides. This five passenger car has its original finish, which will rival that of a new car. The motor has been carefully corrected and runs like the day it left the factory. Has 4 wheel brakes, extra tires, bumpers, etc. Reduced to $495.

STUDEBAKER SPECIAL 6 TOURING. Would you like to buy a car which has been used only 18 months and cost over $1,800 for only $585? Here is your chance. This car has been relacquered and looks as attractive as a new car. The engine has been completely rebuilt and runs like the day it left the factory. There is not a worn place in the upholstery or carpets. The original fenders look as though they were put on today, which shows that the car has had exceptional care. A bargain at $585.

LATE 1925 STUDEBAKER BIG 6 BROUGHAM, 4 doors, 5 pass. This distinctive brougham absolutely cannot be told from brand new. Any one desiring a new car will do well to inspect this automobile. There is not a mar or blemish on the body or fenders. The inside appointments are such as will appeal to the most discriminating. Was traded in on a smaller car, and can now be purchased at one-half its original cost.

LIBERAL TERMS.

Open Evenings and Sundays.

LINCOLN 4 pass. Coupe. Beautifully and very attractively finished in ebony black and flamingo red wheels and running gear. Cannot be distinguished from new and is fully covered mechanically with our new car Lincoln guarantee and service. $2,750.

CADILLAC 63 De Luxe with 5 pass. Sedan. Refinished in Cadillac gray and is in excellent coach and mechanical condition. This model has the aluminum body. Equipped with practically new cord tires, bumpers, trunk rack, Lovejoy shock absorbers, 4 wheel brakes, motometer, etc.

Cadillac 63 Coupe, 4 pass. Has new cord tires, front and rear bumpers, snubbers, and all useful extras. Refinished in standard Cadillac light blue. The keenest observer would find it impossible to distinguish this from a brand new car. Body and fender condition perfect.

1926 Peerless 8 brougham, 5 pass. 4 door model. Just a few months old. Has the appearance of a brand new car and the coach and mechanical condition is perfect. Balloon tires, 4 wheel brakes, bumpers, and plenty of extra equipment. Original cost $4,250. Can be bought at a 50% reduction.

1924 Buick Sedan Limousine. Original blue finish in good shape. Excellent for taxi or livery service. 5 good tires, 4 wheel brakes, 5 excellent tires, snubbers, and other extras. See this car today.

Cadillac 63 De Luxe Phaeton. This car was just entirely overhauled in our shops and is in the very finest mechanical condition. Finished in a very attractive shade of green. Tires are good and equipment is complete. Price $1,750.

Cadillac 63 Touring, 7 pass. This car still retains its excellent original finish and shows the best of care by its former owner. The tires are good for many thousands of miles and equipment includes bumpers, spotlight, 4 wheel brakes, snubbers, etc. Price $1,500.

Cadillac 59 Limousines. We have two cars of this model and both are in first class condition and ready for immediate service. An excellent opportunity for some one to start in the livery service on a very conservative investment.

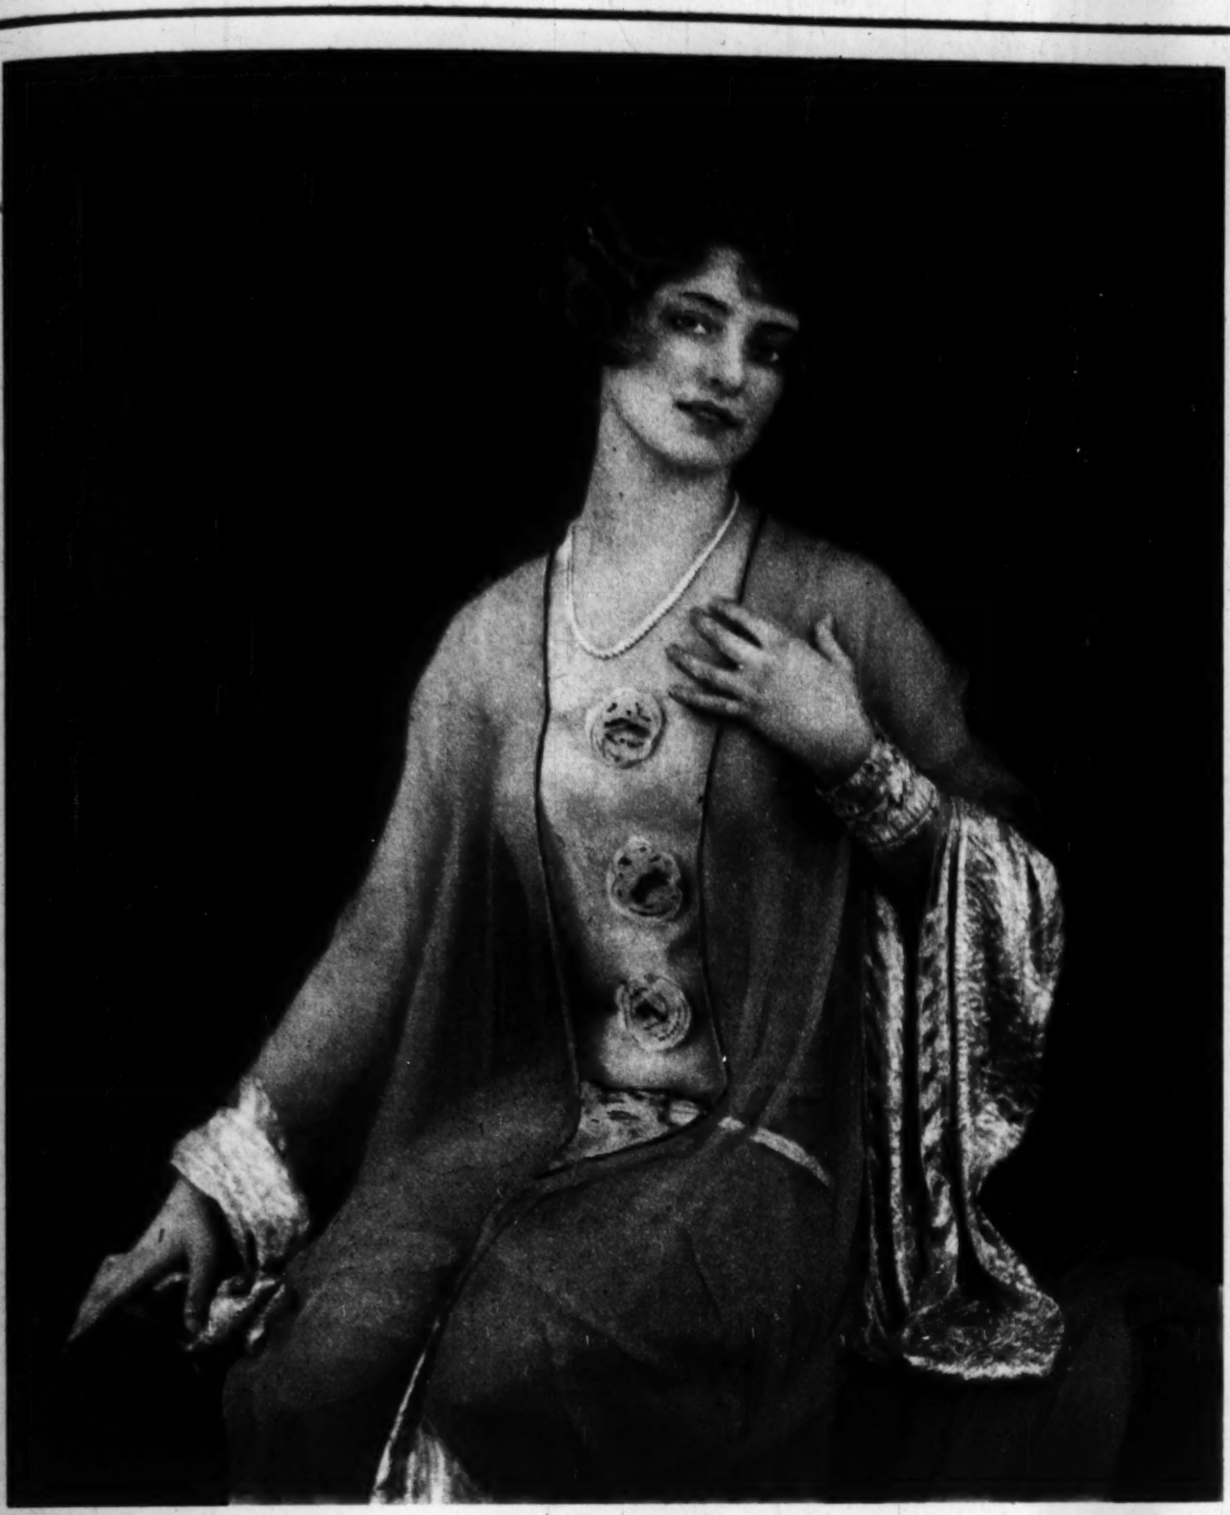
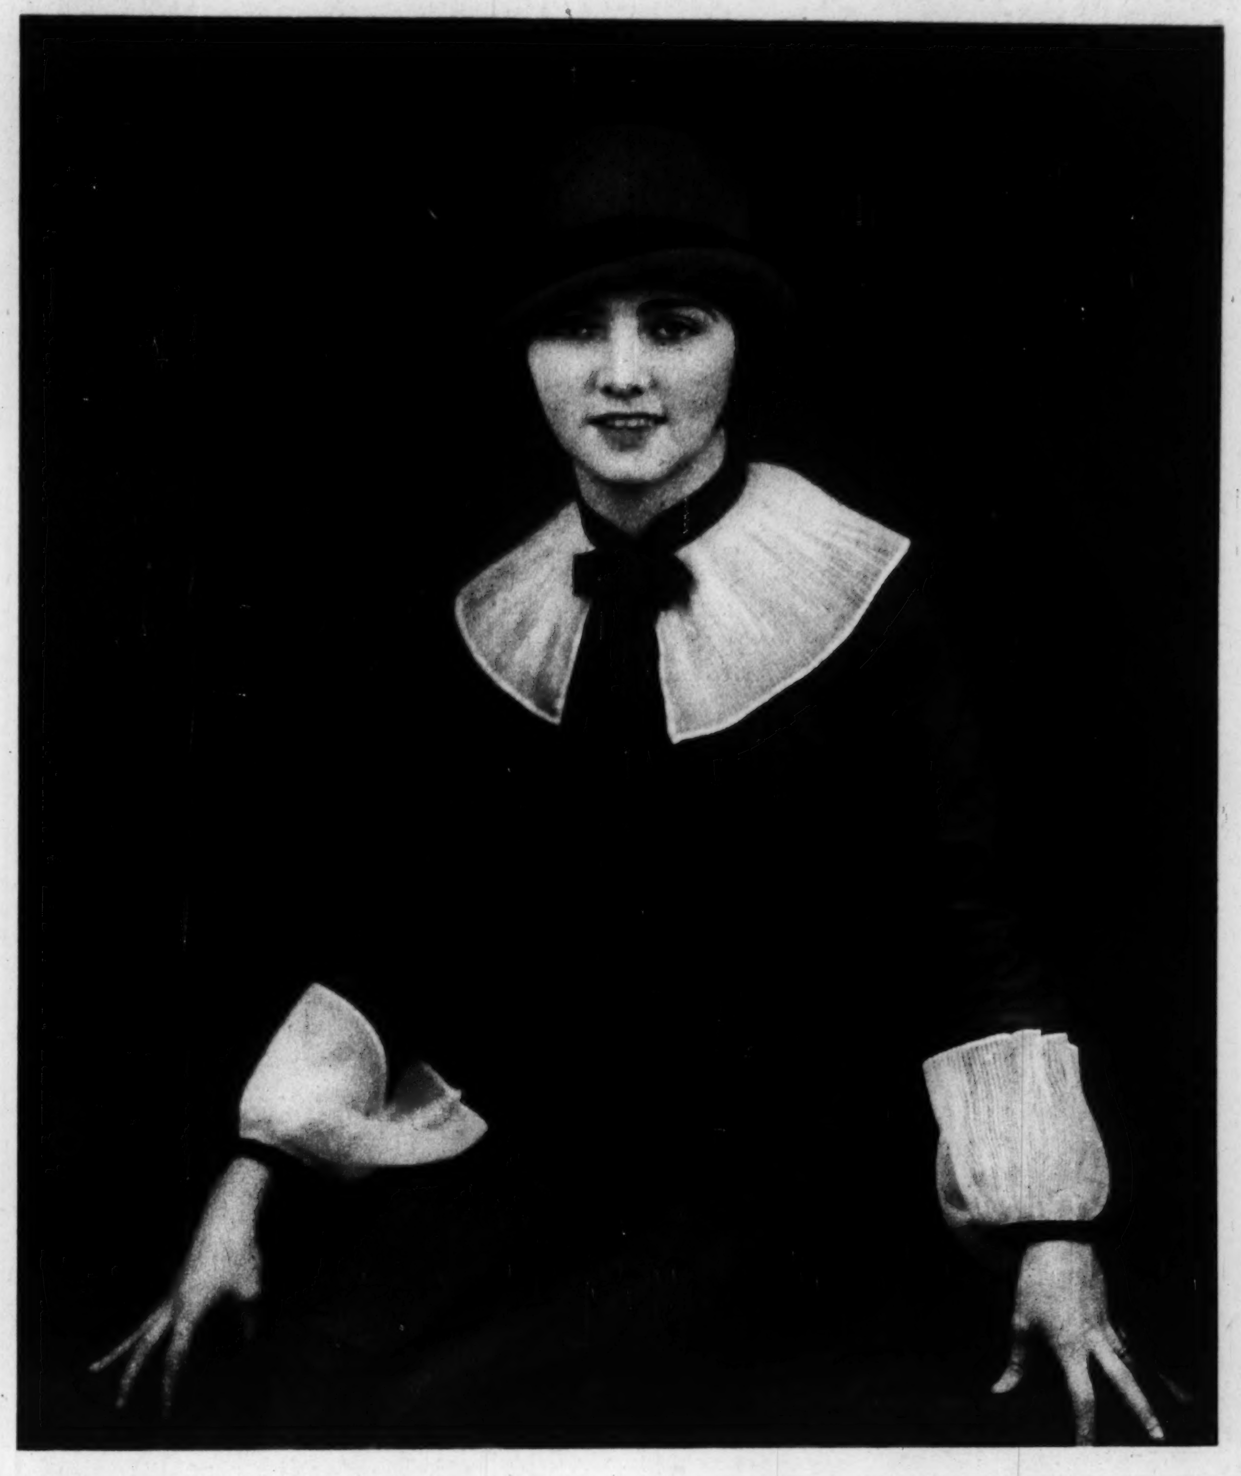
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

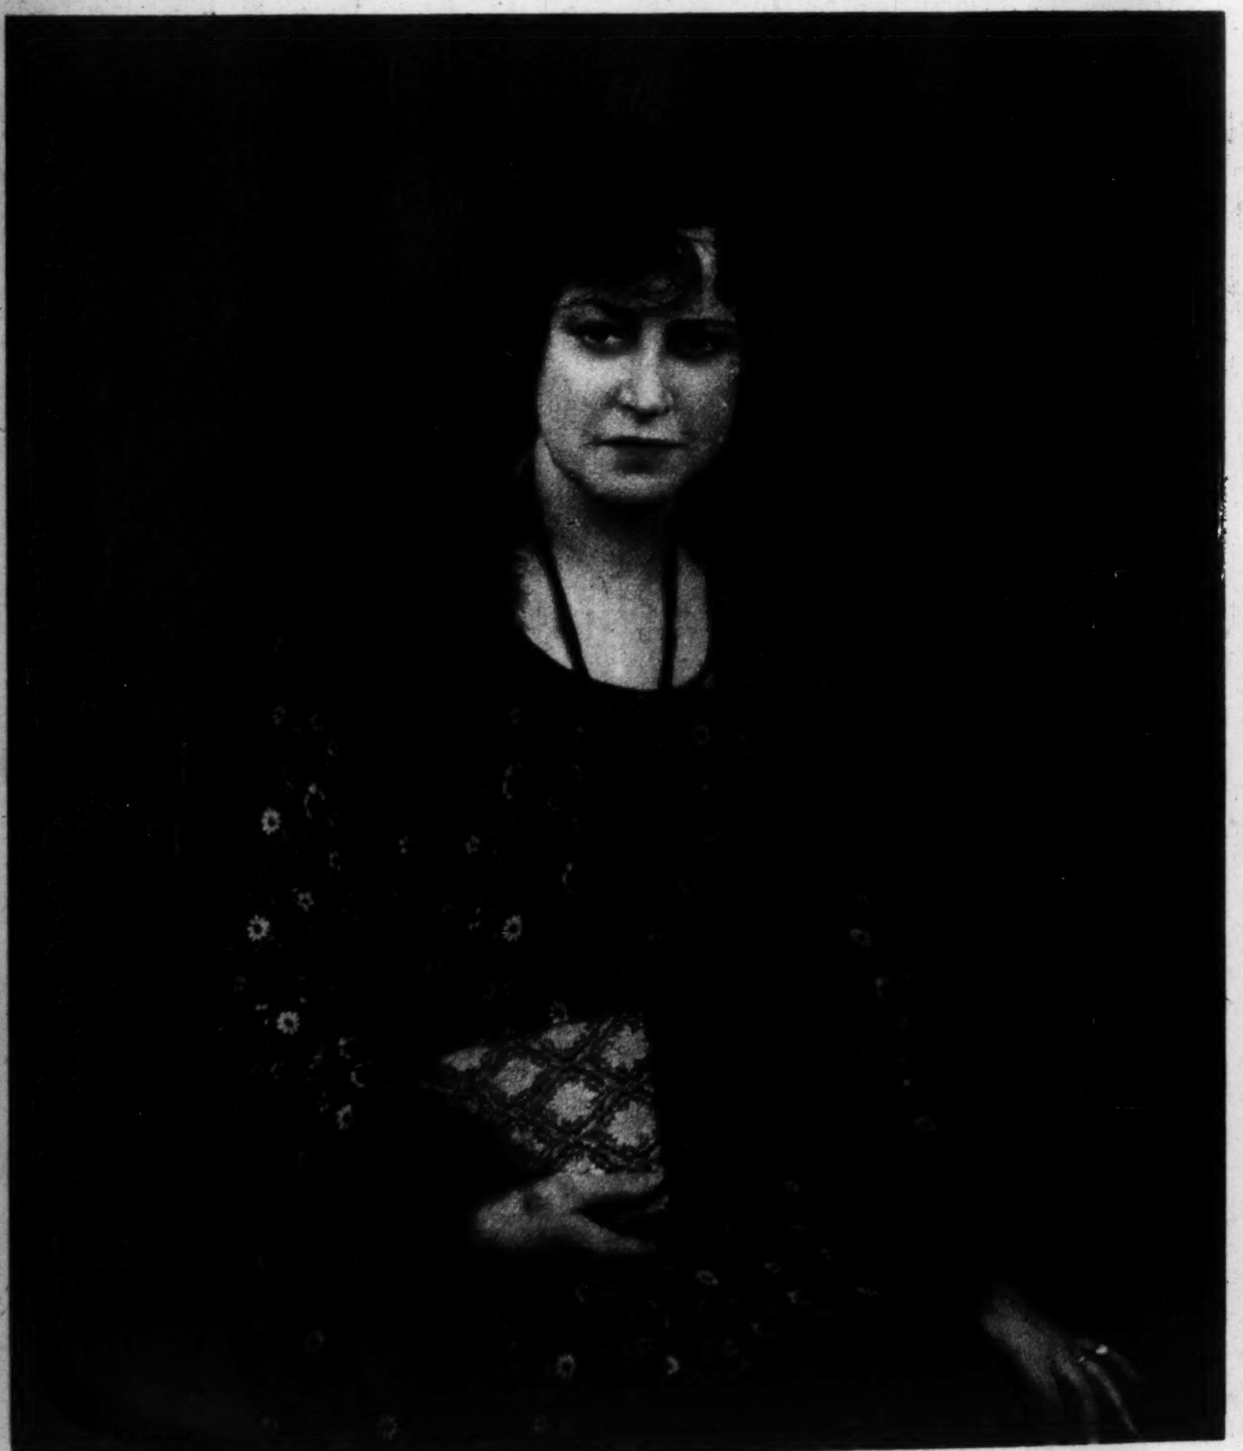
August 1, 1926



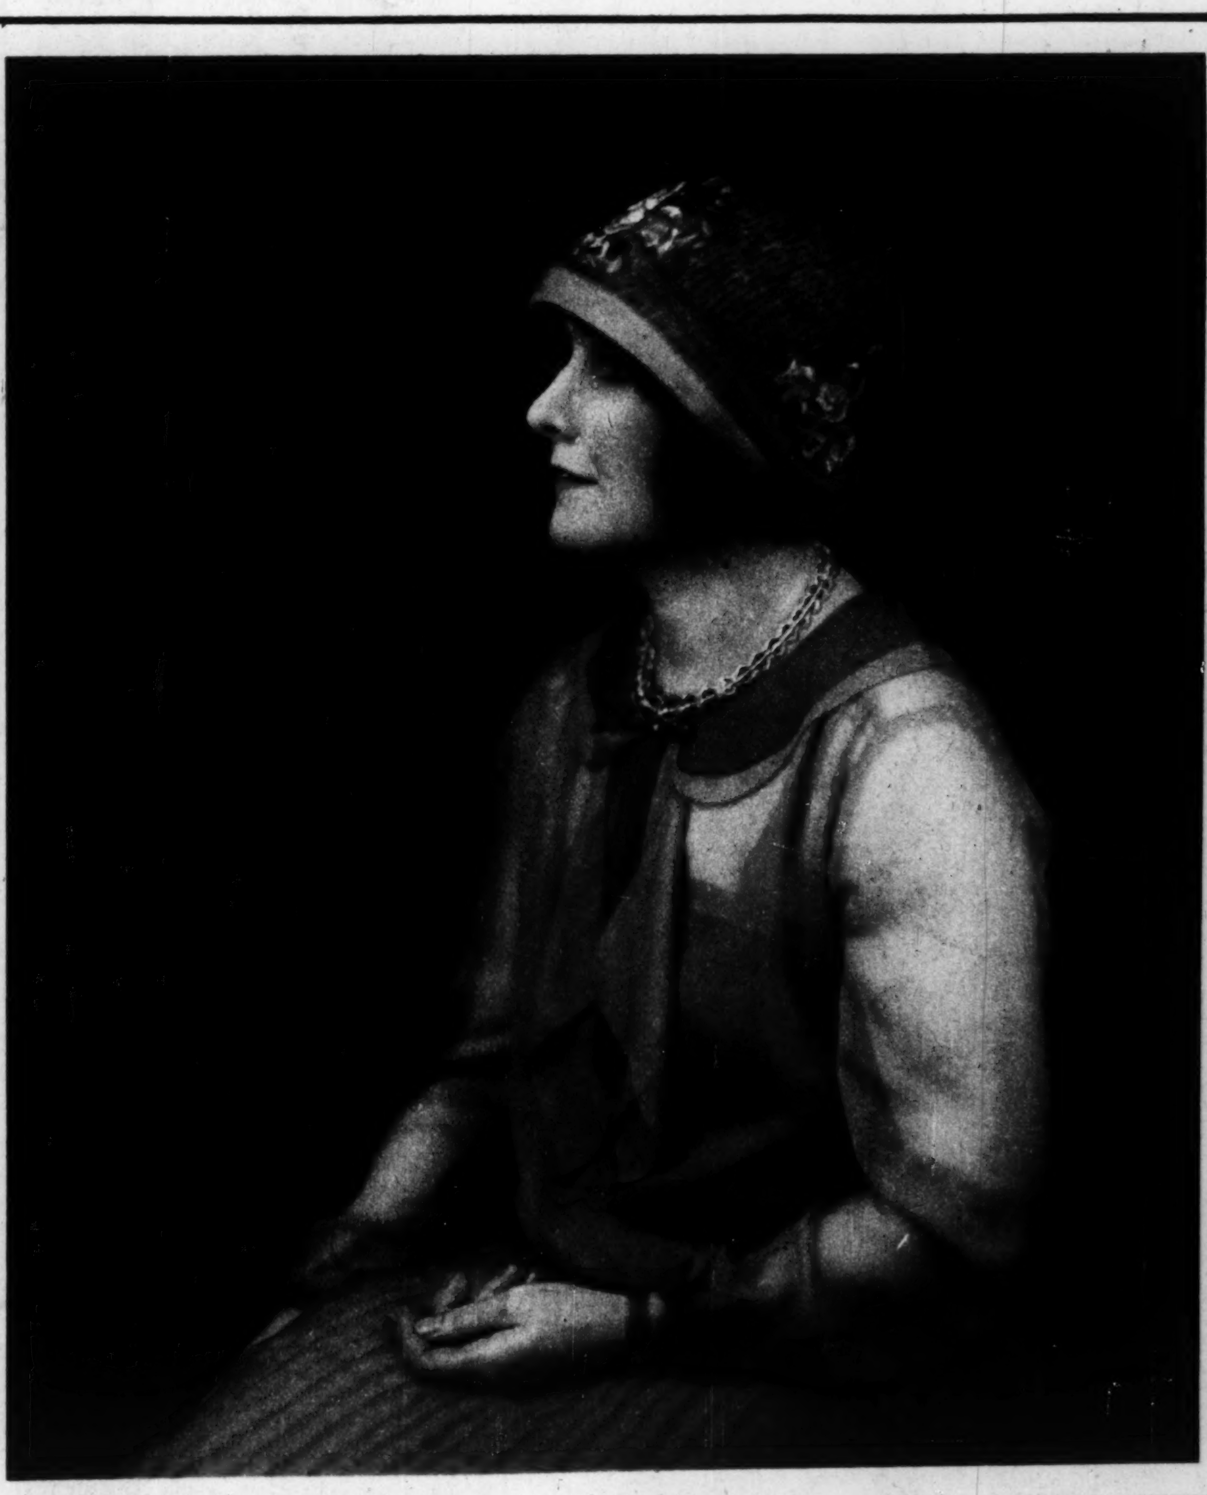
MISS MARTHA LORBER has given up dancing for acting, and is to be observed most nights in a small part in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," wherein she is official understudy to the clever Miss June Walker.



MISS DOROTHY APPLEBY is a little bit of an actress who has been here in the last two years in "Mary Ann McKane" and with Miss Elsie Janis in a revue of the latter's writing. She sings and dances.



MISS GEORGIA CAINE, who has acted and sung and danced in many a piece since she made her first big hit in "Lost, Strayed, or Stolen," is newly successful as the South Bend matron in "The Home-Towners."



MISS CHARLOTTE LEARN, a Chicagoan by long residence, has been described in The Tribune by Mr. Donaghey as "the most competent understudy on the American stage today"; and that's high praise for anybody.

SO'S HIS OLD MAN—Rudolph Valentino and Agnes Ayres, who played together in "The Sheik," are pictured above as they appear in "The Son of the Sheik." Mr. Valentino plays also the son of the original sheik, and the picture below shows him in that role with Vilma Banky, the heroine.

Your Hair's Beauty is skin deep, too

Not only of the complexion is it true that beauty is skin deep. It is true of the hair as well.

All its lovely lustre is in its delicate, translucent sheath.

And women's realization of this explains their even more staunch insistence, in getting their hair permanently waved, upon the Eugène Method. They no longer countenance methods of permanent waving which wet the hair in chemicals and bake it into permanent waves.

For be they ever so perfect, permanent waves are of little avail if their attainment demands the sacrifice of the lustre that is their greatest beauty.

This explains the great vogue of the Eugène wave among gentlewomen both at home and abroad.

It is so gentle.

Only clean, white steam comes in contact with the delicate hair strands. None of the softness of even the finest, most delicate hair is ever lost under the Eugène Method.

Ask your hairdresser about the Eugène Method — which gives beauty to hair and asks none in return.

How many people actually have halitosis (unpleasant breath)?

Read what dentists have to say about this:

EVERY reader of Listerine advertising knows about halitosis (unpleasant breath), that insidious thing that not even your best friends discuss with you.

Yet there are still a few "doubting Thomas" folks who think halitosis is only a state of mind.

Out of simple curiosity we put this question up to a carefully selected list of dentists—1000 of them—and in a letter asked them the following:

> Do you ever use Listerine, in self-defense, in the mouth of a patient troubled with halitosis, unpleasant breath?
>
> Please answer if you use it this way (1) Frequently, (2) Occasionally, or (3) Never.

Four hundred and forty replied as follows:

83% said "Frequently"
15% said "Occasionally"
Only 2% said "Never."

Now, what human being meets halitosis at closer range, face to face, than the dentist? And who would be a better judge of this condition—and how to combat it—than the dentist?—Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, U. S. A.

LISTERINE

—puts you on the safe and polite side

Special Note [Well—it worked! For quite a while we challenged people to try Listerine Tooth Paste. Sales now show that when they tsy it they stick to it! LARGE TUBE—25 CENTS] Special Note

THE AL SMITH FAMILY at Paul Smiths, N. Y., vacationing just a few miles from White Pine camp, where President and Mrs. Coolidge have established the summer White House. Left to right are Mrs. Al Smith Jr., her husband, Miss Catherine Smith, the governor, Mrs. Al Sr., Mrs. John T. Warner, one of the governor's daughters, and her husband, Maj. Warner. INTRODUCING A HEROINE, Mrs. Ola Reick of Portland, Ore. She swam to an army airplane which fell into the river at Portland, disentangled Lieut. William Knauf from the wreckage, and carried him to safety. All this in the face of warnings from men ashore that the plane's gasoline tank might explode.

FAMOUS FEET
..how they're kept free from corns..

QUEENIE SMITH'S Famous Dancing Feet

"I have never had a corn nor an accident. But if ever either comes—I want protection. That's why I always carry Blue-jay and an accident policy."

So writes winsome Queenie Smith, the star of the musical comedy, "Tip-Toes."

Good old Blue-jay! For 26 years it has been vanquishing corns . . . The count of conquered toe-calluses runs into the hundreds of millions.

A cool and velvety cushion fits over the corn and ends the pain at once. Usually one plaster routs the corn. But even an "old offender" will seldom require more than a second Blue-jay plaster . . . At all drug stores.

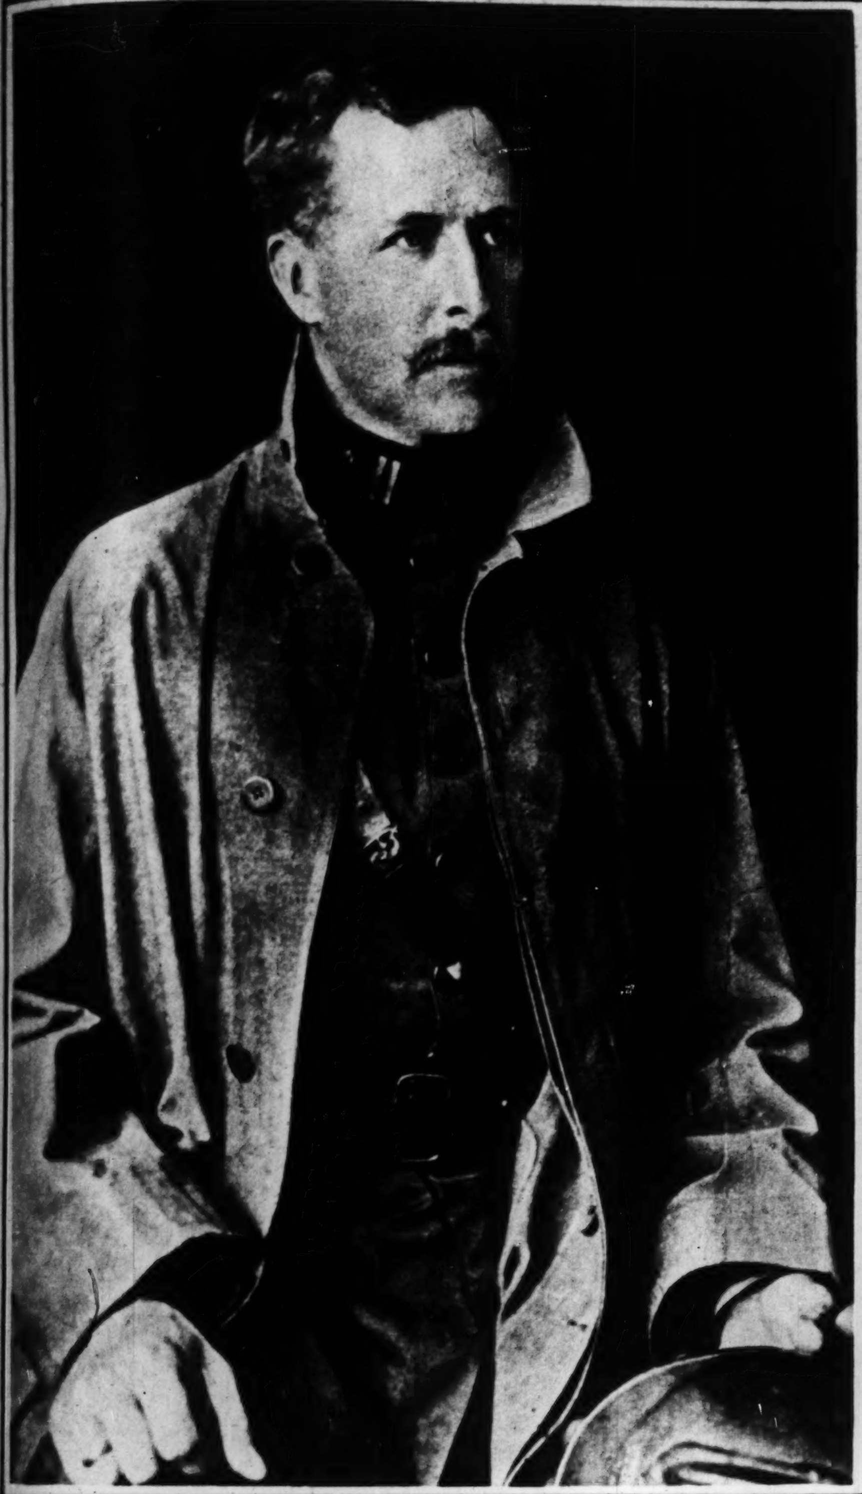
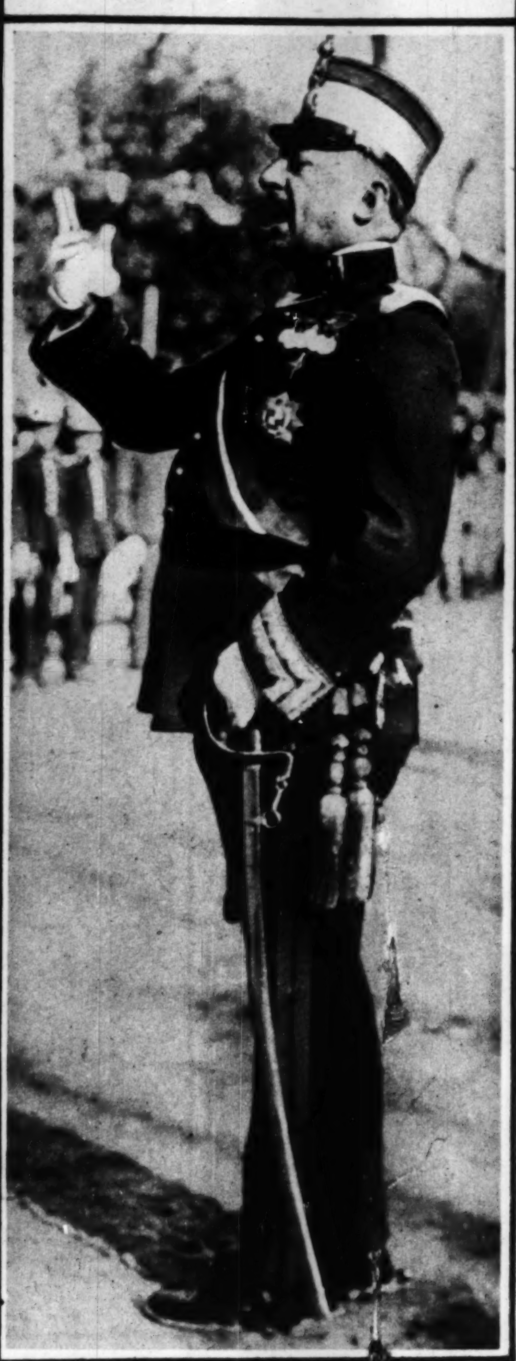
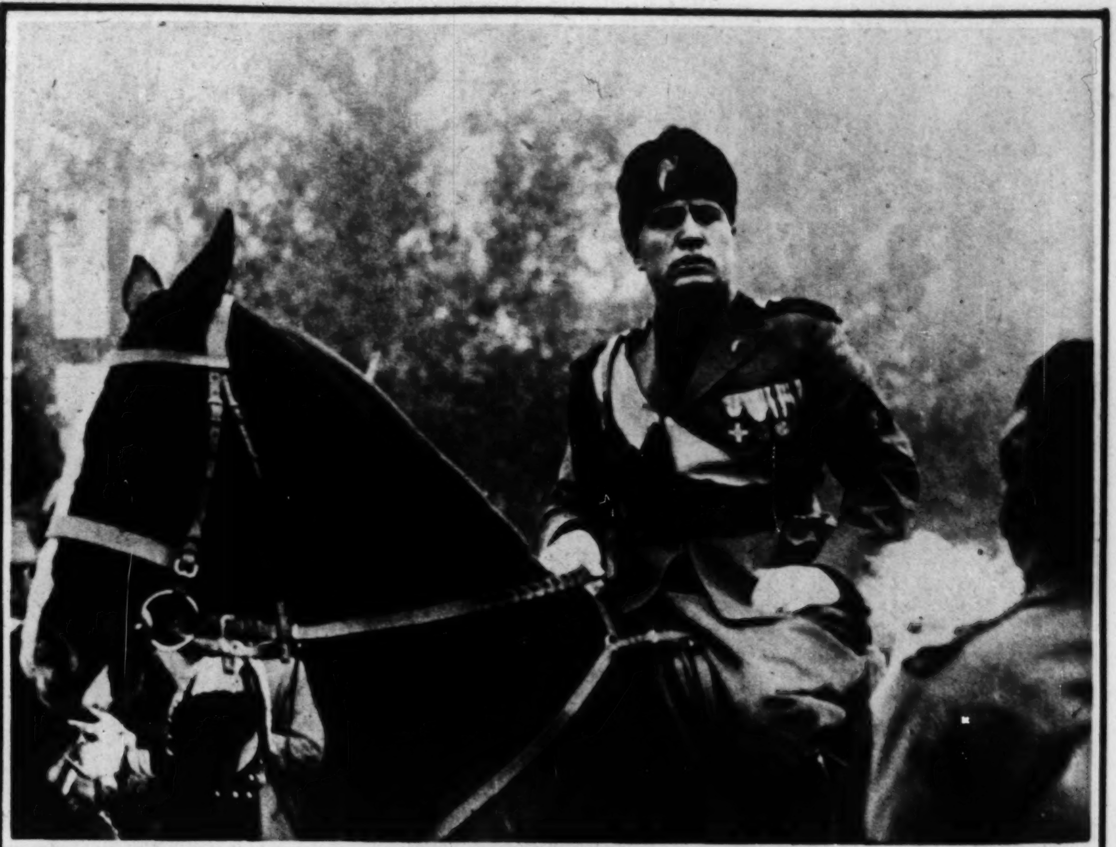
The Dictators of Europe



KING ALBERT OF BELGIUM is both king and dictator of his people. With the Belgian franc in a precarious position, the government, rather than manipulate politics in an effort to relieve the financial strain, has given Albert absolute power to act as he sees fit to restore the money to some semblance of its normal value.



SPAIN'S DICTATOR, Lieut. Gen. Don Miguel Primo De Rivera y Orbaneja, Marquis de Estella, better known as Primo de Rivera. He is a soldier who rose from the ranks, but is the head of an ancient noble family. Late in 1923 he led an army coup which forced King Alfonso to place him in power. The immediate cause of the uprising was the defeat of 50,000 Spanish soldiers by 11,000 Moors in the Moroccan wars.



PREMIER BENITO MUSSOLINI of Italy is perhaps the most envied, hated, beloved, and closely watched man in European politics. His father was the village blacksmith of Dovia, and his mother a school teacher. Mussolini suffered ninety-eight wounds in combat during the World war. After the war he formed the Fascist party, and his historic "March on Rome" on October 31, 1922, carried him into power.

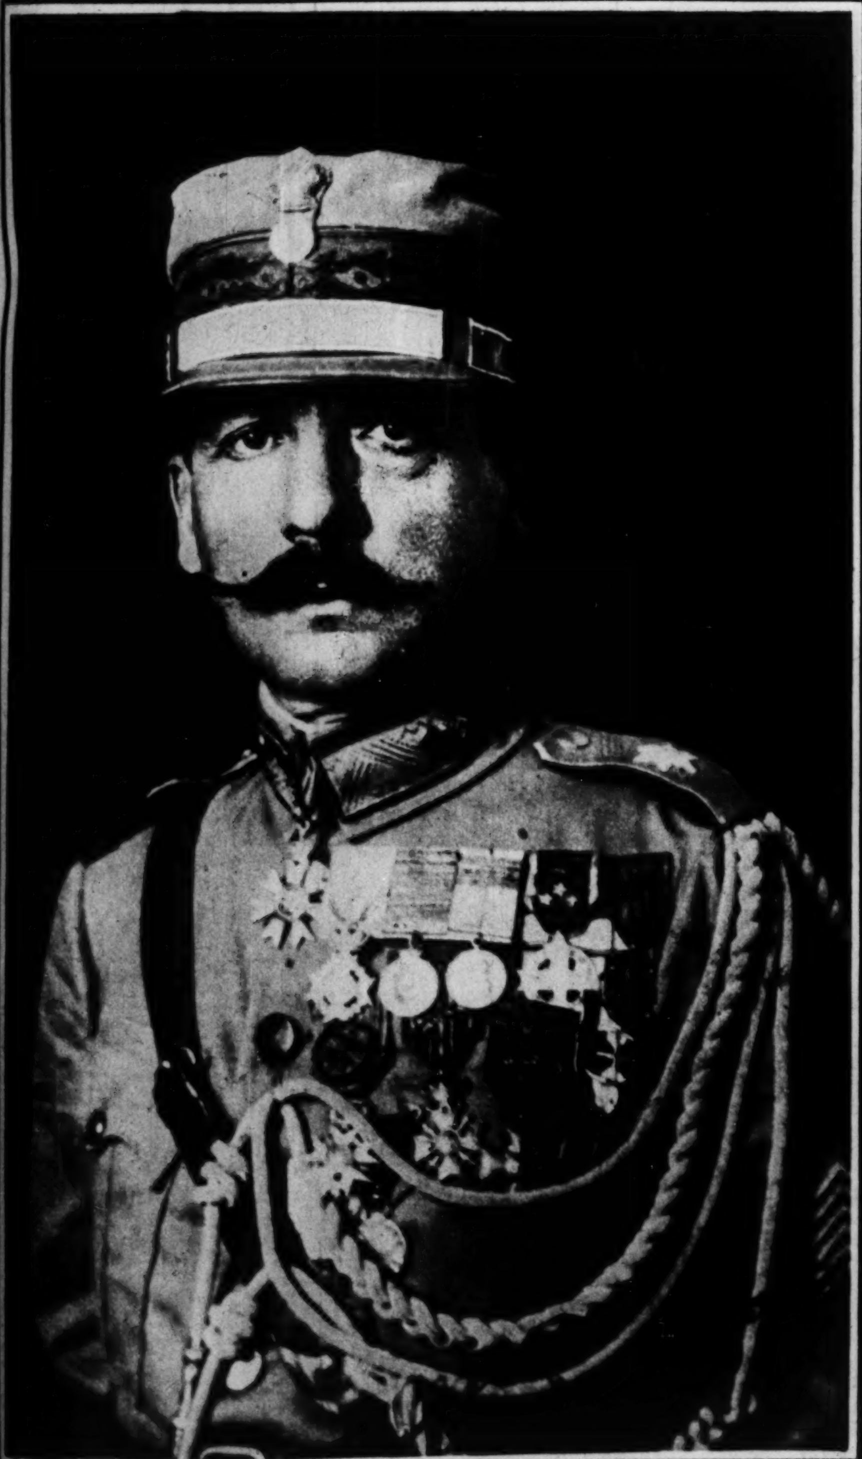
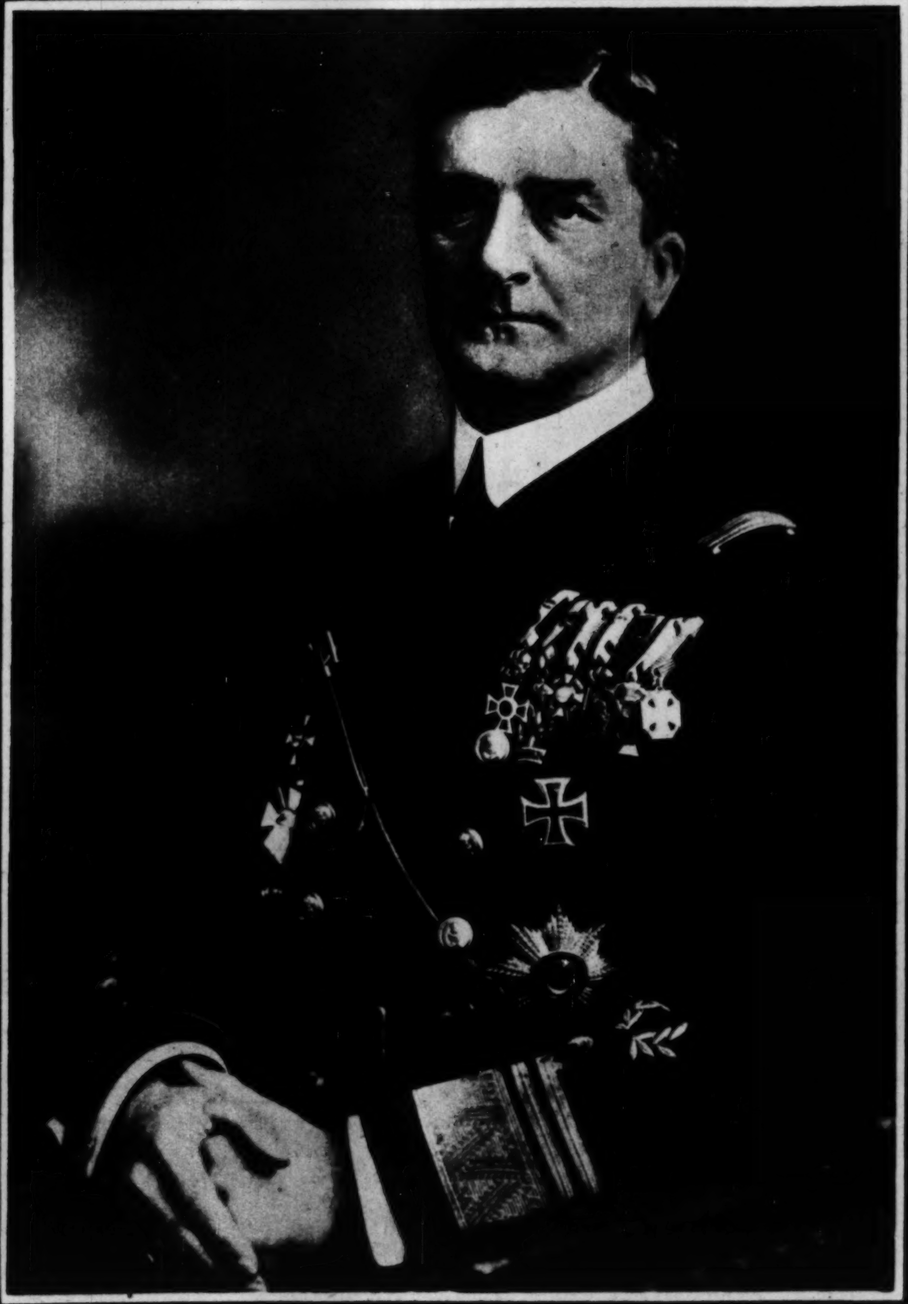
MUSTAPHA KEMAL PASHA is Turkey's iron man. He overthrew the Ottoman empire, in existence since the thirteenth century, banished the sultan, and made himself first president of the Turkish republic.

(Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.)



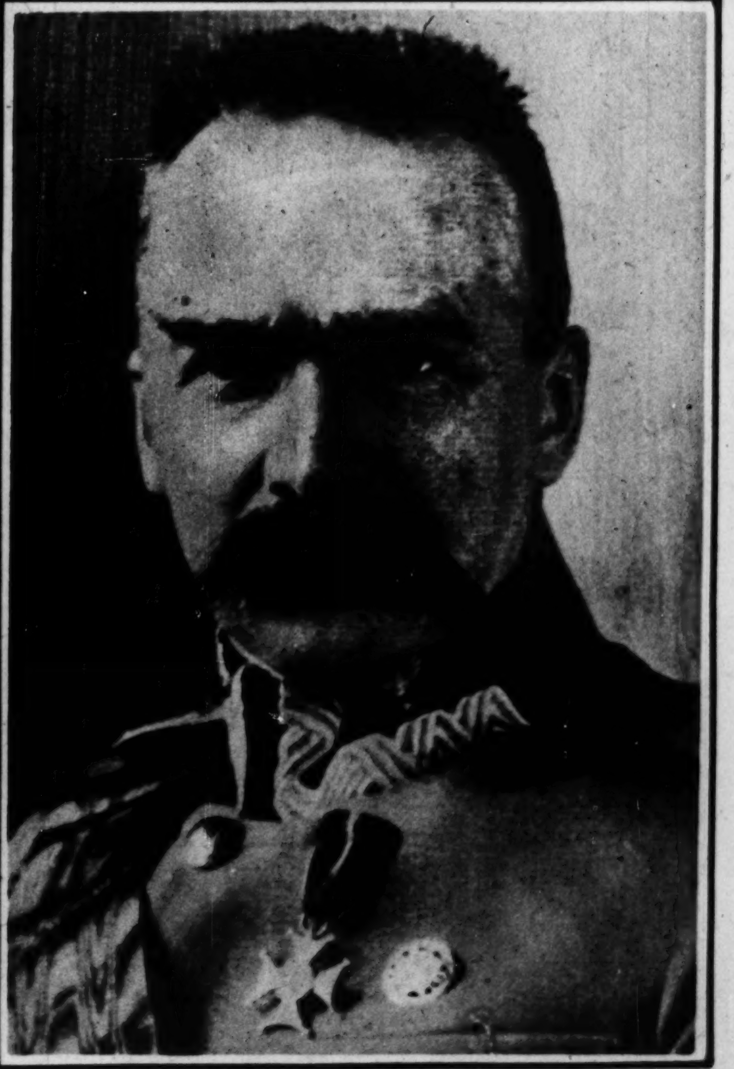
A PROGRAM BASED SOLELY ON FORCE was announced by Gen. Theodore Pangalos when he assumed the dictatorship of Greece last January. He promised that Greece would dominate the Mediterranean. Last April he held an election and made himself president.

(Photograph from Wide World.)



ADMIRAL NICHOLAS HORTHY started toward the dictatorship of Hungary by quelling a mutiny of sailors who rebelled at their constant diet of sauerkraut. As a result of this he was made commander in chief of the Austro-Hungarian navy by Emperor Charles. When the dual monarchy crumbled, Horthy was elected regent-governor in 1920, and when Emperor Charles returned in 1921, Horthy forced him out.

(Photograph copyright by Kadel & Herbert.)



MARSHAL JOSEF PILSUDSKI of Poland recently led his troops into Warsaw, overthrew the Wittos government, and sent Poland's former president, Wojciechowski, scuttling over the walls of the palace to safety. Pilsudski is minister of war in his new government, but is actually the power that dictates Poland's policies.

WALES IS A GOOD SCOUT, TOO. Here we have Prince Dave airing his knees in a Boy Scout uniform as he accepts the bronze statue of a buffalo presented to the British Boy Scouts by the American order. The gift is to stand in Gilwell park, Epping. (Photograph from Underwood & Underwood.)

"I DID COMPETITIVE SWIMMING and diving. I met with an accident which confined me in a hospital for a month. Afterwards I was very weak and tired easily. I decided I would make Yeast a daily habit. After six months of Yeast I was back in the swimming game."
Mrs. Betty Kurzwelly, Chicago, Ill.

"I HAD DIZZY SPELLS and a disagreeable rash on my skin. I had chronic constipation but did not know it until my physician told me. He directed that I eat Fleischmann's Yeast. In four months I was a new man. For ten months I have taken Fleischmann's Yeast daily. I don't get dizzy any more. My complexion is now clear. In a word, I feel in perfect health."
Leonard H. Dithrich, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Danger of Common Ills

Constipation and its attendant evils conquered—
Skin and stomach disorders corrected—
Glorious vitality regained—through One Simple Food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food. The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active, daily releasing new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day, one before each meal: on crackers, in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, in small pieces. For constipation dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and at bedtime. Dangerous habit-forming cathartics will gradually become unnecessary. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days.

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-765, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

"MY SKIN WAS IN A POOR CONDITION and I was generally run down. For days I never left the house. I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast. The Yeast not only cleared my complexion but changed me from a weak house flower to a strong woman. Now every day I walk five miles with my dog."
Mrs. Rod McMahon, Albany, N. Y.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion—clears the skin—banishes constipation.

"I AM A SAILOR in the United States Navy. All my life I have been bothered with stomach trouble. While home on thirty days' leave, I got in the habit of eating Fleischmann's Yeast. Now I feel like a new man. I eat much more and perform my duties with much more pep than I have before during the six years that I have been in the navy."
Stanley H. Strainge, U. S. N., Hampton Roads, Va.

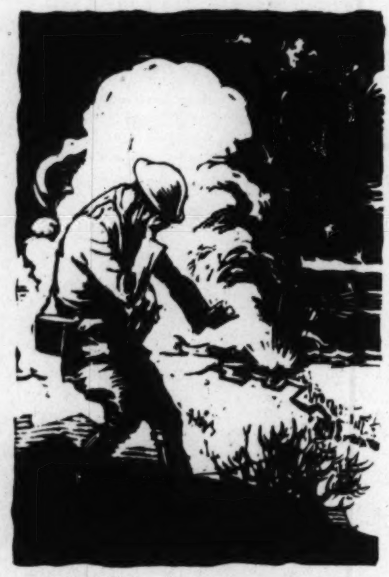
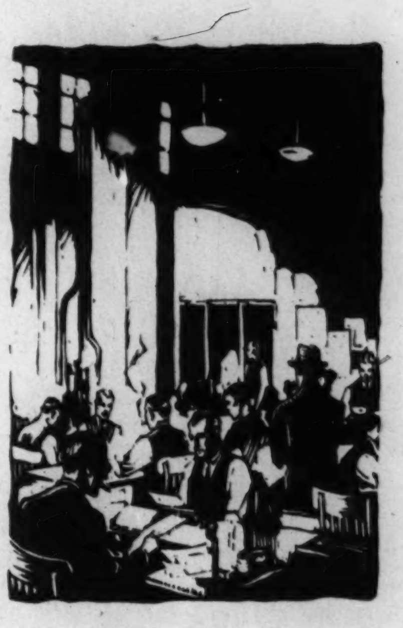
It costs us over $8,000 each day to gather the news we sell you for 2 cents

Last year The Chicago Tribune spent $3,025,366.46 for news and features alone—irrespective of the cost of paper, composition, type, presswork, ink, delivery and administration



Floyd Gibbons, famed special Tribune correspondent, lost an eye while reporting the battle of Chateau Thierry, 1918

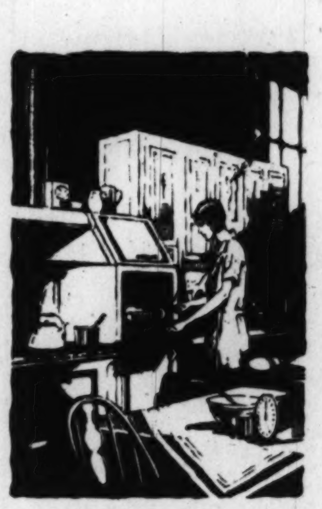


Sixty linotypes set in type the stories that these reporters write

BACK of this matter-of-fact statement of the cost of keeping Tribune readers informed is a story of reporters and correspondents and artists, photographers and special writers and experts, engaged in the most fascinating occupation in the world, gathering news under the banner of The Chicago Tribune.

From thirty-six foreign posts, relayed by cable and radio, scattered over the globe, come condensed reports of affairs abroad. By telephone and telegraph, by wireless, through the mail, from trained reporters and hundreds of correspondents comes the local and national news.

At Tribune Tower skilled newspaper men and women, aided by the most modern mechanical equipment, transform this material to be ready for you in the next morning's Tribune. The Tribune maintains a staff of experts who give their views, their advice, their help. How to Keep Well, The Friend of the People, The Tribune Cook Book, Beauty Answers, The Investor's Guide, Patterns by Clotilde are some of the service departments which receive hundreds of thousands of letters from readers each year.



Tribune Experimental Kitchen where Jane Eddington's Tribune recipes are tested

News of society, church, sports, real estate, radio, finance and markets; reviews of books, theater, music and movies are other special features.

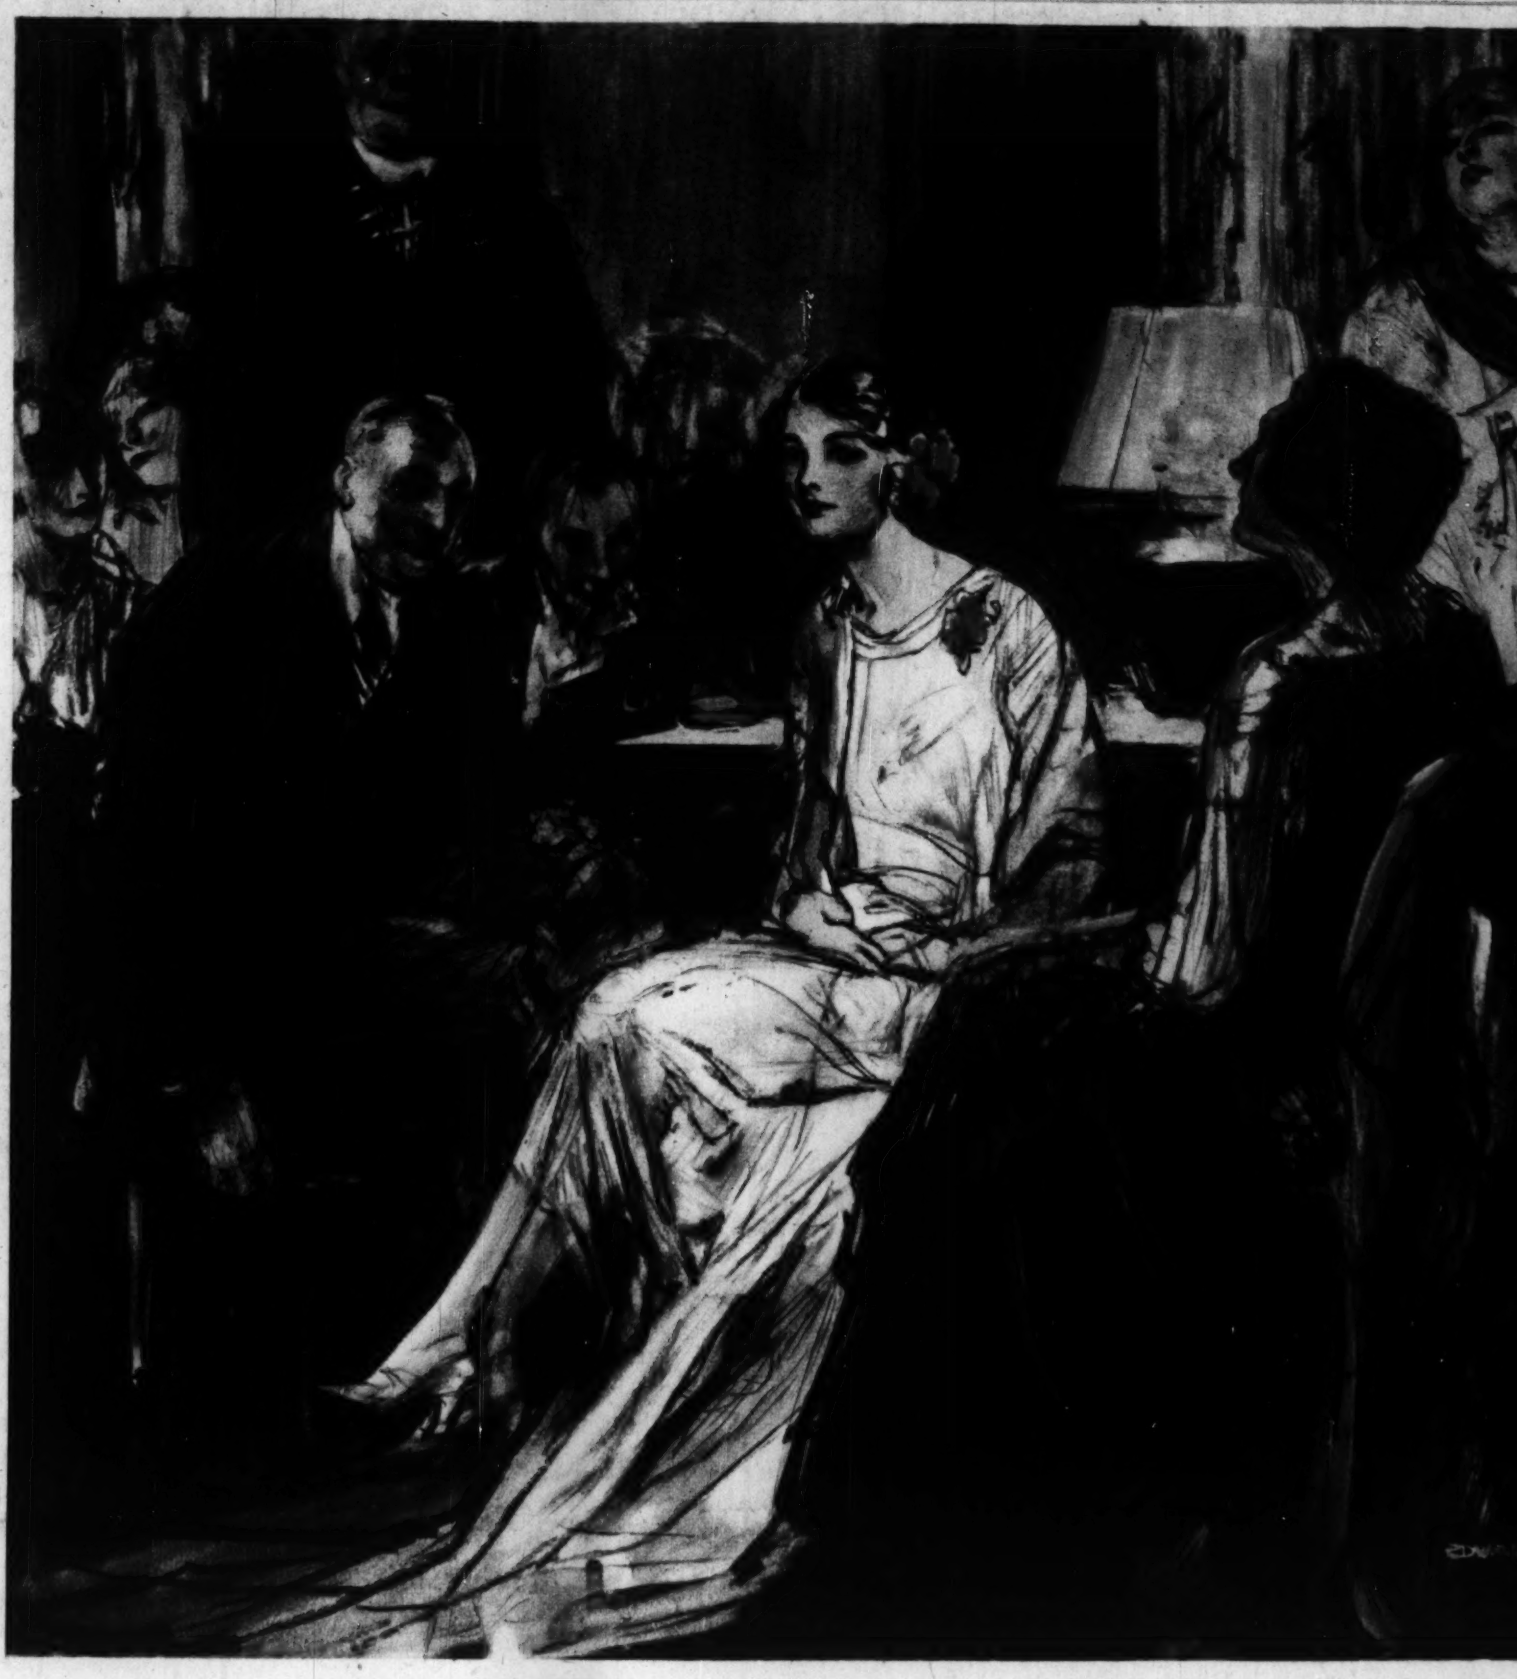
GRAY SMOKE

by

OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

Jimmy Lynn, Longshoreman, Saw No Harm in Fighting and Stealing, but When His Honest Stepfather Took Up the Trade—That Was Entirely Different



The marriage occurred. Only a few guests were present, and those chiefly neighborhood friends of Kate's.

JIMMY LYNN loved, fought, and had his being in the Chelsea district, where he was a prominent and envied person.

Now, the Chelsea district is in New York, and it is not as silk-shirty as its name would indicate. It is, in fact, that rather indeterminate area bounded on the east by Eighth avenue, on the south by Fourteenth street, and on the north by Thirty-fourth. But its chief and most interesting boundary is the western line, which is marked by a great gray wall of steel and concrete piers jutting out into the waters of the Hudson.

These piers are on West street, a broad and rutty thoroughfare which by day is urgent with profane and sweaty traffic and by night is quietly sinister. Above the roofs of the piers one may glimpse the multi-colored funnels of majestic liners, and when the first finger of dusk steals across the city there emerge from these pier entrances little men and big men, swaggering men and furtive men—sailors from the ports of Europe and the near east. Some of them are fine upstanding fellows, out for an evening of honest ribaldry; others are of an appearance which is decidedly non-Nordic. They cross West street and disappear up one of the narrow cross streets of New York, headed vaguely eastward, where, if one goes far enough, the bright lights of lower Broadway are encountered. But between the water front and New York's main thoroughfare one traverses a district where it is extremely wise to mind one's own business.

This is the Chelsea district: cañons of red brick tenements and grim warehouses. All of the streets are paved and black with children struggling to extract happiness from their gaunt environs. There are narrow little doorways leading into halls palely yellow with light. On certain corners are saloons—ostensibly dispensing Volsteadian brew, but actually thriving most amazingly on the sale of beer which is very genuine and wine and whisky which kindly and acquisitive stewards have managed to smuggle under the eye of customs officers after their ships have been safely berthed.

Chelsea is a hard district; not quite so hard, perhaps, as its northern neighbor which bears the delicious title of Hell's Kitchen, but yet a section of New York where uniformed policemen much prefer to work in pairs and under bright lights. And that Jimmy Lynn should have become a figure of prominence in his native habitat was a considerable tribute to his brawn and his brain.

True, Jimmy had never lived anywhere else, nor desired to do so. And there had been no paternal hand to direct him along the path of rectitude; wherefore Jimmy had, by means of genuine affection and inherent cunning, managed to pull the wool over the soft brown eyes of his widowed mother and become a leader of the boy gang which terrorized the youngsters of adjoining neighborhoods, caused patrolmen considerable and constant discomfort and filled the souls of older and more experienced gangsters with an unholy joy.

Such gods as Jimmy worshiped were false gods. When, shortly after his twentieth birthday, he vanquished in decidedly unfair fight the bully of the district, he considered that he had achieved the ultimate of all goals. When he qualified as longshoreman and participated in an extremely neat bit of water front pilferage which was not unaccompanied by physical danger—his was the thrill which came in days of old to young men who won their accolade on the field of battle. When the ward boss publicly patted him on the shoulder and called him Jimmy he thrilled to his very toes and yearned for the chance to slug some enemy of that pompous and portly politician.

Only from his mother did Jimmy withhold the chronicle of his iniquities. To others he boasted, but with her there was a feeling, which he did not attempt to analyze, that the clear eyes might possibly cloud with worry . . . and Jimmy felt a sense of responsibility toward his mother. So once or twice he warned gentleman friends of his that if their mothers, who were familiar with his—Jimmy's—mother, happened to mention that Jimmy was inclined to augment his income by participating in stealage along the water front, those loose lipped mothers might shortly find themselves mourning the loss of certain favorite sons.

And so Kate Lynn regarded her son proudly. She saw in him a handsome, upstanding young man who earned an amazingly good living in the modest profession of longshoring. This she guilelessly attributed to his superb physique, which she fancied enabled him to do twice as much work as the average man. She knew, of course, that he sported around a bit and that occasionally his features were temporarily discolored as the result of a fistic argument, but Kate was a product of the district and not at all soft in her ideas.

AT twenty-one years of age Jimmy felt that he had successfully and commendably deluded his mother into a fond confidence in his honorableness. But shortly thereafter something happened that nearly wrecked his good intentions and resulted in one of the most picturesque battles of his career.

That great event occurred when Kate announced that now Jimmy was a grown man she was going to get married. Jimmy was surprised, but willing. He knew that his mother was young and decidedly attractive, and he felt that she was entitled to a husband if she wanted one. But when she told him that her fiancé was John Shane, Jimmy lost control of himself. He took her in his arms and held her close for a moment. Then he expressed himself.

"My God! Mom—he's a watchman!"

"Sure." Kate didn't know that the very word was anathema to such a longshoreman as her son. "That's how I happened to meet up with him."

"Yeh—but a blasted cargo guard."

"Now, Jimmy, you're just prejudiced."

"You bet your life I am. Honest, Mom, there ain't no sense to you hooking up with a watchman. Why'n't you pick a decent feller?"

"John Shane is honest."

"Honest! Gosh, yes! And dumb! All watchmen are dumb. I ain't got a lick of use for them. And"—he mourned—"what'll the gang say when they hear about it?"

"I don't see," she responded a bit primly, "why my affairs should bother the gang."

"Hmph!" Then his teeth clicked. "They sure had better not."

But the affair did bother the gang, which had watched the courtship with tongue in cheek. It remained for a certain large and red necked gentleman who was known as Firehose Riley to comment invidiously on the announced engagement. What happened immediately thereafter was interesting to all—and particularly to Firehose.

They were in the rear of Mulcahy's saloon when Firehose became indiscreet. "Hey, Jimmy—I hear you gonna get a cargo guard in your fambly."

Jimmy's eyes lost some of their softness. "Didja, Firehose?"

"Uh-huh." Mr. Riley became emboldened by Jimmy's quiet answer and the laudatory grins of the gang. "Maybe you'll be applyin' at some agency for a watchin' job yourself, huh?"

"Can't tell." Jimmy moved a step closer.

"S' far's I can see, your Old Lady is trying to reform you. With John Shane in the house all the time——"

It is not the code of Chelsea that one gentleman should warn another when he intends to strike, nor is it any part of the district's idea of honor that one's opponent should be given an even chance. Such a thing, in Chelsea eyes, is downright carelessness.

Jimmy Lynn merely hit. It was a short, snappy hook which traveled only a few inches and landed almost noiselessly on the protruding jaw of Firehose Riley. Mr. Riley seated himself suddenly—on the floor. Jimmy threw himself atop the discommoded person with great and silent fury and as they clinched Jimmy gouged expertly, causing Firehose to emit a howl of pain.

The balance of the battle was interesting, even though its end was a foregone conclusion When it was over Mr. Riley lay on the floor as flatly and unconsciously as the tubing which had given him his sobriquet, while Jimmy teetered on the balls of his feet and inquired whether the ring of spectators contained any reckless individual who cared to comment on his domestic problems. There were none.

In days which followed Jimmy tried weakly to dissuade his mother—but, while she was a small woman and indulgent, there flourished in her bosom certain qualities of sternness which Jimmy himself had inherited, and so preparations for the wedding went right ahead.

In spite of a natural enmity—begotten of the fact that he was a longshoreman and John Shane a watchman—Jimmy liked his prospective father-in-law. The man was not so tall as Jimmy, but he was fully as broad. He was a quiet, quizzical sort of person with a twinkle in the level, gray eyes. The black hair was streaked with a most becoming and rather premature gray which somehow did not make him look any older than the fifty years which he admitted. That was, perhaps, because his complexion was ruddy and healthy.

The marriage occurred. Only a few guests were present and those chiefly neighborhood friends of Kate's. The honeymoon consisted of a three day trip to Asbury Park, and thereafter John Shane became a quiet but dominant figure in Jimmy's home.

John Shane was not a talker, but he had a way of looking at Jimmy which made the lad vaguely uncomfortable. Jimmy knew that there was infinite wisdom behind those quiet gray eyes—and he waited restlessly for the criticism which never came. He understood that Shane knew of his nefarious practices as leader of the youthful clique in Chelsea. But the first few months of the new order of things established clearly that John Shane had no intention of interfering.

For a while Jimmy had been afraid that Shane might confide to Kate certain facts anent Jimmy's mode of living which would cause the little woman to worry. When it became apparent that Shane had no intention of doing any such thing Jimmy was tremendously relieved—and his respect for the quiet, unassuming man flourished. He even liked him—more, perhaps, than he would admit to himself. But chiefly Jimmy recognized that John Shane was a stanch bulwark behind which his mother was sheltered.

Always in Jimmy's mind there had been vague apprehensions of what would happen to Kate should he run foul of the law. These disturbing thoughts he had deliberately put away—so that they only recurred in the subjective minutes before falling asleep at night or on the rare occasions when he was not feeling particularly well and remained abed all day away from work and the gang.

Now, however, there was the certainty that, no matter what might happen to him, the Old Lady was taken care of. John Shane was vastly honest, unshakably stanch. Those longshoremen who plied the trade chiefly for the pilferage opportunities it afforded—and chief among these were the members of the Chelsea gang—hated him and feared him and respected him. At least John Shane was what he was.

LESS than six months after Shane's advent into the Lynn family he was appointed gateman at one of the finest piers in Chelsea. There was a good deal of honest celebration over this, a degree of joy apparently out of all proportion to the modest wage increase. As a first class cargo guard John Shane had been receiving four dollars per day net from the agency which rented him out to the steamship company. Now employed direct by the pier superintendent and not being obliged to share with any agency, John Shane was to receive six dollars per day.

But actually his prospective weekly income was closer to sixty dollars than thirty-five, thanks to the fact that the position of gateman is a most powerful one. There is the item of tips from future travelers who wish to visit berthed liners—and who have forgotten to get passes from the offices on lower Broadway. There are the tips on sailing days and on the days when ships arrive. And, most of all, there is the preferential system of letting trucks through the gaping entrance. The truck driver, anxious for his load of freight and properly directed by his employers, will have a bit of monetary persuasion for the gateman and will be permitted to get his load out of turn—which causes much wild profanity among less fortunate drivers and bothers the gateman not at all.

All of this is, under the code of gatemen, considered supremely honest—and as Shane mentioned modestly at table that now he felt they could afford a bit more luxury in their manner of living and outlined to them a pet scheme for putting a bit of money in the bank, Jimmy Lynn exulted and felt more certain than ever that his mother was secure against any buffetings. Whereupon he went forth and celebrated, and got into a glorious fight, and the next day assisted very cleverly in the pilferage of a case of cheap American watches which were resting on the pier awaiting export.

And so things progressed tranquilly in the flat and along the water front. John Shane and Kate were quietly happy; Jimmy Lynn was serenely untroubled—and the stealing of cargo from the piers of New York harbor continued briskly at a rate scientifically

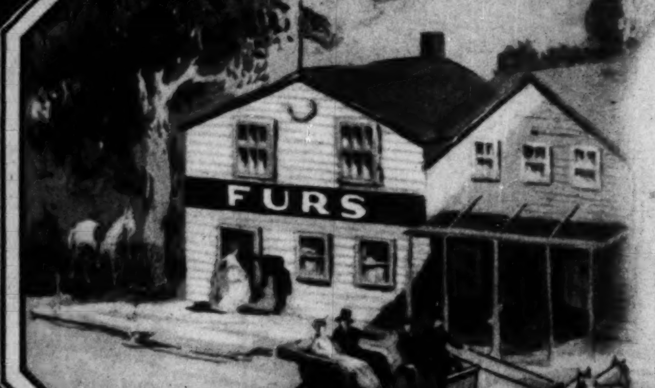
"OLD FAITHFUL" in Chicago



The original Bishop Store in 1869 located at Lake and Dearborn.

A. BISHOP & CO.
FURS

The First Floor of A. Bishop & Co. in their seven story building since 1921.

66 Years Ago—

Alexander Bishop founded Chicago's first Fur and Hat Store at Lake and Dearborn Streets.

True to high ideals of faithful service, standard merchandise, and fair prices, this enterprising Irishman built an enduring institution—by thought and tradition woven into the very heart of Chicago life—an integral part of the community it serves. "Old Faithful" itself could not inspire greater confidence.

In those days Bishop & Barnes was the firm name. Chicago prospered, so the firm prospered. When Chicago suffered the calamity of '71, the Great Fire, the firm likewise suffered. Only to be rebuilt and enlarged the same year in a new store at State and Monroe . . . the spirit of "Old Faithful" again . . . continuous, uninterrupted service, come what may.

In 1880 Mr. Barnes retired and the present name, A. Bishop & Co., was adopted. Two years more, and the larger quarters needed were taken at 162 S. State. Still more business shortly necessitated the larger store two doors North, which sufficed until 1915, when ever increasing patronage prompted removal to 12 W. Washington Street. Then, 5 years ago, the present 7 story building at Randolph and Wabash was taken over.

Throughout this constant growth generations of Chicagoans have bought their Furs and Hats at Bishop's. Its ever widening clientele emphasizes the continued confidence and constantly growing esteem in which the people of our great metropolis have held this Old Reliable Institution!

Every hour out in Yellowstone Park "Old Faithful" flings itself to the sky—year in and year out—faithful to some hidden trust. Other geysers spout into notoriety—spout, dwindle and are forgotten. "Old Faithful" persists.

In human institutions, as in nature, those which serve best endure longest. And as "Old Faithful" keeps faith with nature, so too, A. Bishop & Co. keeps faith with its patrons!

—And Today

Chicagoans come into Bishop's knowing definitely that they will always receive courteous attention and superior merchandise. They know that efficient store management, together with preferential manufacturing and buying connections, favored by over a half century of business relations, make possible Bishop Prices. Nothing else could account for the exceptional Furs, Hats, and Men's Furnishings offered to you at Bishop Prices.

The ever growing success of this old institution is monumental proof that the people of Chicago appreciate fair dealing, good merchandise, and honest values. A glorious service this . . . a romance of four-square American business methods . . . perpetuating itself in the rewards of that service. Like "Old Faithful," a part of the great economy of its environment.

To keep intact Alexander Bishop's high ideals has been no simple task. The present personnel of this old reliable house is responsible. Many of its Fur and Hat salesmen—its Factory, Storage Vault, and Shipping Room employees — have been serving Bishop clients for over 30 years. And this fine record likewise includes the Officers and Directors. They are: Albert H. Rich, President and Manager; Henry W. Wolf, Vice-President and Treasurer; Walter H. Bishop, son of the founder, Director; and Nahum Morrill, son of the late Judge Morrill, Director.

Everything about A. Bishop & Co. bespeaks its slogan—"Old Reliable." From factory to showcase, from President to Office Boy—the spirit of faithful service and fair prices has prevailed for 66 Years!

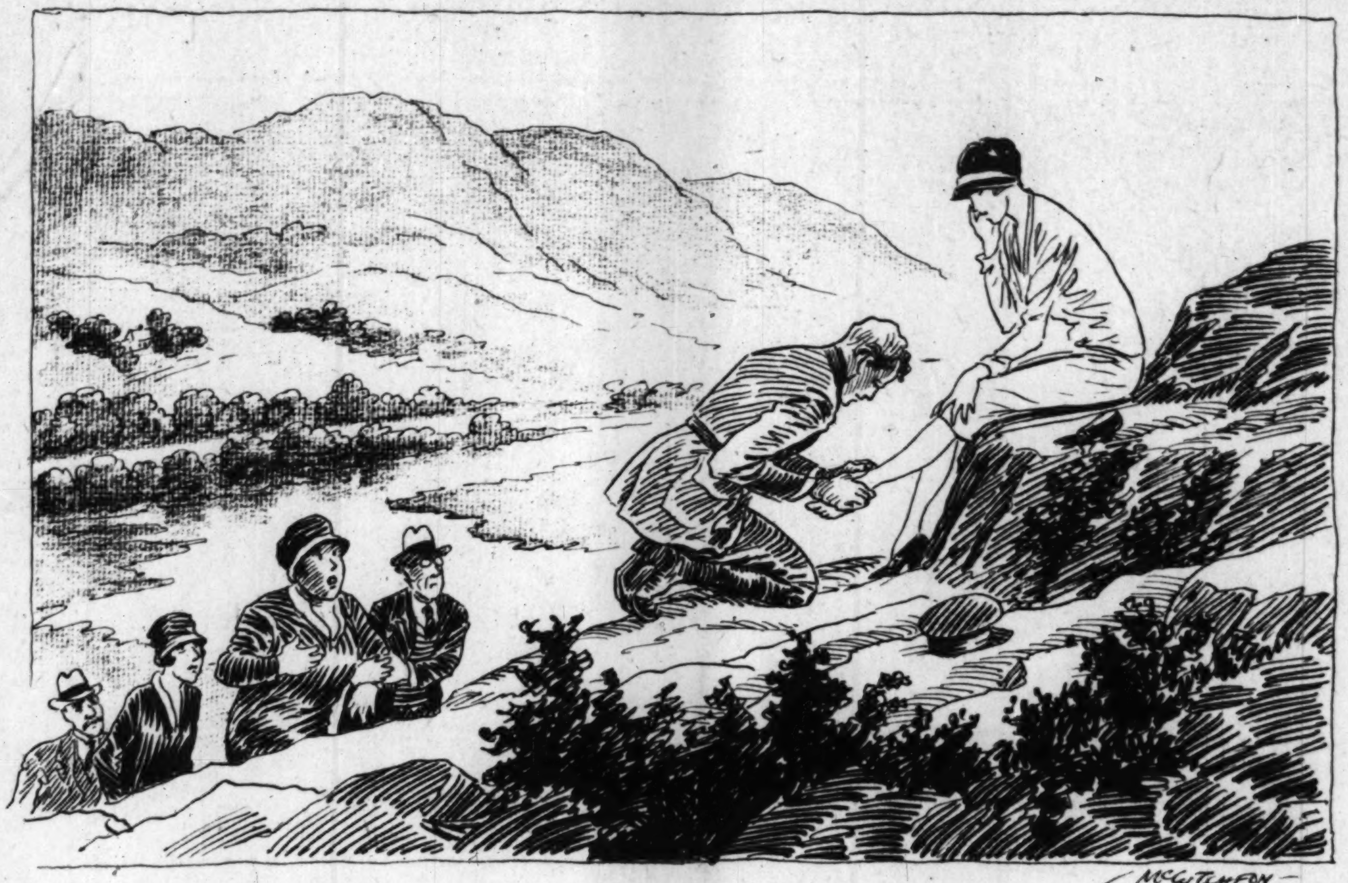
CROSSED WIRES BY John T. McCutcheon



Wells was on his knees before her.

THE STORY SO FAR:

A WEALTHY American family, the Craytons, meet a bogus count, Pierre de Barsac, in Paris. He tries to win Virginia, and her mother favors him, but Mr. Crayton is suspicious. A young American, Harry Rasher, accompanies them back to America. Virginia becomes interested in Rasher, but is shocked when he says he has been a truck driver. Rasher's real name is Bacon, and he is extremly rich. He takes a job with the Craytons as chauffeur. In New York Virginia invites de Barsac to accompany them on the motor trip homee. They are held up and Rasher is wounded trying to protect Virginia. She finds she loves him. Her mother summons Mr. Crayton. Richard Wellborne is called by Rasher to take his place as chauffeur. Mr. Crayton is threatened with financial disaster. His wife offers to save him with her own fortune, but only if he will consent to Virginia's marriage with de Barsac. A telegram informs Mr. Crayton that a mysterious credit of $600,000 has been arranged and he departs for New York. Wellborne decides he can help Rasher best by diverting Virginia's attention from the count to himself. He brushes up, and proves such a handsome chap that Virginia is interested immediately. But she agrees to sacrifice herself and marry de Barsac, so that her mother's money may save Mr. Crayton's fortune. Virginia gives de Barsac every chance to propose, but he dodges, fearing the Crayton fortune may be gone. On a climbing trip Virginia sprains an ankle, and Wellborne carries her to their hotel, much to de Barsac's annoyance.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

Complications.

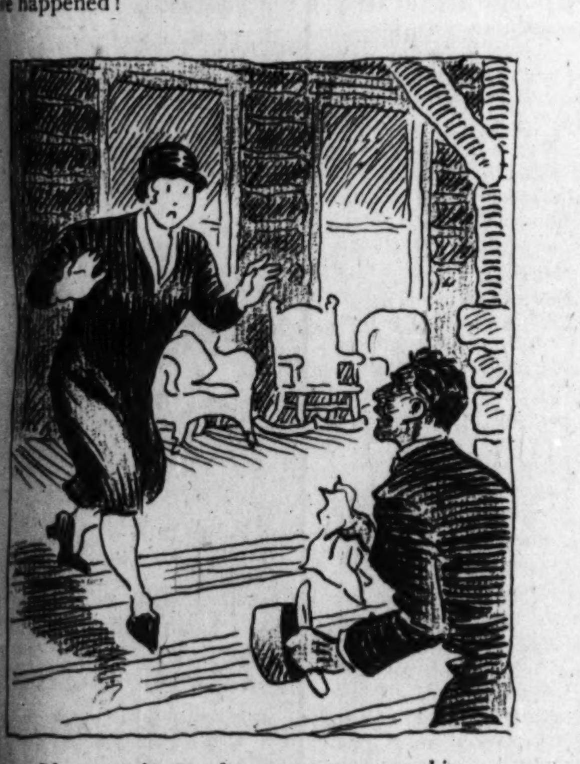
FROM the veranda Mrs. Crayton watched Virginia and the count depart on their little sightseeing trip up the neighboring hills, guided by the inexcusably good-looking chauffeur. She noted with satisfaction that her daughter was particularly nice to the count, and as long as they were in sight her beaming eyes never left them.

She was glad she had declined to join them. The surroundings were beautiful and the setting a favorable one for romance; the pleasant opportunities for physical contacts which climbing rugged paths afford the gentleman would not, she was sure, be neglected by the gallant count.

So she found a comfortable chair and gave herself over to daydreams of the future, when she would be a welcome visitor to the chateau of the Count and Countess de Barsac.

An hour passed and then another. Instead of becoming anxious, she construed the prolonged absence to be an excellent augury of romantic events now transpiring some place up on those lovely heights. She closed her eyes in gentle speculation.

When she reopened them and glanced down the pathway leading to the hills she sat up in sudden alarm. The count was coming—alone. He was walking very fast and was carrying his hat. With the other gloved hand he frequently mopped his brow. Something must have happened!



She ran down the steps to meet him.

She ran down the steps to meet him.

"Your daughter," panted the count, "has sprained her ankle."

"Mercy!" she cried, much agitated, "but you haven't left her alone up there?"

"No, madame, the chauffeur is bringing her down slowly. I thought it best to hurry ahead and see that a doctor is on hand when she arrives."

"How thoughtful," she murmured, vaguely disappointed. Subconsciously she had an uncomfortable feeling that her dream castles were again threatened with collapse.

They hurried into the inn, and, after a short delay, were assured that a doctor was on the way and would soon arrive. In a quarter of an hour, that seemed much longer, a sedan dashed up to the door with a grinding of brakes and the doctor, a pompous little man, came running up the steps. He at once demanded to be taken to the patient.

"The patient has not yet arrived," said Mrs. Crayton, "but she will be here presently. The chauffeur is bringing her in—she has sprained her ankle."

As the minutes passed with no sign of the patient it occurred to the doctor that it would be well to go out and meet her. So he, with Mrs. Crayton and the count, reinforced by Celeste, the French maid, started briskly out toward the scene of the mishap.

Pierre and Celeste fell a few paces behind.

"O, Pierre," deplored the maid in a tense whisper, "what has become of your cleverness? How could you have left her when you had such an opportunity to be heroic?" She raised her eyes in desperation. "And to leave her with that chauffeur—the most attractive man I've met in this stupid country! O, mon Dieu, my friend, you are losing your cunning."

"Shut up!" growled the count.

"Ah ha, you tell me to shut up!" she flamed. "You don't like to be reminded that you have acted with monumental stupidity! You throw this girl into his arms—what can you expect? They will fall in love, my friend. Mark my words!"

Something in her tone made him glance quickly at her.

"I believe you're in love with this handsome, empty headed chauffeur yourself."

"Idiot!" she snapped, and, with an ominous tightening of her lips and a dangerous glint in her black eyes, she redoubled her pace and left him lagging behind.

Virginia Crayton and Wells were found a few hundred feet farther on. Wells was on his knees before her. She had removed her stocking and he was tenderly but firmly massaging her ankle. Both looked up as the relieving party arrived and both seemed annoyed at the intrusion.

"O, Virginia, my child!" cried the mother dramatically as she struggled up the incline. "O, my child, are you suffering terribly?"

"It's nothing, mother dear. I'm sorry you've been alarmed. It's only a twisted ankle." She turned to the stranger. "You are the doctor, I suppose?"

"Yes, miss." The doctor, with the authority of his calling, displaced the chauffeur and skillfully manipulated her swollen ankle. "It is not serious," he said, frowning professionally. "A few days of care and attention will find it as good as new. However, we must now get you down to the inn and dress it properly. I'm sorry you have been obliged to walk on it."

"But I haven't walked on it," replied Virginia, with a sudden suffusion of color. "He has carried me," and there was no mistaking the softness of the glance she gave the chauffeur.

Celeste shot a bitterly triumphant glance at the count, who was biting his mustache.

Wells now spoke up: "The path was very steep and rough," he explained, "and so we had to go pretty slow."

Mrs. Crayton sniffed. "You should have been back half an hour ago."

THE chauffeur's answer to this rebuke was a faint smile not at all in keeping with his position. He then lifted Virginia gently in his arms and resumed his way to the inn. Mrs. Crayton glanced helplessly at the count, whose narrowed eyes evaded hers. He also evaded Celeste's glare of withering fury. The sight of another woman in the arms of the chauffeur was maddening to the French maid, who, in spite of her cold blooded sophistication, had been so stirred by this attractive youth.

If she was quick to fall in love, she was equally quick to hate, and her hatred was now turned toward her accessory in this fortune hunting plot.

It was a brooding group that followed Virginia and the chauffeur. There were no more delays and the party soon arrived at the inn.

"Will it be safe to resume our trip?" Mrs. Crayton asked the doctor.

"O, certainly, after a day or two," he answered. "But unless there are urgent reasons for haste I would advise remaining here at least until tomorrow or the next day."

She sighed resignedly. There were really no reasons for haste.

One thing was evident. Virginia Crayton was in love with the handsome Wells—or if not in love something very near it. To be clasped in the arms of an extremely good-looking young man, one whose good looks were supplemented by humor, education, and physical strength, and to be tenderly carried in this way for an hour or more with occasional stops during which he gently massaged her bare ankle, was likely to stir emotions in even a less impressionable girl than Virginia.

And Wells had not escaped heart whole. While the doctor was bandaging her ankle he sat in a secluded spot some distance from the inn, his head in his hands. "What a ghastly complication," he thought. Here he was, committed by all that was loyal, to protect the interests of his friend Harry Rasher, whom he assumed to be deeply in love with Virginia. And now, through no intention or purpose, he was feeling an aching tenderness at the thought of her. He knew what that meant.

"Confound it, I've tried to fall in love a lot of times when there were no barriers. Now I've got it good and plenty and with a girl that I'm in honor bound to lay off of. Talk about tough luck!"

He revolved the situation dejectedly. Something inside of him which he would not put into words, told him insistently that Virginia—well, liked him, perhaps a good deal. The question was, did she care for Rasher? That was the crucial point. And even if she did not, would he ever be able to convince Rasher that he had acted as a loyal and honorable friend should act?

In his mind, it was a point of honor. He had embarked in this enterprise in a spirit of fun and adventure. His mission was to circumvent the count, even if in so doing he might have to make a little love to the girl. He hadn't the slightest fear that his own emotions might become seriously involved.

But love is something you cannot turn on or off like a faucet. It comes, sometimes unbidden and even unwelcome. The mind counsels one course, the heart another. The heart repels the advantageous marriage which the mind advocates.

"Love," reflected the unhappy Wells, "is a darned illogical and unreasonable thing. You can't head it off, or steer it up a side street, once it gets going."

He walked gloomily back to the inn, deep in thought, and hardly noticed Celste, whose eyes filled with tears at his preoccupation. It was the first time in years that an honest tear, mothered by an honest emotion, had dimmed those cold, designing black eyes.

One had the feeling that some one would sooner or later have to pay for those tears.

computed to be in the neighborhood of fifty million dollars per year.

Now fifty million dollars is a great deal of money, and converted into terms of cargo—it is a very large bit of freight. Petty pilferage—joyous, adventuresome little thieveries such as shoes and cheap watches—does not mount into millions. It is the big thefts, and these are engineered with considerable cunning and attention to detail by men higher up who later attend to the delicate job of selling the stolen property. These are the undertakings which require grim courage and quick thinking and the ability to use a gun or a vicious bale hook with readiness and gusto. Jimmy was fond of them—but even he was taken aback at the idea of playing an important rôle in the theft of a case of lace valued conservatively at one hundred thousand dollars.

The man in charge—who would be safely away should there be any fighting or arrests—assured Jimmy and his friends that everything was fixed; not the slightest danger. The excitement would be nil and the rewards great. Infinite precautions had been taken. "Everybody's fixed," explained Lew Foster, who was large and plump and much addicted to checkered clothes. "It's really an inside job, see?"

"Yeh—I don't."

"Well, now, listen——" The pompous Lew was willing to give details because he felt that Jimmy Lynn was just the sort of man he preferred handling things on the pier. "When the Agraria sailed from Yurrop she carried a case of lace——"

Jimmy Lynn rose slowly and looked down upon the elegant Lew with vast contempt. "Lew," he announced, scathingly, "you ain't got a lick of sense."

"O! I ain't, ain't I? Well, I guess I know a thing or two——"

"You don't know nothin'. I guess you didn't even bother to find out who was gateman at the pier where the Agraria is berthed."

"Yes," snapped Lew, "I have. It's John Shane."

"Uh-huh. Right-O! Which proves you a bigger dumbbell than ever. John Shane is so straight you could draw lines with him."

"O! he is——"

"Yes, he is. He's my stepfather, and I guess I know a thing or two about him, so don't go arguing with me. And if you think John Shane is any damned idiot to let something like a fake pass get by him——"

And now it was Lew Foster who, without visible change of manner, impressed his words. "John Shane ain't no dumbbell, Jimmy. I'll say he ain't. And you're right we ain't gonna slip nothin' over on him. But just the same he's gonna take a fake pass and let a grocery truck get through with that hundred thousand dollar load of lace on it; see?"

Frankly, Jimmy did not see. He announced cuttingly that Lew was orating through his ear. "Next thing you'll be tellin' me," he finished, cuttingly, "is that you got John Shane fixed."

"Sure," chuckled Lew. "Sure we have."

JIMMY'S fists clinched. "That is one damned lie."

"Now, Jimmy—there ain't no use of me and you fightin . . . Honest to God, Jimmy, I ain't givin' you no bum steer. Your old man is fixed. But he's honest—goshamighty! boy—that guy was so honest he wouldn't come across for less'n a thousand dollars, five hundred of it in advance."

Jimmy stared incredulously. He could not help being convinced, and yet——

"Now, listen, Lew—it don't sound right. I know that feller—y'see, he's the old lady's new husband—and I live right there in the flat and meet him every day, and I know good and well he ain't ever pulled anything crooked——"

"Well, we all got to begin bein' sensible some time, don't we? And this bimbo—Shane—he's foolish, he is — like a fox. Thousand smackers is his price, and will he run a risk for that? He will not. We got to get the fake pass, which means we got to spend extra money on inside work — the checker, see? Then, when the lace turns up missing, why, what happens? Shane shows the pass he got from the truck driver. That'll show a load of fancy groceries and an extra case. Shane'll say that was what was on the load, and how was he to know any better? So they'll know the checker worked the old fake pass game, and they'll get ready to slough him. But they won't slough him at all, because the minute we get the lace through Mister Checker is gonna beat it. Get me?"

"When you planning this, Lew?"

"Tomorrow, I think. Maybe the next day. Just depends on when they take that lace offen the ship. We got it fixed so's we'll get word right away."

Jimmy stared long and earnestly. "You sure you got the dope straight? About John Shane, I mean?"

Lew shrugged a fleshy shoulder. "Hell!" he advised, "you don't have to take my word for it. Ask him!"

Jimmy took the problem into the street with him. It was perhaps the first real problem he had ever faced which could not be settled with fists or kisses. He knitted his forehead and plunged into deep thought. Conclusions come inevitably but not easily—and a lurking fear crystallized slowly: a fear which had to do with his mother.

Jimmy was not addicted to sentimentality, but he and Kate had been buddies since his brief and hectic grammar school days. There had been sentiment enough for him to be always gentle and kind with her and to make life as livable as possible, and he did appreciate all the slaving she had done for him and her cheerful camaraderie. True, his love had not been so consuming as to cause him to seek less glorious and more honorable means of livelihood . . . but his course in life did not mean that he had not worried more or less over what would happen to her should things ever go wrong with him.

That was why he had, after careful thought, become reconciled to John Shane. John was a tower of honesty, a fortress of sober reliability. Now, if anything happened—Kate would grieve . . . but she would not be alone. That had been the comforting thought until tonight. Lew Foster's fat lips had destroyed Jimmy's sense of security, for Lew had made it quite clear that John Shane did not possess to an impregnable degree that virtue which made him acceptable as a husband for Jimmy's mother.

JIMMY sat coldly through dinner, and then invited his stepfather for a walk. A trifle abashed by the accusation, he informed Shane that he understood he was to be a party to a big water front theft. And in the half light of the corner arc John Shane smiled his quizzical, tolerant smile into the lad's face, and said, "Why, sure I am."

For a few seconds Jimmy found himself wordless. Then he proceeded to give vent to several effective epithets. Shane heard him through quietly. And then he asked a somewhat disconcerting question:

"Well, Jimmy, what of it?"

"What of it? My God! Shane—what'll happen to mom if you get caught?"

"That's true enough." Shane was in a judicial mood. "But I don't see she'd be any worse off than if you'd been caught before she and I was married. I ain't gonna do a thing you ain't been doin' for years . . . and I'm getting more jack for it than you ever got."

Unanswerable logic, which was somewhat queerly illogical.

"I never pretended to be honest," growled Jimmy, defensively.

"Like hell you didn't. Kate don't know you're up to tricks all the time. She never did know it."

"Well, there wasn't any use telling her, was there?"

"Sure not. And she never need know about me."

"But suppose you get caught?"

"Not a chance."

"Aw, say—there's always a chance. Now, listen, John Shane; you got to cut this out. It ain't fair to mom, that's what. You go tell Lew Foster where to get off at. Y'hear?"

Shane seemed amused. "Fine right you got to preach. And listen here"—he whirled on the boy, his face momentarily becoming hard—"you lay off me, see? I ain't ever butted in with you—and I'll thank you to act the same way."

Jimmy glared, whirled and walked away. He was prodigiously indignant. For the first time in his life he looked upon crime and found it of unpleasant mien. Applied to himself, these water front affairs had been tinged with romance and the thrill of adventure; with John Shane in a leading rôle they were darkly sinister and fraught with unhappiness for others.

Jimmy walked the dark, narrow streets of Chelsea moodily. He averred that something had to be done about it—not because he was particularly keen about keeping John Shane straight, but because he was thinking of his mother and the effect upon her should Shane be caught. And it occurred to him, as a new idea, that perhaps he had been unfair to her in the past. None of this thought, however, was burdened with moral scruple. So far as Jimmy was concerned, pilferage was all right for those who could get away with it. He slightly amended his estimate now by admitting that it was all right for those who could afford to get caught. John Shane couldn't. And, he almost believed, neither could he.

By midnight Jimmy had determined definitely that Shane must be kept on the straight and narrow path at all costs. He considered ways and means. Argument he had tried—futilely. Physical force was, of course, out of the question. At two o'clock in the morning an idea graced his sleepless brain.

Jimmy almost determined to squeal. Almost, but not quite. It would be simple that way: he could go to Chris Dorgan, the grizzled pier superintendent, and betray the scheme, asking as his reward immunity for Shane.

But Jimmy knew all along that he'd never go through with that scheme. The tenets of the gang had been too deeply graven. Squealing was, to his way of thinking, the one unforgivable sin. Besides, it was grossly dangerous, not that Jimmy feared danger particularly, but it is one thing to fight a menace and quite another to pronounce a sentence of death upon one's self.

Eventually a restless and troubled slumber came to him, broken at six o'clock by the wild alarm of the cheap timepiece on the mantel. As he rose and stepped into the crude habiliments of a longshoreman he could hear Shane lumbering about the next room, and then the sound of Kate bustling happily in the kitchen. She was singing softly, and while Jimmy would have denied hotly that there was any sentimental strain in him, the sound of that carefree humming decided him.

But when he walked darkly across West street toward the pier where the Agraria was docked, it was without any clear notion of what he intended to do. Midway of the broad thoroughfare, already commencing to clutter with trucks, he saw Lew Foster. Lew was grinning a fat, pursy grin, and he demanded to know whether Jimmy was convinced. Jimmy admitted that he was, and Lew thereupon sketched to him the final details. Jimmy listened, nodded, and walked over to take his place in the crescent of men applying for jobs that morning on this particular pier. This operation, known as the shapeup, occurs daily on each of the piers; and, as he had known in advance, Jimmy was among the first of the longshoremen chosen.

With the other successful candidates he started through the gates onto the vast, silent pier. At the entrance he encountered the broad shouldered form of his stepfather.

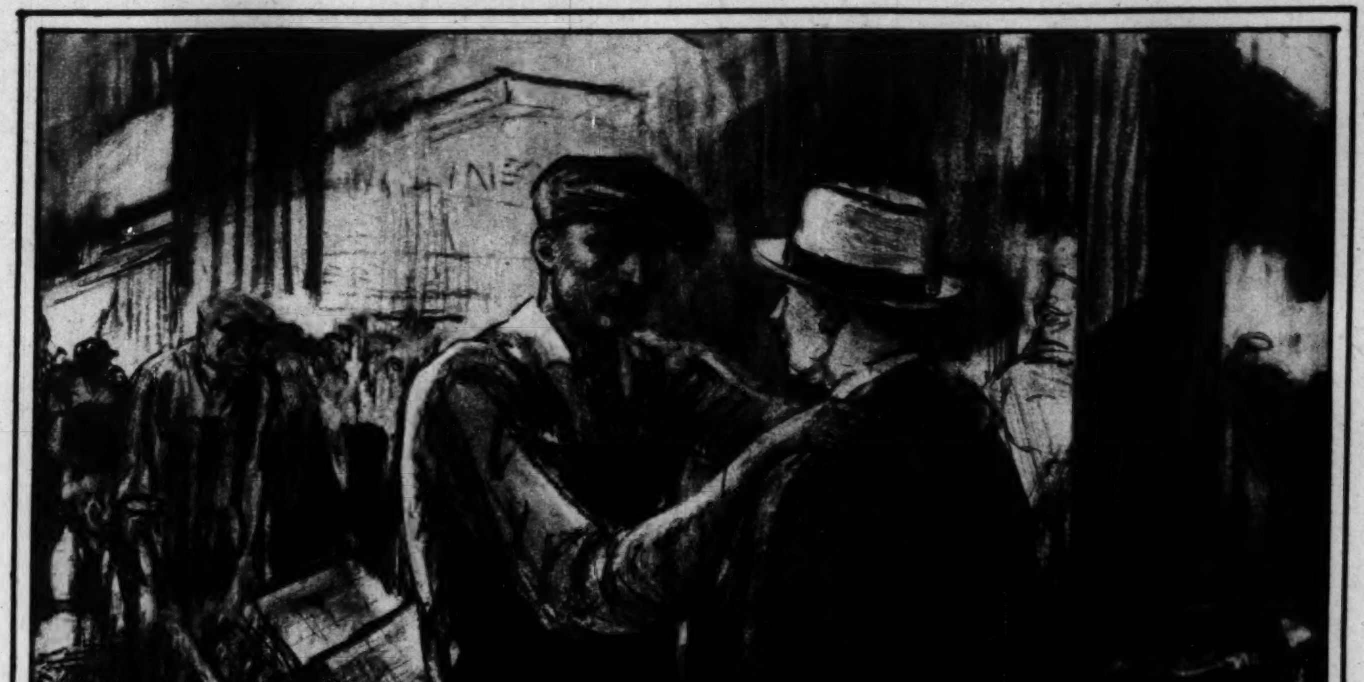
"Shane, you ain't goin' through with it, are you?"

"Surest thing you know, Jimmy."

Jimmy disdained further remarks, but as he paused midway of the pier his thoughts were not of his work nor of the lace theft about to be negotiated. Even when the dock boss—a florid, blustery man—strolled by and whispered out of the corner of his mouth that everything was all set Jimmy merely nodded, and the superior gentleman was deluded into the belief that Jimmy's preoccupation was merely attention to his supposed nefarious labors.

Eight o'clock and work started with a screaming of winches, the thudding of cargo as the huge slings kerflumped to the floor of the pier, the clangor and clatter and splutter of trucks winding in and out through a maze of congested traffic, the hoarse shouts of longshoremen and drivers and cargo guards. . . .

Outside the huge pier trucks were waiting patiently in line. Those drivers who expected to be allowed through immediately had already secured preliminary passes from the gateman which let them through to the musty little office of the dock boss. There each applied for—and was assigned—a checker from the office force. The checker and driver in turn received their O. K. from the delivery clerk, and, where the truck load promised to be heavy, the driver returned to his truck and selected a few shenangoes from the out-of-workers lounging hopefully nearby. Nothing then to do but await the august announcement of John Shane, the gateman, that there was room for another truck on the pier.



"Shane, you ain't goin' through with it, are you?" "Surest thing you know, Jimmy."

IT was shortly after the lunch hour that a heavy draft dropped near Jimmy's station. The cargo guard on duty there nudged young Mr. Lynn and murmured cryptically, "That's it!" Instantly a signal was flashed down the line and Jimmy saw clearly that his stepfather nodded.

The big steal was now about to be put into operation, and Jimmy was immensely worried, for despite his hours of headachy thought he had not yet succeeded in concocting a scheme which would keep his mother's husband from wandering the primrose path.

Without even bothering to look, Jimmy knew what was happening outside. Out yonder a big truck was waiting patiently for a signal from John Shane. This truck was actually the property of a wholesale grocery concern and had been sent down to remove a large shipment of fancy imported groceries and delicatessen stuff. The driver was known to and trusted by Lew Foster and his cohorts, and now, when John Shane nodded, this swarthy person swung out of line, oblivious to the angry shoutings of other truck drivers, and passed through the gate with his particular checker, a pale, anemic looking young chap who had also listened to the siren call of easy money.

Under the watchful eye of the dishonest cargo guard Jimmy slipped his hand truck under the case of lace and trundled it half way across the pier. He unloaded near a pile of cargo—which he knew was the cargo belonging to the wholesale grocery concern. The watchman, anxious to appear innocent, strolled away that he might not see what was about to happen.

The grocery truck appeared with the complaisant checker and two greasy shenangoes. Cases of the delicacies were loaded conspicuously around the outside of the truck, and then, with Jimmy's personal assistance, the case of lace was hoisted aboard and immediately surrounded by more groceries.

So much, then, for that. Jimmy glanced toward the entrance and saw the amused eye of his stepfather focussed upon him. Jimmy was desperate. He was not opposed to thievery, as such, but he was decidedly averse to having John Shane sent to prison—and the company which owned the Agraria was most disconcertingly summary in its manner of dealing with persons detected in the act of stealing.

The chances are that Jimmy had never heard the old adage about necessity being the maternal forbear of invention. The fact remains, however, that it is. In a blinding white light of clear thinking the solution of the problem presented itself. It was a scheme rarely and superbly beautiful and, while it embodied a certain degree of physical discomfort for a comparatively innocent person, Jimmy was not a young man to let such a detail deter him from a proper and efficient course of action.

He was smiling as he stepped close to the swarthy truck driver who had come for his groceries—and Lew Foster's case of lace. There was in his manner no slightest hint of what he intended—but in the fraction of a minute which had already elapsed since the idea had first blossomed every little detail was clear in Jimmy's mind.

"Swell weather, ain't it?" remarked Jimmy casually to the truck driver.

"Yeh—it sure is," agreed that gentleman. Whereupon, with the deftness and snap of a professional pugilist, Jimmy landed on that portion of the truck driver's cranial apparatus which is known as the button!

Even before the briefly amazed and totally unconscious driver hit the floor of the pier bedlam broke loose. Some one yelled fight! There was a wild rush of longshoremen, cargo guards, and customs men to the scene of action.

And there was action a-plenty for a few seconds. Jimmy venomously threw himself on the prostrate form of the unfortunate truck driver and wrestled mightily. When he rose it was to stare into a ring of excited faces, marking particularly the watchman who had been fixed, the anemic checker who was trembling, and two or three members of the Chelsea gang who stared open mouthed.

Jimmy spoke harshly of his late opponent's ancestry and informed the bystanders that the man had foully insulted him. "I just hadda hit him, fellers," defended Mr. Lynn. "I sure did."

A hoarse voice grated in Jimmy's ear. "You played hell—that's what you done. That bird has got the fake pass your old man give him—and now we can't get this truck off the pier."

Jimmy was laughing to himself. Here was thrill and adventure—and triumph of which his gang mates knew nothing. The danger to John Shane had been the discovery of his participation. It was all very well to say that should discovery ensue the checker would be the victim of legal wrath—but there was always the possibility that some one possessing keenness of mind might inquire too closely into why the gateman accepted a fake pass—and why he let a case of lace through on a grocery truck without having his suspicions aroused.

But now the little transaction had been thoroughly spoiled. There would be no fake pass presented. In spite of his best intentions, John Shane was not a party to what might happen—wherefore Jimmy was as eager as any of his fellows successfully to conclude the theft.

He crossed to one of his intimates and spoke softly into that gentleman's ear.

"Get the gang together!" he ordered. "I'll drive the damned truck and we'll rush the gate."

IT was a daring, desperate thing; but the Chelsea gang was not unused to daring needs. Besides, the sheer melodramatic picturesqueness of it made an irresistible appeal. The word spread swiftly. At a signal from Jimmy seven of the Chelseaites leaped for the grocery truck—the motor of which was still thrumming. Jimmy took the wheel, let his gears into low, gave one sonorous blast of the siren, and stepped on the gas. The effect was immediate and startling. All other noises on the pier were drowned in the banging of the motor. Longshoremen and cargo guards leaped out of the way—yelling. Truck drivers cursed frantically and backed their vehicles into the cargo piles. And at the pier entrance something was happening.

John Shane's eyes narrowed, and he turned away briefly to beckon to three broad shouldered, silent men who had been lounging nearby. With expert eyes this quartet sized up the situation.

Lunging toward them was the massive truck. At the wheel was Jimmy Lynn, handsome face set and stern. Beside him was a squat, ratty little man and in the steady right hand of that man was an exceedingly businesslike blue steel automatic.

Two gangsters clung precariously to the tail of the truck. They held with their left hands and in their rights were wicked, curving bale hooks, modern scimitars of the water front: dangerous weapons in these expert hands. Lying ready on top of the truck were three others of the gang, and one of these had also produced a gun.

Work had stopped as by magic. Longshoremen, crew, and officers flocked to the rail of the massive and graceful Agraria to witness the battle. There was a moment of thunder as the truck bore down on the gate: a tense, fierce waiting for the first spitting of a gun, and then, clear above the roar of the truck—Jimmy Lynn's warning to his stepfather:

"Out of the way—or there'll be a killin'!"

The four men at the gate were unarmed. They were brave, but not unduly foolish. They stepped back and the truck bludgeoned through and whirled into the congested traffic of West street. The three square shouldered men who had stood with John Shane followed.

Jimmy gave a demonstration of deft and daring driving. He careened across West street, avoiding trucks and taxicabs by inches; cursing, pleading, never slowing for an instant. Two traffic policemen yelled at him, but he paid them no heed. A side street yawned its welcome, and he darted into it. Not until then did the desperate crew of the truck relax. They looked at each other and grinned in somewhat sickly fashion—victims to reaction. It had been a fearfully foolhardy undertaking, but its very effrontery had crowned it with success.

Jimmy swung two more corners, then slowed down. He spoke curtly to his fellows, as befits a Napoleon of felony. Then, with some slight regard for traffic regulations, he headed toward the apparently innocent warehouse where Lew Foster and his crowd stored valuable material unconventionally obtained—and disposed of it at their leisure.

ON THE second deck of the pier, in an expensive mahogany furnished office, Chris Dorgan, pier superintendent, nodded enthusiastically at the report of John Shane, gateman.

"Sorry I missed it, John. I could hear the noise up here. 'Fraid to move, though; might have looked funny."

Shane's eyes were dancing. "The kid that drove the truck is chockfull of nerve. I didn't know what was wrong when I saw him bust that truck driver. Funny thing, too: I been talkin' with that bird, an' he's sore as a boil. Says the lad just come along, said somethin' about it bein' a nice day, and then socked him one."

Dorgan tapped spatulate fingers on the desk top. "Spot any of the bunch, John?"

"Yes—sure." Shane was honest. "But I ain't gonna spill no names. I warned you that day before yesterday when they first came to me."

"'Sall right." Dorgan grinned, understandingly. "Arresting a few longshoremen isn't going to help us a bit. Every time we try that some blasted cheap politician gets 'em out of jail before the doors are locked behind 'em. The birds we're after are the ones that handle the big stuff—like this lace, for instance. . . ."

Shane walked from the office of his superintendent. He was well pleased, not alone with what had happened in connection with the lace theft, but because the motives behind the action of his stepson had been crystal clear. Of course the lad believed that he had accepted Lew Foster's bribe in good faith. . . . John was smiling to himself through the rest of the day, and he was still smiling when he reached the little flat that night and went into the tiny bathroom to wash up.

Into that bathroom stormed Jimmy Lynn, frowning and furious—and Jimmy did not mince words.

"Now, listen here, Shane: What I done this afternoon was to keep you from making a damned fool of yourself. I wasn't gonna see you get nabbed in that deal—and the only thing left was to rush the gate."

Shane was quietly argumentative. "I guess I can look out for myself, Jimmy."

"Like thunder you can! Far as stealing is concerned—you're a sucker. You don't know nothin' about it. Now I'm asking you—man to man—for mom's sake, anyway—to lay off it from now on."

The older man shrugged and turned away. "Nothin' stirring, Jimmy. If you can grab off a lot of that soft money, so can I."

"You're talkin' like a fool, John Shane. If things had gone through like they was planned this afternoon you'd have been in stir right now."

"Ain't you kind of exaggerating, Jimmy?"

"No, I'm not. They was wise to that whole business—must have been, because the truck was followed. And no sooner had we dumped the lace in Lew Foster's warehouse than a whole gang of bulls lit on us. We got away, but they grabbed Lew an' two of his rich friends. Now just suppose they hadn't thought you was all right on account of us breaking through and makin' it seem good? Suppose that."

John Shane shook his head. "If things had gone according to schedule I guess they wouldn't have followed the truck. No, Jimmy — I got the hunch there's a lot of money to be picked up in a job like I got. And I guess whatever is all okay for you is good enough for me."

The boy's lips opened, then closed again. From the dining room came the clatter of crockery as Kate set the table for their evening meal. It is hard to say just what vision crossed the boy's mind then . . . but suddenly he caught the other man by the shoulder and whirled him around.

"You mean," he rasped, "that if I'll go straight—you will?"

"Uh-huh. Sure."

"You swear it?"

"Yeh, Jimmy,—I do."

Jimmy's hand came out. "Done with you!" he cried, "from this minute on."

And John Shane, who had never in his life known a dishonest thought or committed a dishonest deed, shook hands with Jimmy Lyon—did it solemnly and seriously—and promised that he would reform. But somehow the situation did not strike him as funny . . . and as they walked into the dining room together he dropped an affectionate, paternal arm about the broad shoulders of his son.

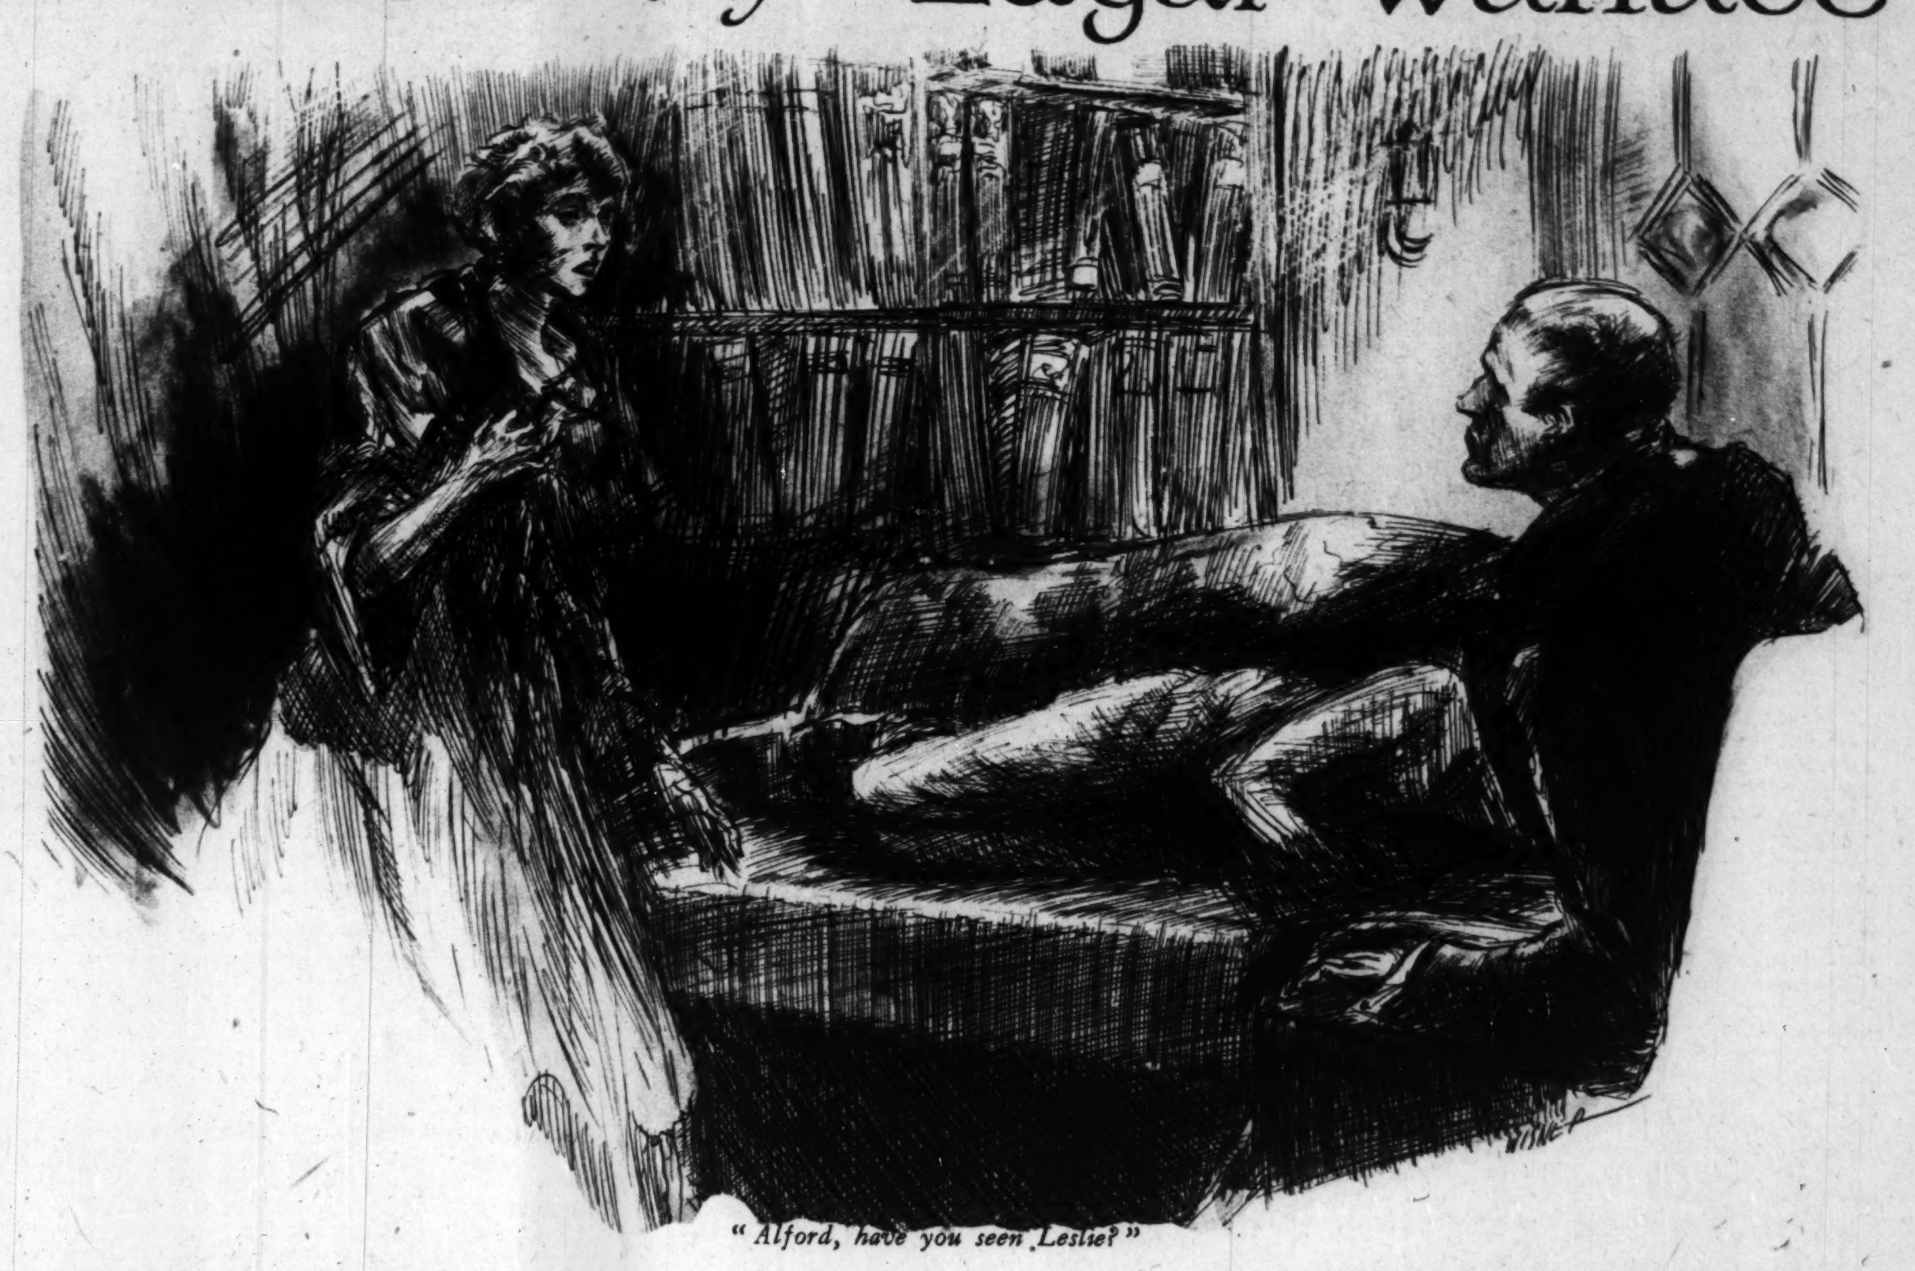
THE BLACK ABBOT by Edgar Wallace



"Alford, have you seen Leslie?"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

HARRY, LORD CHELFORD, occupies Fossaway Manor with his half-brother, Dick. Chelford is engaged to Leslie Gwyn, whose brother, Arthur, is his solicitor. Dick engages a detective, Puttler, to investigate the rumored appearance of the Black Abbot, supposed to haunt the ruins of an old abbey. Some one fires several shots at Leslie as she walks the grounds. The hidden Chelford treasure is sought by Gwyn and by his clerk, Fabrian Gilder. Gwyn discharges Gilder. The latter, writing with vanishing ink, promises to marry Mary Wenner, Chelford's former secretary, if she will lead him to the treasure. The girl restores the letter to legibility after it fades. A masked figure frightens Gilder and Mary from the hidden treasure room in the abbey. Later Gilder finds the cylinders, supposedly filled with gold, have been removed, except one, which contains an art treasure, a priceless missal. Leslie, in love with Dick, breaks off her engagement to Chelford. Thomas, a footman and an ex-convict, is discharged when detected in theft. Gwyn has gambled away Leslie's fortune of £250,000 and £50,000 in securities from the estate of Chelford's mother. Gilder proposes to Leslie, offering to square Arthur's accounts if she will marry him. Thomas is found slain and Chelford disappears.

ARTHUR tricks Gilder into giving him a letter of credit for £50,000, then disguises himself and flies to Paris. Mary Wenner visits the manor, and betrays the fact that Chelford often was absent mysteriously whenever Dick was away. A note found on a tree tells them Chelford is safe, but warns them against seeking him. Mary conceives the idea that Chelford is in the secret vault, and leads Leslie and Dick there. Dick enters, sees something in the light of his flash, and forces Leslie to leave. Later he returns to the vault, and from a distance Leslie sees him come out finally, his head on his arm, like a broken man. A letter from Arthur tells Leslie she must not marry Gilder. Leslie discovers Dick is providing fine luncheons for some one, but he pretends the food is for the police who are guarding the grounds. During the night some one breaks into the mansion library. On the ground outside Dick and Puttler find a scented cigaret of the brand Lord Chelford favored.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

Leslie Disappears.

THE policeman pointed across Long Meadow, the shallow, valleylike depression which ran parallel with the rising ground on which the abbey stood. To the left there were a number of cottages, occupied in the main by people working on the estate, two gamekeepers, a carter, and a groom. It was from one of these cottages that the Black Abbot had been seen and reported by a terrified gamekeeper.

"They sounded as if they were walking away from you over the Mound to the river—or to the ruins?" suggested Puttler.

"Well," confessed the man, "they might have been going that way; I can't be sure."

"That certainly beats the band," said the sergeant, as they were moving in the direction the man had indicated.

"He must have been mistaken," said Dick with emphasis. "They were walking away from him——"

"They," repeated Puttler significantly. "I don't think he was wrong at all."

"There was another possible solution," said Dick. "Sometimes the people at Chelfordbury avail themselves of a short cut across the park to a neighboring village."

"At three o'clock in the morning?"

"There may have been a dance," suggested Dick lamely.

"A short cut through a park that's known to be haunted and where a murder was committed two nights ago?"

There was no answer to this.

They reached the bank and followed along the top till they were parallel with the abbey, but there was no sign of man or woman, and they turned back. In spite of his protestations of wakefulness Sergt. Puttler did not resist the suggestion that he should take his sleep. Dick was left alone to his vigil.

By the time daylight came he was a very weary man. Twice in the night he had visited the two men posted in the corridors above, found them awake, but in each case with nothing to report.

"Thank goodness, at any rate somebody's had some sleep!" he muttered, as he passed under the girls' window and glanced up.

The morning wind which stirred the trees and filled the world with the pleasant music of rustling leaves moved also the casement window of the room which he had assigned to Mary Wenner. The window swayed to and fro slowly and he inwardly condemned the girl for not carrying out his instructions.

By six o'clock the first of the servants was stirring; smoke was crawling lazily from one of the big twisted chimneys. He was sitting in envious contemplation of Sergt. Puttler when the door of the study burst violently open and Mary Wenner came in. She was in her dressing gown; her untidy hair floated over her face.

"Mr. Alford," she asked agitatedly, "have you seen Leslie?"

He was on his feet in an instant, and the movement woke the sleeping detective.

"No; she's with you, isn't she?"

"We went to bed together," said the girl, in a tremulous tone, "but when I woke up just now she was not in the room. I waited a while, thinking she was taking her bath, and then I went outside and asked the man you put there. He said she hadn't come out of the room!"

Puttler, listening, dragged himself erect

"The ladder!" he said simply, and Dick reeled under the blow.

The Black Terror of Fossaway Manor had in his grip the woman for whom he would have given his soul and counted it no heavy price.

Running out on to the lawn, Puttler searched beneath the window. Yes, there were the marks of the ladder in the mold of a garden bed, and on the ladder itself he found confirmatory proof. Lifting it against the wall, he scrambled up and came breast high to the window sill on its topmost rung. Drawing himself up, he sprang into the room and looked round for some clew. By this time Mary Wenner, followed by Dick, had come through the door.

"Her dressing gown isn't gone!" whimpered Mary, pointing to the hook where it hung. "But her shoes are. She must have dressed . . . and I didn't hear."

The tired man at the door had heard no sound in the night. A thick carpet covered the floor. Mary said that when she woke the door which communicated between the two rooms was closed.

She had heard no sound at all and claimed that she was a light sleeper, which, in fact, she was not. When she had gone to sleep the candle was burning. Examining this, Dick saw that it would not have been alight for more than an hour. There were two burned matches in the tray, which meant that the candle had been extinguished once and relit again.

Dick left the girl explaining to the watcher who had been on guard outside the door.

"It was her voice, of course, that the patrolman heard in the dark. I blame myself that I didn't jump at that idea."

"I'd like to keep all the blame!" said Dick bitterly. "O, God! it doesn't bear thinking about!"

He went away on a solitary search; none saw him slip through the back of the house, and he moved under cover of the river bank. When he returned, after an absence of two hours, Puttler told him that there was a message from the home office awaiting him. That institution had rung up twice. Dick got through after a wait and learned that he was talking to an important undersecretary.

"Could you run up to London for an hour?"

"Is it necessary?" asked Dick, and he explained with all rapidity the happenings of the night.

"I'm afraid you had better see us as soon as you possibly can. In view of all the circumstances you cannot come too soon."

With a curse Dick hung up the phone, and this time he took Harry's big two seater, a car that his brother had only used a dozen times but the use of which he had steadfastly refused to anybody else.

Just as he was leaving he recalled a resolution he had made in the night; he ran upstairs into his room, and, bolting the door, opened a locked drawer of his dressing chest, and took out something which he put carefully in his bag. That must be removed from Fossaway Manor as soon as possible, he thought. He put the bag in the boot of the car, and sent the machine flying down the drive.

Midway between Horsham and Dorking a motorist, coming from the opposite direction by another route, shot at a fast pace from a forked road right across his path. Dick jammed on the brakes, and the big car skidded half way round, struck the concrete curb with a thud, but no damage was done, and he went on, with a glare at the goggled driver of the machine at fault that was murderous.

He did not hear the cover of the dickey snap open, nor did he see the brown bag leap up and roll over onto the sidewalk. But the man in the other car saw all this through his big goggles, and, restarting his machine, brought it to the curb.

And there and then Fabrian Gilder discovered the secret of the Black Abbot!

AT NINE o'clock that morning Gilder had risen, intending to make a hurried visit to his country cottage. The newspapers had been full of the Chelford tragedy, but no mention had been made of the fact that Thomas had been Mr. Gilder's guest. Such a happening, he realized, being an intelligent man, must necessarily upset all arrangements and plans that the girl had made.

There was a lot about Fabrian Gilder that was admirable. To his servants he was a kind master; to all who knew him superficially, an excellent and even a generous friend. He was in truth no worse than the average man in point of desires, a little better in his fairness of dealing. Arthur Gwyn had been legitimate prey, but he had, he thought, treated him with scrupulous fairness. He had succeeded, by the exploitation of the lawyer's weakness, in amassing a very considerable fortune; but then the City of London, and, for the matter of that, the City of New York, was filled with rich men who had founded their houses upon the cupidity or folly of men who were now almost penniless.

He glanced at the morning papers. There was nothing new reported from Chelford, except the little interview that one reporter had had with Dick, and that paragraph was, in many ways, very comforting to Gilder, for it explained why the girl—and then his eye caught sight of a line.

> "Mr. Alford said he had asked Miss Leslie Gwyn to stay at Fossaway Manor whilst her brother was abroad."

Abroad? He frowned. If Arthur Gwyn had gone abroad he must have left very suddenly. He had seen him only a day or two before. But perhaps that was one of Dick Alford's lies to save the girl's face. Still, it was disquieting.

He was pondering this matter when the maid brought him his morning letters, and the first he saw was one in a well known hand. It was from Leslie. He tore it open with trembling fingers, took out the half sheet of paper, and read the few lines. He read it not once but many times. So that was that! She had changed her mind.

It did not occur to him that she had not made any promise, but he was so sure of her, so satisfied in his mind that she would agree to his proposal, that he felt he had been tricked.

When the shock had worn off his anger and resentment grew. Very well: if she could not keep her promise he at least would keep his. He understood now, he thought. Arthur had bolted, and there was no necessity for the girl to make her sacrifice. He had been fooled, tricked. He pushed the chair back from the table, leaving his breakfast untouched, and, going into his library, turned the handle of the combination, and pulled open the door of the safe with a savage jerk. There was the letter, all ready to post, and at the sight of it his heart grew hard and sour.

He took out the letter, made to tear it into fragments, and then remembered that inside was a blank check. He pulled out the sheet of note paper and felt for the little pink slip that in his magnificence he had signed with a complacent flourish. It was not there!

Gilder peered into the envelope with a frown. Gone! He searched the safe: it might have fallen out, though how he could not imagine; but there was no sign of the check. He unlocked his drawer and took out his check book. There was the counterfoil, and, written across it, "For Leslie, ———." He had intended showing her that counterfoil one of these days, when she felt more kindly toward him.

With his head in his hands, he tried to remember when he had last seen the check, and then he recalled that it was on the morning Arthur Gwyn had called to see him. At that thought he went white. Surely he had closed the safe? Again he struggled to remember, minute by minute, that fateful morning. He had been looking at the letter, he had put it away, he had closed the door, and then . . . the telephone bell had rung, and he had forgotten to fasten the safe!

He pulled the phone toward him now, and called furiously for a number. It was twenty past nine; most of the staff of the bank would be there. When the call was answered:

"I am Mr. Gilder," he said, quickly. "Is the manager there? . . . No? Then the submanager will do. It is very urgent."

He waited whilst the clerk went to investigate. Presently he heard the voice of a man he knew—the manager himself.

"I just came in at this moment. Is anything wrong?"

"Fletcher, do you remember my telling you that I should be sending down a check for fifty thousand pounds and asking you to honor it?"

"Yes, I honored it."

For a second Gilder was speechless.

"You honored it? Who presented the check?"

"Arthur Gwyn. It was made out in his favor, payable to bearer. I notified you last night; didn't you get my letter?"

"I haven't opened all my post yet," said Gilder steadily. "Thank you."

He hung up the receiver, breathing heavily. For now he remembered clearly every event of the morning: the coming of Arthur Gwyn and his seemingly absurd proposal that Gilder should write a note expressing his willingness to lend the money. That was the trick of it! Not only had Arthur got the fifty thousand but with that letter he had a complete answer to any charge of fraud.

He sat with clasped hands, every vein on his forehead swollen and murder in his heart. Tricked! And she should know. She had been a party to the fraud—unwittingly, perhaps, but nevertheless a party. She must have told him of this money.

Whatever else he was, Fabrian Gilder had the gift of clear thinking. Five minutes' riotous fury, and he was his cold self again. Of course she couldn't have helped in the fraud. It was the accident of leaving the safe unlocked and Arthur Gwyn's known inquisitiveness—he could never resist reading even Gilder's private letters; Arthur had no sense of other people's privacy.

What could he do now? He thought the matter out. He must tell the girl, and perhaps she would regard herself as being under an obligation to him. If she had any sense of honor she must fulfill her promise, whatever she had written in her letter that morning.

He telephoned for his car to be brought round from the garage and made an attempt to eat breakfast.

He would try Leslie first, telling her nothing about the letter he had given to her brother, and threaten him with a warrant for fraud. Perhaps this strengthened rather than weakened his position. He grew cheerful as the thought took shape.

HE passed slowly out of London, for all the streets in the metropolis seemed to be "up," and at last struck the open country, avoiding the main roads and taking a more circuitous route which would bring him to the main Sussex road between Dorking and Horsham. With a clear road before him, he sent his car at full speed. He was not well acquainted with the road, but he knew that it joined the old Roman "street" at a gentle angle, and he did not slow down as he approached the principal thoroughfare.

Left of him, on the London side, the road was clear; to the right the view was a little obstructed. He sounded his horn and came out on to the main thoroughfare at thirty miles an hour.

He saw the car just in time, jammed on his brakes, and threw the machine into reverse. The big car ahead of him skidded round; he caught one malevolent gleam from Dick Alford's eyes, and then he saw the bag and, driving to the side of the road, picked it up. His first inclination was to leave it; he had no particular desire to help the second son; but there are certain innate decencies to be observed by motorists, even though they loathe each other, and he picked the little grip from the sidewalk and threw it into the back of his car.

As he did so, it opened, and, turning to fasten it, he saw something that made him change his mind. Getting out of the car, he lifted the bag to the sidewalk, opened it wide, and pulled out—the somber habit and cowl of the Black Abbot!

So Dick Alford was the Black Abbot! It was unbelievable; he could hardly credit the importance of his find. Here, then, was the greatest lever of all. Beside this the threat of a charge against Leslie Gwyn's brother faded to unimportance. He snapped the lock, put the bag carefully back in the car, and, restarting his engine, moved at a slower pace toward Chelfordbury.

He stopped in the village, where he was recognized, and heard at first hand from the innkeeper the story of the strange happenings at the big house.

"They do say that something's happened to the young lady from Willow House."

"What!" Gilder almost shouted the word. "You don't mean Miss Gwyn?"

"Yes, Miss Gwyn," nodded the landlord. "I haven't got the rights of it yet, it's only a rumor down here, but, Lord bless your heart, Mr. Gilder, there's never been so many rumors in this village since I came to live here forty-eight years ago. Some say that his lordship's been murdered"—he lowered his voice and looked round—"by his brother! Mr. Alford is a very hard man, though the people who work for him have got nothing to say against him, but that doesn't seem possible to me."

Gilder's mind was in a whirl. He did not want to know anything about Dick Alford or his reputation.

"Who told you this story about Miss Gwyn?" he asked, and the landlord, looking round the group that had formed outside the Red Lion, pointed to a man.

"He's a carter up at the big house," he said.

"Fetch him here," said Gilder.

When the carter arrived:

"What is this story about Miss Gwyn?"

The man looked a little sheepish to find himself the center of interest.

"I don't know nowt about it," he said. "It's only what I heerd that monkey faced gentleman saying to Mr. Richard. He says, 'I don't think any harm's come to her.' And one of the maids says that that young lady who used to be his lordship's secretary——"

"Miss Wenner? Is she there?" asked Gilder, quickly.

"Yes, she come up last night."

"What about her?" asked Gilder.

"They say she's been crying her eyes out all the morning. That's all I know about it. They do say something bad happened to the young lady early this morning, and the way Mr. Richard has been running about, and him looking as ill as death——"

"I hope something's going to be done about this Black Abbot," interjected the innkeeper. "My women folk are so frightened they want to sit up half the night."

Gilder looked at him with a queer expression.

"You needn't be afraid of the Black Abbot," he said. "I am going to lay that ghost today."

"You, Mr. Gilder?" said the man, in surprise.

But it was not the occasion for confidences, and Gilder, getting back into his car, turned it about and went up the road till he came to the lodge gates. Here a policeman on duty would have barred his progress, but fortunately he was a local man who knew the lawyer.

"Mr. Alford's away, sir. Do you want to see Sergt. Puttler?"

"Is that the man who has been staying at the hall? What is he—a policeman?"

"A Scotland Yard man, sir," said the Sussex policeman with a certain pride. "Though I don't know they're much better than our own detectives. You'll tell him you saw me, will you, and I asked you not to go to the house unless you had business?"

Evidently these were the policeman's instructions; Gilder promised faithfully to supply this exoneration, and continued up the drive. There was nobody to meet him when he pulled up before the old carved porch, but he had hardly alighted when a long-armed, queer-faced man came from nowhere.

"Good-morning," said the visitor.

"Good-morning, Mr. Gilder," said Puttler. "Mr. Alford has had to go to town."

"I want to see Miss Gwyn," said Gilder, watching the man closely.

If he had expected an experienced detective sergeant to betray himself, he was to be disappointed. Puttler did no more than fix him with his melancholy eyes.

"Want to see Miss Gwyn, do you? I'm afraid she's not at home, either."

"Then perhaps I could see Miss Wenner?"

The sergeant scratched his chin.

"She's not very well," he said; "in fact, she's lying down, and the doctor say she's not to be disturbed."

"Is there anything wrong with her?"

"No, there's nothing very much wrong with her. At the same time," said Puttler, juridically, "there's nothing very much right with her! It has rather got on her nerves, sleeping in this place, and I can't very well blame her."

"Do you know where Miss Gwyn has gone?"

Puttler shook his head.

"No," he said truthfully; "I can't tell you that; she didn't tell me."

"Perhaps you will answer this question," said the exasperated man: "Has anything happened to her?"

"So far as I knew," said the imperturbable officer, "nothing whatever has happened to her. Are you a friend of hers?"

"I am her fiancé," said Gilder, on the spur of the moment.

Here he had the satisfaction of seeing that the sergeant was startled.

"O, yes, of course, you're the gentleman she isn't going to marry."

It was said in all innocence, without any trace of impertinence, but Mr. Gilder went red and white.

"You see, Mr. Gilder," the sergeant went on, "I've heard quite a lot about—affairs in this neighborhood; in fact, I'm an authority upon all the gossip and scandal for the last twenty years. And I'm very glad you came, because there are one or two questions I wanted to ask you. For example, I wanted to know how it came about that you placed your cottage at the disposal of an ex-convict, Thomas Luck—so called."

BUT here Gilder was ready with his answer.

"I had no idea the man was an ex-convict," he said. "He told me he had been discharged from the Manor, and, as I wanted a caretaker and he offered to come for a very small sum, I employed him. I was terribly surprised and shocked to hear of his death, but even more shocked to learn of his character."

Puttler was politely interested. But if he thought that he was going to get rid of Gilder so easily, it was because he did not know the man's pertinacity.

"I think I must see Miss Wenner before I go," he said. "At any rate, I'd be glad if you'd send up my name——"

Puttler shook his head.

"It can't be done, Mr. Gilder," he said, almost cheerfully. "Just now I'm a combination of the Earl of Chelford and the family doctor. In other words, I'm in charge during Mr. Alford's absence. If you care to wait until he comes back, the drawing room is at your disposal, but you understand, Mr. Gilder, that you are not in any circumstances to question the servants. I am a great admirer of amateur detectives in my leisure moments, but this is one of my busy days, and I can't afford to have any interference in this case, however well meant it may be."

Gilder had to accept this invitation. He was determined not to leave the house until he had learned the truth about Leslie Gwyn. The detective conducted him to the drawing room, the long windows of which were open.

"I'll ask you not leave here until Mr. Alford arrives," he said. "If you require anything, perhaps you will ring?" And, seeing the light in Gilder's eyes, he added: "One of my men, who is a first class footman, will attend you."

He had not long to wait, as it happened. Dick, who had torn up to town, breaking every speed rule and so intent upon the object of his visit that he had forgotten even that he had put the bag in the car, was lucky enough to get through with his interview in a quarter of an hour. It was a very important interview—one on which his own future very largely depended—and there were too many things to think about for him to give a thought to the bag and its contents. His car, white with dust, sped up the drive and came to a halt in the wide space before the porch. He identified the other car and recognized it as the machine that had nearly brought about a nasty accident that morning.

"Gilder, is it?" he said, as he got down.

"Gilder it is, and full of interrogation marks. You saw the secretary?"

Dick nodded.

"Yes. He was very kind, but rather vague. He has given me twelve hours to find Harry, dead or alive."

"Did you tell him about Miss Gwyn?"

"He wasn't even interested," said Dick, with a hard laugh. "Harry, the estate, the title—everything except Leslie! That was the burden of his conversation. In twelve hours I must find him—and, believe me, Puttler, in twelve hours I will!"

He went into the drawing room and greeted Gilder curtly.

"You wanted to see me?"

"I wanted to know what has happened to Leslie Gwyn," said Gilder.

"I wish to God I knew!" said Dick.

The man stared at him.

"Nothing bad has happened?" he asked in a low voice, and Dick forgave him everything for the sincerity of his concern.

"I'm afraid it is something very unpleasant," he said, and told the story.

As he did so, he saw the man's face change and a skeptical smile curved his lips.

"I've got something to say to you, and I'd like to say it before a witness, Alford."

"To me?" said Dick, in surprise, and called over his shoulder to Puttler, who was passing the door. "Mr. Gilder has something he wants to say—I presume it's something of an unpleasant character," he said. "Perhaps you had better listen to this, Puttler."

"Alford has just told me that Miss Gwyn has disappeared, and the inference is, of course, that the Black Abbot has spirited her away. I think that is extremely likely, because the Black Abbot has every interest in holding fast to that young lady."

"Sensation," murmured the detective, but Gilder did not notice the interruption.

"For some time past there's been a queer spook haunting this countryside, an object of terror to Lord Chelford, designed, if anything, to cover the series of outrages which have recently been committed. Chelford's a weakling—you know that, Alford—but weaklings have children, and once a child is born to Harry Chelford your hopes of succession go like that!" He snapped his fingers.

"What are you suggesting?" asked Dick steadily.

"I'm suggesting that you are the Black Abbot!"

Not by so much as a flicker of his eyelid did Dick betray himself.

"I not only suggest it, but I'm prepared to prove it. On your way to town this morning you nearly collided with my car. As you skidded, your bag fell out of the dickey. I picked it up, threw it in the car and found it was open. In that bag was the robe of the Black Abbot, well worn, often used! Do you deny that?"

"You've got to bring proof of this." It was Puttler who spoke.

"Proof!" cried the other triumphantly. "I'll give you proof!"

He walked rapidly through the hall to where his car was, the two men following him. He had left the bag under a rug at the back of the car.

"There is the bag," he said, as he pulled the rug from its place. "And here"—he snapped open the bag——

It was empty!

"And here?" said Puttler encouragingly.

"It was there a few minutes ago: I saw it before I came into the grounds. Somebody has taken it. You!" he accused Dick.

Dick smiled.

"Sergeant Puttler will testify that I came straight from my car into your august presence," he said sarcastically.

"Why don't you accuse me?" asked Puttler. "I was out here all the time."

The baffled man looked from one to the other. It was impossible to believe that these two were in league. He knew Puttler by name to be one of the best officers Scotland Yard had ever had. He shrugged his shoulders and dropped his hands to his sides.

"You've beaten me, Alford," he said, "for the time being. But I'm satisfied the girl is within a mile of this house, and I'm not going to rest until she is found. Heaven knows why you've done it—she's fond of you, and there was no need——"

"Don't be a fool, Gilder," said Dick roughly. "If you want to help, help! But you're not going to help by thinking that I've raised my hand against Leslie Gwyn. I don't care whether you're a friend or whether you are an enemy, but if you can help us bring her back safely I will go on my knees to you!"

Dick's voice was trembling, vibrant; there was a look in his eyes which not even Gilder, for all his prejudice, could mistake. He held out his hand and Dick Alford took it with a grip that made him wince.

A SINGLE CAN OF MAZOLA TAKES THE PLACE OF

1. Imported Oils FOR SALADS
2. Butter FOR SHORTENING
3. Animal Fats FOR FRYING

for shortening

With many thousands of modern housewives Mazola has proven to be equal to butter in richness for shortening—that it makes better-grained, lighter cakes and crisp, flaky pie crust. To prove this follow your favorite recipe, using 1/4 to 1/3 less Mazola than the quantity of butter specified. Remember—Mazola costs less and you use less.

MAZOLA

for frying

Because Mazola is a pure vegetable oil—and when frying it does not soak into foods but covers them quickly with a crisp, golden brown—your Mazola-fried-foods are absolutely greaseless and easily digested. Never throw Mazola away after frying—merely strain it—use it again and again—as it never carries odors or flavors. Which is another Mazola economy feature.

MAZOLA

for salads

It is difficult to speak of Mazola for salad dressings and avoid the use of superlative descriptions. Therefore, briefly we state this: Search the world over—pay what you will—you can find no finer, better, cleaner, more wholesome and delicious oil than Mazola. Prove this yourself with this recipe for French Dressing: Mix together one half teaspoon salt—one teaspoon sugar—one eighth teaspoon paprika. Add eight tablespoons Mazola and three tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar. This delicious dressing may be made in TWO MINUTES!

FREE The new beautifully illustrated 64-page Corn Products Cook Book. It contains over 100 delightful recipes for preparing delicious foods. Write Corn Products Refining Company, Dept. A, Argo, Illinois.

PIE CRUST: Sift one and one-quarter cups pastry flour—three quarter teaspoon salt—one half teaspoon baking powder. Add four tablespoons cold water and one quarter cup Mazola. Mix quickly into dry ingredients. Toss on to slightly floured board and roll to desired thickness. This recipe makes one small double crust pie.

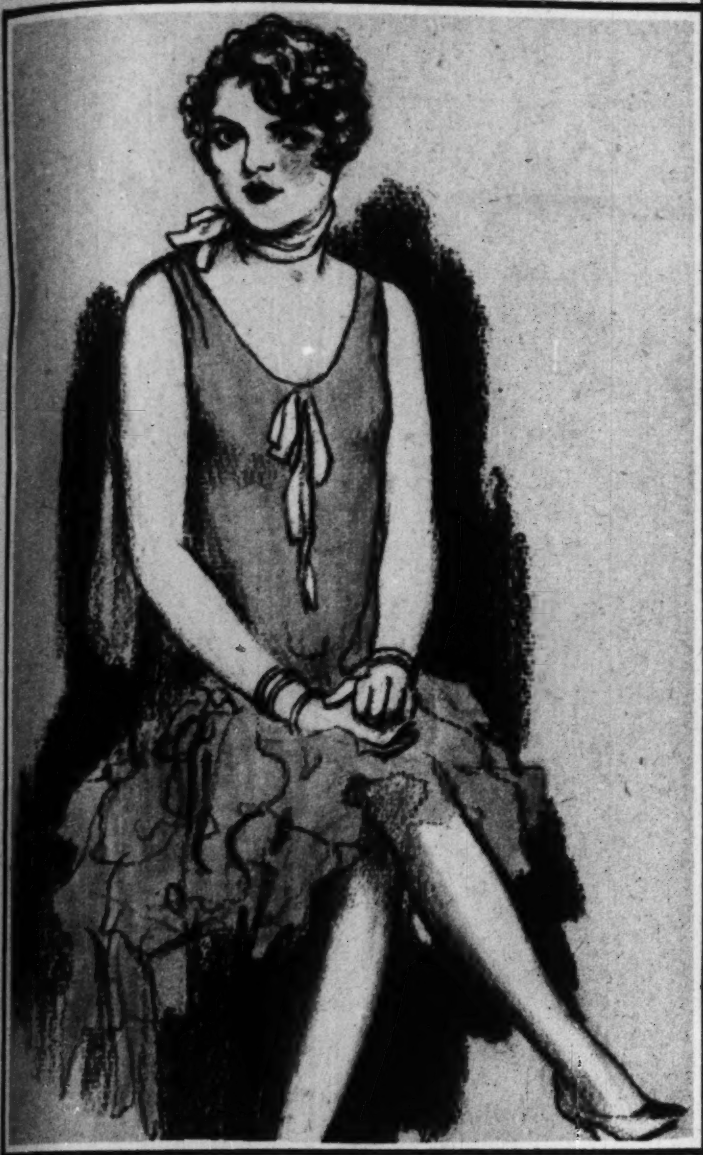
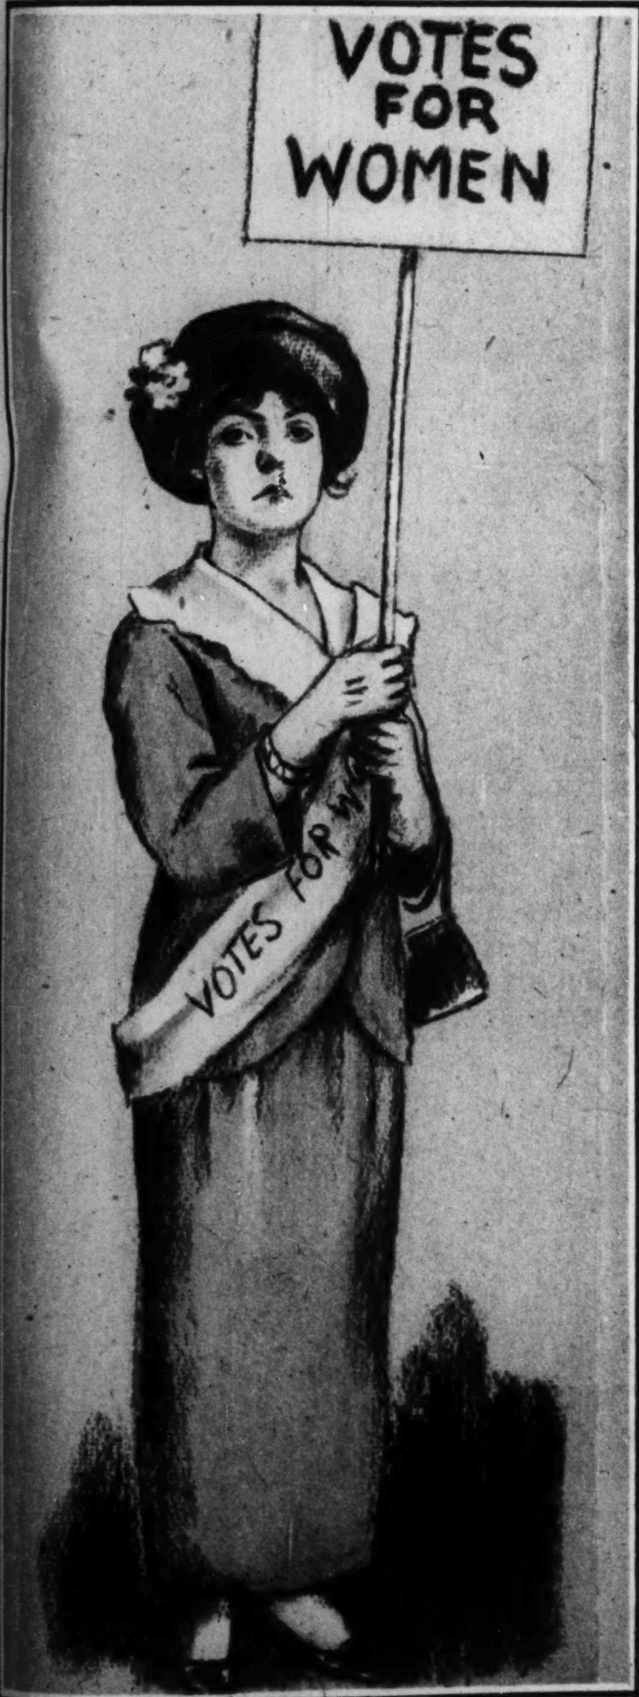
The Bachelor Girl

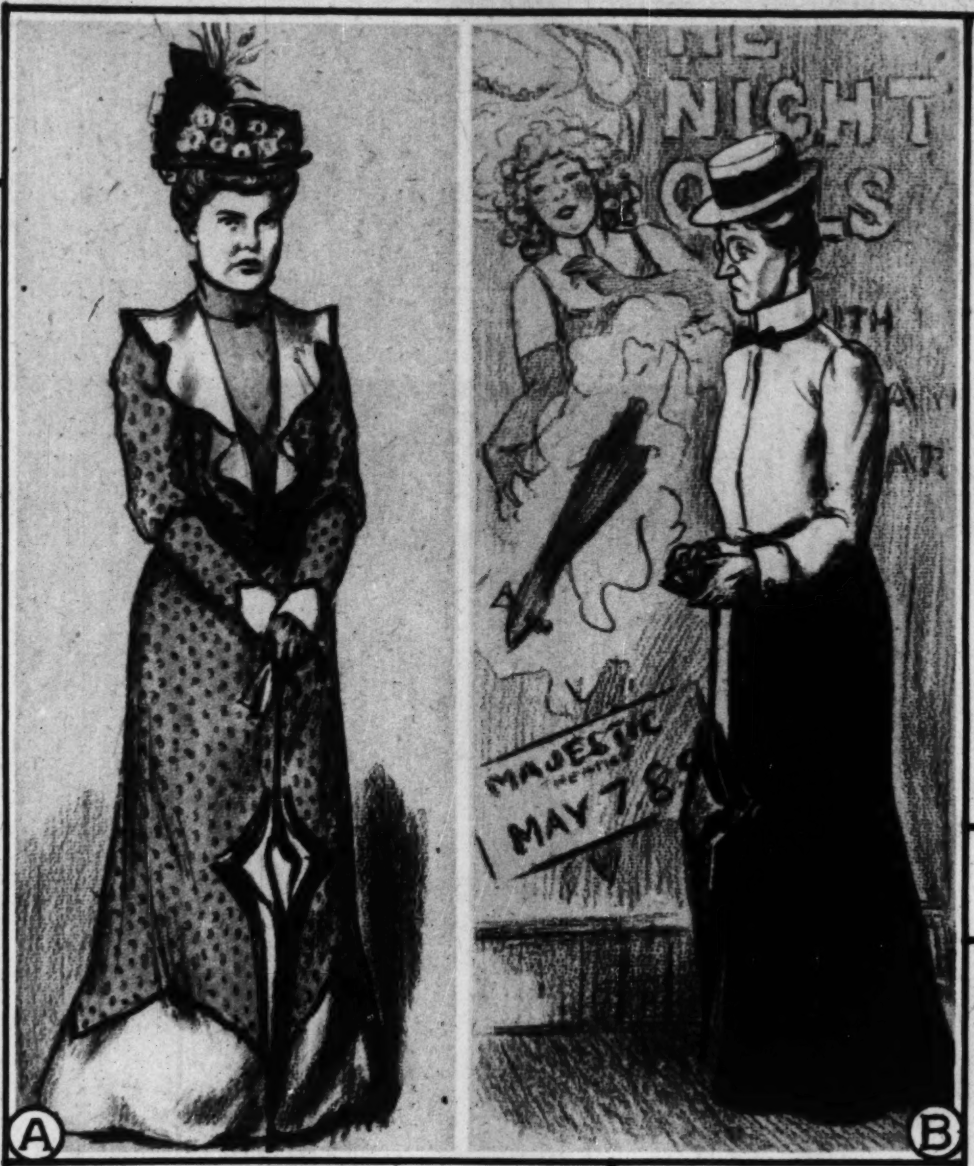
By W. E. Hill



This is Gladys, who loves 'em a little, and leaves 'em and has too good a time, generally speaking, to think of the married state. She's the despair of her wedded girl friends. Has a job in an interior decorator's office.

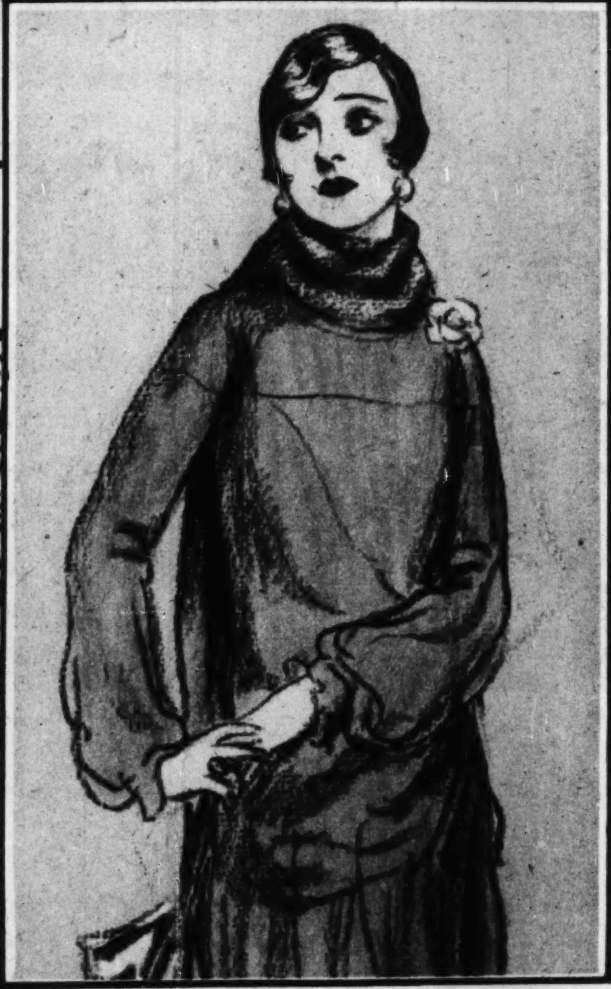


Votes for women. Meet the bachelor girl of the presuffrage days, when the single girl was beginning to feel her way. Great red-faced men used to make her see red with phrases like "Woman's place is in the home," and many a sassy jibe was hurled at her on the line of march. However, she still wore petticoats beneath the tailor-made.

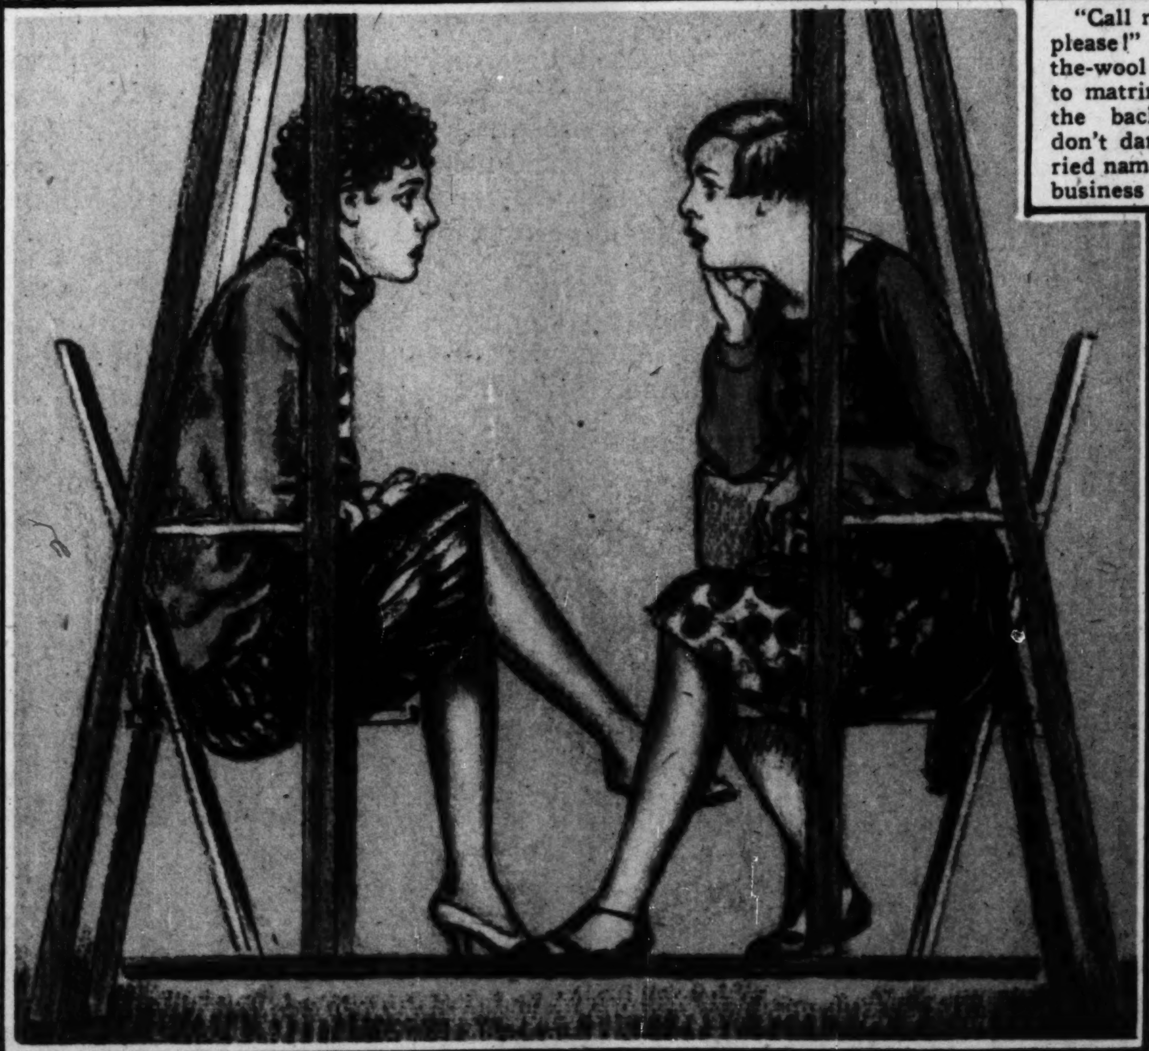


(A) The forerunner of the modern bachelor girl. She was very, very proper, and the much vaunted blush of shame mounted to her brow with almost no provocation at all. Anything stronger than "damn" or any reference to underpinning made her go hot and cold with mortification. No man who was a gentleman would think of smoking in her presence.

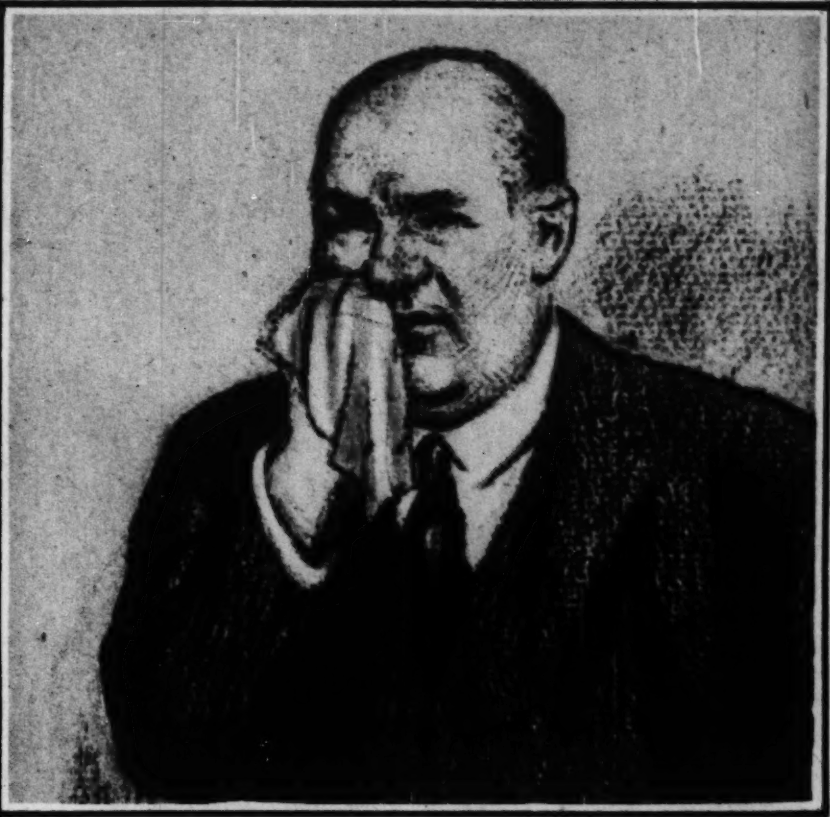
(B) Just an old-fashioned spinster, getting a shock from a billboard. In 1926, it's the billboard that gets the shock, when the bachelor girl passes by.



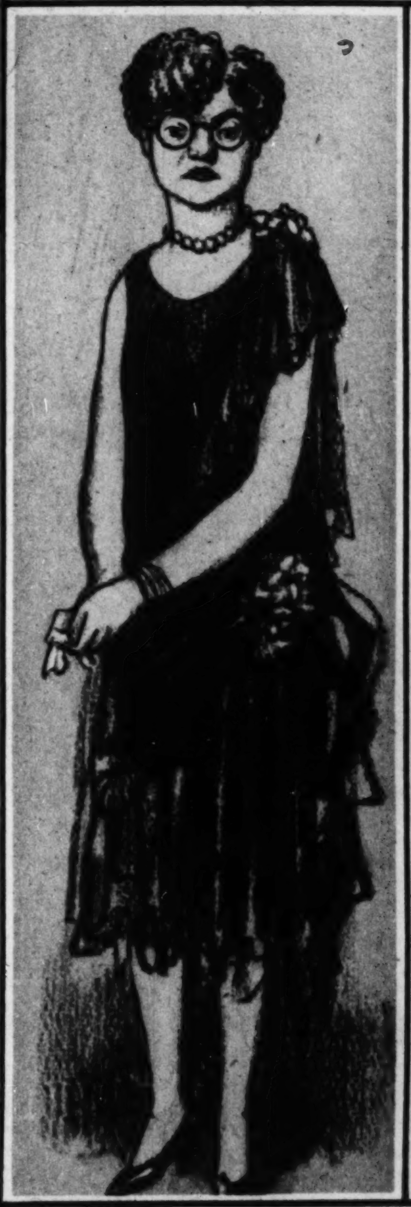
Not all bachelor girls are single from choice. Take Elsa, for example. Every time a suitor suits Elsa, her family steps in and becomes so chummy with the young man that he takes fright and runs. Then again, if they take a sudden aversion to the young man, as they sometimes do, Elsa has to give him up in deference to the wishes of papa, mamma, Cousin Lizzie, Aunt May, and Uncle Joe.



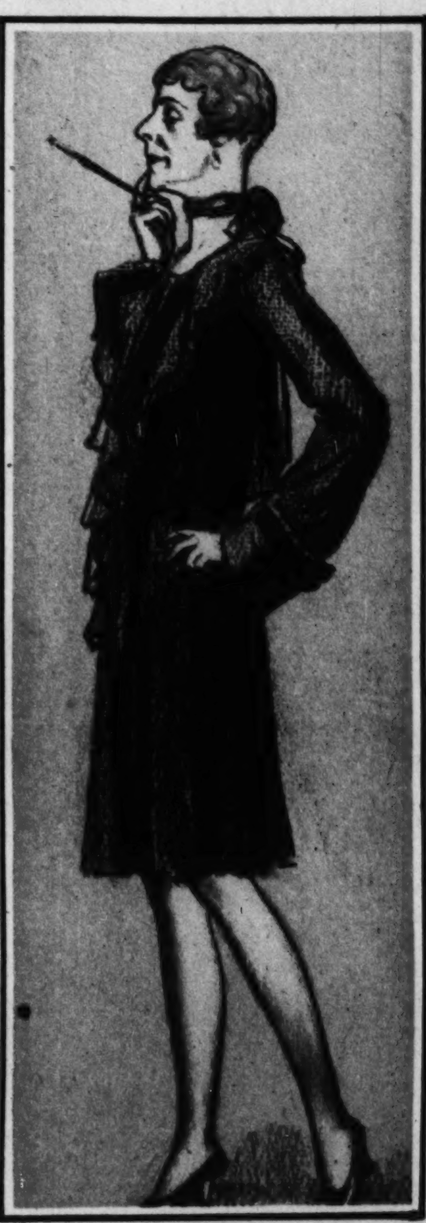
"He would come down to breakfast and say, 'Hang crepe on your nose, Mary; your brains are dead,' and then he'd laugh that silly laugh some men have till I thought I'd go crazy." Two bachelor girls in the making. Gert has been visiting a married friend, and O, the disillusionment of matrimony when viewed at first hand. Gert is telling her friend Josephine all about the horrors of a comic husband in the house.



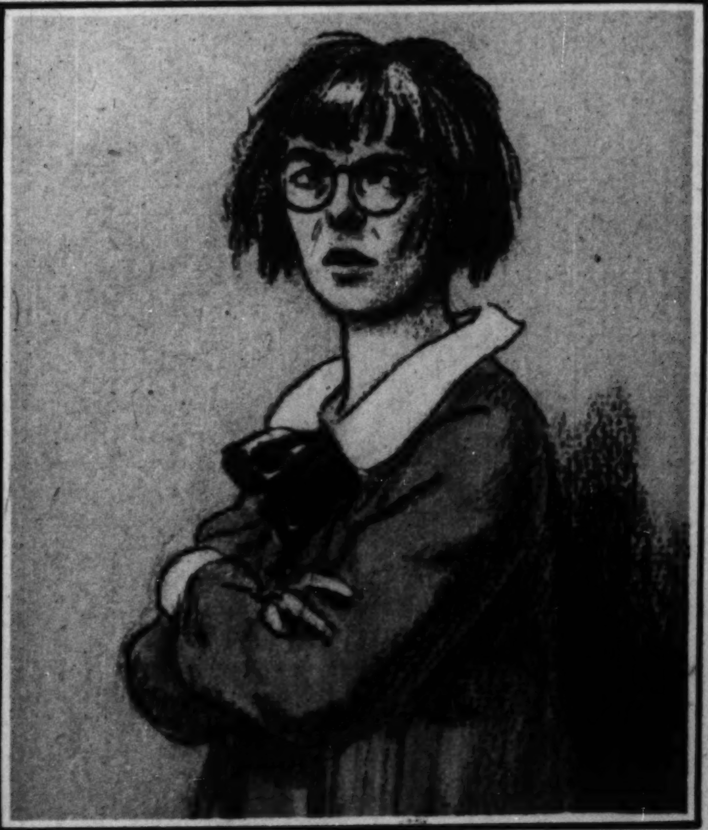
Oftentimes little things like the sight of a homely man with a snuffly cold or a dandruffy bald spot seen from above, keep the bachelor girl in a state of single blessedness.



"Call me by my maiden name, please!" Sometimes a dyed-in-the-wool bachelor girl succumbs to matrimony. She keeps it in the background, however, so don't dare call her by her married name if you meet her in the business world.



The elderly girl. There are no more old maids in these days of enlightenment—only bachelor girls with business careers who are too busy to marry. Time enough to think of connubial bliss when they are past 65.



The early bob. The bachelor girls who first bobbed their hair were considered just too advanced to live. They wore smocks and ran tearooms, and some of the most abandoned even smoked cigarets. And they were suspected, some of them, of bolshevist tendencies. Boy, they were high-brows!

SORRY I DIDN'T SEE YOU COMING, SONNY. BUT I HAD TO CLOSE THE GATE ANY WAY- THE TRAIN'S GONE.
MAYBE I CAN CATCH IT.
NO YOU CAN'T.
WHO SAID SO?
I SAID SO!
WHO TH' HECK DO YOU THINK YOU ARE AROUND HERE ANYHOW?
I'M THE TRAIN CALLER.
WELL, GO CALL ME ANOTHER ONE. I GOTTA GET OUT OF THIS TOWN!

SAYS IT PAYS TO KEEP YOUR SHIRT ON GOLLY! THAT POSTER MAKES MY HANDS ITCH FOR A STEER RIGHT NOW!
BIG CHICAGO ROUNDUP
GRANT PARK
TEX AUSTIN
RODEO
AUG. 14TH 24TH
GIVE ME A TICKET TO CHICAGO, BROTHER—THEY'RE GOING TO HAVE A RODEO UP THERE AND I FIGURE AS HOW I CAN PICK UP SOME EASY DOUGH—
I BET THE FOLKS IN THE CITY WILL THINK YOU'RE A COWBOY
GO EAST YOUNG MAN
COME ON, COME ON. STOP THE STALLIN'-SON.
THAT'S FUNNY- IT AIN'T IN MY POCKET OR MY HAT — MAYBE IT DROPPED IN MY BOOTS—
BUT I TOLD YOU I BOUGHT A TICKET TO CHICAGO.
WELL YOU'VE HAD SEVENTY EIGHT MILES TO FIND IT IN— NOW YOU CAN WALK THE OTHER SIX HUNDRED.
LET'S GO HANK
WHETHER HE THINKS I'M A LIAR OR NOT- I PAID FOR A RIDE ON THIS RATTLER AND I'M GOIN' TO TAKE IT—
I DON'T FEEL MUCH LIKE SETTIN' DOWN NOW, ANYHOW.
IMAGINE A GUY TRYIN' TO GET AWAY WITH THE OLD LOST TICKET GAG ON A OLD TIMER LIKE ME.
HEH HEH— GO TELL BILL UP IN THE MAIL COACH ABOUT IT, CONNIE— HE'LL GET A GOOD LAUGH OUT OF IT.
WELL I'LL BE A—
IT'S TOO HOT TO BE PUTTIN' YOU OFF AT EVERY STATION— I'M GOING TO PUT YOU WHERE YOU'LL STAY PUT.
I'LL TOSS THIS TELEGRAM OFF AT THE NEXT TANK TOWN WE GO THROUGH AND HAVE 'EM WIRE THE CHIEF OF POLICE TO MEET YOU AT OUR NEXT STOP.
TELL THE CONNIE TO THROW YOU YOUR SHIRT, BO— I BET YOU GOT THE MAKIN'S IN YER POCKET AND I WANT TO BUM A SMOKE.
BY GOLLY— WHY DIDN'T I THINK OF THAT BEFORE?
HEY— WAIT A MINUTE! LOOK IN MY SHIRT POCKET— THAT'S WHERE I PUT MY TICKET.

I SHOT MY ARROW AN' IT WENT WAY UP ON TOP OF A ROCK.
IT'S WAY UP BUT I CAN CLIMB UP TO IT.
THANKS. MY NAME'S SKEEZIX. WHAT'S YOURS
E-CLOY.
IS THAT THE WAY INDIANS DANCE?
HI-I-YI HI-YI.
HERE'S A WAY BOYS AN' GIRLS DANCE WHERE I COME FROM.
ATTABOY! YOURE GETTIN' IT E-CLOY.
WHERE THE DICKENS DID THAT KID GET TO. HE DISAPPEARS AS SUDDEN AS A PRAIRIE DOG. SKEEZIX!
HI YI YI! I DANCE LIKE INDIAN BOY. HI YI!
AGH!
YOW!
OH, I FORGOT MY BOW 'N ARROW, UNCA WALT!
